News In Brief

The Alabama State Fair will be held in Birmingham, September 28 to October 4. The State Fair of Alabama will be held in Montgomery, October 21 to 26.

Ice cream production in the United States continued to increase last year and reached a grand total of 365,448,000 gallons, as compared with 348,056,000 gallons in 1928.

Approximately $40,000,000 are lost annually in the United States through producing milk and cream of poor quality, according to the Bureau of Dairy Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Preliminary results of the last Federal census show that the population of the United States has grown 16.1 per cent since 1920. The growth was more rapid during the earlier part of the decade than during the last five years.

The estimated annual loss from fires on farms of the United States is approximately $100,000,000 worth of property and 3,500 lives. The annual fire loss in non-farm territories, cities and towns of less than 2,500 population, exceeds $160,000,000.

It is thought that new possibilities have been opened up for cotton growers by recent work of the U. S. Bureau of Standards in obtaining from cottonseed hull bran the sugar xylitol which, with other sugars, constitutes about 40 per cent of the material.

TOWN BEAUTY AN ASSET

In spite of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live, it is evident to any observer that the American people are developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages, and in the rural districts.

New towns and new sections of the older ones are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

New houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists, and they attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trade center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anywhere near equal.

Therefore, it behooves the authorities of any community, as well as each individual citizen, to make the most of their opportunities for improving the appearance of the place in which they live. Beauty and cleanliness are a town's best assets.

Objects of Education
In a recent series of articles Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, discussed some of the laws which he believes underlie a thoroughly modern education. Coming from such a distinguished source, they are worthy of serious consideration.

Among the principles he sets forth are these: We learn by action rather than by absorption; learning is specific; the things that will most directly contribute to our efficiency and happiness.

Like many other progressive educators of the present day, Dr. Frank does not believe that a college education is either necessary or desirable for everyone. The four years spent in college might often be better employed in gaining practical experience in a workshop or in business. It depends largely on the natural talents and inclinations of a young person whether he should go to college.

For one who is of a studious disposition and aspires to enter one of the learned professions, a college education is indispensable, of course. For those who go to college merely to be able to say that they have gone to college it is a waste of valuable time.

As Dr. Frank very truthfully says: "We cannot prove that a college education guarantees a big income, or that it makes us happier men or women."

Felt Bad After Eating

"BEFORE I started taking Black Draught, three years ago, my health was very bad," writes Mrs. C. C. Carson, 945 Concord St., Beaumont, Texas. "I suffered constantly from constipation. I had headaches when I got up in the morning, and I felt dull and sluggish. I hardly ate a meal that my food agreed with me. Frequently I would have gas on my stomach, and felt awful."

"I read about Black Draught, and I thought it might help me. After I had taken it a little while, I felt much better. It relieves constipation. I keep it on hand so when I need a laxative I will have it. In the three years I have been taking it, I have never found anything as good for constipation."

EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYEE

It has become an industrial axiom that good wages and a high standard of living for employees are essential to the progress and prosperity of any business.

This new relation between the employer and the worker is well illustrated at the town of Copperton, Utah, where one of the leading American mining companies has built a model city for its employees.

The purpose of the town was to give the workers a pleasant home life, which was impossible in congested mining camps. Copperton is some distance away from the mines and each home was constructed with a view to achieving the utmost in comfort, domestic efficiency and attractiveness. While employees pay a rental of only five dollars per room, the homes are said to be superior to many $5,000 and $6,000 structures in our cities.

This interesting social experiment has occasioned wide comment and has been a tremendous success. It is typical of the changed attitude of our progressive industries. It is an example of a new era of civilization, in which the right of every person, in every capacity, to good wages and living conditions, is recognized.

HARD TIMES SAVINGS

Savings deposits are about the poorest barometer of prosperity, according to a statement by the Federal Reserve Board, which shows that savings accounts in member banks are greater now than in the early part of the boom year 1929.

Several reasons are given for this situation. One is that people are more disposed to pinch and save in dull times, another is that much money which might be used for purchases of securities in normal times is now placed on time deposit. When people are reluctant to make new improvements or investments they are inclined to use the savings account as a means of obtaining at least a small return on their cash capital.

Therefore, little can be judged concerning general conditions by the amount of savings deposits at any given time.

WOMEN DICTATE AUTO FASHIONS

American women dictate the purchase not only of their own cars but for those of the family. Only bachelors run sheepishly around in automobiles of their own choice, Nicholas Trott, motor expert, declares in the current number of Woman's Home Companion.

"The mirror," says Trott, "is becoming a more powerful salesman than any well groomed man on a sales floor. When a woman wishes to look over a car, a long pier mirror is wheeled around so that she may see how her costume fits with the color of the body and how her lines coincide with those of the car.

"Body manufacturers," Trott says, "are kept on the jump to suit the tastes of women who want to match cars to their costumes. The woman who can afford but one coat is the most particular. Those with many costumes are less particular, but they are fastidious. I recently met a woman with a peculiarly colored dog. She was bound to have a painting job that matched him. She paid plenty for the car, but she got what she wanted, as most women car buyers always do.

"Red is often in demand as a color for a car, but we never let one go when we can, because of rules in outlying towns, which forbid cars to have the same color as those of the fire or police department.

"Gasoline tanks in cars were moved forward," says the writer, "because women refused to scramble out and watch the measure."

I TALKED the other day with a distinguished woman lecturer whose influence has been felt all over this country and abroad. Though nearly fifty years old, she had a complexion that would cause envy among most women only half her age. And when I asked her about her lovely skin, she said:

"Every woman should realize how very worth while it is to care for the skin. Beauty preparations are not just delicately perfumed creams and lotions in pretty jars and bottles, to be smeared on the face occasionally. They are much more. Good beauty preparations not only help a woman to form regular habits of skin care, but they help her to bring out the very best in her appearance."

Since she was a young girl this particular woman has made daily beauty care habitual. And one has only to see and talk with her to realize how great a difference it would make if every woman would do the same.

Too often older women imagine that youth leaves them at a certain age, and that it then is useless to try to have a beautiful skin and a little figure. Whether one is twenty, forty, or sixty, however, there is much that can be done to keep a youth-like appearance through simple beauty care at home. And if you will write to me about your own particular beauty problems, I shall be only too glad to pass on to you some of the secrets I have helped the well-known women preserve their youthful appearance.

YACHT AMERICA, LIFTED CUP IN 1851 NEARING 80TH BIRTHDAY

While the International regatta was being contested off Newport, down in Dewey Basin at Annapolis, the schooner yacht "America," which brought the cup triumphantly home from England, was straining at its hawsers. Though nearing its 80th birthday, the old yacht looked almost as trim as the day it took the cup from under the eyes of Queen Victoria.

In fact, Collier's Weekly recalls, the Queen was so astonished that she hardly realized the magnitude of the America's victory.

After the race, over a 50 mile course, in which the America was the only foreign boat entered, Queen Victoria turned to the quartermaster of her yacht. "Who wins?" she asked.

"The America wins, Your Majesty," replied the quartermaster.

"And who is second?" continued the Queen.

"There is no second, Your Majesty," said the officer.

The America sailed from the battery in New York, thrilling thousands of people. It overhauled and passed everything on the Atlantic and made the crossing in 17 1/2 days, making 284 knots in one day, a speed faster than some steam vessels of today.

At the Royal Regatta, the America was in fifth place after two miles. At 15 miles it was well out in front and from then on was like a dancing girl on a holiday. When it crossed the finish line, the next boat was not even in sight.

Clear Conscience Keeps Dove Shooters In Clear

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 19.—Before a person can be convicted of violating the Alabama law against shooting doves over a baited field that person must have knowledge that it is a baited field and that the act is illegal, it is held in a ruling announced by the attorney general's office yesterday.

The holding is set out in an opinion answering a letter from Commissioner of Game and Fisheries I. T. Quinn, who asked if a person who makes use of a baited field for shooting doves, whether he has personal knowledge of such field being baited, violates the law and becomes subject to the penalty provided.

Answering the question in the negative the opinion states that before such a person can be guilty of the offense, he must have knowledge of the criminal element which makes it an offense.

Soups Test Culinary Skill

BY ETIENNE ALLIO, Chef, Hotel New Yorker, New York City

S OUP holds, and deserves, the honor of opening the evening meal in thousands of American homes. Than a perfect soup there is no more delicious dish. Than a poor soup--watery and tasteless--there is no more ruinous prelude to what otherwise might have proved a thoroughly soul and appetite-satisfying repast.

To avoid the disaster of a really poor soup is not difficult. Fairly good results are easy to attain. But to prepare the perfect soup? That is indeed an art which calls for all the housewife's skill in the choice and mixing of ingredients, and the use of seasonings. It is, however, an art which offers as its reward the heartfelt appreciation of all the diners at her board.

Potage a la Creme d'Epinards--Carefully wash and stem one-half peck of spinach. Cook in double boiler until tender, being sure that the water is boiling before putting the spinach in the boiler. Rub through a colander into a saucepan. Add two cups good stock. Season with salt, pepper, one teaspoon sugar, a pinch of mace. Bring quickly to the boiling point. Stir in one tablespoon butter rolled in one teaspoon flour. Cook one minute and remove from fire.

Potage Longchamps--Drain one can of peas into a saucepan. Add two slices of onion, three cups chicken stock, and one and a half teaspoons sugar. Bring to a boil and simmer for one-half hour. Blend in a saucepan, one tablespoon flour with one tablespoon melted butter. Pour in slowly, stirring all the while, the pea mixture. Bring to boiling point; then remove and put through strainer. Add one cup milk and a few sprigs of fresh mint. Reheat, removing mint in about five minutes, after it has had an opportunity to impart its delicate flavor. Add one-half cup cooked vermicelli and season with salt and pepper.

Potage de Carottes--Wash, scrape and slice thin, twelve medium-size carrots. Place in saucepan with two tablespoons butter. Season with salt and one teaspoon sugar. Cook slowly, turning constantly until the carrots begin to color. Add two cups good broth and let carrots boil slowly to a glaze. Remove carrots and press through strainer. Return to the broth in the saucepan. Simmer until very hot, and serve.

THE CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

J. B. ATKINSON, PUBLISHER

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Alabama in the interest of Clanton and the entire Chilton County

BILLY SMITH Editor

Entered in the postoffice at Clanton, Alabama, as second class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897.

Maybe They Will Need Help This Winter

With the approaching of cooler weather, which is followed by cold weather, comes the need in every family for many things not used, and not needed during the summer months. Some families over the county are able to provide themselves with whatever things are necessary for comfort during the winter months, while there are numerous families in our county that are not so fortunate as those who will be comfortable, and will no doubt be in actual want, some probably even suffering for the lack of proper clothing and food.

This maybe especially true at this time, when farm crops were short and brought low prices causing many farmers to have to use what money they could raise to pay off debts made during planting time, and leaving little or no money with which to face the winter. This statement is not meant to arouse sympathy, nor neither is it imaginary. It is a fact that this condition really exists in our county, and there will be many families who will be in want. The majority of these families have children in them who, by law, will be required to attend school, and should not be prevented from doing so through a lack of sufficient clothing for the winter, nor should they be made to suffer from the cold while going to and from school.

There exists also, another condition in our county. A condition opposite to the one referred to above. That condition is among those fortunate families who will not be in want. Their children will be well clothed for school during the cold months to come soon. The parents will see to that, and no doubt new clothing will be purchased to take the place of that which was worn last year, and which will probably be discarded, or laid away until it is forgotten. Now to equal things up, giving the fortunate ones an opportunity to do a good deed, would be for them to take a little time to find out just what families were going to be in need of clothing this winter, and unable to get it. It can not be said that these families in need will not appreciate a gift of clothing, although it had been worn at some time. Our County Welfare Worker will no doubt, be glad to point out the conditions over the county to anyone interested, and surely everyone must be interested in doing something to aid the poor and needy.

Buy the Goods You Need Now And Hasten Business Revival

From many sources have come suggestions lately that those who have money should lose no time in buying the things they need now or will need in the near future. This is recommended as one way in which the individual can help bring business out of its present slump and cause a return of the prosperity the country enjoyed prior to the stock market crash last fall. It is also pointed out that now is a good time to buy because prices are down.

Newspapers in Chicago have been conducting a campaign to stimulate retail business by encouraging the people to purchase goods to supply their present requirements and needs for the future while prices are low. Prospects are that prices will advance in the fall, it is declared, so the one who purchases now will probably save money, for himself in addition to helping others by a contribution toward the revival of business.

Normal spending on the part of the public, it is averred, is a vital necessity, if additional men and women are not to be thrown out of employment, while it is recognized that the fear of losing their jobs on the part of many now employed probably has been largely responsible for a lack of buying. Those making money regularly have in many instances, no doubt, hesitated to spend anything above the cost of the bare necessities, believing it wise to save everything possible against the day when they might be out of work.

No one can discount the importance of saving a portion of the income in preparation for the inevitable rainy day and extravagant spending should never be encouraged. But holding back when we have the money to spend for something needed may react indirectly against us. A situation can be thus created, it is claimed, from which business will suffer more than it suffers from unemployment itself.

Former President Calvin Coolidge, the disciple of economy, is quoted as saying that the "principal consuming power in this country is the people who have work. Unless they buy of the other fellow, he cannot buy of them." Now certainly is an opportune time to buy. Prices are low enough to suit those of an economical turn and every dollar put into circulation will help speed up the return of normal prosperity.

There is also another way in which one may put one's money into circulation and help business to get back on its feet. That is by paying up accounts that are due or past due. This, of course, is the first obligation that we should discharge. Accounts should be paid before new purchases are made, but there are many who can pay their debts and still have money left for buying fall and winter supplies. Then there are many others who are square with the world and are in position to buy in good quantities now. For them there is no visible reason for delay.

Recently the Mayor of Boston gave his people some timely advice of this nature, stating that it was a good formula for improving business. He advised them to "shed the psychology of fear" and urged every family in position to do so to spend at least $20 on household needs in the way of manufactured goods. That expenditure, he rightfully estimated, would have a very appreciable effect in increasing business activity and decreasing unemployment. If a movement of that kind could get under way throughout the country, think what it would mean in the way of impetus to business. It would be a good start toward the much-needed general buying movement.

Almost a month ago The Manufacturers Record stated that pessimism was the greatest obstacle to the quick return of prosperity and urged that there be no hesitation in buying stable commodities.

"Psychology now enters in and may be said to be the chief remaining cause of such pessimism as still prevails," The Record said.

"Building can be done better and cheaper now than for years past. Work will be more carefully done than in rush time. Municipalities and state governments should use the opportunity to contract for necessary improvements, while individuals may very well regard the present as an opportune time to do the things they have been putting off. Prices are at a point where conservative buying and building and expenditures for necessary things can be safely entered upon."

The longer the people delay their buying, the longer delayed will be the return of normal business conditions." —Anniston Star.

"ROUND TOWN" ---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"While this old world goes round and round, some folks go up, some go down."

I think it is time for somebody to do something, and I am sorry I am not in a position to do something, instead of talking so much, but I do get paid for talking and writing, so I guess that is my business. Now that statement is just exactly what lots of folks in Clanton think about themselves. Yes, thinking of themselves, most of them, and then first thing they know they haven't—or have—done something they had no business—or something like that. From all the talk I hear round town, somebody has failed to do something they should have done and it is causing lots of talk.

Dropped into the Farmers Hardware Store the other day, just for a look around, satisfying some curiosities, and other things. Well, I satisfied them. I found that that hardware store is doing business right along. They have clerks there who know their business and the people are beginning to realize that, judging from the number of customers in there. Another thing I like about the Farmers Hardware Store is that they advertise, and do it right.

Notice that the Taylor Wholesale Grocery Store is doing some improvement in their building and it makes things look better in there, then on down the street, Dr. Hayes is having his building, the former post office building, worked over and making one building out of two. On further up the street, where they have erected the new Sinclair Service Station, H. M. Bates is running it now, and Buck Roberts is keeping the tanks filled with gasoline.

Speaking of gasoline, makes me think of "Dubb" Huddleston, who is now the proud parent of a fine baby boy. The new arrival has assumed the responsibility of being the first grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson, and which makes Gaston Robinson an uncle, and there is no telling what else the youngster will cause before it is over.

Miss Mabel Howard is back in Clanton after being away for sometime visiting in Chicago. By the way, she was born up there, or near there. —Patrons of her beauty shop will no doubt be pleased to learn of her return. She made the trip by motor in company with her mother and sister, of Thorsby.

I kind of like to imagine Clanton having some more paved streets, especially those where I have been accustomed to walking. I just like to imagine lots of fine things of Clanton, but I suppose we will have to get rid of certain obstacles before these imaginations are made into realities. Maybe sometime Clanton will grow into a big thriving city, but it can't do that within such a small limit as it has, but visitors here always say that we have a nice little town, and I think they are right, and everyone else here ought to think the same thing.

Hear the other day that Charles Moore is going to attend Vanderbilt University, and will study medicine. Well, Dr. Moore won't sound so bad. But it's going to be tough on some of the ladies while he is away. And that reminds me of something—I just must become better acquainted with our lady teachers here this year. Some, I am already well acquainted with, but there are others, new ones, and most everything new is quite a novelty at first, and I kind of like novelty. However, I am keeping an eye on them, cause maybe they will forget sometimes and give themselves away, that is, I mean, forget and show their true self, because really most everyone these days is pretending to a certain extent, and I suppose that is what makes life so interesting to some folks.

If it isn't one thing it is another. Now I got to say something about those big freight trucks being allowed to stop out in the street to deliver their cargo to various stores here—and they tell me there is no revenue coming into the town's funds from this sort of business, when the railroad is annually paying licenses and taxes to the town as well as the county. It appears to me like something COULD be done about those trucks obstructing traffic on our main streets. Wouldn't it look funny to see one of the big freight engines of the railroad drive up Main Street and deliver freight from its cars? And yet they tell me that traffic is even being directed around these trucks, while the drivers deliver freight here. I always like to welcome visitors to our town, but they are one kind I can't see how I can welcome them here, when we have a perfectly good railroad at our service, that is paying license and taxes here, and which is one thing that helped in a great way to put Clanton on the map. I wonder if freight trucks will ever put Clanton on the map any more than it already is.

Lamar Jeffers To Be Speaker at Convention

Veterans of 82nd Division Will Hear Congressman at Reunion

Major Lamar Jeffers, congressman from the Fourth Alabama District, will deliver the principal address at the memorial ceremonies at the annual reunion of the Eighty-second Division veterans this week in Atlanta.

Congressman Jeffers is now attending the annual meeting of Fidae, international organization of World War Ally Veterans.

The following is a story from the Atlanta Constitution concerning the reunion of the "All American" Division: "Congressman Lamar Jeffers, of Alabama, one of the most widely known orators in the South and prominent in national affairs for his interest in the Word War Veterans, will deliver the principal address at the memorial ceremonies which will be a feature of the Eighty-second Division's reunion September 26 to 28, it is announced by Captain W. A. Sirmom, chairman of the program committee.

"Mr. Jeffers, himself a veteran of the A. E. F. will deliver his address on Sunday afternoon, September 28, at the Fox theater, which has been tendered the Eighty-second Division by the manager, Carter Barron. The ceremonies will be open to the public.

"Estimates of attendance at the reunion of the 'All-Americans' has grown within the last few days, as more letters and telegrams have arrived at the headquarters, 72 Broad Street, N. W., announcing the coming of old 'Camp Gordon men' from all over the country. Many of these will be entertained at private homes where they were guests 12 years ago during their training period at Camp Gordon."

Sentence Awaits 3 Convicted, Fake Cash Case

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 23.—Sentence was to be passed by Judge Grubb Tuesday on three Cullman men, Ed Estes, his son, Feltus Estes, and John Ponder, found guilty in Federal Court here Monday on charges of making and distributing counterfeit currency.

Two other men, Walter Allred and A. L. Cannon, both of whom are serving terms in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary pleaded guilty to the same charge and were given added sentences of one year each.

Andrew Ponder and Junious Burrows were acquitted. Secret service agents arrested the seven men after an investigation of two years, it being specifically charged that they distributed 50 bills of $20 denominations among Birmingham business concerns in 1928.

Allred turned government witness and testified that Ed Estes employed him to make the spurious money which secret service men, said was a hand drawn-and almost perfect, being made with pen and ink. Allred has been serving an eight-year-sentence in connection with a previous conviction for counterfeiting and Cannon has been serving a two-year term.

The cases were prosecuted by United States District Attorney Kennamer with the defense being represented by C. E. St. John, of Cullman, and Douglas Taylor of Huntsville.

News In Brief

Feeding grain to sheep is seldom profitable when grazing is good. Sometimes flocks maintain good condition and lambs can be marketed without any grain. About 100 pounds of grain in a year for one ewe and her lambs is the most that can be used profitably under any conditions. The method that is most economical and most likely to keep the flock in good condition provides frequent changes of pastures and grazing crops, with winter rations of leguminous hays and some succulent feeds. If grain is fed, give it in winter and after the lambs are born.

Thorough plowing under in the fall of crop residues is the most practicable means of controlling two widespread tomato diseases, early blight and leaf-spot. When properly done, spraying and dusting are effective in controlling these diseases but the necessary applications are expensive and are difficult under some weather conditions. These two blights are caused by fungi that live chiefly on dead plant materials, and complete destruction of crop debris is the most economical means of depriving the fungi of food. Experiments conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicate that tomatoes grown on fall-plowed land are freer from blights than those grown on spring-plowed land.

Utilization of farm by-products, wastes, and surplus crops, through feeding to livestock, may mean the difference between profit and loss in feeding. More than $100,000,000 worth of corn stover and straws are burned, plowed under, allowed to rot in stacks, or otherwise wasted each year in the United States. Large quantities of inferior hay, grain, and roughage for RECENT BRIDE HONORED WITH SHOWER IN THORSBY, ALA.

Mrs. Aikens I. Collins and Mrs. J. Leonard Hayes were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Mrs. Walter Robinson, of Lay Dam, last week at the home of Mrs. J. H. Collins in Thorsby, Alabama.

The home was artistically and tastefully decorated for the occasion with roses and Zinnias. Punch was served to the guests as they called by Misses Edna Childress and Hilma Collins. Two piano solos were rendered by Mrs. H. Thomas Simms, Jr., and a very interesting flower contest was enjoyed, after which Mrs. MacDonald Pearson was awarded the prize.

The hostesses, assisted by Mrs. M. W. Marcus, served a delicious salad plate with iced tea to the following guests: Mesdames Leonard Lowery, R. R. Franklin, G. F. Harper, Mae Woods, E. R. Piper, Clyde Simms, Grover Bieg, S. W. Littleton, G. C. Wilder, MacDonald Pearson, S. C. Wood, R. C. Collins, V. J. Littleton, H. W. Marcus, H. Thomas Simms, Jr., E. V. Littleton, Marion Smith, Conntaser, Walter W. Robinson, Aikens I. Collins, J. CARILLON OF 72 BELLS

This month the largest carillon in the world was installed in the tower of the four million dollar Riverside Church in New York. It has 72 bells with a range of six octaves, the largest bell weighing 20 tons.

The carillon town is 360 feet high, into which the bells were hoisted by electricity, using steel cables.

Three bells in the world are larger than the big bass bell of the carillon, but it has the deepest tone. It is about eight feet high, its clapper alone weighing as much as the Liberty Bell, about a ton.

The tower and carillon are the gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He and his father are the largest contributors to the new church, of which Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick will be the pastor when it is opened for worship in October.

Riverside Church, with its great carillon, will be a notable addition to the many fine religious edifices of the nation's metropolis.

which there is no ready market may be advantageously fed to livestock. Cottonseed meal is often used as a direct fertilizer in sections where it is cheap—though it is usually more profitable to feed it to stock. Crops such as potatoes and peanuts may be so plentiful and cheap as to warrant feeding the surplus to stock instead of storing them.

Verbena High School

A very prosperous school year is predicted for the High School of Verbena, Alabama. The school opened with a large enrollment of enthusiastic pupils. Two new additions to the faculty are Miss Wible, a graduate of the University of Alabama, and Mr. Wooten, a graduate of Howard. Great interest is being shown in all school work, especially in the classes of physical education. The pupils enjoy the courses of physical training advised by the State Board of Education, as there is a variety of games everyone can enjoy. Everyone is working hard to get points for the Point Record System.

The various clubs of the school are being revived. The Current Events Club began work immediately. The meetings, so far, have been business meetings. The English Club will begin work soon. The two literary societies will be reorganized this week. Every member is looking forward to their opening.

Two sets of Encyclopedias and one set of O. Henry have been added to the library.

The P-T. A. will be reorganized Thursday of this week. All the parents are invited to attend the meeting which will be held at the Grammar school building at 3:15.

IN MEMORY OF IRA HEADLEY

On the 11th day of September the Death Angel visited the home of Monroe Headley and carried the spirit of his father to that Great Beyond where there will be no more pain nor sorrow. His place is vacant, which none can fill. He was up till the last as he had often said he wanted to go without being sick. His death was very sudden to his family, although he was 97 years of age.

We thank the Lord for being kind enough to give him to us for so long. He leaves to mourn his death his wife, one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Hays and two sons, Walter and Monroe Headley, 12 grandchildren, one great-grandchild and a host of relatives and friends.

Oh, how we miss him, no one can tell, but the Lord said it is enough, come home, I have a place prepared for my children where pains nor sorrow never enter. His body was laid to rest in Pleasant Grove cemetery with Rev. B. Lawrence conducting the ceremony.

Letter To Negro Farmers Of County

We are asking you to plant your fall and winter garden to feed your family and livestock such as pigs and poultry through the winter. You may plant rape, cabbages, onions, beets, lettuce, turnips and spinach, rutabagas. In this depression with our corn crop short by sowing some rye for grazing.

We should sow some vetch and Austrian winter peas where we are going to plant corn next year. This cover crop will save you from buying nitrate of soda next spring for your corn.

We should sow some fall oats, so that you can have some early feed for the mules and horses. Do this for yourself and to meet an emergency.

Yours truly,

MISS ASTORIA TYUS HONORED

The following was clipped from the Prattville Progress of Thursday, September 18:

Misses Jessie and Gladys Gibbons entertained a group of their friends at a wainer roast in honor of Miss Astoria Tyus, of Clanton, Ala., at their home Wednesday evening of last week. Games and dancing were enjoyed by the guests among whom were the following: Misses Astoria Tyus, Jean and Ruth Fischer, Annie and Elizabeth Parrish, Jessie Jacks, Juanita Chisum, Althia and Rena Surles, Annie Jones and Messrs. Smith Hunt, Mack McClain, Billie Newman, Frank and Buford Gibbons, Arthur, Arnold and Ralph Meek, Bob Moncrief, George Thomas, Wallace O'Brien, George Ray, Grover Walker and Eddie Jackson.

Miss Lillie Belle Riggins, who has been attending Massey Business College in Birmingham, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Riggins. Miss Riggins has recently made a trip to Illinois and several other states. She will return to Birmingham soon, to take up her stenographic work there.

TELEGRAMS AND GAS

It was recently noted that gasoline filling stations were branching into other lines by adding tins, tobacco and cigarettes, sandwiches, cold drinks and even books to their stock in trade.

Now it is announced, that they are to become branch offices for telegraph companies, where tourists and others may fil telegrams. In some cases written messages will be delivered to telegraph offices by filling station attendants; in others the sender may use a slot telephone into which his toll may be deposited.

It is reported that one telegraph company has arranged for 3,500 filling station branches under this plan and is negotiating for 2,500 more, while another company will arrange for 3,000.

The new system will be advantageous to persons living in many rural communities as well as to tourists, it is believed. At the same time, greater convenience in telegraphing will doubtless increase this method of communication very materially, which is naturally what the companies have in mind.

Three States Plan Coosa Development

Rome, Ga., Sept. 23.—The support of distinguished representatives of three states, pledged at the conference here, has given impetus to a movement to develop the Coosa-Alabama River system for navigation.

Outstanding residents of cities concerned with the progress of the project set about raising a fund of $11,500 to be used by the Mississippi Valley Association in furthering an educational program in the ninth inland waterway district. The proposed Coosa-Alabama improvement is the major undertaking in the district at present.

Under a quota system Mobile was asked to raise $2,500; Atlanta $1,000; Montgomery and Wetumpka, $1,000; Selma, $500; Rome, $750; Anniston, $500; Birmingham, $2,000; Gadsden, $1,000; Tuscaloosa and Pensacola, $500 and smaller cities in proportion.

Under a general plan government nine-foot channel in the Coosa to its junction with the Alabama and thence via the Mobile River to the Gulf. An arrangement of locks and dams for the varying seasons is contemplated. One estimate of the cost is $40,000,000.

No resolutions were passed nor final action of any kind taken at a conference Monday attended by Gov. Graves and Senator Black, of Alabama; Senator Harris and Gov. Hardman, of Georgia, and Senator Brock, of Tennessee. The consensus of the conference was that a final survey of army engineers, upon whose report government participation depends, was to be awaited before final action.

Cyclist Pedals Way from Clanton to New York, Washington, and New London, Connecticut

There have been endurance tests of all shapes, types, and what-have-you, that have gained recognition over the entire world. These feats have been performed in various parts of the world bringing the name of towns and cities to the front on their account. Now Clanton has sent forth a young man on a bicycle—just an ordinary red bicycle—and the most recent communication from him came from New York City, that was the middle of last week.

This cyclist, who has pedaled his way from Clanton, Alabama to New York is Ray Thompson, brother of Leo Thompson, manager of the Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Company of this place. Ray left Clanton something like three weeks ago, and had as his destination New London, Conn. A card received sometime last week from him, stated that he had arrived safely in Washington, D. C., and had had only one puncture at that time, "and no motor trouble." The most recent message stated that he had three punctures between here and New York City.

One of the worst obstacles Ray has seemed to encounter on this pedal-pushing trip was the mountains of Virginia, and no doubt he has had to reshoe after pushing his bike up the hills there. Ray stated that he expected to arrive at his destination last Sunday, and at this time it was not stated whether he is there or not, but it is a sure thing he will get there. The distance from Clanton to Washington is approximately one thousand miles, and then from there to New York is something like 260 miles. From Clanton to New London, Conn., the distance is estimated to be between 1400 and 1500 miles.

Whether the local cyclist will attempt to return to Clanton in the same manner he left, is not known, but it is certain he has accomplished something very few others have ever attempted, and has seemed to like it.

Baked pears are a pleasant variation from baked apples. If the flavor is not very pronounced, a little lemon juice will tone it up.

Under ordinary use a floor needs re waxing only two or three times a year. Applying too much wax is a common mistake. Oil should never be used on a waxed floor as it softens the wax.

Shoes that are too large are a misfit. The foot is not snugly supported. Blisters are often formed, especially on the heel and stockings are needlessly worn into holes. Shoes should be correctly and carefully fitted.

Salt and sweet, judiciously used, is a good combination of flavors. Sweet potatoes go well with ham, tongue, and other smoked meats. Jelly, and spiced preserves are good with ham or corned beef. Some people like both sugar and salt on a cantaloupe. Serve saltine crackers with a fruit salad.

WHAT MAKES CHILDREN DISHONEST?

Dr. Lawson G. Lowery, who is an authority on "Child Behavior" suggests that a dishonest child may have caught the trick because his father or mother lied to others in his presence. He thinks a parent willing to tell a child "anything" to get him to do what is wanted is tilling a fertile field for dishonesty. He believes that when we brag before the child of some clever thing that we have "put over" by methods more sharp than right, we are sowing seeds that are sure to spring up. He also insists that we encourage a child to dishonesty when we are unnecessarily harsh in our punishment, severe in repressing childish fun, or too close in our restriction of the youngster's liberties. He even goes so far as to say that the easy parent who will shield her child from every consequence of dishonesty of life. Let Hot Sandwiches Help Keep Friendships Warm

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company.

THE little suppers we serve when people drop in informally to pass the evening, can be made most enjoyable affairs. The food served does not need to be elaborate, but the menu should be carefully planned so it will be attractive without requiring too much preparation.

Hot sandwiches are especially nice to serve on such occasions and they can be made very easily and quickly. Served with Spanish Queen Olives, pickles and relishes, such sandwiches form a complete party meal, though crisp cups of lettuce, filled with Chili Sauce, Sandwich Relish or cold slaw, are favored by many hostesses as a delicious accompaniment.

Serve some of these appetizing sandwiches at your next party, for everyone is sure to like them:

Open Club Sandwich:

Cut bread 1/3 inch thick and toast quickly so it will not be hard and dry. Then butter each slice. On one slice place a lettuce leaf, and then a slice of tomato. Spread with Salad Cream, and a tart spicy dressing, which is perfect for this type of sandwich. Next add two slices of crisp bacon. On a second slice of buttered toast place a slice of chicken or other cold meat—it may be veal or pork, or in an emergency, a layer of deviled ham. Sprinkle with shredded lettuce or watercress, and top with a spoonful of Sandwich Relish. Arrange the two slices of toast on a plate, and garnish with slices of tomato or Fresh Cucumber Pickles.

Toasted Ham and Olive Sandwich:

Brown thin slices of Sandwich—baked or baked ham (or you could substitute bacon or the ham). Then add 1/2 cup Stuffed Spanish Olives, sliced, and heat in the hot fat.

Place the ham or bacon on slices of buttered toast, add the Stuffed Spanish Olives, cover with additional slices of toast. Cut in half and serve with a tiny crisp lettuce cup filled with Chili Sauce.

Supper Sandwich:—Slice white bread 1/2 inch thick, and spread each slice with a thin layer of Prepared Mustard Sauce. Flake the contents of one can of tuna fish, and mix with Sandwich Relish, using half as much Sandwich Relish as Fish. Spread generously between slices of bread, and press firmly together. Dip in slightly beaten egg to which has been added 1/2 cup milk, and salt and pepper to season. Brown quickly in a skillet with several tablespoons butter. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve very hot, garnish with watercress, or a tiny lettuce cup filled with India Relish.

Peanut Butter, Bacon, and Chili Sauce Sandwich:

For each sandwich

toast two slices of bread on one side only. Spread the untoasted side of one slice with Peanut Butter blended with Chili Sauce. Place slices of crisp bacon on the untoasted side of the other slice, and put the two together. Garnish with Preserved Sweet Pickles.

Double Decker Sandwich:

Cut rye, white or whole wheat bread in thin slices, allowing 3 slices for each sandwich. Spread with Prepared Mustard Sauce. Place a leaf of lettuce and a thin piece of American Cheese spread with Prepared Mustard Sauce on one slice, and cover with a second piece of bread. On this lay boiled ham or tongue, and spread generously with Sandwich Relish. Cover with a third piece of bread. Press firmly together and cut in half diagonally. Place a Pickle Fan on top of each half. This may be served with cold slaw.

To Make Pickle Fans:

Using Preserved Sweet Gherkins, cut up this parallel sections almost the length of each pickle. Then carefully spread out the sections like a fan.

Pershing Aids Baby In Getting New Home

General Pershing, in the role of good angel, is responsible for a luxurious home for an unknown baby, it is revealed in the American Magazine for September.

Florence Walrath, of Evanston, Ill., who besides being mother to four children and grandmother to many, conducts one of the most noted homes for children of unfortunate parents in America, tells how the former leader of the A. E. F. confided to her his wish that a grieving widow of well-to-do circumstances might be given a child for adoption, to occupy her mind. It was arranged, says Mrs. Walrath, and her selection was a happy one.

"The demand for adopted babies," says Mrs. Walrath, "exceeds the supply. Boys are most wanted, but we haven't even enough girl babies."

"We do not tell adopting parents one word about the baby's parentage or history, no matter how well we know it ourselves. We believe in frankness and think that the child ought to know from the first that it is adopted. But we think that the parent ought to be able to say truthfully, at the age of questions: 'Son, I don't know your story. I don't want to know. You've justified us a thousand times."

Mrs. Walrath started her campaign for adoption of children when a friend lost her first and only child. Seeking a little one out for the friend, she developed the idea, and The Cradle Society since, has comforted thousands of women. More than 250 babies are adopted annually from The Cradle. Businessmen and women assist Mrs. Walrath in supporting her institution.

A PUBLISHER'S GIFT

Philadelphia is to have a great civic cultural center through the gift of $4,000,000 by Cyrus H. K. Curtis, famed newspaper and magazine publisher of that city.

A beautiful building covering nearly a whole city block will be erected, having an auditorium to seat 4,000, a civic theater seating 1,500 and a smaller auditorium seating 600.

The large auditorium will be used for concerts by the Philadelphia symphony orchestra and performances by the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, also as a public forum and for large gatherings of various kinds. The whole will be managed on a non-profit basis.

It is encouraging to note the increasing tendency to make such gifts on the part of men of great wealth. In his newest philanthropic enterprise, Mr. Curtis, now 80 years old, is making a notable contribution, not only to culture and enjoyment of the present generation, but to many succeeding ones.

KEEP UP ADVERTISING, GO AFTER BUSINESS

R. H. Ballard, President of the Southern California Edison Company, Los Angeles, said:

"More new business is what we need and not so much talk of depression. Spend the money for new business campaigns and new advertising, and the results will be surprising. The people have the money and will buy goods, I believe, if somebody has the courage to sell them the buying idea."

He pointed to increases in savings deposits, gains in new life insurance in force and increased buying of bonds as evidence of the ability of consumers to buy goods if they so desire. Affected, however, by the pessimistic drift of national comment, the public is reluctant to buy and consequently is building up a tremendous backlog of purchasing power.

This backlog should and can be tapped, declared Mr. Ballard, if American business men snap out of an apathetic state of mind and employ redoubled efforts to produce new business. This is not the time, in his opinion, to lay off salesmen and cut advertising appropriations.

The war memorial on Stone Mountain should also include a scene depicting the war over carving it.

$250,000 Is Sought Of Power Company

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 19.—Charging that the defendant negligently caused a large quantity of water to be released through a dam and to flow down the Coosa River against machinery and equipment of a cofferdam constructed near the center of the channel for the purpose of building a highway bridge at a point near Wetumpka, Ala., Carroll C. Smith and Fred R. Smith, doing business as Bosworth Smith Company, Thursday filed suit in Circuit Court of $250,000 damages against the Alabama Power Company, operators of the dam.

SEES FALL GARDEN AS DROUTH RELIEF

Fall gardens are recommended for drouth relief by Julian Brown, extension horticulturist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He says the garden is an important source of food supply and that it is not yet too late to act. For a quick supply of food he says first attention should be directed to the leafy vegetables. "Teh turnip salads are probably leaders in this class," he said. "Plantings of the Japanese types should be made immediately. This type produces quickly and is resistant to insects. In addition, a planting of the Seven Top variety should be made. This will stand cold and produce further into the winter. Specifically for turnips, the Purple Top Globe should be planted.

"Other leafy vegetables that should be planted," he continued, "are tendergreen, spinach, Siberian kale, rape, and lettuce. Tendergreen will usually produce greens in from 20 to 30 days. Lettuce should be planted fairly thick, fertilized heavily, and the young plants used as a raw salad."

To supply roots crops the expert recommends the planting of beets, carrots, radishes, parsnips, and turnips. He said all these should be planted immediately on account of early freezes.

Vetch and Austria; winter peas should be planted the last half of September and the first half of October. And those who want to enrich poor soil are planting.

"The drouth which cut the food supply short is another reason why Alabama farm people should plant a fall garden this year,"—Julian Brown, extension horticulturist, Auburn.

"What seems to grow fairer as life goes by... is the sight of flowers and the sound of music,"—John Richard Green.

should also be planted immediately, he said, and added that shallots should be transplanted for a supply of green onions throughout the winter.

The horticulturist said he was calling upon all gardeners to make plantings immediately for the sake of economy and health. "Seed sufficient to make a planting of all of these vegetables should not cost more than $1.50," he said. "If barnyard manure is substituted for a complete mixture of commercial fertilizer the cost will be very low."

Contests Opened

The American Society is sponsoring their Eight Prize Chemistry Essay Contest to high school students throughout the United States, and our school is expected to enter. The chief motive of this contest is to promote a greater interest in chemistry, to create a knowledge of investments, and to stimulate chemical engineering courses in college.

Another contest offered our school is being sponsored by the Birmingham News-Age Herald. This is the Oratorical Contest. The chief motive of this is, to give us a greater knowledge of the Constitution of the United States.

Sportsmanship

Are you familiar with the word "sportsmanship"? Begin now to achieve that infallible quality of happiness. Learn to play the game of life as a good sportsman plays football fairly, cooperatively, wholeheartedly, generously, and intelligently. You will unconsciously evolve that effervescent spirit which "loses with a smile and wins with the same feeling associated with it."

Holtville Vs. C. C. H. S. Friday 3 P. M.

The football team of the Chilton County High School will play its first game Friday, September 26. Coach Walker, with the aid and assistance of Mr. Varnell has whipped the team into form, in the few short days we have had to practice. The probable line-up will be: Left end, Theodore Littleton or Tom Tiffin; left tackle, Jesse Frank Foshee; left guard, M. D. Foshee or Warren Rigbins; center, Raymond Taylor or Darward Robinson; right

Stamps Quartette Donates To New Curtain For Stage

The original Stamps Quartette appeared in a concert in the high school auditorium last Thursday night. The program consisted of Southern melodies, spirituals, and semi-classical selections, as well as late popular songs. They not only entertained with quartettes, but with solos, duets, and readings. This was something new in entertainment, and everyone enjoyed the selections thoroughly. We were very sorry the weather was so inclement. Had it been a fair night, the door receipts would have been splendid. They came on a seventy-five twenty-five basis. The school received twenty-five per cent or $5.25 which was turned over to the treasurer of the P. T. A.

Home Economics Department Doing Great Things

1. Some aims of the home economics classes this year are to assist girls in acquiring an appreciation of what home economics can do for them in solving present personal problems which come in the field of this work, and in using the ability gained in solving problems in helping with the home.

2. To assist each girl in the job of home making which will train her in making her own home better in every way.

There are three enthusiastic classes who are going to work hard to make Miss Margaret Brown, their talented and accomplished teacher, proud of them when the year's work is completed. The home economics department has already put on many decided improvements which makes it look the part.

Field Is Place To Select Seed

In the field is the place and early fall is a good time to select seed corn, say agronomy specialists at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The best corn growers have found that they can get several more bushels of corn per acre by selecting in this way instead of from the crib.

By selecting in the field the farmer can see the stalk on which the ear grew, the quality of the ear, and see how many ears are on the stalk.

"The best time to select seed corn is before the blades have lost their green color," the specialists say. "When you find a stalk from which you want to save the ears mark the stalk by tying a string around it and leave it untouched until fully dry. Where this was not done the seed may be selected from the dry stalks."

Below are a few suggestions on selection as given by the Auburn workers:

"The stalk should be strong, thrifty, well shaped and not unusually high. Do not select from a stalk that stands out by itself and has had more fertilizer than the other stalks. Do not select from a stalk that has too many suckers."

"Choose ears at a convenient height from the ground. Ears that hang down from the shank are better than those that stand straight up. If you want to grow corn with two or more ears per stalk you must select from stalks that have two or more ears. This will usually be the top ear. If both ears are good, select both."

Ears per stalk you must select from stalks that have two or more ears.

"The ear should be firm, heavy, and medium sized. The tip should be well filled out and the kernels well shaped. The shucks and ears should be free from disease and insect injury."

Chilton County Abstract Co.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth. However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Why every telephone worker is a service salesman

The fact that more than 23,000 Southern Bell telephone men and women are enthusiastically promoting the sale of the service, is more than a matter of salesmanship.

It is a manifestation of their interest in the success of their Company and an expression of the spirit of co-operation which has made possible the epochal achievements in the telephone industry. They are inspired by pride in fifty years of progressive, unfailing service and loyalty to the ideals and traditions on which the business is founded.

They unhesitatingly recommend the quality, convenience and economy of the service, in the knowledge that no other comparable service or commodity gives to the consumer so much at such small cost.

Whatever your telephone service needs may be, do not hesitate to consult any telephone man or woman of your acquaintance. They are all anxious to give you the best possible service at the lowest possible cost.

Many a valuable boar is sent to the block when he should be kept in the breeding herd. There are not many sires of superior quality, and if a boar proves to be a superior sire it pays to keep him as long as he can successfully breed the sows of the herd.

Tests of the influence of soil fertility on cane sirup show that sirup made from cane grown on heavily manured soil frequently contains considerable sediment, but that sirup from cane grown on light soil is comparatively clear, the U. S. Department of Agriculture says.

Begin the education of the colt as early as possible. Handle and pet but never tease or "rough" a colt. A good plan is to break the colt to lead before it is weaned and to harness it between the ages of 2 and 3 years. Accustom a colt to work gradually and do not use it at heavy work until it is practically mature.

Steers will be in better condition for shipping if they are given such feeds as oats, flax, and linseed meal toward the end of the feeding period. Other grains and all laxative feeds, including silage and legume hay, should be reduced at least half during the last two to three days before shipping. Some dry roughage such as grass hay should be fed.

To liquefy crystallized extracted honey, heat it in a double boiler. Never heat honey directly over a stove or flame, as this injures the flavor. Most honeys will crystallize and harden if exposed to changes of temperature. However, many people prefer to use honey in the crystallized form. Honey heated higher than 160 degrees Fahrenheit quickly loses its delicate flavor and darkens rapidly.

Poultry need more mineral feed in proportion to their total feed requirements than most other classes of animals. Mineral feed is best supplied in the form of crushed oyster shells, or limestone, which furnishes calcium for the egg-shells. Steamed bone meal may also be fed to advantage, especially to supply phosphates. The bone meal may be mixed with the mash-ration. Bone meal contains lime and phosphorus, which are highly important for egg production.

Although canaries when acclimated can stand a good deal of cold, they are susceptible to sudden changes in temperature, and their cages should be hung away from drafts, says the Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is a good plan to hang a cage before a window, where the birds will get light and sunshine, provided it is draft-proof and kept closed in cold or stormy weather. Keep the room at a fairly even temperature day and night, and in cold weather cover the cage with a cloth at night, says the Survey. Don't hang a cage above a radiator, or in the kitchen.

There is no "best" breed of any class of livestock. The important thing is a good individual animal.

Bone-dry insurance at reduced rates for teetotalers is the latest development in that field. Bonehead insurance remains to be worked out.

Whether administrations are responsible or not, they get blamed for bad times. And never fail to take credit for good ones.

jail and find that it is now, and has been for a long time insecure and unsafe for keeping prisoners. From our investigation we find that the County Commissioners and the State Jail Inspector are taking steps to remedy the situation at the jail immediately. The Grand Jury feels that this should be done without delay. We find that the prisoners confined in the jail are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort.

The Grand Jury inspected the alms house in a body and find that the keeper is not operating the house or caring for the inmates in a satisfactory manner. The mattresses in the alms house are very thin, old, filthy, and infested with bed bugs. And the covering for the beds are unclean. We recommend that the condition at the alms house be brought to the attention of the proper state and county officials immediately. And we urge that the condition be remedied at once.

And now having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge in investigating all matters that we felt were such as to require and need a Grand Jury's attention we respectfully ask that we be dismissed until such time as your Honor may feel that our services are needed again.

in 1928, because I felt that it was a mistake. I have not as yet changed my mind, that that was a grievous mistake. There is, in my opinion, in this county sufficient number of Democrats to elect the Democratic ticket, if all would get together and organize and forget their personal grievances and prejudices. If we will let the party welfare be more important than our personal ambitions, we will all win. I can co-operate and knowing that I can, then I hope that I have taken the right step for the Democratic Party in this county, by taking a place among the rank and file. If all try to lead we may as well not start. If the rank and file will follow the leadership of the party we may expect a victory in November for our ticket. Letting the past be the past; may we go forward without any discord or confusion tearing us asunder. I hope we may."

Another meeting of the Democrats has been called for next Saturday afternoon, September 27th, at two-thirty o'clock at the courthouse, and all Democrats of the county are invited and urged to attend. At this meeting the election of a campaign committee for the county will take place, it was stated.

Clanton's miniature golf links, the Miss-A-Putt Links, are now being operated under the supervision of Mr. DeWitt Easterling, former prominent cafe owner here, and who also owns interest in a Miniature links at Dothan and at Ozark, Alabama.

Mr. Easterling states that it is his aim to have everybody in Clanton playing miniature golf as soon as possible. To this end he will award to the man who makes the lowest score in a 36-hole match at the Miss-A-Putt Links each Wednesday night, a very handsome prize, and to the lady making the lowest score on each Wednesday night in a 36-hole match beginning next Wednesday night, they will also be given a beautiful prize.

In the very near future, Mr. Easterling stated that the Miss-A-Putt Links will give as premiums, genuine Rogers Silverware to players. He also hopes to arrange for tournaments to be played between players from Clanton and Dothan and Ozark. Announcement of this will be made later.

DR. GRAGG SENATE CANDIDATE ON THE INDEPENDENT TICKET

Official announcement was made Tuesday of the candidacy of Dr. V. J. Gragg for the office of State Senator on the Independent ticket from the Fifteenth Senatorial District, which is composed of Chilton, Autauga and Shelby counties. His name will appear on the official Hefox ticket in the general election in November.

Dr. Gragg is probably one of the most prominent and outstanding citizens of this county. He is president of the Central Alabama Hospital here, was at one time Mayor of the Town of Clanton, and has rendered the town and county an unselfish service, and is now serving as president of the Clanton Kiwanis Club. He has practiced medicine and surgery in this section for many years, and has been holding prominent positions in the civic life of his community, demanding the respect of all who know him.

The News office received a pleasant call last Tuesday when W. T. Johnson dropped in for a visit. Mr. Johnson is a former resident of near Verbena, Alabama. He moved to Birmingham some time ago, and while in Clanton Tuesday, stated that he was now moving to Montgomery to make his residence, with his son, Dowdell, who is connected with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

County Agent Schedules Series of Meets

Mr. Stapp is scheduling a series of community meetings for the purpose of discussing fall crops and general farm problems confronting the farmers of the county. The meetings will be held as follows:

- Thursday night, October 2, Sardis Night School.
 - Friday night, October 3, New Cedron school.
 - Saturday night, October 4, Fairview school.
 - Monday night, October 6, Verbena High School.
 - Tuesday night, October 7, Enterprise school.
 - Wednesday night, October 8, Thomas Junior High School.
 - Thursday night, October 9, Concord school.
 - Friday night, October 10, Baker school.
 - Saturday night, October 11, Mt. Pleasant school.
 - Monday night, Oct. 13, Union Grove school.
 - Tuesday night, October 14, Collins Chapel school.
 - Wednesday night, October 15, Pleasant Grove school.
- Mr. Stapp will appreciate it very much if you will note the time of the meeting in your community and help advertise it. He says that he expects to attend the meetings even if it happens to be raining and that he hopes to have some of the bankers and other interested men of the county with him.

DON'T PARK YOUR CAR NEAR A FIRE PLUG WHEN AT HOME

The Volunteer Fire Department chief issued a warning to Clanton residents who have cars, this week, about parking their car near a fire plug, when they go home for the night.

On several occasions, during regular practice nights, it was stated, the volunteer firemen have stopped at fire plugs in the city, and found cars or trucks parked so near the plugs that it was impossible to get near it with the fire truck.

It is urged by the fire department that residents take care not to park their cars or trucks near the plugs, so that in case of fire in the neighborhood of the plug, they will have easy access to it, without hindrance.

BOY SCOUTS ARE GOING OUT FOR FINANCES

Clanton Organization Given Place In Alabama Area Council

Recently Clanton Kiwanis Club completed arrangements with officials of the Central Alabama Area Council Boy Scouts with headquarters in Opelika to enter Clanton as one of the Districts in the Council. This assures Scouting for Clanton and neighboring cities.

The Council with John J. Sigwald as Scout Executive comprises sixteen counties or one fourth of the State of Alabama. Mr. Sigwald has six districts from which he works. Opelika District, Selma District, Alexander City District, and now Clanton District are the administrative centers from which the work is given out to the surrounding territory.

Clanton District officials with the executives will help start to raise the $350.00 quota of the $4350 budget of the Council this week. Team workers will approach prospects to secure this quota. "The idea is," said Mr. Sigwald, "not to have only a few support the movement, but have many give a little that will make the goal of $350.00."

Scouting will soon be 21 years old in America. The local executive has been a scout since the age of twelve and since that time has served as a volunteer leader in every position of the Scout movement. Mr. Sigwald comes to Clanton with Scouting experience. He will set up the Clanton District scout officials with C. E. Stapp as the Chairman. Besides assisting in the finance campaign Mr. Sigwald will confer with each Scoutmaster as to his duties. While here he will tell local Kiwanians the immediate objectives of the movement locally.

Scouting teaches a boy two things: Character Development and Citizenship Training. At least two troops will be registered before the new year in Clanton. Besides a troop in Thorsby is already under construction.

This movement will give our boys between 12 and 16 years of age the very things men necessary to develop into real men who shall be in the position to wisely govern our city in the near future.

Clanton Grammar School To Have A Lunch Room

The committee appointed by the P.T.A. with authority to make plans and act regarding the operating of a lunch room for the Clanton Grammar school has formulated plans whereby it is hoped that the children and the teachers will have warm lunch each day. The committee has engaged Mrs. J. W. Franklin to manage the lunch room on a salary basis, and it is hoped thereby to give the children wholesome and nourishing lunches.

This is a progressive step for our school and deserves the cooperation of all the patrons of the school. The P.T.A. committee believes that it will be cheaper for the children to eat in the lunch room than to bring lunches or go home to lunch, and of course everyone will realize the benefit of a well balanced warm lunch.

The P.T.A. has at present some of the necessary equipment, but for efficiency it will be necessary to have other equipment, and it is hoped that this may be obtained by a public shower to be given on Friday, October 10. The present plans call for the opening of the lunch room on Monday, October 13th.

Mrs. J. Q. Wade is expected to return to her home here this week, after spending some time in Hot Spring, Ark.

Democrats Select County-Wide Campaign Committees Here

Newly Elected Executive Chairman Is Swinging Democrats Of Chilton County Into Some Real Campaign Organizations

The Democrats of Chilton County, under the leadership of Dr. N. S. Johnson, of Clanton, have swung into real shure-nuff, campaign organization. Dr. Johnson believes that the Democratic Party has nominated a ticket from United States Senator on down, who will bring to the state and county an administration of the governmental affairs in a sane and sensible way and manner. He believes in economy and clean government and as the leader of the Democratic Party of this county invites every citizen to join with him in his efforts, together with those of the other Democrats, to elect men and women to office in November who believe in—and who in their own personal affairs practice—economy. Dr. Johnson, in an interview with a representative of the News, stated: "I am anxious to see an administration of the affairs of our state and county by men and women who believe in good government and who will keep down the useless taxes and burdens for the special benefit of a bunch of politicians and office holders." He stated that there are hundreds of men going about over the state at the expense of the taxpayers, checking up taxes and licenses, when we have a tax gathering organization here in the county together with a license inspector. This useless burden must be brought to an end and a return to sound and sane administration of our laws and running of the government, must be our goal in this great fight. We can return to economical administration of our government, if we will. The economic conditions coupled with the so called Hoover prosperity prevailing in this land and country of ours, seems to me to be sufficient reason to cause every qualified elector to stop and think seriously of what the results will be if we keep going heedlessly and carelessly with the selection of men and women who are to serve us in our law making bodies and other places of trust."

All who are interested in the work of the B. Y. P. U. are invited and urged to attend.

NEGRO ASSOCIATION PLANS TO ERECT BUILDING FOR THE AGED

In a communication from the president of the Booker Washington Association, Inc., an organization for the aid of humanity among the negroes, it was stated that they intend to erect a building on the property recently donated to them by W. A. Gullede and J. H. Gullede, prominent merchants of Verbena, Alabama. The property is located near Verbena, and consists of 120 acres.

The letter from the negroes stated that they are expecting the citizens of Chilton County to assist in erecting this building, stating that it would be a credit to the county. Workers are planning to be in the county on October 9 to solicit funds for the work. The building, it was stated, will house an orphanage and a home for the old and dependent negroes of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Page and daughter, Peggy, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp, motored to Martin Dam last Sunday for the day.

At a meeting of a large number of Democrats of the county last Saturday together with the Executive Committee a Central Campaign Committee was elected, which is composed of W. M. Polk, Abner Retherford, W. R. Clements, O. R. Mullins, W. A. Gullede, J. Monroe Parrish, C. R. Foss, C. N. Bentley, R. B. McNeil, Ernest Davis, and the Central Campaign Committee together with the county nominees met in Clanton last Tuesday and selected a county wide campaign committee, with the following citizens from their respective precincts, to-wit:

- Beat 1—Mr. S. R. Powers, Mr. O. R. Mullins, Mr. J. Matt Mahan.
- Beat 2—Dr. R. B. McNeil, Mr. Emmett Carlee, Mr. Ed Lenoir.
- Beat 3—Mr. Arthur Lecroy, Mr. W. T. White.

Ku Klux Klan Will Stage Parade Here

Elsewhere in this issue appears an ad announcing that Central Klan No. 35, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan will stage a huge parade on the streets of Clanton on next Saturday night, October 4, beginning at eight o'clock.

The parade will probably originate on the outskirts of the town, and run through the main sections. The public is invited to witness this spectacle.

REVIVAL AT BAPTIST CHURCH DRAWING LARGE CROWDS HERE

The revival meeting which is in progress at the First Baptist church in Clanton has been drawing large crowds at the evening services each evening, and the sermons that are being delivered by the Rev. F. J. Fleming have been thoroughly enjoyed and well understood by his congregations, from all indications.

P. S. Rowland, has been attracting attention in the services by his method of directing the singing, and his work with the young people. The meeting will come to a close with the Friday night services, it was announced, and Baptismal services will be held on next Sunday night.

THE LEADER WILL BE CLOSED TODAY FOR JEWISH HOLIDAY

The News has been requested to state that The Leader, one of the popular dry goods stores of Clanton, will not be open today, due to the observance of the Jewish holiday, which is the Day of Atonement.

Mr. Lande, proprietor of The Leader, stated that they will be back tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday with some of the biggest bargains the people of Chilton County have ever heard of. Take a look at Mr. Lande's ad elsewhere in this issue, and see for yourself. In this ad they have listed some mighty attractive bargains.

Mr. James Roberts, who is a student at Auburn was a week end guest of friends and relatives here.

GULLEDGE BROTHERS DONATE 120 ACRES TO NEGRO HOME

The Booker Washington Beneficial Benevolent and Charitable Association Sunday announced receipt of a deed to 120 acres of land in Chilton County, the gift of W. A. Gullede and J. H. Gullede, brothers of Verbena.

The land, an official of the association said, would be the site of a home for the helpless and aged of the negro race. A building to house fifty persons, it was said would be started at once. Materials to the value of $5,000 have been given by benefactors in Montgomery, while public spirited citizens of Verbena have contributed labor and hauling. Sixty acres of the land is in timber.

Brother Of Local Man Is Shot By Negro Burglar

H. E. Ross, operator of a prominent dry cleaning plant at Huntsville was shot and killed, and his wife seriously wounded in the leg last Saturday night, when they surprised a negro burglar in their home.

The slain man is a brother of L. C. Ross, of Clanton. The negro is said to have entered the Ross home at Huntsville about midnight, Saturday, and Mr. Ross, hearing a sound in the rear of the house is said to have gone to investigate, and upon surprising the negro intruder, the negro shot him twice, one shot taking effect in the breast and the other in the head. Mrs. Ross was shot in the leg when she started for help.

A negro giving his name as G. H. Henderson was captured shortly after the crime and placed in jail in Huntsville, pending further investigation.

Henderson, it is stated, has not been identified positively by Mrs. Ross as the negro who entered their home about midnight Saturday when Ross was shot twice, dying soon afterward, and Mrs. Ross was recovering Tuesday.

Funeral for Mr. Ross was conducted Monday afternoon from the residence, by the Rev. John J. Milford, pastor, First Baptist Church.

MACEY JONES RESIGNED AS CHIEF OF FIRE DEPARTMENT

Macey F. Jones, who for sometime has served as chief of the Volunteer Fire Department of Clanton, has resigned, according to information received recently.

At present, Loren Smith is acting as chief, with Ress as assistant. It was stated that these men will serve until the matter is taken up with the new councilmen to see if the present arrangement will stand.

Unity-Chilton S. S. Convention Is Fine

The Annual meeting of the Unity-Chilton County Sunday School Convention was held with Thorsby Baptist church Sunday, Sept. 28, 1930. It was one of the best meetings held since the convention was organized. Twenty-two Sunday schools had representatives at the meeting. Others sent written reports.

A very interesting program was carried out, and we feel sure that the meeting will result in increased interest in the the Sunday schools in the two associations.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis Cooper and Miss Caver, State workers, assisted greatly in making the meeting a success.

The following officers were elected for the next year subject to the approval of the two associations:

H. A. Harris, President; C. D. Hughes, 1st vice president; W. J. Patrick, 2nd vice president; G. F. Harris, secretary-treasurer.

The next meeting of the convention will be held with Mulberry Baptist church, Tuesday, August 4, 1931.

G. F. HARRIS, Secretary.

Mrs. Gaston Robinson of Sulligent, Alabama, spent the past week end here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson, returning to her home Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. W. C. Robinson who spent two days in Sulligent.

THE NEW TEXACO MOTOR OIL

"..more than meets the requirements of today's high compression engines," says the HOCHSTADTER LABORATORIES, INC.,

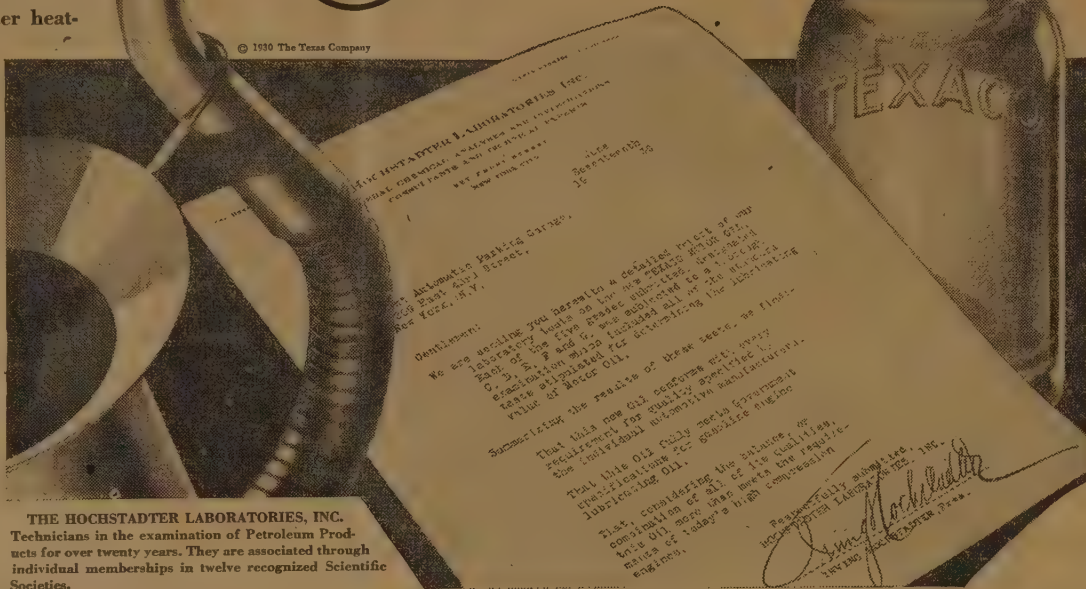

A STUDY of this report reveals a number of interesting facts about this new lubricant. It is definitely shown that the new Texaco Golden Motor Oil has a higher viscosity at high temperatures and a lower viscosity at low temperatures. It is an oil with a flatter viscosity curve, which means greater heat-resisting qualities and a longer-lasting body.

It will hold its lubricating qualities throughout the entire range of engine temperatures with a very low oil consumption. This was substantiated and proved in a nation-wide road test under extremely varied driving conditions in which the thirteen test cars averaged 790 miles to the quart.

The new Texaco is manufactured in 5 grades: C, D, E, F, and G, conforming with Society of Automotive Engineers viscosity gradings. Sold in all of our 48 States under the Texaco Red Star with the Green T. 30c a quart (35c for Grade G).

When You First Feel A Cold

Simple home remedies, promptly used when a cold first starts, often prevent a serious spell of sickness. Every home should have a supply of these remedies for preventive use.

Auburn Says

Cotton is a perishable crop and trees afford a poor shelter. Farm machinery that is not being used should be under a shelter. It is a wise farmer who knows to plant cover crops and acts on his knowledge. Carbon bisulphide is too cheap for any farmer to let weevils feed on his stored grain this winter. Five good milk cows with proper feeding will go far toward supporting the average farm family. Plant food washed out of the soil is 21 times as great as that absorbed in the production of all crops. Have you planted your winter legume? Five tons of green vines of Austrian winter peas or hairy vetch will produce as much corn as five tons of manure.

President Dawson Quits At Howard

Birmingham, Sept. 29.—Dr. John C. Dawson, president of Howard College since 1921, tendered his resignation to the Board of Trustees today. The resignation to take effect next February was accepted. Dr. Dawson, beginning next September, will become head of the department of romance languages at the University of Alabama. Desire to return to the teaching end of educational work was given by Dr. Dawson as his reason for resigning. Previous to taking over the presidency of Howard College, a Baptist institution in 1921, Dr. Dawson has served as professor, dean and acting president of the school. He had been connected with the institution for the past 28 years.

A. D. Smith, president of the Board of Trustees, said no action had been taken toward determining Dr. Dawson's successor and he anticipates no action for some time. Dr. Dawson is a graduate of Georgetown University, Ky. He received his M. A. degree at Howard and his Ph. D. degree at Columbia.

40 Acres Of Rice Grown At Atmore

It will probably be a surprise to many Alabamians to know that rice can be grown successfully on a large scale in this state. There's forty acres of this crop ready to harvest on the State Prison Farm at Atmore just as soon as the weather gets dry enough. Hamp Draper, head of the State Convict Department, who was exhibiting some rice-heads gathered at the farm and the grain taken from them in the Governor's office yesterday said he expects a yield of from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre from the 40-acre tract at Atmore. Enough will be produced, he added, to supply the rice used as a part of the regular ration at State Prisons and prison camps for a period of fully twelve months. The land on which the rice was grown was once a cypress swamp. This was drained by the employment of convict labor and the rice planted in the ground that had formerly been covered by stagnant water.

THE STUTTERING CHILD

By Dr. Christmas Seal It is admitted that more than a million citizens of the United States are stutterers. The cause is neither a physical or ntrovius defect. It is a mental quirk. Sometimes it begins with the earliest efforts at speech; in other cases, it may be a development of later years. It is very difficult of cure. Operations, exercise, mental gymnastics all have been tried and all have their successes and failures. The cheaper papers are filled with advertised courses of treatment, many of which guarantee a cure, but seldom deliver the goods. Dr. Christmas Seal urges parents and teachers to be very patient with a stuttering child. Allow no one to scold, tease or scoff. Encourage the child in the belief that a stutterer is just as bright mentally as anyone and that a cure is always possible. A physician should be asked to give a careful examination for any physical defect or strain, the correction of which might lift a part of the burden. But the indispensable things of treatment are patience, kindness and encouragement.

Enough United States land to support a nation has been made useless for food production by erosion. A minimum estimate places the number of acres destroyed in this manner at 17,500,000.

After telling a taxi man just to drive him around town awhile Thomas Freeman of Los Angeles fell asleep a few minutes later and when he awoke his taxi bill was $9.75.

Serve Sherbets with Meats

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef The Plaza Hotel, New York City

A SHERBET with the meat course is a most welcome addition to the hot-weather luncheon or dinner. Adding to the diet the healthful fruit juices, and, through its sugar content, one of the most important energy elements, the sherbet's cooling qualities and delicate flavor help to make the repast a noteworthy occasion whether dining en famille or entertaining honored guests. Another point not to be overlooked by the wise hostess is the aesthetic factor. Served in footed glasses in pastel shades of rose, amber, azure, green or topaz, the iced cup strikes a note of color that does more than its share in assuring the colorful charm demanded for the perfectly arranged summer table. Mint Sherbet—Mash one cup of fresh mint leaves with one cup of sugar. Add two cups boiling water. Let stand ten minutes. Strain out the mint leaves. Add one-half cup lemon juice and few drops of green coloring. Freeze to a mush and serve in glasses garnished with mint leaves. Grape Sherbet—Boil together for seven minutes, two cups of water and one cup sugar. Add two cups grape juice, one-fourth cup lemon juice, and one-fourth cup orange juice. Freeze to a mush and when partially frozen stir in the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Orange Sherbet—Boil two cups sugar and one-half cup water for five minutes. Add grated rind of one orange and one teaspoon gelatin which has been soaked in two tablespoons cold water. Dissolve thoroughly and cool. Add one and a half cups orange juice and one-fourth cup lemon juice. Freeze to a mush. Orange Milk Sherbet—Dissolve one and a half cups sugar in two and a half cups orange juice. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon grated orange rind. Stir gradually into three cups milk. Freeze to a mush.

Foreign Features To Enliven Circus Days

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth Brings Many New Sensations to This Territory—800 Arenic Performers—1700 Animals

One need not be young in body to have felt a real thrill of pleasure when the announcement was made that the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is to exhibit its thousands and one wonders in this section. For at once, youngsters of all ages became young at heart and it was glorious news to all. The only five-ring circus in the world with a "big-top" or main tent seating more than 16,000 persons will this year offer more new and startling features than ever before.

Foremost among these is the weird Ubangi tribe of men and women savages from Africa's darkest regions who will appear for the first time in any civilized land. No people like these have ever before been seen by the average white man or woman and their appearance has been the signal for interest on the part of great scientists. Albert Powell, a sensation of the circuses of Europe during the past winter, is to be seen here with the Big Show. And countless other European novelties have been brought to make of this the greatest circus season in history.

Hugo Zacheini, the Human Projectile, fired bodily from a cannon at each performance, will play a return engagement by popular demand and the distance over which he is hurtled has been lengthened.

The menagerie of the Ringling-Barnum circus is the largest traveling zoo in the world and contains 1,009 rare animals while with the circus there are also 700 horses, beautiful and sleek in appearance at all times.

Forty-three giant and baby elephants appear in the Big Show. There are 26 camels and an equal number of zebras. These are but a few of the wonders to be seen when The Greatest Show on Earth exhibits in Montgomery, Friday, October 10.

News In Brief

Canned ice cream mixed ready for immediate use by consumers or manufacturers is to be placed on the market by Milk Industries, Inc. Many people travel by air. In the first 10 days of operation on the New York, Philadelphia, and Washington Airway 15,057 paid passengers were carried. This is said to be a world record. The average of hog prices in the 1930-31 marketing year is expected to be higher than that of year ending on September 30, 1930, says the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics which adds that this will be accompanied by relatively high feed prices. The sharp and almost steady decline in America's export trade at last has been checked. In August this country shipped abroad goods valued at $300,000,000, an increase of $38,000,000 over July, according to a report by the U. S. Department of Commerce. The day when a housewife can tune in her radio cook stove to bake the next meal is foreshadowed by a little glass dish in the General Electric laboratories in Schenectady. Without a flame or means of heat of any visible sort this dish has cooked one sausage, one friend egg, one baked apple, a batch of cookies, and water was boiled in the dish. It was all done with the new, short-wave vacuum tube, which sends out a radio wave about 20 feet long and having a frequency of 50,000,000 cycles a second.

17 Gold Star Mothers From State Sought

The office of the Quartermaster General in the War Department at Washington, which is in charge of the arrangement of pilgrimages that have been made during the last year by widows and mothers of the heroic fighting men of America who gave up their lives in the World War, and whose graves are in foreign lands, overseas, is still looking for the wives and mothers of 17 slain Alabama soldiers who sleep there.

Every effort has been made to locate these relatives, so that they, too, in addition to the thousands who have already gone on that pilgrimage overseas may make the trip to and from the graves of their loved one at the expense of the Government, if they so desire. Federal authorities have been unable to find the widows or mothers of these 17 Alabamians, though, and have appealed to Adj. Gen. F. E. Butler to help. The Adjutant General's office is going to do all that can be done in that direction, and wants the aid of all citizens.

Yesterday the names of the 17 Alabama dead in the World War, their rank and the organizations with which they were serving when they fell, were announced by Col. W. A. Gayle, assistant adjutant general, as follows:

Nicholas Bererns, Wagoneer, 14th Company, 20th Engineers; James Boggan, Pvt., Company K, 327th Infantry; Roland G. Cochran, Pvt., Company K, 326th Infantry; Ester Edwards, Pvt., 302nd Stevedore Regiment; Bennie Fowler, Pvt., 253th Military Police Company; Luther M. Gardner, Pvt., Company G, 58th Infantry; James Gibby, Pvt., Veterans Hospital No. 21; William Hood, Pvt., Company L, 366th Infantry; Reuben Jackson, Pvt., Company D, 324th Labor Battalion, Quartermaster Corps; Raymond Jones, Pvt., Company I, 806th Pioneer Infantry; Jonas Logan, Pvt., Company C, 544th Engineers; Connie Love, Pvt., Company K, 167th Infantry; Dock Maxwell, Pvt., first class, 303 Stevedore Regiment; William C. Reighley, Pvt., Company C, 323rd Infantry; William J. Sanders, Pvt., first class, San. Tr.; Royal Seay, Pvt., first class, Company F, 167th Infantry; Robert J. Skelton, Pvt., Company D, 9th Infantry. If anyone knows where the mother or widow, or both, of any of these men new reside, Col. Gayle wants them to notify him, giving the names and addresses of the mother or widow sought.

NEW FERTILIZER BAG LIGHTENS HEAVY WORK

Another hard job on many of our farms will disappear as a result of a report from Chile announcing a change in the size of nitrate bags. Formerly shipped in 200-pound bags, Chilean nitrate of soda will henceforth be offered only in 100-pound bags. The new size will be introduced this fall.

The change was made after a careful survey of the preference of farmers in all parts of the country. The handling of a 200 pound bag is a strenuous job, and the smaller bag should mean real relief on the farm and better condition of the material.

That a vast army of farmers will be benefited by this improvement is indicated by a report recently compiled which showed that nearly 1,000,000 use Chilean nitrate in their mixtures and for side-dressing and top-dressing purposes.

Commercializing Our Highways

It is an accepted opinion, and rightly so, that our public highways are truly constructed for the use of the general public and that every citizen of the land has an equal right to make use of the public roads, wherever, and whenever he pleases. Any curtailing of the privileges of any citizen as to the use he makes of these roads is at once considered an injustice. Due to this attitude of the general public and also of the governing powers there has grown up within the past few years an industry which is in reality commercializing the public highways. It is not the policy of our government generally speaking to subsidize industries, but when public highways are used for strictly commercial purposes—when buses and freight trucks make regular, scheduled runs on public roads—indirectly the builders of those roads are subsidizing that industry.

Our governing powers—in order to insure justice to the public from certain large and powerful corporations—has seen fit to regulate their management to the extent that he public in general will not suffer from the misuse of the power such large corporations have. This is well and proper. But when the government assumes the responsibility of regulating the activities of these large financial powers, they—in justice—must assume some obligations to the said corporations. In other words, if the corporations are to be held within certain limits of activities, they also have a right to some measure of protection from this same government when forced to meet competition as unfair as any monopolistic rates they might be able to force upon the public under ordinary conditions and without government regulation.

A case in point is the railroads vs. the motor buses and freight trucks. The railroads, must of necessity, spend large sums to build and keep up their tracks. They must spend money to build and maintain their stations along their roads. When they are forced to compete with an industry that uses the government-built highways and which of course has no maintenance cost on that score, besides not having to put out huge sums to begin with for building these roads, the railroads are up against competition which is unfair. It actually comes down to a proposition of a subsidized industry competing with a non-subsidized one.

Alabama Among Leaders In Reduction of Illiteracy

Alabama residents should be proud of the fact that this State was one of the four that led in the campaign against illiteracy last year. The other states in the vanguard were Georgia, South Carolina, and Louisiana. The progress of these states in the war on illiteracy is shown in reports received by the National Advisory Committee on Illiteracy.

Georgia enrolled and taught 40,848 adults; Alabama taught 41,726; South Carolina 49,345, and Louisiana 108,351. In these four states alone, 240,270 illiterates were taught to read and write. This, as pointed out by the National Advisory Committee, is of itself a tremendous achievement, to say nothing of the thousands in Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Arkansas, and other states that were reached in the campaign.

These reports are said to have encouraged the National Committee to plan a more extensive campaign in which every illiterate would be searched out and given a chance to learn to read and write.

Alabama and the other three states that took the lead in this work, it is pointed out, were the only one receiving outside financial aid in their work to reduce illiteracy. The Julius Rosenwald Fund supplied these states with one dollar for every two dollars raised in the state.

The campaigns which brought the results mentioned in the reports were concentrated on efforts to make as much progress as possible toward reducing illiteracy before the Federal census enumerators started their rounds. The purpose was to give the states as good a rating as possible in the literacy column.

That was a commendable undertaking and it is gratifying to know that the results were impressive. However, the work should be continued now with renewed enthusiasm, since the past records have proved what can be done. The census enumerations have been made and the immediate incentive of reducing illiteracy before the count was made is now lacking, but there should be no slackening of efforts. Rather there should be determined campaigns to wipe out illiteracy by the time of the next decennial census.

How Hunters Can Reduce List of Shooting Accidents

It will not be long now until the fure of the fields and woodlands will call many devotees of the gun and dogs from the store and office to the open spaces. Hunting will become the popular diversion of those who prefer this sport.

With the time just ahead when the hunting season will be in full swing, it is not amiss now to drop a word of warning to the sportsmen who will go out in search of game. Every year, the game season brings its tragedies. It is to be hoped that the number killed and wounded in hunting accidents will not be as great this year as it has been at times in the past, but there is not likely to be much improvement in the record unless every hunter avoids careless practices that often result in tragedies.

In this connection some safety suggestion of the Wisconsin Conservation Commission are timely and worth noting. They consist of a series of "don'ts" for hunters and apply with equal force to those in Alabama and those in Wisconsin.

The list of "don'ts" is given by the American Game Protective Association as follows:

Don't keep your gun loaded except when you are actually hunting but handle it at all times as if it were loaded.

Don't point your gun at anyone even if you are sure it is empty.
Don't handle a gun by its muzzle or pull it toward you.
Don't carry your gun when climbing fences or brush piles.
Don't carry your gun so that an accidental discharge might shoot your companion.
Don't shoot at any game unless you can see it clearly enough to positively identify it.
Don't be the fool who "didn't know it was loaded."
The Game Protective Association says that observance of these rules should reduce shooting accidents. They are simple and can be carried out without any inconvenience to speak of. Every hunter would do well to observe each one to the letter. To do so means safety. To ignore them may mean a tragedy.

"ROUND TOWN"

--by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"And as some folks go up and some go down, some just go round and round."

Now that we are going to have a new Mayor, and some new councilmen, I think I should start to begin to commence, telling them what they should do and not do, because I am the Certified Chilton County Critter Sizer, so to speak. One thing I would suggest, is that they don't do anything they will later regret; in other words, boys, don't jump or leap at conclusions, do things and then talk about them afterwards. It will sound a heap better.

This city election which we have just painfully gone through did create quite a terrificullabaloo, and I suppose some folks will not quit their bellikain—or maybe they have just started that. I would like very much to say something about some folks trying to undermine others for their jobs in Clanton, speaking mostly of city jobs, and in a case where a fellow has been to the war and fought like the dickens, then has to come back over here and keep fighting in order to live, and then there is a case, maybe where a fellow has taught another about all he knows about a thing, then the latter tries to undermine him for his job. Folks, it just ain't right. But I understand that drastic slices were taken from the salaries of SOME of the employees of the city last week, and the fellow who comes in and says he will work for less than that—well, as I said it just ain't right. And another thing, I wonder if it ever occurred to the city officials if there was anyone on their payroll they could get along without, instead of cutting a big slice off someone else's salary. Well, after all, no doubt the election will be a blessing in disguise to some folks.

There is really one thing that clearly showed up in the character of certain candidates for certain offices. There was one fellow who really played the game square, didn't ask much, didn't promise much, and in my opinion certainly did do the straight and big thing about the outcome of the race for Mayor. Some folks even wondered at him, and why he did not push the legality of the thing. There was one thing in particular that I noticed, as did many others, he was laughing on the morning after the night before—and he was one of those who did not win. But I think he won some things that are far more desired than a particular office, he won friendship.

One of Clanton's familiar figures is nowhere to be seen these days, and he is a long way from home. That is Sam Martin, who has gone to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he will enter school, having received his sheepskin here at the high school. Sam left Sunday, and will be gone about six months to study up on how to embalm dead folks, bury them, etc.

Have just figured out why cotton prices are so low, and of course, will have to blame it mostly on those necessary evils who exist most everywhere one turns—the women. Long time ago, a woman's dress took up quite a bit of cloth, and the majority of the dresses contained more cotton than anything else. But nowadays, a woman's dress, instead of weighing two pounds or more, weighs about seven ounces, which of course causes a less amount of cotton to be used, cutting down the demand for cotton, and even if they should make hosiery from cotton, there's very few now who are wearing hose. I wonder if cold weather will cause a change in this. So, taking it all in all, if you necessary evils should go to using more clothing, cotton if possible, then maybe the price of cotton will go up.

Now that goes to show you that the women are nothing less than necessary evils. They're even controlling the cotton market, making it tough on us men to try to make a living, so that the necessary evils can enjoy life without having to wonder where the shekels are coming from. It ain't right—the women ain't co-operating as they should, but still I guess they are necessary evils.

Now that the new Mayor and his councilmen are to take office on October 6, I wonder if the former will be able to carry out his promises—if any, and whether some folks who have been expecting jobs, or positions on the outcome of the election, will realize their ambition after many a day of hard work and anxiety.

The sermons being delivered at the Baptist church revival meeting this week, are in my opinion, very clear, simple and truthful. The visiting preacher is not trying to sweep his congregations off their feet with a lot of waving-of-the-arms and shouting, and a stripping off of that the public in general will not suffer from the misuse of language, the plain truth, speaking in such a manner that a mere child could understand his sermons, and if he only does that, he will be doing enough to pay for his work, because I'm afraid that some parents are not even trying to make their own children understand what the Bible really is, and what prayer is. The sermons are short and to the point, and the singing is not to be sneered at, because the director is a live wire, and will make you enjoy the songs.

Passed two fellows the other day just at the time when one ended a sentence with "*" that's what's wrong with the country now." I walked on a little farther and happened to think that there was a revelation, the very thing everybody was wondering about and that man had the answer. But before I could retrace my steps to where he was, he wasn't there when I got there. So, right there I lost the answer to the greatest question that is confronting thousands of people today. Ain't that just too bad.

Three Young Runaways Find Food And Shelter In Clanton Jail Ending Proposed Florida Tour

One reads about other towns being visited by young boys and girls who have forsaken the comforts of their homes and gone out into the world seeking adventure. Clanton is not to be left out in this, and three youngsters, one girl and two boys saw to this.

This trio landed in Jemison several days ago in a Ford car, and after spending a day and night there, using the car to sleep in, they aroused some suspicion and were taken into custody. They were brought to Clanton, placed in jail, and the case was gone into by the County Welfare Worker here. One of the boys gave his name as Edward Nubson, age 17, but was really Robert Coddington, age 15. The other gave his name as Peteries VanSchalkwyk, age 18, but was really none other than Joe Cole, and the young girl gave her name as Agnes Parks, age 18, but investigation showed she was really Agnes Tarasar, age 15, all giving their homes as Minneapolis, Minn.

Further questioning of the trio showed they had stolen an automobile in Minneapolis, and that one failing them in Chicago, took another to continue their trip to tour Florida in seek of adventure. The last car gave out on them in Mayfield, Ky., and there they took another automobile, the one found with them in Jemison. Food and gasoline was secured along the route by whatever means first came to the minds of the adventure seekers. There were two other boys in the party, who had gone to Birmingham to see if they could acquire another car, and were caught in the act by Birmingham officers.

The girl was allowed to get in touch with her mother who sent funds for her return, and she left Monday morning for her home in Minneapolis, while Joe Cole and Robert Coddington were still held here for further investigation.

Verbena High School News

Due to the inclemency of the weather the P.T.A. meeting, scheduled for last Thursday, was postponed until the next regular meeting, which will be on Thursday, October 2.

The Home Economics building is undergoing a complete change. The building is being repainted inside, and the furniture is being redecorated. The kitchen is divided into three unit kitchens, with a certain number of students for each kitchen. The girls in each group are planning the color schemes and the arrangements of the kitchens. They are redecorating the furniture under the direction of Miss Wible, the home economics teacher.

The manual training class is making the necessary repairs under the expert supervision of Mr. Hiten, who teaches that class.

The home economics class has been selling candy to get the funds necessary for purchasing new curtains for the Home Economics Building. Among the visitors to our school last week was Mr. L. K. Benson, a former principal of this school.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE

Much interest is being manifested in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Mary McSwain and Mr. Horace Jones, the wedding to be solemnized in October. Miss McSwain and Mr. Jones are prominent in the social and church life of Clanton and have many friends.

Miss McSwain, Bride-Elect, Is Complimented at Shower.

Miss Mildred Shaw honored Miss Mary McSwain, bride-elect, at a lovely miscellaneous shower, at her home Tuesday afternoon. The house was attractively decorated with a profusion of colorful autumn flowers. The guests were met at the door by Miss Gladys Williams and after best wishes and greetings to the hostess and bride-elect, they were ushered to the bride's book which was presided over by Miss Louise McSwain. Dahlias in rich gold and wine shades were used on the table where punch was served. Those presiding here were Misses Ruth Sessions, Pauline Lawrence, Elsie Busby and Mrs. Jack McMurray. A musical program was enjoyed during the afternoon. The honoree was presented with many useful and lovely gifts, after which a delicious salad plate was served to the following guests: Mesdames W. J. Dr. Dawson Accepts Chair At University

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 30.—Regret at the resignation of Dr. John C. Dawson, president of Howard College, tendered to the Board of Trustees at a meeting Monday, was expressed by members of the college faculty and student body Tuesday.

The resignation is to take effect next February. Dr. Dawson will become head of the department of romance languages at the University of Alabama next September. This return to the field of teaching is for Dr. Dawson a return to the work that he is primarily interested in, the educator said.

His resignation ends 28 years of association with Howard College, during which time he has been successively, professor, dean, acting president and president. He became president August, 1921, succeeding Dr. C. B. Williams.

The Board of Trustees appointed a committee to draw up resolutions of regret over the resignation. No move has been made to appoint a successor to Dr. Dawson, members of the board said Tuesday. It will probably be some time before this is done.

Howard College has grown considerably during Dr. Dawson's presidency. Its enrollment has increased from 200 to 1,100; the endowment fund has increased from approximately $400,000 to $750,000; three new buildings have been built and the school has been standardized. Howard College is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges, is fully approved by the American Association of Colleges and Universities, and is one the first list of the Harvard Law School.

Dr. Dawson's resignation, handed to A. D. Smith, president of the board of trustees, follows:

"I entered into the office of presidency of Howard College because of a widespread desire on the part of the friends of the college that I do so. My main interest in life has been in teaching, and in becoming president, I did so with the mental reservation that I would some day return to active teaching.

"During my stay abroad this Summer, I felt a very strong urge to enter my field of teaching—romance languages and literatures. Since my return, I have found an opportunity to do so at the University of Alabama. I have received the appointment there of head of the department of romance languages and will begin active teaching next September.

"My resignation at Howard is effective in February and it is my intention to spend the time intervening between February and September in study in Europe.

"I leave Howard with very great regret. Twenty-eight years of my life have been spent there as professor, dean, acting president and president. With such ties and associations as have been formed through the years, it is no easy matter to break away and start anew in another institution.

"However, I have warm friends in the faculty to the university and feel that I am not going among strangers."

erably during Dr. Dawson's presidency. Its enrollment has increased from 200 to 1,100; the endowment fund has increased from approximately $400,000 to $750,000; three new buildings have been built and the school has been standardized. Howard College is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges, is fully approved by the American Association of Colleges and Universities, and is one the first list of the Harvard Law School.

Dr. Dawson's resignation, handed to A. D. Smith, president of the board of trustees, follows:

"I entered into the office of presidency of Howard College because of a widespread desire on the part of the friends of the college that I do so. My main interest in life has been in teaching, and in becoming president, I did so with the mental reservation that I would some day return to active teaching.

"During my stay abroad this Summer, I felt a very strong urge to enter my field of teaching—romance languages and literatures. Since my return, I have found an opportunity to do so at the University of Alabama. I have received the appointment there of head of the department of romance languages and will begin active teaching next September.

"My resignation at Howard is effective in February and it is my intention to spend the time intervening between February and September in study in Europe.

"I leave Howard with very great regret. Twenty-eight years of my life have been spent there as professor, dean, acting president and president. With such ties and associations as have been formed through the years, it is no easy matter to break away and start anew in another institution.

"However, I have warm friends in the faculty to the university and feel that I am not going among strangers."

NEWS FROM CHILTON CO. HIGH SCHOOL

CORRECT POSTURE
By Helen Roberts

When going to school we should wear our low heeled shoes, or better still, oxfords. This allows one to feel free and easy and your shoes do not hinder you in taking part in the various school activities during the day's program. When standing instead of sloping down on one foot, stand up, head erect, and shoulders thrown well back and let the world see who you are. When in classes, sit up straight, but not rigid, and have your feet on the floor. This is much better than sitting way down in your seat, and half sitting on your back. Correct standing and walking and sitting posture adds much to one's appearance, helps to make up a good all-around school girl or boy, and is a part of the real school spirit. Would you like to be tagged for correct posture? Then look out for Posture Day.

SINGING AT ASSEMBLY
By Mary Courtney Jones

Our chapel exercises are very interesting this year. Everyone enters into the singing wholeheartedly. Very interesting talks which have been given by Dr. Childs and Dr. Ezell, have helped the students very much. Our exercises are held at 10:15-10:35, and are opened by Bible reading. The student body sings sometimes, and many unison songs. Miss Margaret Kendrick is the music director and has charge of the singing. Miss Nell Wells plays the piano.

DR. EZELL AT CHAPEL LAST WEDNESDAY

By Mary Frank Smith
Dr. S. J. Ezell paid us the honor of a visit at chapel last Wednesday. His talk centered around the "Race of Life." He showed how we should spend our time in preparing for life, instead of wasting it in riotous living. He stressed the point that we should so live to obtain life. The entire student body was impressed by his inspirational talk.

C. C. H. S. WINS OPENER 7 TO 0

Battling with inexperience and a handicap of rainy weather for the week preceding, C. C. H. S. eked out a 7 to 0 victory over the Holtville High riders here Friday afternoon.

Captain Benson Simms showed improvement in the defensive tactics and ran true to form on offenses, while alternate Captain Paul Cox snagged a couple of passes out of the ether to run the yardage into a "total" worthwhile to bring victory to the tigers.

Due to inexperience the rough elements were distinctly noticeable in both forward walls. Let's show our Clanton blood by giving these boys a real glad hand, following them where possible, and watching them in action at every possible chance. They are ours fighting for cleanliness in developing into worthwhile manhood.

Verbena M. E. Church

Last Sunday was promotion day for the Sunday school. A large number of pupils were advanced to higher classes. The Primary class under the leadership of Mrs. Agnes McNair, gave an interesting catechetical lesson. The children responded well, showing careful training in the year's work.

Dr. W. R. Bickerstaff, Presiding Elder on the Prattville District, preached two very able sermons at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday. He also held the Fourth Quarterly Conference for Verbena Circuit at two o'clock, Sunday afternoon. The conference was well attended, with representatives from Mt. Nebo, Lime Springs, Marbury and White Pond. Not able to complete its business, the Conference adjourned to meet and close the business on Saturday, November 1, at Verbena. This adjourned session will be called to order at 2:00 p. m.

On Sunday, October 12, Mrs. B. B. Comer will have charge of the evening service. She will give an account of her recent travels in Europe with especial reference to the Passion Play. We are planning for a large congregation. The service will begin promptly at 7:30 p. m. Everybody is invited.

JEFFERS HONORED AT FIDAC CONVENTION

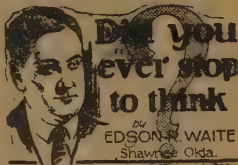

Anniston and the entire state of Alabama have been honored in the selection of Congressman Lamar Jeffers, of Anniston, as vice president for the United States of the interallied World War veterans organization known as Fidac. Congressman Jeffers was chosen by the American delegation at the annual Fidac convention as its representative on the official staff, which is a distinction that is of more than ordinary moment.

Congressman Jeffers is eminently deserving of the recognition accorded him by the veterans of the United States, for his service to the ex-service men in his capacity as a representative in Congress and through personal contacts has earned for him the right to any open expression of gratitude that might be given by his comrades of the late conflict.

Throughout the time he has been in Congress, Lamar Jeffers, himself with a distinguished war record, has been active in behalf of legislation for the benefit of disabled veterans and he is known as one of the best friends the ex-service man has in the national legislative body. He has been a loyal member of various veterans organizations and it is fitting that he should be given a high office in the allied group. The News congratulates him on this newest honor that has come to him. We can say without hesitation that the delegates have made a popular choice.

That local newspapers are great boosters.

They boost the home city at every opportunity and in every way possible.

They boost the churches, the schools, the civic organizations and everything that promotes happiness and is for the welfare of the people.

They boost for better streets for the city and better roads for the country; they know that goods roads lessen the distance between city and country, make better business and a better community.

They boost to promote friendliness and harmony between all people.

They boost for a square deal for everyone in the home city.

They boost for better business and for everything that helps to develop industry.

They boost to bring new capital and new industries to the home city.

They boost everything possible to help in developing the natural resources surrounding their city, which will increase payrolls and bring increased population.

You should boost the local newspapers and give them your hearty support. The more you boost your newspapers the more they can boost your city.

Fred I. Massengill, publisher of the Terrell (Tex.) Daily Tribune, says:

"During my thirty years experience in the newspaper business, the greatest mystery continually confronting me, and the most persistent question is, 'Why does the average business man fall for the unscrupulous advertising solicitor?' Promoters for theatre curtains in remote school districts, cook books, menu cards, directories of every kind, hotel registers, jumbo thermometers and numberless other such schemes find 'rich picking,' and right at the places where the very best newspaper advertising salesman can not get a look-in.

"The man who knows anything about advertising knows he might as well write his ad copy and put it in his safe, so far as results are concerned, as to put it in a directory of any kind. In fact, it would be better to put the copy in his safe, because that procedure would not cost him anything, and he would secure the same results. The most distinguished dumb-bell, numbskull, or whatever you desire to call a nut, would never think of looking into a directory to see where to buy an automobile, foodstuff, clothing or any other article. I have traveled about a little myself and just claim average intelligence, but I'll be darned if I have ever sought information in a directory to find a hotel, garage, cafe, night club, a place to buy wearing apparel or any other article I might need.

"I am ashamed to tell it, but just recently some of the merchants of my town fell for an 'air circus'—a one plane affair' in which the interested merchants paid a fancy price to have a few circulars tossed out in the breezes. To my way of thinking, the merchants were the clowns in this circus, and I believe most advertising men will agree with me.

"The newspaper in every town, regardless of size, carries more news regarding its particular town than any other newspaper in the world; it works unceasingly for the upbuilding of its town and community; it wants to see every merchant and business enterprise prosper, whether it is an advertising concern in its columns or not; it's on the job 365 days a year, year in and year out; its corps of employes contain men who are honorable citizens of the town, and who know something about advertising and are always glad to assist the advertiser any way they can, and yet, as stated, these home-town, honorable workers are not given the same consideration that the out-of-town unscrupulous solicitor receives at the hand of the average 'business men.'"

Deplorable Conditions of Women and Child Labor in Sugar Beet Fields
Washington, Sept. 30.—Employment of women and children, mostly Mexicans, in the sugar beet fields of the West, particularly Colorado, continues under deplorable conditions, according to a recent survey by a special organizer of the American Federation of Labor and made public by President Green.

Under the Colorado law, employment of children under eleven years of age is prohibited and school attendance is compulsory, but the data shows that 27 per cent of the children of school age in one district were absent on account of employment in beet fields. The work of the children is thus described in the report:

"The total length of all the rows in an acre of beets is 25,136 feet, just about five miles. To block and thin an acre a child straddles a row and crawls on his hands and knees all day under a blistering sun."

A report of the Colorado State of Agriculture shows in one section 290 families sleeping five or more in a room.

Another report shows children from six to fifteen years working from nine to sixteen hours a day in the beet fields for annual wages ranging from $98.90 for children under ten to $197.80 for children thirteen to fifteen.

The organizer reports that "Filipinos are now being imported to prevent organization of the Mexicans and Spaniards."

Notwithstanding this condition of labor in the beet fields, the sugar beet growers were able to secure an increase in the sugar tariff from 1.76 to 2 cents a pound in the Grundy bill.

When Mrs. T. C. Marshall of St. Paul, Minn., was asked in court how she knew her husband was drunk, she replied, "Because he put his shoes on the hall rack and took his hat to bed."

Chevrolet Radio Program Coming

An outstanding event in the automobile industry will take place within the next few weeks when the Chevrolet Motor Company goes on the air over more than one hundred radio stations throughout the country in the first of a series of weekly programs to continue late into the Fall. R. K. White, advertising manager, announced Saturday.

The radio campaign is in addition to all other forms of promotional activities such as newspaper, magazine and outdoor advertising, Mr. White said.

Each week there will be presented the personally-narrated experiences of prominent American war veterans who have received the highest honors within the power of the government to bestow for valor in action. Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, ace of American aces, will act as host to the heroes and will introduce them to the air audience. Each program, to be known as the "Chevrolet Chronicles," will be a half hour's duration.

The first of the series will be presented early in October. Mr. White said. Local dealers will sponsor the programs in their localities, with the co-operation of the factory. Because of the extent of the dealer organization, between 110 and 120 radio stations will be used to get complete national coverage reaching into the territories of every one of Chevrolet's 10,000 dealers.

The character of the programs was determined upon, Mr. White explained, after extensive research for a type of air entertainment which would render a real national service as well as prove instructive and entertaining. In presenting the experiences of war veterans, Mr. White pointed out that these programs will be furthering the general appreciation for those qualities of patriotism, heroism and self-sacrifice which go to make up the typical soldier.

The campaign also links the Chevrolet Motor Company with those organizations which are adding impetus to the movement to revive general conditions by putting extraordinary effort into their advertising activities.

Poultry Pays As Sideline To Cotton

Wedowee, Ala., Oct. 1.—Mr. Ben Stanfel of Randolph County is a practical example of the large number of Alabama farmers who are finding that poultry properly managed is a profitable sideline to cotton. He has a flock of 140 White Leghorn hens that net him an average of over $1.00 a day. Daily production ranges from 96 to 120 eggs.

In winter when egg prices are about 45 cents a dozen, and he gets nine dozen a day his income is $4.05. Feed for his flock costs about $1.50 a day; this leaves a labor profit of $2.65. Profits in the summer are smaller.

Chickens on the Stanfel farm are fed Alabama Farm Bureau feed mixed by a formula recommended by the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Chicks arrive on this farm about the middle of April from a hatchery free of white diarrhea. They cost 13 cents apiece postpaid.

The Stanfel farm produces infertile eggs; therefore, roosters are marketed when they weigh around two pounds. These surplus birds are usually disposed of through cooperative poultry sales.

Mr. Stanfel is one of a large number of farmers in Southeast Alabama who keep a small flock of chickens. Clay, Cleburne, Chambers, Talladega, and Randolph Counties produce thousands of dollars worth of poultry and eggs per year. Money paid for this produce stimulates business conditions. The income from poultry is a year-round income.

Committee Called To Discuss Relief

Seth P. Storrs, chairman of the Alabama Drouth Relief Committee, yesterday issued a call for a meeting of the committee in Montgomery next Monday at 2 P. M. to plan groundwork for an organization to aid in Red Cross relief work in the 36 counties in the Federal drouth area of the State.

Mr. Storrs sent notices to all members of the State Committee following a message from Secretary Arthur M. Hyde of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to the effect that a meeting of drouth relief chairman he expected to call had been delayed. Mr. Hyde suggested that the State committee be called to begin the preliminary organization work.

The program contemplates organization of a county committee in each of the 36 drouth area counties. Mr. Storrs said. Following organization of the county committees surveys of the counties will be made to ascertain the number of persons on farms without food or without means of employment to obtain the necessities of life. All work of the Red Cross agents in the respective counties will be with the cooperation and approval of the county committees it was said. The surveys are to be made to determine exactly what will be required for adequate relief in each of the counties.

Mr. Storrs said yesterday that he was still hopeful the drouth area would be extended for the ruinous effects of the drouth were not confined to the drouth areas and thousands of persons are now suffering for want of food in these counties.

A survey made by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, last week revealed that 130,000 persons, comprising tenant farmers and their families, were facing dire need as a result mainly of the drouth and low prices. Half of these are white persons, Mr. Gist said.

In order to keep him from going out at night, Mrs. James Gould of Duluth, Minn., burned her husband's best trousers.

Magistrate Hallis of New Orleans declared in a domestic case on trial in his court, "no wife is perfect."

Cows Of Alabama Make Honor Roll

Alabama now has dairymen on the national honor roll. Seven owners of herds have been awarded diplomas by the National Dairy Association. They are the first in the State to achieve this honor, Alabama having been pointed to in the past as one of 13 states without honor herds.

The dairymen achieved this distinction by owning herds that produced an average per cow of 300 pounds or more of butterfat in one year. Owners of the honor herds are members of dairy herd improvement associations, according to C. M. Ling, specialist in dairy herd improvement of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

The State champion herd is owned by Amos Christopher of Athens. His nine cows averaged 362 pounds of butterfat per cow for the year. The other honor herds are owned by Ernest Holland of Athens, 32 cows with an average of 345 pounds of butterfat; M. V. McCormick Estate of Huntsville, 14 cows with an average of 335 pounds; J. C. Spivey of Scottsboro, 15 cows with an average of 318 pounds; Van Antwerp Realty Corp. of Mobile, 44 cows with an average of 316 pounds; E. P. Garrett of Athens, 21 cows with an average of 304 pounds.

The annual production of cows owned by these dairymen is far above the State average of 109 pounds of butterfat per cow. Mr. Ling believes that most herds in Alabama can reach the 300-pound average if dairymen improve quality of their herds by proper methods of breeding, feeding, and culling.

Decent persons always cover mouth and nose with a handkerchief, if obliged to cough or sneeze.

NEW CHRISTMAS SEALS WILL SOON BE READY FOR SALE

"Santa Claus furnishes the model for this year's Christmas Seal," stated Richard Hudson, Executive Secretary of the Alabama Tuberculosis Association, in announcing the dates for two Seal Sale Institutes for the sixty-seven county Chairmen in Alabama.

The first Institute will be held in Birmingham, Thursday, Oct. 2nd., the second will be held in Montgomery, Friday, October 3rd. Miss Mayme Sexton, field worker of the National Tuberculosis Association will be the principal speaker at both meetings.

Mail sale methods, list building, personal solicitation and other matters pertaining to the coming campaign will be discussed by Miss Sexton, the entire subject being illustrated with pictures. Samples of the new Seals, post-supplies will be on display.

The colors on the Seal this year are red, green and white on a gray background, and the Seal carries the message, "Merry Christmas—Health To All." The Seal shows a jolly Santa Claus, from the waist up, carrying a small Christmas tree over his left shoulder and raising his hand in greeting. Above the raised hand is the double-barred cross in red, which is the copyrighted symbol of the fight against tuberculosis in this country. This cross serves to identify the Seals to the public as authentic tuberculosis seals and is a guarantee that money spent in their purchase supports the organized fight against this terrible disease that still kills more people between the ages of eighteen and forty than any other.

If You Have "Menu-itis", Just Try This Easy Cure

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

If "menu-itis" could be classified as a dangerous affliction, almost every woman would find her name enrolled on some hospital list.

The first symptom, usually, is a feeling that one cannot—simply cannot—plan another dinner! Ever! And matters soon progress steadily from this point until the complaint becomes chronic, and the whole family is involved in the suffering.

Of course, no two persons will arrange a menu in quite the same way, any more than different cooks will produce identical results from the same recipe. However, the best method for obtaining needed relief from this daily task of meal-planning is to allow someone else to furnish occasional suggestions. I am sure you will find the menu printed below is a welcomed, practical idea. The secret of its goodness lies in the somewhat different seasonings that are given the different foods. Try it for dinner tonight!

Small open sandwiches, often called "canapés," make excellent appetizers. They should be ready on small serving plates at each place when dinner is announced. The following simple appetizers are made from foods that you more than likely have on hand:

Olives and Hard Cooked Egg Appetizers:

Cut rounds of bread, and toast on one side only. Butter the untoasted side and spread with a layer of thinly sliced Stuffed Spanish Olives. Then cover with a generous layer of chopped hard cooked eggs, moistened with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Sprinkle with egg yolks that have been forced through a sieve and on the center of each, place a slice of the Olives.

Deviled Ham Loaf: 1 lb. raw ham (cured), 2 eggs, 1/2 cup Tomato Ketchup, 2 beaten eggs, 1/2 cup Tomato Ketchup, 1 teaspoon Mustard, 2 cups Rice Flakes, 1/2 teaspoon Evaporated Horseradish, 4 tablespoons green pepper, chopped; 2 small onions, chopped.

Combine ham and pork, eggs, Tomato Ketchup, Prepared Mustard, Rice Flakes, and Horseradish, which has been soaked for 10 minutes in 2 tablespoons cold water. Fry green pepper and onions in a skillet with butter until they are tender, but not brown, and add to the meat mixture. Form into a loaf and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees F.—for about one hour.

Succotash of Corn and Kidney Beans: 2 cups fresh corn cut from the cob; 1 cup medium can Oven Baked Kidney Beans; 1 green pepper, minced; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 egg, slightly beaten; grated cheese; buttered crumblers.

Mix corn with Kidney Beans, and add green pepper, salt and egg. Pour into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with grated cheese and buttered crumbs, and bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 45 minutes.

Chocolate Wafer Dessert: Use a package of very crisp chocolate wafers, which may be purchased in almost any grocery. Whip 1/2 pint cream, add 2 table-spoons sugar, and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Put the wafers together with a thin layer of whipped cream to form a cylinder. Then coat the outside thinly with whipped cream. Allow to stand in the ice box (not in the freezing compartment) for two or three hours, and cut in diagonal slices.

Chilton County Abstract Co.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth. However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

M. LOCKHART ORDAINED INTO FULL MINISTRY ON SEPT. 21ST

The Rev. M. Lockhart of Thorsby, was ordained into full ministry on September 21 when ordination services were held at the Refuge Baptist Church, with the Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, delivering the sermon.

Rev. M. J. Parrish delivered the able charge, and was followed with prayer by Rev. G. G. Williams. Rev. Lockhart moved to Thorsby sometime ago to enter the Thorsby Institute, where he will complete his studies as far as possible there, and will serve the Maple Springs Baptist church as pastor it was announced. He is one of the most promising young ministers of this section, and it is hoped that the churches will keep him busy.

MISS NORA LEE LESSLEY AND MR. J. C. SEAY ARE MARRIED

A marriage of much interest to their many friends was that of Miss Nora Lee Lessley and Mr. J. C. Seay which took place Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lessley, of Oak Grove.

The home was decorated in luxuriant ferns and cut flowers. The bride was beautifully attired in navy blue georgette with velvet trimmings and accessories to match, and wore a hat of blue French felt. The groom was dressed in a blue suit.

Only a few friends and relatives of the immediate family witnessed the impressive ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Honeycutt of Jemison.

Immediately following the ceremony a bountiful supper was enjoyed by those present, after which Mr. and Mrs. Seay left for their home near Longview.

MT. PLEASANT JR. HIGH OPENS WEDNESDAY, OCT. 8TH

School will open at Mt. Pleasant Jr. High on next Wednesday morning, October 8th, at eight o'clock. The building and campus grounds have been cleaned and made ready for the opening day, and the largest enrollment since the establishment of the school is expected.

All children, patrons and friends interested in the school are urged to be present for what is expected to be the best opening exercise of any previous year.

R. B. Johnson, principal, had the following to say:

"We are proud to state that the school begins this year's work along with the other district schools, whereas, last year it was three weeks later than others, due to the building not being complete. We also take great pride in announcing that the school opens with a clear record, there being not a single debt charged against the school."

The faculty this year is composed of the following: R. B. Johnson, principal and Junior High Instructor, Jemison, Ala.; Miss Evelyn Littlejohn, of Clanton, Ala., 6th grade; Miss Olys Bean, Clanton, Ala., Intermediate work; Miss Mildred Rainey, Adger, Ala., Primary work.

C. C. H. S. DEFEATED HOLTVILLE HERE LAST FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Chilton County High School football team played their first game of the 1930 season last Friday afternoon on the local gridiron. The Clanton team met the strong team from Holtville and barely managed to nose out a seven to nothing victory over their opponents.

The Holtville eleven proved much stiffer competition for the Chilton team than was generally expected and held their opponents to one touchdown. Clanton scored in the second quarter when, after the ball had been advanced for into Holtville's territory, Melton, fullback for Clanton, drove thru the line and carried the ball across. Simms kicked the extra point.

This was the first game for Coach Walker's team and they showed up well, despite the fact that there were a number of inexperienced players on the team. Simms at quarterback, showed up well and several long passes were completed to Cox which netted Clanton several nice gains in yardage.

The Clanton team has a hard schedule ahead of them for the rest of this season. On next Friday afternoon they tackle the Prattville team at Prattville and should give the Autauga boys some trouble.

Republican candidates who feel it necessary to explain and apologize for their support of the Grundy tariff and the Administration's vacillating policies serve to recall the story of the old-time candidate who closed his speech by saying: "Fellow citizens: I have stated my views on the issues of the campaign; if they don't suit you, I can change them."

TEACHERS HAVE A SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTE HERE

Attendance Last Monday And Tuesday Showed Up As Almost Perfect

The Teachers' Institute of Chilton County which was held here last Monday and Tuesday at the Chilton County High School was pronounced by those teachers attending as being perhaps the most successful and inspiring meeting held in the county for the teachers. The report on the attendance showed only two absent, leaving a total attendance of 142 teachers from over the county.

The institute opened Monday morning at nine-thirty o'clock with a very interesting and educational program in store, closing last Tuesday at noon.

Among the principal speakers were Dr. R. E. Tidwell, director of Extension work at the University of Alabama and former Superintendent of Education of the State, A. R. Meadows of the State Department of Education, Dr. H. W. James, Director of Extension work at Alabama College, Montevallo, Dr. Rutland from the State Health Department, Dr. V. J. Gragg of Clanton, Rev. E. A. Childs of Clanton, Dr. S. J. Exell of Clanton and many others from over the state, whose talks were thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience of teachers of this county.

It was the general opinion of the entire assembly that all the teachers of the county would enroll 100 per cent in the Alabama Educational Association, and the following officers were elected for the county association: E. E. Owen, principal of the Maplesville High School, president; Z. Y. Appleton, of the Collins Chapel school, vice president; and Miss Bessie Thomas, Clanton, as secretary.

Delegates to the state association were selected as follows: B. Lawrence, Mrs. Cordelia Ward, Verbena; L. C. Warr, Clanton; W. T. Bean, Thorbsy; Luther E. Little, Stanton; and Miss Celia Cumbee, Isabella. Alternates are J. P. Montgomery, Jemison; G. C. Weldon, Thomas Jr. High School; J. M. Parrish, Concord; Miss Rebecca Echols, Jemison; Miss Eda Lee Gissenhanner, Maplesville, and I. J. Quinn, Clanton.

Comments from various teachers in attendance indicated that the institute was a complete success in every way, and a most successful school year is certain in Chilton County, from all indications.

DR. GRAGG AS A CANDIDATE FOR THE STATE SENATE

In the person of Dr. V. J. Gragg, of Clanton, the Heflin-Locke ticket is offering one of the outstanding men of Central Alabama as a candidate for State Senator from the Fifteenth Senatorial District, composed of Chilton, Shelby, and Autauga Counties. Regardless of how one may feel about political matters, it is a fact generally recognized, that Dr. Gragg is a man of outstanding ability, and being well known throughout the district, his strength as a candidate for this important office is at once recognized.

Dr. Gragg was born and reared in Chilton County. He is a self-made man who came up from the plow handles by virtue of his own ambition to be something in life. In his early days he was taught in the public schools of Chilton County for several years. During that time he formed many contacts which have ripened into lifelong (continued on back page)

DO YOU KNOW HOW CLANTON AND CHILTON WERE NAMED

No doubt there are many people living in Clanton and Chilton County who have no idea of how and why they received the names they have, and do you know who the town of Jemison was named for? And do you know when this county's name was changed from Baker County to Chilton, and did you know where Calera received its name, and that the man Clanton was named for was murdered while representing our state?

All these questions are answered and explained in a very interesting article appearing in this issue of the News, written by Peter A. Brannon, for the Alabama Highways magazine, in which he tells many interesting things about this section of the state.

SPEAKING HERE AT COURTHOUSE NEXT SATURDAY

Col. Robert T. Rives to Speak
In Behalf of The Democratic Party

It was announced Tuesday that Col. Robert T. Rives, outstanding Democrat and citizen of Alabama, will be in Clanton next Saturday afternoon to speak to the people of Chilton County in behalf of the Democratic Party.

The speaking is scheduled for two-thirty o'clock at the courthouse, and the subject will be, "Heflin, Locke and Hoover Prosperity."

A cordial invitation is extended to the people of this county to come to Clanton and hear this able and forceful speaker next Saturday afternoon, October 11th. This announcement was made by Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson, Chairman of the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee, and he urges all Democrats to hear this speech.

On Saturday afternoon, October 11, Judge Leon McCord, another outstanding citizen of Montgomery, is scheduled to speak here in behalf of the Democratic Party, it was also announced.

First Boy To Join Fisher Body Guild

Buck Grant of Collinsville was the first boy in Alabama to enroll in the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, which is sponsoring a nation-wide educational program to develop better craftsmanship among boys.

More than 900 awards, valued at $50,000 and including four university scholarships, will be given to boys who build the best models of a miniature Napoleonic coach. The awards will be made by renowned educators along technical lines who have endorsed the Guild movement.

Any boy in the United States between the ages of 12 and 19 years inclusive is eligible for membership in the Guild. Enrollment blanks may be secured at any General Motors dealer. As soon as these blanks have been received by the Fisher Body Corporation in Detroit, a membership button and complete working plans for modeling a coach will be forwarded to the boy.

Owing to the wide age range, two class divisions have been formed. One is a junior group comprised of boys from 12 to 15 inclusive and the other a senior group composed of boys from 16 to 19 inclusive. Awards will be divided equally between the two divisions two scholarships going to the juniors and two to the seniors.

In addition to the scholarship awards trips to Detroit will be presented to the boy in each class in each state whose model is adjudged the best in the state. Further awards in cash will be made to the builders of the second best coach model in each division in each state, and for individual merit on particular parts of the model building, such as woodcraft, metalcraft, trimcraft and paintcraft.

UNITED SINGING SOCIETY WILL MEET AT COLLINS CHAPEL

Announcement has been made that the United Singing Society will hold its next meeting at the Collins Chapel school on the third day in this month, which is October 9th.

It was also stated that the Clanton Quartette has promised to be present and a most enjoyable afternoon is anticipated.

Revival At Baptist Church Comes To A Close Friday

A very successful revival, was the report given out on the revival meeting which was conducted at the Clanton Baptist church and closed last Friday night.

There were thirty-six additions to the church, seventeen of which were by letter and nineteen by baptism. The sermons were delivered in a simple but forceful and impressive manner by the Rev. F. J. Fleming, of Ashland, Alabama, while the singing was ably directed by P. S. Rowland, who made many friends here several years ago, when he conducted the singing at another revival meeting.

At each service, Rev. Fleming had a fine congregation and his sermons will no doubt live long in the minds of many who heard him.

T. G. TAYLOR AND MISS JULIA PARRISH MARRIED LAST WEEK

T. G. Taylor and Miss Julia Parrish pulled quite a surprise on their many friends over the county when they were married on last Thursday afternoon, October 2.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the Rev. M. J. Parrish, near here in the presence of a few intimate friends, and came as a most pleasant surprise to the children of Mr. Taylor, who is widely known throughout the county.

Mrs. Taylor is the daughter of Elijah Parrish, one of the pioneer citizens of this county. She has for a number of years served as one of the teachers at the Concord School, near here. The couple will make their home in Clanton in the future, and are receiving heartiest congratulations from their countless friends over the county.

Field Day Committee Named At Institute

One of the matters brought up at the Teachers' Institute here the first part of the week was the selection of a committee from over the county, from the school teachers, to look into the possibilities of holding a Field Day or Play Day, for the schools in this county.

The committee named for this work is composed of I. J. Quinn, principal of the Clanton Grammar School, as chairman; Zane H. Turner, Jemison; H. T. Wooten, Verbena High; Ellis Paulk, Isabella; Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin, Isabella; Miss Edna Colfield, Chilton County High; Miss Rebecca Echols, Jemison High and Miss Mae Wible, Verbena.

This committee will discuss the advisability of holding this Play Day, and if decided in the affirmative, will also have charge of all arrangements, etc.

Chilton Represented At Jacksonville School

Jacksonville, Ala., Oct. 3.—A large group of Chilton County students have enrolled in the Jacksonville State Teachers' College. Jemison High School leads the list with a total of five former graduates. Isabella High School and Verbena rank second with two each and Clanton has one. The following are the students listed from Chilton County:

Jemison—Lera Bean, Jessie Dorniney, Edward Glascock, Briggs Hodges and H. Jerome Wilson.
Verbena—Rugh Dennis and Mabel Wilkins.
Isabella—Claude Conway and Homer LeCroy.
Clanton—Vernon Baker.

T. L. Lecroy, of the Mulberry community, was a pleasant caller at the News office, while in Clanton Monday.

Fashion Show With Forty Models Will Be Staged At Local High School Tuesday Night

On next Tuesday night, October 11, approximately forty beautiful models will appear in a Fashion Show to be staged in the auditorium of the Chilton County High School, according to an announcement given out by the Parent-Teachers Associations of the Clanton Grammar School and the local high school.

The show is scheduled to open at eight o'clock, with an admission of fifteen and twenty-five cents. The young ladies who will act as models at this Fashion Show will come from

Collins Chapel Baptists Plan To Build Church

The progressive community of Collins Chapel, north of here, is coming to the front more and more. Plans are now being pushed for the erection of a new building to serve as the Baptist church, according to Rev. Z. Y. Appleton, pastor.

This was definitely decided at a called meeting held last Saturday night at the church, and on the next preaching day, the announcement of the builder and other plans will be made and discussed.

It was stated that the old building will be torn down and the new one erected almost on the same spot. It has not yet been decided where services will be held during the construction of the new building, but it is presumed that the school auditorium will be used until the new church is completed. Construction is expected to begin soon, it was stated.

J. GRAVES DUNCAN, JR., SENA- TORIAL CANDIDATE, HERE MON.

The Democratic nominee for the office of State Senator from the Fifteenth Senatorial District, J. Graves Duncan, Jr., of Prattville, Alabama, was among the prominent visitors to Clanton last Monday.

Mr. Duncan was kept busy while here shaking hands with his many friends who are giving him their support in the general election to be held in November, as Chilton County is included in the Fifteenth Senatorial District. Although Mr. Duncan was not so well known in this section until he opened his campaign sometime before the primary last August, he has since then brought upon himself the friendship of a large portion of the population of this county as well as Shelby and Autauga, the other two counties in his district.

American Legion Will Meet Here October 20

A meeting has been called for the Chilton County Post of the American Legion for the third Monday night in October, which is October 20, according to an announcement given the News this week. The meeting will be held at the courthouse at 7 o'clock.

All ex-service men of the county are invited and urged to be present at this meeting. The regular meeting nights of the local post are on the first and third Monday nights in each month.

CLANTON QUARTETTE WILL SING AT STANTON SUNDAY

Announcement has been made that the Clanton Quartette will appear at the Stanton Junior High School on next Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. The public is invited to come to the school and enjoy an afternoon of singing.

Chilton Co. Baptist Association Meets

The Chilton County Missionary Baptist Association will meet on next Wednesday and Thursday, October 15 and 16, at the Mulberry church, west of Clanton, according to B. Lawrence. It is urgently requested that all the members of this association be present at this meeting, at which the usual important matters of business will be taken care of.

MANNING - LITTLE ENGAGE- MENT ANNOUNCED; WEDDING 12

The following clipping was taken from the Birmingham News of last Sunday, October 5, and is of wide interest in this county:

"Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Manning, of Clanton, Ala., announce the engagement of their daughter, Glois Martin, to Cleon T. Little, of Atlanta, Ga., formerly of Birmingham, the wedding to be an event of October 12."

NEW OFFICIALS OF CITY HAVE TAKEN CHARGE

Change Is Made In Office Of City Clerk And Supt.
Of Water Works

At the first meeting of the newly elected city officials here under J. Lee Smith, as Mayor, was held last Monday night in the office of the City clerk, Claudy Pipes was elected to succeed J. H. Plier as city clerk and treasurer, and Earl Gore was named to succeed Milton C. Smith as superintendent of the water works of the town.

It was also stated that the police force will remain as it has been in the past, and the crew who maintains the streets will also remain the same.

Claudry Pipes assumed his duties Tuesday morning as City Clerk, however, Plier is to remain in the office for ten days.

Those city officials present at the meeting Monday night were J. Lee Smith, mayor, and H. S. Shaw, W. L. Popwell, Grady Broadhead and Grady Heflin, councilmen. Reddie Taylor, another councilman was not present. Another meeting of the officials was held Tuesday night at which time various things were brought up and discussed.

Chilton Will Play Marbury Here Friday

Playing their third game of the season, the coming football team of the local high school will meet the Marbury High School team on the local gridiron tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock, it was announced Tuesday.

It is expected that this game will be a close one and hard fought as the Clanton boys are beginning to get a good taste of real football, after having been defeated last Friday afternoon by the Prattville eleven on the Prattville field, by a score of 21 to 0.

Coach Walker and Coach Varnell of Chilton High, wish to urge the people of Clanton to attend the games played on the local field, and is possible, also attend those games played at other places, as the presence of home town people plays a large part in the game played by home town boys. The Chilton High team is beginning to be ironed out and probably by the next few games, all the bad wrinkles will be kept out of the games and show the survival of the fittest among the local players.

MR. AND MRS. GRADY HEFLIN PROUD PARENTS OF FINE BOY

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Heflin are the proud parents of a fine baby boy, born Tuesday night. The new arrival will bear the name of his father, Henry Grady Heflin, Jr. Both the mother and son are doing nicely.

HAS ANYONE LOST A BUNCH OF KEYS?

Someone lost a bunch of keys last week in the post office according to Lester Jones, at The Farmers Hardware Store, who found a bunch of very important looking keys there.

Anyone who thinks these keys are theirs should see Lester, who has them at the hardware store.

L. L. Courtney, and sons, Tom and Bill, of Clanton Route 6, were among the visitors to Clanton last Saturday.

METHODISTS TO OPEN REVIVAL HERE OCT. 12

Rev. Ernest A. Childs, Pastor
Will Deliver Sermons For Meeting

Following directly after the closing of the revival meeting at the local Baptist church, comes the revival meeting of the Methodist church here which has been looked forward to here for some time.

The meeting is scheduled to begin on next Sunday, October 12, at the morning services which will be held at eleven o'clock, and will continue thru Sunday, October 12, according to Rev. Ernest A. Childs, pastor of the church who will deliver the sermons during the revival, as was the wish of the people.

The morning services will be held at ten o'clock during the week, and the evening services will begin at seven o'clock, it was announced. The meeting will be directed by Peter A. Brannon, of this place.

A cordial invitation is extended to the general public to attend each meeting during this revival at the Methodist church, and the sermons are sure to be put before the people in a straightforward, plain, and impressive manner by the Rev. Childs.

The auditorium of the Methodist church is capable of seating a large congregation, and with modern methods of controlling the temperature of the building, those attending these services are assured of comfort at all times as far as the temperature of the auditorium is concerned.

CHILTON TEACHERS ACQUIRE HELPMATES DURING SUMMER

A question of how many of the school teachers in Chilton County were married during the past summer arose in a group this week, and upon investigating it was found that approximately twelve had acquired help mates during the summer vacation. Those named in this group were Miss Jewell Martin, although not a teacher, is connected with the department of education in the County, and who is now Mrs. Marion Smith. Miss Curtis Bean, who is now Mrs. Marvin Martin; Miss Julia Parrish, who is now Mrs. Taylor; Miss Gladys Kemp, now Mrs. DeVaughn Strook; Miss Effie Mae Partidge, now Mrs. Delbert Norris; Miss Lola Gerald, now Mrs. Leonard Moody; Miss Katie Myrtle Coburn, now Mrs. Herbert Williams; Miss Irene Woodhollow, now Mrs. Alfus Miller, and others whose names could not be recalled, but who were married during the summer and were teachers in the county are Misses Estelle Shaw, Arva Owen, Lilla Belle Golden and Mr. J. C. White.

Whether this condition will continue on through the present term of school was brought up, but was decided that it would only remain to be seen.

JIMMY LECROY OF NASHVILLE A RECENT VISITOR IN COUNTY

Clanton received a pleasant call from one of its former citizens in the person of Jimmy Lecroy. Mr. Lecroy drove in from Nashville last week end for a short visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy in the Mulberry community near here.

He left last Tuesday for Montgomery, and from there he will go to Georgia, and parts in Florida. He is representing Spencer & Company, dealers in automobile supplies.

V. J. ELMORE STORE BUYS FIRST PRIVILEGE LICENSE

The first privilege license issued in Chilton County from the office of the Judge of Probate, for the year, 1931, was issued to the V. J. Elmore Store, 10c & $1.00 Store of this place.

The first automobile tag purchased in Chilton County for 1931 was issued to Dollie McInlyne, of Verbena, Alabama Route 2.

There have been approximately thirty or more tags issued to date since the opening date of purchase which was October 1, and there have been something like thirty or more privilege licenses issued in the county to date. The last day one will be able to purchase an automobile tag in the county will be November 14th, without an additional penalty.

Disinfected Circus Gets Cary's Okeh

The Ringling Brothers Circus will move into Mobile and Montgomery this week with their animals, cages and cars reeking with the odor of disinfectant as the result of a visit paid the circus Saturday and Sunday by Dr. C. A. Cary, state veterinarian.

Dr. Cary visited the circus in New Orleans to ascertain whether the animals offered any threat for the reinfestation by the cattle tick in Alabama, as the show had toured tick-infested areas in Texas and Louisiana it was reported.

Following an inspection of the animals and a conference with officials of the circus, more than 500 horses were sprayed, all cages were disinfected and all of the cars were cleaned and disinfected under supervision of Dr. Cary and federal inspectors.

"I am entirely satisfied," Dr. Cary said last night upon his return from New Orleans, "and the circus will show on schedule."

High Points In Plan For Cotton Acreage Reduction In State

Urging farmers to market their cotton through cooperative association, for the obtaining of 90 per cent of the market price now, and profit by subsequent future rises in price.

Reducing of cotton production until consumption increases and stocks are reduced, so that cotton can be sold at a profit.

Cooperating in the holding of cotton acreage in the United States next season to not more than 40,000,000 acres, beyond which the danger point will be reached.

Reducing production by acreage readjustment, so that lands previously devoted to cotton can be used for some other crop or purpose.

Growing of other crops besides cotton, that will give a cash income.

Encouragement of the livestock, poultry and dairy enterprises.

Producing of more feedstuffs at home.

Turning lands that cannot be farmed profitably into timber production areas.

Reducing cost of production of all crops to a minimum by improving the fertility and condition of soils, by growing legumes, proper use of commercial fertilizer, employment of sufficient machinery, planting seed of the best varieties and employing the best methods of planting, cultivating and harvesting.

Improving the quality and staple of cotton by planting seed that produces the staple desired by spinners and which will bring a higher income per acre.

Members of the new Tariff Commission have been appointed and may now prepare for investigation.

News In Brief

United States farm population decreased 4,000,000,000 from 1920 to 1930, from 31,000,000,000 to 27,000,000,000.

Tree-ripened, quick-frozen Georgia peaches in fiber cups are being packed and distributed throughout the nation by a company of Montezuma, Ga.

Fires on farms last year took a total of approximately 3,500 lives and caused property damage to an amount estimated at $100,000,000, or nearly 1-4 of the fire loss of the entire country.

A gross income from farm production of about $11,851,000,000 in 1928, with $11,616,000,000 in 1927, and with $11,480,000,000 in 1926 is estimated by the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

E. F. Creekmore, president of the Cotton Stabilization Corporation, with headquarters in New Orleans, announced through the Federal Farm Board that the holdings of the corporation of about 1,300,000 bales would not be dumped on the market at present prices, but would be held at least until July 31 next year, unless the market price reached or passed the purchase price.

SIMEON AND ANNA
Luke 2:25-39

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Sins in adult life engulf many who are able to overcome all the temptations that come with growing youth and middle age. One reason may be that there is an overconfidence with the advancing years. Two Bible characters help to show us how to grow old safely and gracefully. Simeon and Anna accomplished this, in part, by continuing purposeful during every year.

Simeon must have been a Temple character. For years he had been noted by all who came up to worship there. Evidently his piety was not a matter of affectation. Real religion is as noticeable today.

Reference to the Holy Spirit is most significant. Like the Second Person in the Trinity, the Third Person was co-existent with the Father from the beginning though there was a special manifestation of Himself and His office work in time. Through the communion of the Spirit Simeon understood what he was to remain in this earthly life until he had seen "the Lord's Christ."

Triumphphant in his faithful waiting the old saint takes the babe in his arms and praises God in the NUNC DIMITTIS: "Now lettest thou thy servant depart, Lord, according to thy word, in peace."

Anna is another prophetess, named with Miriam, Deborah and Huldah of Old Testament record. She, too had been faithful in her Temple activities during a length of years. She was now 105 and had been a widow for 84 years. Because she did not absent herself from the Temple that particular day she was honored in thus coming into relationship with the Life that has become the greatest force in all ages.

NEW YORK SKYSCRAPERS

Higher and higher go the great skyscrapers of New York City, the new Empire building being destined to reach an eminence exceeding Eiffel tower's 1,000 feet.

Observing the piling up of these massive buildings, some have wondered whether eventually Manhattan Island might not give way under the strain and collapse into the surrounding waters.

No such happening is likely, engineers point out, for two reasons. First the city is built upon solid rock which would bear any weight man could ever put upon it. Second, the great amount of stone removed in excavations for these great buildings is heavier than the completed skyscraper, although of apparently much less bulk.

Citing a recent example, the stone excavated for the new Chrysler building weighed twice as much as the building itself, which at present is the highest in the world. So, the weight supported by the island is becoming less instead of greater.

Folks may be reassured, then, that whatever may be the dangers of New York, the collapse of its foundations is not one of them.

Possibly Senators object to women colleagues because they fear the ladies may out-talk 'em.

HITCH HIKERS BANNED

After more than 14 months of operation the Maine law against hitch hiking is declared effective and beneficial by General J. W. Hanson, chief of the state's highway police, although not a single prosecution has been necessary.

The law forbids any person on a public highway to "endeavor by words, gestures or otherwise to beg or secure transportation in any motor vehicle not engaged in carrying passengers for hire, unless said person knows the driver thereof or any passenger there-in." An exception is made in case of sickness of an emergency nature. Maximum punishment for a violation of the law is $50 fine or 30 days in jail.

Hitch hikers are a nuisance to motorists, and many cases are on record in which persons soliciting a lift have robbed and even murdered those who thus befriended them. On the other hand, most kindly disposed persons would willingly give an honest pedestrian a ride if there were any way to distinguish him from the other kind.

In this matter, as in so many others, a vicious minority seems to make necessary a law which imposes a hardship on those who have no wrong intentions. Law or no law, it is safer not to pick up the unknown hitch hiker.

Because she lipped a woman servant who was lazy, Mrs. Robert MacFarlane of Cleveland was sent to prison for three months.

At the inquest of her mother's sudden death, Mrs. Florence Kent of Chicago stated that she had never known her mother's Christian name.

"She had no legs under her a-tall, she was hopelessly drunk," testified Policeman Kieran of Miss Emily Bailey of Chicago, who was given 30 days to "find her legs."

Here's to Beauty!
By Doris Hale
Du Barry
Beauty Consultant

JUST a few days ago I had a long talk with a famous painter who has done the portraits of many beautiful women. And it was astonishing to learn how much his art had taught him about care of the skin.

I found, when he began to talk about feminine beauty, that nothing escaped his keen eyes. As he painted, he saw revealed the host of tiny blemishes and little sagging contours that the average person would overlook. Indeed, he knew quite as much about the texture of the skin as any beauty expert.

"Why is it," he declared, "that so many women are satisfied to have complexions like the pigments on oil paintings? When viewed from a distance, their skin seems lovely; but when one observes them more closely it is found to be unpleasantly coarse and rough looking. Only recently I met a charming woman whose friends thought she was beautiful. But when she sat for her portrait, I saw clearly that her skin actually was blotchy—like an oil painting that is viewed in a poor light."

He was right—some women's skins do look like oil paintings! Yet there is no need for any woman to let her skin grow coarse and weather-beaten—and old. If the skin is treated as it should be, its texture will change only a little through the years after twenty. And no one should try to cover up a neglected skin with a heavy layer of powder, when it is so easy to keep the skin lovely with just a few minutes attention daily.

From Centreville to Maplesville By Brierfield and Jemison With Stops

By Peter A. Brannon
In Alabama Highways Magazine

On the fourth day of December, one hundred ten years ago, the Legislature of the new state of Alabama changed the name of Cahawba County to "Bibb." William Wyatt Bibb, our first state Governor, had served less than seven months when he died from those injuries when he fell from his horse. Governor Bibb died July 10, 1820, and at the winter session of the Legislature they perpetuated the memory of this Virginian, once a Senator from Georgia, who then an Alabamian, had not yet reached his two score years when he was called from his duties here. The county which was given his name embraced a large territory. As originally constituted, it was made up from old Monroe County of the Mississippi Territory. Much of the present Shelby and all of Chilton were included in that subdivision which the Act of February 12, 1818, made into a county to forever preserve the name of those old natives called by the Choctaws, Oka aba. The Cahawba were the people "of the water above."

Centreville, "re" not "er," is coincident with the "Falls of Cahawba," where the Act of Dec. 17, 1819, said that the election should be held to permanently fix a seat of justice. The law said that the county seat should be within four miles of the center of the county. Noah B. Coker's house was the first voting place. Sometimes the court house appears to have been intended on the east side of the river, again on the west. The Legislature seems to have fixed "the center of the county" in 1824, for by one of its acts in December, the sheriff of Bibb County was directed to conduct legal sales "at the village of Centreville."

State highway number twenty-five will carry you northeast on by Six Mile town near where, a little less than a hundred years ago, Jonathan N. Smith, born in Hancock County, Ga., at old Sparta, in 1814, had a furnace. As you cross the creek, remember that this same boy was carrying wheat to a flour mill at that place more than a century ago. And you may be interested to know, too, that about this same time, while camping over on Big Cahawba, he was startled to find that the "rocks" on which he had built his log fire, were burning. He was ignorantly using coal, not crystalline material, on which to lay these logs.

If you would seek adventure, take the Six Mile to Piper road,—not a modern one,—and visit the old Bright-hope Furnace site. It is on the bluff a few yards below that once wonderful Browne's Dam across the Cahawba. This old ruin there in the solitude is an interesting reminder of the beginning of Alabama's industrial development. Nature has run rampant there and this handiwork of man is all but obliterated for these two stacks built of native sandstone are truly desolate objects there in the woods off this old pathway. Scottsville, further along on the now abandoned road, was of importance till March, 1865, when the Federal General McCook burned it. David Scott's factory which manufactured both woolen and cotton goods, erected in 1836, was one of the state's flourishing institutions.

Now, back on the highway is Ashby and Brierfield. The latter is another one of those reminders of earlier days. Major John Mahan, the Revolutionary soldier from Maryland, had three sons with Andrew Jackson at New Orleans and before 1820, two of them, with some Lindsay's, Massengales, Fanchers and Ragans, had settled on the branch of Little Cahawba River which they called Mahan's Creek. Old John's name is carved on a gravestone on the Joseph R. Smith place where the old Indian village once stood. The well known Confederate Rolling Mill, built by Richard Fell, was on this old Mahan settlement. Brierfield, said to have been constructed in a dense field of blackberry briars and, too, in part, from machinery brought from Brierfield, Mississippi, one time home of Jefferson Davis, was with the other valuable properties, destroyed in March, 1865, by details from General James Wilson's troops. The property rebuilt after the war, has in late years been abandoned.

As Ashby was one of the original mill factories in this southern country. Montevallo, once Wilson's Hill, was the original settlement of Jesse Wilson, another of Jackson's soldiers. He was there before 1817.

The King, Walker and Woodruff families were early there. Ebenezer Hearn, the Methodist circuit rider, married Mary Walker there in 1822. Samuel Mardis, born in Tennessee in 1800, was practicing law there in 1823. Mardisville, seat of the land office after the Cusseta Treaty of 1832, bore his name. Today that well known educational institution for women, Alabama College, is what flashes through our minds as we hear the name, but the student of the South's industrial development pictures a modest little old man approaching the sunset of life yonder in an environment calculated to make one of his nature truly happy. Truman H. Aldrich, the first-of the great pioneer coal operators, long time owner of the Montevallo Coal Company, is spending his evening with the Alabama Geological Survey at Tuscaloosa. Here, that boy, Dr. Walter B. Jones, successor to Eugene A. Smith, Mr. Aldrich's friend, and Michael Toumey, Mr. Aldrich's inspiration, gives him the opportunity to live with those evidences of nature of which he dreamed when he leased these mines nearly sixty years ago.

History records another one of those soldiers of Jackson as the first settler at another point on this road. John R. Gamble was the original one to come to what we now call Calera. He did not stay here long and about 1848 some South Carolinians came in. The Alabama and Tennessee River Railroad brought some lime workers in 1853. Then the Lime Station became "Calera," for that is from the Spanish for "lime." This locality figured some in Confederate history for as a railroad crossing and center, it was of importance. In the life of that generation now watching the development of a new one, old Shelby Springs nearby was an attractive gathering place. Even during the period of the War Between the States, its health giving waters were strengthening recuperating soldiers. Recently Birmingham business men have restored it to be alike one of those old time "watering places."

Now, south down the pavement are Jemison, Thorsby and Clanton and they were not influenced by those inevitable Tennessee soldiers. Robert Jemison, late of Tuscaloosa, was honored when they chose a name for that village. Mr. Jemison, mentally, was "like Saul among the children of Kish, a head and shoulders above his brethren." He was born in Lincoln County, Georgia, in 1802 and was a pupil with Dixon H. Lewis, W. T. Colquitt, Absolom H. Chappell, Grigsby E. Thomas and T. A. Watkins, names high in the annals of fame, under Rev. N. N. S. Beman, the step-father of William Lowndes Yancey. Though a railroad station bears his name, Mr. Jemison's early business enterprises were mail coach lines. His competitor, James Powell, could not "freeze" him out, so he took him into partnership.

Thorsby is a recent town, though old maps show "Strasburg" at about this point. Thirty years ago there was a business college at "Thorsby."

Clanton bears the name of General James H. Clanton who served in the war with Mexico and who distinguished himself in the cause of the Confederacy. When the county was created in 1868, they called it for Alfred Baker of Autauga, but on Dec. 17, 1874, its name was changed to that of Judge William P. Clifton, born in Kentucky, but long a distinguished citizen of this state. Judge Clifton was a staunch Democrat and General Clanton the leader and one of the party's most vigorous fighters, but strange as it may seem, this section has long been the stronghold of Republicanism in Alabama. General Clanton lost his life September 26, 1871, in Knoxville, while representing the State of Alabama, in the Federal Court, in the matter of the Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad Bonds. He was shot by the drunken son of a former Federal Army officer. This controversy left an irreparable loss, for General Clanton was one of Alabama's outstanding citizens.

West and South over State Road number twenty-two, you will reach old Maplesville, then the present village of the name. When they ran the railroad from Columbus, Mississippi, to Montgomery, through that section in 1899, the people moved west to be on the railway. The drive is through a rough country formerly heavily timbered. The progress of time is positively evident, for where as the auto has replaced those big ox-drawn trucks dragging their logs underneath, today the M. & O. railroad at Maplesville is using electrically driven locomotives. In the short space of less than thirty years that rural section of western Chilton County with no railroad, now has improved highways and electric trains.

DR. V. J. GRAGG of Clanton Candidate for State Senator

As a candidate for State Senator from the 15th Senatorial District, I realize that I should express my views concerning matters that might interest voters before soliciting your vote.

1. I believe in majority rule instead of minority control, as we now have in some instances. And I shall stand for all elective offices, education or otherwise, being filled by expression of the voters interested.
2. More safe laws for protection of depositors in the state banks.
3. Reduction rather than increase of taxes and expenses if possible, but no reduction of school funds.
4. Continued progress along the lines of education and public health.
5. Continued road improvement without debts if possible.
6. Honest and impartial enforcement of the law regardless of class or creed.

In conclusion, will say that I solicit the vote and influence of every law-abiding white voter regardless of his or her past affiliation, realizing to the fullest extent that a bad citizen is a bad citizen, and a good citizen is a good citizen, regardless of whether he has called himself a Republican, Democrat or what-not in the past

Respectfully,

V. J. GRAGG.

Jeffersonian Democratic Candidate for State Senate.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HEAD UNDER BOND ON ARSON CHARGE

Talladega, Ala., Oct. 3.—E. Gibson Stringer, chief of the Talladega Fire Department, was placed under $1,000 bond on an indictment charging second degree arson in connection with burning of the Chambers Building here Sept. 16.

The indictment was returned jointly against Chief Stringer and a negro, Grover Davis, who was arrested September 19. Their trial is expected to be set for the Circuit Court term beginning October 13.

Edna Ogletree and W. B. Bagwell, both of Sylacauga, were also arrested Thursday on arson charges in indictments returned by the Talladega County Grand Jury, according to Sheriff Wesley.

The night of the fire officers received a call to the eastern part of the city to arrest two drunk men, they said. Reaching the address given they found a vacant house. They returned to the downtown section to find the Chambers Building aflame. Representatives of the state fire marshal's office investigated the case.

Power Stockholders Get 42nd Preferred Dividend

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 1.—The forty-second consecutive quarterly dividend on its preferred stock was paid today by Alabama Power Company when approximately $500,019 in dividend checks were mailed to more than 14,500 shareholders.

The dividends paid was to holders of record on September 15th of preferred shares entitled to dividends at the rate of $6 and $7 per annum.

An additional dividend of approximately $38,000 will be paid November 1st to some 1100 holders of its preferred shares entitled to dividends at the rate of $5 per annum.

Paul Ellis of Chicago has been married so often that he has lost count, but he thinks it is his ninth wife who now wants her $113 back alimony.

When four "drunks" composed of three men and an alley cat, were brought into police court at Kingston, N. C., the cat was found to be the sentimental of the quartet but was released as a "first offender."

An Honest Man

A man died the other day in New York, whose business record contained not a single blemish. Daniel Guggenheim and his five brothers, sons of Meyer Guggenheim, made money by literally tens of millions. They made it in one of the three fundamental industries. There are three lines of business which increase the world's basic wealth and only three; they are farming, fishing and mining. The Guggenheims were miners, owners of the world's largest sources of copper.

They let others share the profits of their mining enterprises, but they never let anyone share their losses. If a mining prospect "pettered out" before it had returned the money invested in developing it, the Guggenheims brothers shouldered all the loss; if it made money, every investor got his share in proportion to his investment. In one instance they repaid more than $1,500,000 to investors, out of their own pockets, because the mine in which they invested did not turn out as well as had been expected.

It was Daniel Guggenheim's money, $2,500,000 of it, which went to finance the extensive experiments made in the past three or four years, looking toward making aviation safer. In many other ways he was a public benefactor. But he will be remembered all over the world—for his operations were world-wide—primarily as an honest man, whose pride it was to deal justly with his fellow-men.

Weights And Measures

Anybody who has been reading the report from the world's grain market lately must find himself puzzled by the different standards by which wheat is measured in different countries.

Our bushel of wheat, weighing 60 pounds, has to be translated when the wheat goes into the export trade. England measures wheat by the "quarter." A quarter is 400 pounds; everybody has forgotten what it is a quarter of. It may contain eight English bushels, or sometimes even a quarter. Germany deals in wheat by the "metrisches" quintal; a quintal may be anywhere from 101.28 pounds, as in Argentina, to 220.46 pounds, which is the metric quintal, one-tenth of the metric ton of 1,000 kilograms, equal to 2,204 pounds. France sticks closely to the metric weights, but German grain merchants talk also in terms of zenters and double zenters, while in Scotland the way of 41.282 bushels is the standard of wheat measurement, the quarter being theoretically one-quarter of that.

Russia, whose activity in the wheat market has revived interest in these world-wide variations in measurement of wheat, deals in poods. A pood is 36.113 pounds, and like everything else Russian, it seems to have no relation to any standard known outside. But whether what is measured in tons, quarters, poods, or bushels, makes little difference to the grower who must sell it at a loss.

The Right Color For A Barn

What is the best color to paint a barn? That question is agitating some of the Eastern newspapers. Some think that to keep up with the times farmers ought to paint their barns white. They must be referring to "agriculturists" rather than to farmers. An agriculturist is a man who earns his money somewhere else and spends it on his farm. There are many such in the East, city men who keep up country places which they like to refer to as farms, but which are really country estates.

"Which will you have, milk or champagne?" asked one of these "gentleman farmers" of a guest. "They cost me the same."

The unpainted barn, its advocates declare, becomes a part of the landscape; it is nearer to Nature than if it were painted in any color at all. Grant that, and the question still remains a practical one rather than one of beauty. From the farmer's point of view, it would seem to be a question of climate and the kind of wood used in building the barn. Some lumber will stand a century of unpainted exposure, other kinds of wood will speedily decay unless painted.

It is not an important question, but it has its amusing suggestions. What if we were to paint barns in gay pinks, blues and yellows which the peoples of some European countries effect for their buildings? Or why not decorate their exteriors, if not with landscapes, then with "modern" art in strange bands, triangles and curlicues of vivid reds, greens and purples? If the purpose is to add to the gayety of the scene, why not?

There was a time when most of the barns, in some sections of the country, were at least partly painted. What has become of all of the advertisements of cures for man and beast which used to decorate the farm outbuildings? Farmers today don't tolerate the use of their property for such useless advertising. About the only signs we see on the progressive farmer's barn are the owner's name and the announcement that he is a member of the Farm Bureau and his cows have been tuberculin tested.

"ROUND TOWN"

—by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"And the trouble with the whole scheme is that life is entirely too short and Eternity too blamed long."

Excerpts From the Diary of a High-Pressure Peddler after a Visit to Clanton

Sept. 2.—Had a pretty good day today. The people of Chilton County fell for my line like nobody's business. The idea of having two years to pay for their stoves makes them think it is a bargain, even at the price we put on them. Old man, north of Clanton didn't need our big stove but bought one anyway. Found almost the same make stove as ours selling in Clanton stores at near $50. That's $100 less than our price. Sometimes I feel ashamed to grip farmers like I have this week.

Sept. 3.—Had another fine day today. Guess we'll ship about three cars of stoves to Chilton County. Occurred to me the Clanton hardware store don't go after the business, especially selling stoves. Guess we hooked them this time. Had trouble with one old lady. She seemed to see through our scheme. Sold her though she didn't need a big stove. If they don't have a good crop next fall, guess we'll take some of their furniture in payment. Our horse and buggy idea seems to be making a hit. Saw a good show in Clanton tonight. Like Clanton

John T. Ellis believes it pays to advertise. Last week the News got a note from him that said he traded his land for mill stock three hours after the paper was out. He advertised about it in the News and got results. M. C. Smith advertised a house for rent, and met his answer on the street shortly afterwards. In fact got two replies from the ad. Reddie Taylor ran a small shirt ad in the News exclusively not long ago, and came near selling all his shirts at his store here. And still some merchants here say that it doesn't pay to advertise.

The old baseball circles are beginning to form around Alred's and the barber shop, now that Jack Hayes, Clanton's starring baseball player is back in town, after bringing upon himself a lot of publicity in the "Washington" papers by his conspicuous ball playing. And if Alled, Jack's kid brother, don't get too enthused over our little girls here, maybe he will show some speed and good work in his ball playing, now that he is going to high school here.

Took a run up to Thorsby the other day and found a brand new drug store, in appearance, already opened on the Birmingham highway. McDonald Pearson has moved his drug store over to the new building erected by Bill Goodgame, and has got a darn nice place too. I wish he would stay open a little later at night, though, cause I wander off up there every now and then at night, and would like to stop and quench my thirst at his soda fountain, where I know I'll get some good sodas.

While I am writing about Thorsby, might say something about the two garages there: Bentley's Garage is pushing sales of the U. S. Tires, while Franklin's Garage is talking a lot about the Firestone Tires, both offering some bargains on their line of tires, and are running ads in the News telling the folks about them. Both these garages are well equipped and have experienced mechanics to serve the people. In fact they look like real service garages.

Jimmy Lecroy, a fellow who has numerous friends over the county, and who hasn't took upon himself a wife yet, was in Clanton the other day, after spending sometime here with his home folks out on Mulberry. Jimmy travels for an auto supply company, and during the past few months has traveled in thirty-one different states, and was on his way to Georgia and Florida, when he stopped here. Jimmy is a fellow who is always welcome to Clanton, and Chilton County.

Rounded the corner at the courthouse last Sunday morning and the streets of this town appeared as if some number of carefree people had staged an all night party. There was paper and all kinds of trash, almost, strewn up and down the street, and looked like every garbage can in town had given forth its full capacity in trash. And think, that was on Sunday morning when there is lots of folks from other places driving through our town.

If each merchant would only make it a point to see that the sidewalk in front of his store is cleaned off each Saturday night just before closing time, I am sure the city would furnish men and a truck to come along and haul the trash away, either late Saturday night, or early Sunday morning. For the city officials to really understand what I am talking about, I would suggest that they just make it a point to get up about eight o'clock some Sunday morning and take a walk down town, then they would thoroughly see that I am right about the terrible appearance of our streets, the morning after the night before.

J. Granves Duncan, Jr., the genial gentleman from Prattville, Alabama, and the Democratic nominee for State Senator was in Clanton Monday, and appeared to be in the finest of spirits as he shook hands with his countless friends here. Mr. Duncan is the type of fellow a person should know, and as a friend, I doubt if it you could beat him. He is asking the people of the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Shelby for their support in the election next month, and when he says he will do something, you can count on him.

Maybe the Ku Klux Klan parade had something to do with the deplorable condition of our streets, after their crowd-gathering parade staged here Saturday night. I think Clanton turned out in full force to witness the parade. Even some of Clanton's "400" were seen standing on the street corner on Saturday night, and some even doing a rubber-neck to see the parade. Was surprised to see certain members of our "400" making frog-leap over the curbs as some did. And by the time the kids bought candy and such that night waiting impatiently for the parade, the candy wrappers were still on the streets Sunday morning.

If a person could really find out what the average politician actually thought of the masses, the space would probably be placed between the m and a, instead of between the e and m. Well, I suppose the cry, "Hoover and Prosperity" has about dwindled out. So far as I am concerned it turned out to be a lotta poeey. Guess some of the Republicans are kind of sick of it too, after they try to go through this winter they will be worse than sick, and it will be a long time before they will be convalescing.

AUTOGIRO

Before the gas engine was invented, before anybody had ever believed it possible, Thomas A. Edison invented a flying machine which was to be lifted into the air by a horizontal windmill propeller, the power derived from a series of gun-cotton explosions. The other day Mr. Edison saw James Kay and his "autogiro" land at Newark after a flight from Philadelphia in a machine they called an "autogiro" which, except for the engine, was just like the early Edison dream. It is entirely possible that the autogiro, which can rise vertically, land "on a dime" and fly as slow as five miles or as fast as 115 miles an hour will be the airplane of the future.

LONDON

The municipality of London is still the largest city in the world, with 7,849,000 population, compared with New York's 1930 Census figure of 6,981,927. But in the area known as "circled New York" the territory included in a radius of 19 miles from the City Hall, which takes in part of New Jersey and of three New York counties not included in the city proper, there is a population about 1,400,000 greater than in the so-called "London traffic area" which extends nearly thirty miles from the center of London.

Contrary to the general idea, the average height of buildings in London is higher than in New York. The many huge skyscrapers, rising from 30 to 60 stories, in New York, and counterbalanced by the tens of thousands of buildings only three or four stories high. London has only two or three buildings more than seven stories high, but very few under five stories high. The London County Council recently refused an application for permission to build a new hotel ten stories tall, and fixed nine stories as the limit.

FOOD

Food fads and fastidists cost the American farmer millions of dollars a year, according to Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers Association. Mr. Stude's organization is "out" to get people to go back to "the right eating bread—not whole wheat bread or Graham bread or any kind of "health" bread, but just ordinary white bread.

There is a good deal in the suggestion that many persons have been "driven away from bread by the fact that it is fattening."

The craze for slenderness is not confined to women; men have been taught that fat is dangerous. The real danger is in not eating enough nutritive food to supply the necessary bodily energy. "This isn't so before you," was the old Irish rule when I was a boy. It is still a good rule. Most of our "thin digers" anything and the wider our range of diet the more healthy we are likely to be.

WHEAT

In every state but Georgia the August price of corn was higher than the price of wheat. Such a state of things occurs only once in a long time, wheat usually being the highest-priced grain. This year there is a big wheat surplus and a short corn crop.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Federal Farm Board are advocating using the wheat surplus to feed livestock. It is figured that the food value of wheat is so much higher than that of corn, that with corn at a dollar a bushel the farmer can afford to pay $1.12½¢ for wheat for feeding.

Many farmers have reported their experience in feeding wheat in the past, for cattle, hogs and poultry, with uniform satisfaction. Some say that it fattens hogs faster than corn does. It would be strange if wheat should become the stock farmer's mainstay as well as the backbone of human diet.

RAILROADS

George Gould's ambition was to own a railroad system which would stretch from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He died with his ambition unfulfilled. E. H. Harriman, James J. Hill and Commodore Vanderbilt failed in their similar efforts. The Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National systems run from coast to coast in Canada, but only this year the first system under one control to cover the whole United States was completed.

In 1916 the Van Sweringen Brothers of Cleveland wanted a right of way for a trolley line to their real estate development, Shaker Heights. They could get it only by buying the decrepit Nickel Plate railroad, which they did, mostly on credit. That gave them a line from Buffalo to Chicago and soon they were up to their ears in the railroad business. Now, after 14 years, they control also the Erie, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Hocking Valley, Pere Marquette, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Chicago & Eastern Illinois and Missouri Pacific.

Their 18,000 miles of road is the largest railroad system in the United States. It is capitalized at $308,000,000 and valued at over two billions. That is going a long way in 14 years.

During the past 10 years in New York three quarters of a million foreign born have enrolled in night school classes opened for the study of English.

The yarn is told of a London woman whose face or person actually stops clocks, as her mere presence in a room causes timepieces to cease functioning on the spot.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Dean Cross Fixes Republican Responsibility for Depression

Washington, Oct. 6.—Dr. Wilbur Cross, Dean emeritus of the Yale Graduate School and Democratic candidate for Governor of Connecticut, in a recent notable speech put a large share of responsibility for business and industrial depression upon the Hoover Administration and that of its predecessor. He said:

"The Republican Party can not pass the buck to an imaginary cycle of prosperity and depression, claiming credit for the prosperity and disclaiming any responsibility for the depression. It is high time that the bluff was called."

He said some of the causes were non-political and cited that between 1920 and 1928 the output of industry increased 40 per cent, while owing to improved methods of manufacture, the number of industrial wage-earners decreased 800,000. The real responsibility of the Republican Party, he said, lies in its policy of "the inflation of credit for the encouragement of business."

"During the Coolidge administration and the first months of the Hoover regime this policy was continued," Dean Cross declared. By the beginning of 1927, economists sounded warnings which went unheeded.

"The public was misled," he asserted. "Had a prime minister of Great Britain indulged in forecasts like those of Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover, his ministry would have gone down in defeat the next day on a vote of censure."

Naming of Tariff Commission "A Presidential Hand-Picked Job," Says Senator Harrison

Washington, Oct. 6.—"A Presidential hand-picked job," is what Senator Pat Harrison (Dem. Miss.) calls the newly appointed Tariff Commission.

"Mr. Fletcher (the chairman) is not a tariff expert," said Senator Harrison "but a diplomat, whom the President selected as his personal bodyguard to accompany him on his South American tour; Mr. Coulter, who was made chief economist of the Tariff Commission at the instance of Brossard (former chairman); Mr. Brossard, who was appointed examiner for the Tariff Commission through the influence of Senator Smoot, and who as an employee and member of the Commission was the special advocate of the sugar interests and has been the greatest source of friction within the Commission and brought discredit on it." The three members referred to are all Republicans.

Senator Harrison declared that Mr. Brossard's rejection would be in the interest of the country.

Stock Market Again Drops As Secretary Lamont Herald Prosperity

Washington, Oct. 6.—Secretary of Commerce Lamont is again active as a prophet of returning prosperity. On September 22, he issued a public statement, in which he said:

"It is perfectly clear that business on the whole has ceased the marked decline which was characteristic of a number of earlier months and there are now some distinctly encouraging features."

The National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., issued for publication on September 21, its monthly statement on business conditions, which says:

"Business activity during the first half of September shows little consistent change from conditions which prevailed during the month of August. The long-awaited upturn in building activity, the recovery in automobile production, the strengthening of industrial demand for coal, and a vigorous upswing of steel production, have all failed to materialize, with the result that nothing more than a seasonal improvement in business activity has been evident during the month of September thus far."

Commenting on Secretary Lamont's statement, the New York World (Lab. Dem.) said:

"Secretary Lamont's message of cheer on Monday came when pessimism had begun to grip Wall Street once more and the stock market was registering the heaviest decline since that of last May. It is hardly a coincidence that these bullish statements come so frequently at the moment when the stock market is in need of a stimulant. All through 1927 and 1928 President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon took turns in voicing their optimism when speculative activity showed signs of fatigue. Mr. Coolidge's celebrated defense in January, 1928, of the big increase in broker's loans marked the climax of these efforts to goad the jaded bulls and send stocks into new high ground. Under the new dispensation in Washington this duty seems to have devolved upon the Secretary of Commerce. He is not having as much success as his predecessors did, but he keeps plugging away."

In connection with President Hoover's so-called housing plan, someone doubtless will want to know under what article of the Constitution the President is required to provide better security for second mortgages on real estate.

How A Democratic Victory Would Aid Business

Washington, Oct. 6.—Representative Byrns, Chairman Democratic Congressional Committee, in a recent statement said:

"The question is being asked, and rightly so, as to what the Democrats are going to do, what program will they offer if they come into power in Congress as a result of the November election, as we confidently expect to do."

"There would be this effect that could result in immediate benefit to the public generally, and to business especially. Election of a Democratic Congress would be a repudiation of the Hawley-Smoot tariff. The President would be bound to accept it as such. Such repudiation—especially should he be thinking of 1932—may influence him to lend a sympathetic ear to petitions to use his flexible tariff authority to reduce some of the present outrageous rates. It at least would cause him to think twice before using that authority to further increase rates already too high, as has been the habit of Republican Presidents."

Hoover An Issue In Wisconsin Progressive Republican Primaries

Washington, Sept. 30.—Phillip F. La Follette, younger brother of Senator J. A. La Follette, who was nominated for Governor of Wisconsin on the Progressive Republican ticket over Governor Kohler, an Administration Republican, by a majority of 110,000, made the Governor's support of Mr. Hoover at the Kansas City convention and his allegiance to the Hoover administration thereafter an issue of the campaign, according to press dispatches recording La Follette's overwhelming victory.

The successful candidate accused the National Administration of responsibility for depression, and stressed the "full dinner pail" issue declaring that "Kohler's support of Hoover before and after the Presidential election should cause all workers to turn on him," according to the press dispatches.

The effect of these campaign utterances is shown by press dispatches that that said "at Kohler's headquarters party leaders attributed the Governor's defeat to 'a burden of carrying Hoover.'"

Illinois Farm Bureaus Reported To

Washington, Sept. 30.—Farmers in Indiana and Illinois are not enthusiastic over drought relief plans of the Federal administration, according to an Indiana county agent, Horace E. Abbott, as reported by the Terer Haute, Indiana, Tribune. Beyond issuing permits for reduced freight rates on stock feed, Mr. Abbott reports that no action has been necessary on his part. The request for freight rate permits, he said, came from dealers and not a single farmer had made an application for such a permit. A few farmers he stated, had asked about work on state highways and had been referred to the State Highway Commission. Whether they got the jobs or not the agent did not know.

So far as relief from the floods of last year was concerned, Mr. Abbott said that perhaps a half dozen farmers had applied for and received loans from the government for the purchase of seeds.

Farmers bureaus of Illinois, according to the Tribune, have complained that the drought relief plan of the government is impracticable and uneconomical. They declare that the farmers are required to form a corporation to guarantee the notes of farmers taking feed and supplies through the drought relief plan, and that no substantial farmer is going to pledge himself to guarantee the notes of his neighbors.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi

Democratic wit of the Senate, in one of his characteristic quips, accurately describes the change that has taken place among the Republican in the combat of campaign since the last Presidential election, saying: "The 'whispering' campaign of 1928 has been succeeded by the 'whimpering' campaign of 1930."

Mrs. Will Rogers says her husband is never funny around home. Which may mean that Will is afraid to get funny with Mrs. Rogers or that she has a poor sense of humor.

W. T. HAND WRITES ABOUT CERTAIN CONDITIONS OF INTEREST

Following we publish a letter from W. T. Hand, prominent citizen of Jemison, Alabama, given to the News this week:

Usury And The Law

There is a difference of opinion on this oft debated question as to the purpose of the law and its limitation.

Section 8563. "The rate of interest upon the loan or forbearance of money, goods or things in action, is eight dollars upon one hundred dollars for one year, and at that rate for a greater or less sum or for a longer or shorter time."

Section 8568. "Any banker who discounts any note, bill of exchange or draft at a higher rate of interest than eight per cent per annum, not including the difference of exchange, cannot enforce the collection of the same except as to principal."

"Person acquiring commercial paper at a usurious discount not a bona fide holder 109 Ala. 467."

"The taking of a greater compensation than the law allows is usury 196 Ala. 230."

It seems to be very generally conceded that discount above the rate fixed by law (called interest collected in advance) is legitimate.

The statute is clear on this subject and there is no contrivance that can legalize a transaction not within its limits and any subterfuge is without binding force.

The legal interest on one hundred dollars for three months is $2.00; six months $4.00 (not $10.00 or 20 per cent) nine months, $6.00; twelve months, $8.00, and any increase is unlawful.

The fact that institutions engaged in the illegal and unlawful practice of exacting usury are allowed to flourish in this land is largely because their victims are weak and forced through necessity to yield and none, but those seeking relief must submit to high-handed methods of rapacious extortion, otherwise such affray would meet a harsh rebuff.

This manner of taking not my own from unfortunates or others is neither the desire or intent of the writer, nor would he own any stock in a usurious concern or be a party to such stratagems.

It is for the tinkling sound of such lucre in their pockets to gladden the hearts of those who covet and extort usury; however, it is not my purpose, nor will I strike a man below the belt who appeals to me with his hands tied.

The invoking of blessings upon the creation of such institutions seems wholly incompatible with their habitual course of future operation.

Lest we forget: "Thou hast taken usury and increase and thou hast greedily gained of the neighbors by extortion. Behold, therefore, I have smitten mine hand at thy dishonest gain which thou hast made."

W. T. HAND.

MRS. STROCK HONORED WITH A MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Mrs. Devaughn Strock, who was before her marriage recently, Miss Gladys Kemp of this place was honored with a miscellaneous shower given by the Fidelis Sunday School Class of the Baptist church, last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Mullins.

The class colors of yellow and green were used in the decorations of the home for this occasion. The bride's book was presided over by Miss Frances Higgins, and Misses Bernice Williams and Vivian Gray served punch and sandwiches to the guests who numbered approximately 40.

Texas Guinan is now a newspaper columnist, and we'll bet there's either a ghost or an angel back of it.

Mr. Marion Smith, and Hubert Foshee were visitors to Clanton the past week end.

Mrs. C. E. Stapp, County Welfare Worker, and Miss Madge Scarborough, Elementary Supervisor, spent Friday in Montgomery where they attended a meeting of the Alabama Tuberculosis Association.

"WOULDN'T YOU LIKE TO KNOW?"

By John Godfrey Saxe

I know a girl with teeth of pearl,
And shoulders white as snow;
She lives—ah, well,
I must not tell—
Wouldn't you like to know?

Her sunny hair is wondrous fair
And wavy in its flow;
Who made it less,
One little tress?
Wouldn't you like to know?

Her eyes are blue—celestial hue!
And dazzling in their glow;
On whom do they beam
With melting gleam?
Wouldn't you like to know?

Her lips are red and finely wed,
Like roses ere they blow;
What lover sips
Those dewy lips?
Wouldn't you like to know?

Her fingers are like lilies fair
When lilies fairest grow;
Whose hand do they press
With fond caress?
Wouldn't you like to know?

Her foot is small and has a fall
Like snowflakes on the snow;
And where it goes
Beneath the rose—
Wouldn't you like to know?

She has a name, the sweetest name
That language can bestow.
'Twould break the spell
If I should tell, but—
Wouldn't you like to know?

The grammar class may parse this sentence, displayed on a sign in front of an Atlanta theatre: "Joan Sawyer in Our Blushing Brides Cooled by Refrigeration."

Gloria Swanson says of her husband, Apart, we will always be good friends. She seems to have solved the problem of how to be happy though married.

A writer says that President Hoover took office without any political training. But he'll have some when he leaves.

Physical Education

Some people ask the question, what is exercise good for? I do not know how you would answer this question, but here is my answer. Exercise develops us in many ways. Probably one would have more "pep" more life and vitality, if he would exercise his muscles. One can get rid of that dull headache or that drowsy feeling by just a few constructive forms of good healthy and wholesome exercises. That is what we are doing at C. C. H. S. Mr. Walker is physical director for the boys, and Miss Brown for the girls.

Prattville Defeats Clanton Friday
The football game between Prattville and Clanton last Friday proved to be of much interest to each spectator from Clanton. Despite the fact that our team lost, each player showed a fine spirit and was satisfied that he received a square deal. The outstanding players for Clanton were Simms and Sumner, who with their quickness of action threw Prattville for many losses. The final score was twenty-one to 0 in Prattville's favor.

Library Receives Valuable Collection Of Books Complimentary

Chilton County High School Library was presented complimentary with a complete set of the Congressional Records for 1928-1929, by Miss Hattie Hayes, who is a secretary to Congressman Lamar Jeffers, in Washington. We are indeed grateful for these books, and we trust we may be remembered along this line again.

Main Street Looks At Broadway

By ERNEST CAMP, JR.

New York. Sparking in a new brown bonnet, with the meanest snap brim you ever saw—yes and a perfect riot of a necktie, figured with tiny polo balls and mallets—I skipped over to Governor's Island the other day to witness my first game of polo.

Some of my wise-cracking friends whispered it around that all I went for was to wear that necktie. The dumbness of some people. I went to show off the hat. . . .

Don't Know Who Won

It was a rousing good game. The score and the name of the winning team will be announced later. I'll also try to find out who it was that lost. I haven't had a chance to buy a newspaper yet.

The most exciting feature of the contest took place in the third inning—or do you call it a quarter?—when a near panic occurred in the grandstand. A small boy, dispensing soft drinks to the crowd, became confused in making change and yelled: "Whose dollar is this?"

Dead and wounded are as follows. It all brings to mind the gag about the fond mother who was visiting her freshman son at college.

John had showed her the campus, and the stadium. "Now, mother," he said, "we'll take a look at the polo field."

"Ah," exclaimed the mother rapturously, "what could be nicer than fields of waving polo!"

Sitting in a hotel the other evening, I saw a bell hop enter the crowded lobby and bawl:

"Mr. Lindbergh please, Mr. Lindbergh, wanted on the telephone."

The effect was electric. Forty heads popped out of newspapers. Everybody bolted to attention. I thought for a moment I was going to be trampled.

Teaching Personality

New York University announces a new course in "personality" for business men and women.

Edward J. Kilduff, assistant dean in the school of commerce, accounts, and finance, says:

"Studies have shown that success, even in such technical lines as engineering, is due approximately 15 per cent to technical knowledge and about 85 per cent to those human qualities which have to do with successfully dealing with people.

Here's New York for you. He is a Wall Street broker, and was divorced from his wife eleven years ago. They had five children. . . .

Today he owns a summer home in Maine, where he has as guests every year his ex-wife and her new hubby, who is an old friend of his in addition to the five children, their wives and husbands—and his new girl friend.

Negro Hunters Shoot Warden

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 7.—Deputy State Game Warden C. M. Moore, of Montgomery, was shot and dangerously wounded yesterday in Catoma Creek swamp by one of two negro men he was attempting to arrest for hunting squirrels out of season. The negroes whose names are unknown, but both of whom Mr. Moore has stated he can identify, escaped. County and City authorities, immediately notified, were cooperating last night with the forces of the State Department of Game and Fisheries in a search for the fugitives.

During the forenoon yesterday Deputy Warden Moore, District State Game Warden D. F. Hill and Federal Deputy Game Warden W. H. Hoffman, of Mobile went from Montgomery to the Catoma Creek Swamp, some 11 miles out of the city to investigate reports that squirrels were being shot there. They arrived about noon.

Perceiving an automobile parked beside the Woodley Road near the swamp and hearing several shots fired in the adjoining woods, the officers parked their car, made an examination of the other machine and noted the license plate number. It was at first suggested that all three game wardens go into the swamp to look for the person or persons firing the shots they heard. Mr. Moore, however, prevailed on his two companions to stay near the road-way and watch the parked car found there so they could spot anyone that might come from the swamp and attempt to get away in this car.

Proceeding into the swamp alone, upon two negro men, both armed with shotguns and having in their possession five or six squirrels they had killed. The deputy warden immediately told the negro nearest him that he was under arrest. When he did so, the other leveled his gun at the officer stating that if he did not let his friend go he would kill him.

Mr. Moore's attention was momentarily diverted from the man already in custody and he turned in the direction of the one threatening him. As he did so the first negro fired at point blank range, the charge of bird-shot taking effect in the calf of Mr. Moore's right leg just below the knee.

Despite his injury Mr. Moore leaped behind an adjacent tree as the second negro fired, the lead from his gun imbedding itself in the wood at the approximate place where the officer's head would have been had he not taken cover. After firing the second shot his assailants fled.

Collapsing from the pain of his wound, Mr. Moore called to Deputies Hill and Hoffman to come to his assistance. As they were entering the swamp they saw two negro men get into the car that the officers had found parked by the roadside and drive away.

Carrying their wounded companion to their own automobile, Mr. Hill and Mr. Hoffman brought him to Memorial Hospital where he was given surgical aid. Late last night his condition was reported satisfactory.

With the number of fugitive car in their possession, authorities were seeking to locate the owner, with prospects that he would be found before morning.

CRAIG PALMER, JR., SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES, TANK EXPLOSION

Jasper, Ala., Oct. 3.—One Jasper child died early Friday and another was expected to die as a result of burns.

Craig Palmer, Jr., 10, died from burns received when reports said a lighted match was dropped into the gasoline tank of an abandoned ambulance while he was playing with several other children.

The tank exploded, throwing gasoline over the child who ran several yards with flames high above his head. He was burned internally and externally.

Playing with matches was also held responsible for the severe burning of the 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Beck whose recovery is doubted by attending physicians. The child was playing with a box of matches which became ignited and burned the clothes from its body.

Funeral services for the Palmer child are being arranged.

CHILTON COUNTY FARM BUREAU ENDORSES FEED PUT OUT BY FARM BUREAU

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 27, 1930. To Whom It May Concern: I am a feeder of Farm Bureau feed, which is put up according to the recommendations of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn. I like this feed, 1st. Because it has given good results, and 2nd. Because it is handled through the Farm Bureau, of which I am a part.

I have averaged 108 birds in my flock since Jan. 1st, of this year. I fed $135.83 worth of feed to these 108 hens between Jan. 1st and Sept. 1st. Between these dates, I sold $292.34 worth of eggs from these 108 hens. This leaves me $156.51 for my labor. I have a nice bunch of pullets that were raised on Farm Bureau feed.

Yours truly,
W. W. ROBINSON,
Clanton, Ala., Route.

Feeding Suggestions for the Laying Stock

1. Keep the laying mash in hoppers continuously.
2. Feed 8 to 12 pounds of scratch feed daily per 100 birds. The amount needed varies according to condition of birds, breed and time of year.
3. Provide plenty of clean fresh water.
4. Supply plenty of green feed, oyster shell, and grit.
5. Keep poultry house dry and sanitary.
6. During the fall and winter months in addition to above feed daily 3 pounds of laying mash moistened with milk or hot water, per 100 birds.

We Recommend These Feeds for Better Returns

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Active cooperation of business men and manufacturers in aiding the development of the Coosa-Alabama water route from Mobile to Rome, Georgia, is urged by Jesse B. Hearin, secretary of the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Hearin in a recent interview pointed out the widespread benefit to be derived by Alabama and Georgia from this great development, and gave an encouraging report on the recent meeting of business men, civic and state leaders held at Rome, at which plans were considered for bringing about the completion of the project.

"Now, as in the past, transportation is one of the great economic factors to determine the progress of this section," Mr. Hearin said.

"The Coosa-Alabama River system if properly developed for transportation, would give to this section and the Southeast advantages enjoyed by few sections of the United States. Every city from Atlanta on the north to Mobile on the south would get tremendous immediate benefits, and those cities and shipping points within a radius of 50 to 100 miles of the river points would also profit immensely by freight reductions.

"The project for a nine-foot channel from Rome to Mobile has long since passed the dream age. The possibilities of this project are now accepted by many of the leading business men and engineers who have given thought and time and material means to make possible the canalization of the Alabama and Coosa Rivers.

"At a meeting of the Ninth Division of the Mississippi Valley Association held at Rome, Georgia, on September 22nd, representatives from Mobile, Selma, Montgomery, Wetumpka, Talladega, Anniston, Gadsden, Rome, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Birmingham and many other important cities came together with the Board of Army Engineers from Washington to discuss practical means of bringing about an early completion of the Coosa-Alabama nine-foot channel.

"The Governors of Alabama and Georgia, the United States Senators from Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama as well as earnest business men throughout the Southeast outlined the necessary procedure to accomplish this long desired project of river navigation.

"It was agreed by all that if sufficient public sentiment could be built up to demand the completion of this system that the Congress of the United States, following a favorable report of the United States Engineers, would make sufficient appropriations to complete a nine-foot channel from Rome, Georgia to Mobile, Alabama.

"All local Associations merged into the Ninth Division of the Mississippi Valley Association which is recognized as the great river improvement association of the country, and at the meeting the President of this Association pledged the loyal and active support of the Association to the Coosa-Alabama River project.

"Governor Graves of Alabama, in a really great speech, stressed the national need of this system of waterways, and pointed out the fact that it would be absolutely necessary to obtain a favorable report of the United States Engineers before we could hope for Congress to make suitable appropriations to complete so great a project. Governor Graves was followed by others who had given the matter great consideration, and when the business men of Atlanta brought to the attention of those present the tremendous tonnage that would be furnished by the Atlanta District alone, there was no doubt left in the minds of those present that a nine-foot channel on the Coosa-Alabama River would revolutionize industry in this portion of the Southeast.

"It will take continued concentrated efforts of the people of all sections to be benefited, and will require substantial financial support for this project to be made nationally popular so that the Congress of the United States may be convinced beyond a doubt that appropriations for this work will be of great benefit to a large number of American people.

"The Coosa-Alabama River project, under the call of Governor Graves of Alabama, had a great get-together meeting at Montgomery last spring, which resulted in raising sufficient money and public interest to bring about a survey by Mr. Theodore Brent, showing the possibilities of profitable traffic on this waterway system.

"At the meeting held at Rome, September 22, the Brent Survey was presented to those present and convinced all thoughtful business men, who gave the matter serious consideration, that the time had come to make a determined effort to secure sufficient appropriations to begin and complete this great river system.

"This is a matter of tremendous interest to all the people of Alabama and Georgia, and those who are engaged in this work are entitled to the thoughtful and active cooperation of the shippers, manufacturers and business men of every section of Alabama."

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH THE CHURCHES IN OUR DAY?
By Wm. H. Evans, Semmes, Ala.
In The Alabama Baptist

I have had it in my heart for some time to write a few lines on the above subject. My good brother and fellow worker, Dr. A. J. Preston, in his article of August 21st, gave us some important thoughts on the purpose of the church.

In this article he said, "There are elements of selfishness and ambition in the churches. Now, if that be true, I am sure that God is displeased with a selfish church. Then Bro. J. W. Joyner, of Sweetwater, in the same issue, gave us an able article on the spiritual condition of the country churches. In this article he gave a timely illustration by referring to Bess, his milk cow.

A few days ago a preacher friend of mine was visiting my home and talking about the condition of his churches. He said, that the attendance is very poor, the finances in bad condition, and the people seemingly not interested, but crying out hard times; no money, and not able to pay the preacher and keep the church up. Everywhere you go in town, city or country, this is the tale you hear more or less, and more than less.

Now, I come to you with this great question, "What is the matter with the churches in our day?"

In the issue of the Alabama Baptist of August 21st, our good secretary, Dr. Barton (bless his heart, he has my sympathy), in his message to the churches of the state, about the strenuous times through which we are passing, says the solution lies in the hands of the pastors and the churches.

Will the pastors and churches listen to our good secretary? Did they listen to Noah? Hear the Master as He says: "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."—Matt. 24:27-38.

They were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, etc., and likewise now they are riding, playing golf, going in mixed bathing, dancing, playing cards, going to picture shows, wearing many fine clothes, but still crying out hard times, and they begin to economize by cutting off church expenses, and starving their souls. There are literally hundreds of churches pastorless, when there are many good men without churches, but they will not call them. They remind me of what I saw in a magazine in 1920. A man sold his home and bought an automobile. His neighbor met him and said, "You sold your home and bought you a car; well, what are you going to do for a home now?" "Oh," said the man, "I won't need one now. I'll never be there anyway." I suppose that a good many folk feel that they do not need a pastor now, anyway; they'll never be there to hear him preach. Why call him and have all that expense.

So they have shut the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps."—II Chron. 29:5-7.

Men and women have corrupted the name of God. Read 2nd Chron. 31st chapter. Then what is the matter with our churches? May I venture to mention a few things which I think is the matter with them?

1. Worldliness. Let God speak. "If man love the world, the love of the father is not in him." 1st John, 2nd chapter, 15th verse. Well, says one, what is worldy? Is it any harm to dance, joy ride, play cards, and many other things which church members do? In answer allow me to say that I believe that anything is either Godly or ungodly. And anything that is not Godly must be unGodly. Hence that is worldly, and we are responsible for our influence. A worldly crowd of church members can never have a spiritual Christlike church.

2. Strange to say, but the most of churches need teaching, indoctrinating. In this enlightened age it seems that the members of the churches would know all the doctrines, rules and regulations but they do not take time to study and learn about them. Some of our Baptist people have never seen a copy of the church covenant; then how can they know their obligations concerning keeping house for God?

3. Over Organized. That Studebaker is a good machine but you will get absolutely no service out of it unless you can get a spark. You may have the car, all painted, and shining, plenty of gas in it, folk all in, sitting down, ready to ride, but when you press on the accelerator, if she's getting no spark, you never ride. Machinery is fine, but when you get all your organizations ready, and step on the gas and she does not crank, remember that up on the altar of God there is the fire and zeal. What we need is not so much organization, but more consecration, faith and prayer.

Now the Remedy for Present Day Conditions

1. Seek the Lord. "As long as he sought the Lord God made him prosper."—I Chron. 26:3-5.
2. A Revival of Religion. "Sanctify yourselves, and sanctify the house of the Lord God of your fathers carry the filthiness out of it."—II Chron. 29:5-7.

Thomas Ross Arrested In Huntsville Killing

Huntsville, Ala., Oct. 6.—Thomas Ross, son of R. E. Ross, who was slain in his residence here on the night of Sept. 27 and J. F. Matheny, foreman of the dry cleaning establishment operated by the elder Ross, were arrested here late today on charges of murder in connection with the slaying.

The warrants were sworn out by Solicitor James M. Pride, who said the case would be placed before the November Grand Jury. Sheriff B. F. Riddick of Madison County, left here with the arrested men late today stating he was taking them to Birmingham for safe-keeping.

The elder Ross was killed and Mrs. Ross was wounded supposedly by a negro intruder they surprised in their home. H. E. Henderson, negro, arrested as a suspect in the case, was moved to Birmingham after a mob had been prevented by national guardsmen from storming the jail.

Both Matheny and the younger Ross denied connection with the slaying. Details of the investigation which resulted in their arrest were not revealed. Mrs. Ross, who was shot in the leg, told officers she was shot by a negro intruder whose escape she tried to prevent after her husband had been killed. Henderson was protected by guardsmen for two days during which the militia was forced to fire over the heads of the mob that gathered around the jail.

Urges Drouth Relief Extension

More counties in the Fifth Congressional District are in need of such relief as is provided drought sections than the five which have been so designated by the Federal Government, according to Representative L. L. Patterson, of Alexander City, who represents the Fifth District in the National Law Making Body.

The Fifth District is composed of Autauga, Lowndes, Macon, Tallapoosa and Chambers, all of which are in the officially designated drought area, and Clay, Coosa, Elmore, and Randolph which have been denied government aid. Representative Patterson, after a conference with Seth P. Storrs, State Commissioner of Agriculture, said he would press the claim of his constituents upon the Federal authorities in cooperating with Commissioner Storrs.

"There is absolutely no excuse for this rank discrimination and that is what it amounts to," said Representative Patterson, "For the Department of Agriculture at Washington to say what counties in Alabama are entitled to drought relief and ignore Alabama authorities who are in intimate touch with the situation leaves the State in a bad plight. We will continue to insist, that the entire State is entitled to as much relief as the Federal Government gives any other section and not to 36 counties alone as matters now stand."

Because Frank Morrisrarity had whipped her father and her brothers and threatened to spank he unless she married him, Miss Esther Flynn of St. Louis, appealed to the police to protect her.

MAIL CLERK HELD IN DISAPPEARANCE OF $10,000 FUND

Atmore, Ala., Oct. 3.—Tommy Piggott, young mail clerk, was being held in jail here Friday while postal inspectors and others investigated the disappearance of a registered mail sack containing $10,000 in currency being transferred from a bank in Mobile to one in Frisco City.

When the postoffice here was closed at 6 p. m. Wednesday, the mail sacks including the one with the money, were delivered to Piggott who, according to police, said he loaded them on a truck for transfer to the railway station and then went to a cafe about a half block away.

When he returned, Piggott said, he discovered one of the bags was missing, according to police. Postal inspectors said the money was cleared through the postoffice at Atmore, but was missing before the train reached Frisco City.

Dr. V. J. Gragg As A Candidate For State Senate

From the schoolroom as a teacher he went to medical college and prepared himself for the practice of his chosen profession. For many years he has been one of the most active physicians and surgeons in Chilton County. As a doctor he has come into intimate contact with thousands of people, and it goes without saying that this personal attachment will gain for him many supporters in his present aspirations as a public official and public servant.

As a physician and surgeon, Dr. Gragg, in recent years, has been the leader in the movement to establish and maintain the Central Alabama Hospital, at Clanton. Through his vision, and untiring work in behalf of this institution, the same has become one of the most valuable institutions of Chilton County, serving not only the county, but a large portion of Central Alabama as well.

As a member of the Town Council of Clanton, Dr. Gragg has seen service more than one term. For three terms in succession he served as Mayor of Clanton. During his administration as Mayor the paving of the business streets of the town was done. This accomplishment stands a monument to the executive ability and civic progress of his administration.

In announcing his candidacy for the State Senate, Dr. Gragg has made the following statement to the voters:

As a candidate for State Senator from the 15th Senatorial District, I realize that I should express my views concerning matters that might interest voters before soliciting your vote.

1. I believe in majority rule instead of minority control, as we now have in some instances. And I shall stand for all elective offices, education or otherwise, being filled by the expression of the voters interested.

2. More safe laws for protection of depositors in the state banks.

3. Reduction rather than increase of taxes and expenses if possible, but no reduction of school funds.

4. Continued progress along the lines of education and public health.

5. Continued road improvement without debts if possible.

6. Honest and impartial enforcement of the law regardless of class or creed.

In conclusion, will say that I solicit the vote and influence of every law-abiding white voter regardless of his or her past affiliation, realizing to the fullest extent that a bad citizen is a bad citizen, and a good citizen is a good citizen, regardless of whether he has called himself a Republican, Democrat, or what-not in the past.

LOST — Strayed or stolen; medium size white bob-tailed female dog; brown ears, short hair; name "Dot-sie." Left home Sunday afternoon. Return or information leading to recovery will be liberally rewarded by Mrs. J. C. Wilder, Thorsby.

Among those attending the Teachers' Institute here last Monday and Tuesday was Mrs. J. S. McNeill, of Jemison.

Jones Hardware Company Is Making A Very Attractive Offer For November the First

Mr. C. Fenn Jones, our progressive local hardware dealer, is making announcement elsewhere in this paper which is of particular interest to every home owner who is without electricity for lighting. They are the local franchise dealers for the famous new instant-light Aladdin kerosene mantle lamp, which gives a beautiful modern white light equal to ten ordinary oil lamps. It is over four times as economical as the best open-flame lamp, the reason being that it burns only 6 per cent kerosene to 94 per cent air. It will save its cost in a few months' time.

The Aladdin is simplicity itself in operation—anyone (even children) can run it. It is perfectly safe. Does not require generating, pumping up, or pre-heating. It gives off no offensive odor does not sputter, hiss or make the slightest noise—burns without smoke. These new Aladdins may be secured in either table, vase, hanging, bracket or floor lamp styles. The Aladdin vase lamp is something new and distinctly different—never before available in an oil lamp.

All Aladdins may be equipped with either plain glass shades or decorated glass or parchment shades, except the floor lamp which comes with parchment shade only. All decorated shades are beautifully designed and are in five colors.

Every home not equipped with electricity should have at least one Aladdin. It would be advisable to visit this store at as early a date as possible while the line is complete so that you may secure a wider choice. Read the important announcement elsewhere in the paper for further details about how you may secure one of these floor lamps without cost.

Orene Wyatt, Miss Arline Hull and Miss Ila Massey, underwent operations at Dr. Arthur Johnson's Infirmary to have their tonsils removed during the past few days.

ONE KILLED IN SMASHUPS OVER PAST WEEK END

One man was killed, three other men and one woman were injured in accidents occurring near Clanton last Saturday night and Sunday morning, on the Birmingham - Montgomery highway.

E. B. McPherson, age 35, of Avondale, Alabama, died at the Central Alabama Hospital here Sunday afternoon about two o'clock as the result of injuries received when his automobile overturned near Thorsby Sunday morning about nine-thirty o'clock. McPherson's wife who was with him was also seriously injured and is still confined in the hospital suffering with internal injuries, cuts and bruises. They were said to have been on their way to Clanton to visit relatives and to carry McPherson's mother back with them. The latter was visiting the family of M. T. Anderson who lives just east of Clanton.

Apparently McPherson lost control of the car, according to an eye-witness who was driving behind the McPherson car and who also removed the injured from the car and brought them to the hospital here.

Dick Kemp and George Johnston figured in a minor accident Saturday night on the Maplesville highway. Kemp was not injured, while Johnston received cuts and bruises.

E. G. Giroir, a representative of the Gulf Refining Company, from New Orleans is in the hospital here suffering with a broken leg as the result of an accident which occurred near McCree Saturday night. He was on his way to Birmingham when the accident occurred, and was brought to Clanton by passing motorists.

Floyd W. Brewer and J. E. Robinson of Coffeeville, Alabama received cuts and bruises about the face and head when the car in which they were riding is said to have collided with the wrecked car of Giroir when it was being towed in by a wrecker Saturday night. They received medical attention at the hospital and went on their way.

COTTON REPORT

There were 8,316 bales of cotton, counting round as half bales, ginned in Chilton County prior to October 1, 1930, as compared with 10,572 bales ginned last year, prior to October 1, 1929.

American Legion To Meet Monday

Announcement has been made stating that the Chilton County Post of the American Legion will meet at the court house in Clanton on next Monday night at seven-thirty o'clock.

All the ex-service men in the county are invited and urged to attend this meeting, and many important matters will be taken up. As a feature on the program, for Monday night's meeting, the Caton String Band of this place will be there to furnish music for the ex-soldiers.

Misses Myra and Elizabeth Johnson, attractive daughters of Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson, and who are attending the University of Alabama, spent the past week end here, and attended the Jones-McSwain wedding.

CHILDREN NEED CLOTHES AND BOOKS

With 78 children already reported as not having any books or clothes to start to school, and whose parents are unable to buy them, we are asking that if anyone has any discarded clothes that can be made over or any books that their children do not need to please notify the child welfare office at Clanton or bring them to the office. These 78 children recently reported are in addition to the 268 children already being assisted or having been assisted by the welfare department in some way.

There are many children who will not be able to get through the winter unless the more fortunate people of the county will assist them to ward off cold and disease by helping them with the proper clothing and food.

Judge McCord To Speak Here Saturday

Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery, Alabama, will speak in the Court House, in Clanton Saturday afternoon October 18th, at 2:30 o'clock in the interest of the Democratic nominees of the party. Judge McCord is known throughout the nation as a Jurist, writer and Orator, and is well and favorably known in Central Alabama. He was formerly one of the Judges of the Circuit Court of Chilton County and held a number of sessions of that court here and has a host of friends and admirers in this county. He is said to be one of the best Sunday School teachers in the state, and will have a message to the people of this county, which will no doubt prove to be of interest and enjoyment. Hear him, whether you agree with his political views or not.

J. MELL MARTIN ATTENDS DIRECTOR'S CONVENTION

ISABELLA WILL STAGE ANOTHER FAIR OCTOBER 31

Believed That This Fair Will Be The Most Successful Held There

It was announced this week that the Isabella Community will stage another Community Fair at the Isabella High School. The date was set as Friday, October 31, and reports coming in from that progressive community of Chilton County indicate that this year's fair will be the most successful ever put on by them.

The main attractions at the community fair will be the splendid exhibits. Other features not to be missed will be a program of stunts by the physical education department and a football game with the team from Montevallo, in the afternoon. A snappy modern play will be presented in the school auditorium that night, with a title of "Eyes of Love." Other announcements will be made later.

Heflin To Speak Here October 25

United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin is scheduled to speak in Clanton, in the Court House, at 10:00 A. M., on Saturday, October 25th, 1930, according to announcement received by the News, this week.

Senator Heflin, will no doubt tell the people of this county about the action of the so-called "strangely influenced" who barred him and other bolters from running in the recent primary election. He will also have something to say about the influence of Tammany, on some of the Democrats of Alabama, who he says are good men and women, but who haven't fully realized who was leading them, and their ultimate destination, according to the announcement. Senator Heflin, is one of the most forceful platform speakers of Alabama, and whether the people agree with his position in politics, they should hear him, before making up their minds about the issues, involved in the present political campaign in the state.

GROUP ENTERTAINED AT THE HOME OF MR. & MRS. EDWARDS

Mr. and Mrs. Will Edwards entertained a number of friends at a supper at their home Saturday night. The guest list included Misses Mamie and Flora Jones, Gertrude Harris, and Messrs. Archie DeVaughn, Robert Hagan and W. B. Scott of Montgomery.

Jeffers To Speak At Maplesville

CONGRESSMAN LAMAR JEFFERS

Congressman Lamar Jeffers, of Anniston, Alabama, will speak at Maplesville High School Auditorium, next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in the interest of the Democratic Party. Mr. Jeffers has a message that every voter should hear. During the last nine years Mr. Jeffers, has rendered faithful and efficient service to the people of the 4th Congressional District in the Federal law making body of our Nation and has been a close student of Governmental affairs. His message will be of interest to the voters of the county, who will no doubt take the time to go out and hear what their Congressman has to say regarding the political conditions.

Congressman Jeffers, served with distinction in the recent World War, being wounded in action and has recently been elected as representative of the Fidac Congress, from the United States.

JUNIOR BEAUTY REVUE AT WADESONIAN THEATRE

The prettiest little girl in Clanton is to be selected by out-of-town judges and presented with a diamond ring at the Wadesonian Theatre Friday night. Innocence and unspoiled sweetness will reign supreme on the stage of the Wadesonian Theatre Friday night, October 17th, when the more than thirty Little Junior Beauties of Clanton present what will be long remembered as the most unusually beautiful and most delightful novelty that has ever been witnessed in our city.

These Little Misses are all between the ages of eighteen months and seven years, the most attractive ages of childhood, and they will each represent (continued to back page)

Jones-McSwain Wedding Here Last Sunday Is Of Wide Interest In This Section

A wedding of the past week around which was centered much interest was that of Miss Mary McSwain and Mr. Horace Jones, which occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. McSwain, Sunday morning at nine o'clock.

The wedding guests were received by Misses Elizabeth and Myra Johnson and were ushered into the living room where specimen dahlias in pastel shades were used in artistic arrangement. In the high windows, tapsters stood on each side of silver baskets which held graceful dahlias in sunset shades.

Miss Mildred Shaw presided over the bride's book.

Preceding the ceremony a beautiful program of music was rendered. Miss Emma Sue Morris sang "At Dawning," "Because" was rendered by Miss Madelyn Orr and Mrs. John Armstrong sang, "Love, Love, Love."

Following the musical program the French doors of the dining room were opened and the guests viewed an exquisite improvised altar of palms and ferns flanked on each side by tall cathedral candelabra. In the center of the altar was a huge basket of dahlias in rich fall shades from which showered tiny buds tied with ribbons in harmonizing shades.

LOCAL FORCES ARE WORKING TOWARD SECURING SERVICES

Is Expected That Unit Will Be Endorsed By Voters On November 4th

An opportunity is to be given the voters of Chilton County to show the Commissioner's Court that they desire the services of a Health Unit working in the county all time. This opportunity will arrive November 4, when an election has been called by the Commissioners to determine whether or not Chilton County shall have a Health Unit.

The election will be held in connection with the General Election on that day. Separate ballots will be given to the voters for them to show their desire in the matter of the Health Unit for the county.

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton is working in behalf of the unit, fully realizing the need this county has for such work to be carried on. Joining in with the Kiwanians in their campaign to secure the unit are school teachers, the Chilton County Medical Society, the banks of the county, the Chilton County Farm Bureau, the County Welfare Department, newspapers and Parent-Teachers Associations over the county.

All these organizations are working in harmony, explaining to the people the advantages of a Health Unit and methods followed in keeping the health of our county as best possible.

At a meeting of outstanding citizens of the county held last Friday night here, Dr. J. N. Baker from the State Health Department of Montgomery spoke to the gathering, explaining in detail the work of a Health Unit and telling of the co-operation given by the state department in this work. It was also pointed out that the numerous other counties maintaining a Health Unit have found them to be of tremendous help in health work, and there are only a few counties in the state that do not maintain these units.

Dr. Baker stated that Governor Bibb Graves has expressed the desire that Chilton County be served with a Health Unit, and also stated that he has been contemplating coming to this county to make speeches in behalf of the work of a County Health Unit.

Plans are also being formed now by a committee appointed, of which W. M. Wyatt is chairman, to have speeches and meetings over the county prior to the election on November 4, to inform fully, the people of the benefits of a county Health Unit. It was also stated that speakers from the State Department (continued to back page)

Thorsby Drug Co. To Have Opening Day

J. D. BUCKNER OF B'HAM LOCATES BUSINESS IN THORSBY

Thorsby has acquired another new resident, or rather new residents, in the person of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Buckner, who recently moved to Thorsby from Birmingham.

Mr. Buckner has taken charge of the place of business in Thorsby, formerly known as Stanford's Place, and is actively engaged in bringing the business into shape. As yet, Mr. Buckner stated, he has not decided on a name for his new place, but wanted the people to know that they serve most all kinds of sandwiches, hot and cold drinks, and give curb service. He will also operate a filling station in connection. This place of business is located on the highway just as one enters the town of Thorsby.

Associated with Mr. Buckner in his business, and one who has charge of the lunch end, is Miss Gracie Littleton of Thorsby. Clarence Buckner, is also now in Thorsby assisting his uncle.

GET LICENSE AND BE READY FOR HUNTING

Letter From Game Commissioner Gives Information To Hunters

In a letter recently received from I. T. Quinn, Commissioner of Game and Fisheries, of Montgomery, he had the following to say in regard to the purchasing of license for hunters in the state:

The hunting season throughout the State of Alabama will soon be here, and according to reports from practically every section of the State we have a good crop of game.

During the open season the game supply of both birds and animals adds considerably to the food supply of those who go afield with dog and gun.

Permit me to call the attention of the hunters through the columns of your paper to the necessity for equipping themselves with a hunting license before they begin hunting. A hunter who does not nor will not hunt outside the county of his permanent residence may a county hunting license, paying therefor the sum of one ($1.00) dollar. Any person, however, who hunts at any time during the season beyond the borders of the county of his permanent residence must procure a state hunting license and pay therefor the sum of three ($3.00) dollars. All non-residents or residents who have not resided within the State for a period of one year must procure a non-resident hunting license, at a cost of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars before such non-resident can legally hunt in the State of Alabama.

All hunting licenses may be purchased at the office of the Judge of Probate.

It is much cheaper for the hunter to equip himself with a hunting license than to pay the fine and cost in court for hunting without a license. A person who hunts in violation of law thru failure or refusal to get his license or who otherwise violates the game law gets little or no real pleasure out of the sport, and hunts at his own peril.

It is the purpose of those in charge of game administration in Alabama to protect and provide as much game as possible for all who would go afield, and I appeal to all hunters therefore, to give us your active cooperation that the coming hunting season may be the most pleasurable and profitable season the hunting fraternity has ever experienced in this State.

Isabella To Play Holtville Friday

The Isabella School team will play the Holtville football team on next Friday afternoon at the Isabella field. Holtville defeated Isabella last Friday and the latter players are out for revenge. The Isabella line-up is as follows:

Farm Briefs

Individual pumpkin pies served with plum jam and whipped cream make delicious autumn desserts.

Grow manure—Austrian winter peas or hairy vetch—and double or triple your yields of corn.

There is real "farm relief" in cows, hogs, sheep, and hens to convert pastures and home-grown feeds into cash.

"Cotton growers of Alabama are being penalized about $7,000,000 this year because of short staple and poor quality,"—Edward A. O'Neal.

Onions are delicious baked; wash them and place in a covered casserole containing a small amount of boiling water, season, and bake until tender.

"To establish the soybean industry on a large scale farmers of Alabama must produce and save seed for themselves. The acreage planted in soybeans for hay next spring should be two or three times what it was last spring,"—J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, Auburn.

D. P. L-4-8 is a leading cotton variety for north and central Alabama. Cook 1627 is another good variety. Cook 307 wilt resistant variety is best for south Alabama where wilt occurs. The Auburn Experiment Station recommends that farmers interested in better staple save seed of these varieties for planting next spring.

As a good citizen is the basis of good government, it should be the first requisite of any man who runs for public office. Quite often there is a question as to whether or not some candidates meet that requirement.

The power of election is in the hands of the people. Sometimes the wrong men are elected to office through carelessness or apathy on the part of the voters, who do not investigate whether or not the candidates will make honest and competent officials.

When incompetent officials are elected to office it often brings about a bad situation and works more or less destruction to the people as a whole, and too often it takes vigorous exertion to apply needful remedial measures.

Every citizen should give careful consideration to the statements of candidates for office. The main things to consider are good citizenship, honesty and competency to do the work the office requires.

Investigate before you vote. If you don't, you can't blame anybody but yourself if you do not get good government.

That business concerns who spend just enough money for advertising to keep going can't expect to keep growing.

Advertising attracts the attention of those who have money to spend.

Every business concern has something to sell that the public wants. The ones who don't tell the public what they have will find that those who do so are getting the business.

Advertisements are the buyers' guide. Everybody reads them in order to find where to buy to the best advantage.

Modern business concerns advertise only the best in quality. Everyone knows that fact.

Advertising quality is what brings customers back for more.

Buyers have no trouble in finding the business concerns who invite their business through the printed page.

A wise expenditure of money for advertising brings steady, profitable results.

HERO IN A HOLE

There are heroes of the depths as well as of the heights. Bill Shroat, a Colorado oil driller, is one of them.

When a big bit was lost in the hole of an oil well being drilled near Brandon, and after all sorts of tools had been used in vain attempts to fish it out, Bill offered to go down the hole and make an effort to hook a line on the bit, which was 126 feet below the surface.

At first the officials of the company refused to permit him to take the risk, but finally agreed. Bill went down the 24-inch hole standing in a soft rope sling. The hole was caving badly and there was soft mud at the bottom, under which the bit was buried. After working for 30 minutes, during which he several times put his head under the watery mud, he succeeded in getting two half-hitches with a log chain around the refractory bit. He signalled to come up and the bit shortly was drawn out without further trouble.

This was the first time, so far as known that a man has ever gone to such a depth in an oil well in that region, where even at shallow depths gas pockets would be unavoidable.

In taking such a risk of being buried alive by the mud and not of a cayme well, Bill Shroat added his name to the long list of everyday heroes, who perform their deeds of daring as a part of the day's work.

Albena arrested on a reckless driving charge, Ricardo Colaluca of Providence, R. I., explained, "I was afraid the machine wouldn't start if I stopped it, so I kept right on going."

Even Informal Parties Require a Food Surprise

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

THE informal party is, perhaps, the most delightful of all; but the chief charm from the standpoint of food, lies in those dainty dishes with which every hostess likes to surprise her guests.

If one entertains frequently, it often seems difficult to have something entirely new and different. However, just a little extra care in planning will make all your "party dishes" remembered—and this without any need for an elaborate menu. In fact, a creamed meat on toast garnished with olives and pickles, or a distinctive salad accompanied by novel sandwiches, is all that any hostess need plan for an informal affair.

Below you will find suggested some simple party menus that are particularly attractive. And I am sure they will help you to plan many others that are similarly unpretentious.

Fresh Peach Mousse
Chocolate Ice Box Cookies
Toad Tea or Coffee

Frozen Chocolate Plum Pudding
Individual Angel Food Cakes
Coffee

Chicken Shortcake Hot Biscuits
Preserved Sweet Gherkins
Crisp Potato Chips
Mints Coffee

Mixed Fresh Fruit Salad
Sandwiches or Crisp Cookies
Salted Nuts Coffee

Chocolate Ice Box Cookies: Melt 2 cups shortening and add 1 1/2 cups sugar. Add 1 egg, and 2 squares chocolate melted over hot water. Then add 2 1/2 cups flour, 2 tablespoons baking powder, and 1/2 teaspoon salt, sifted together. Gradually add 3 tablespoons milk to make a very firm dough, and work in 1 cup Blue Biscuits. Place in a bread pan, cover with waxed paper and set in a refrigerator over night.

Frozen Chocolate Plum Pudding: Scald 3/4 cup milk in a double boiler, and add 1/3 cup sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons flour. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add 2 beaten eggs and cook for several minutes, then add 1 square bitter chocolate, melted over hot water. When cool, add 2 stiffly beaten egg whites, chill, and fold in 1/2 pint whipped cream. Last, fold in 1 cup Pure Mince Meat, 1/4 cup chopped English Walnut meats and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Place in trays of refrigerator to freeze, stirring occasionally, or freeze in a regular freezer.

Chicken Shortcake: Sift together 2 tablespoons baking powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Add 4 tablespoons shortening, using 2 tablespoons butter and two of lard. Add 1/2 cup milk, and mix very lightly. The amount of milk will be from 3/4 to 1 cup. Toss the dough on a lightly floured board and pat 1/2 inch thick. Shape with a cutter and bake in a hot oven for 12 minutes. Split with a fork, butter while hot and place hot creamed chicken or other creamed meat between the halves and on top of the biscuits. Garnish with Stuffed Spanish Olives and Preserved Sweet Gherkins.

To prepare the creamed chicken: Melt 4 tablespoons butter in saucepan and blend with 4 tablespoons flour. Add 2 cups rich milk and the mashed yolks of 2 hard boiled eggs. Cook until thick and season with 4 tablespoons sauce, cut in strips, chicken and ham mixed, or veal, and 1/2 cup Stuffed Spanish Olives, sliced, saving the remainder of the olives for garnishing.

Salted Nuts: Pour boiling salt water over shelled almonds or filberts, and allow to stand for about 2 minutes in the water. Then place them between towels and rub, when the skins will come off easily. Cook the nuts in a skillet with several tablespoons of Pure Olive Oil, having the oil hot when the nuts are added. Cook until the nuts are brown, drain on heavy paper, and sprinkle lightly with salt.

"I HAD a stubborn case of constipation after a very severe spell of grip," says Mr. John B. Hutchison, of Neosho, Mo. "When I would get constipated, I'd feel so sleepy, tired and worn-out. When one feels this way, work is much harder to do, especially farm work. I would have dizzy headaches when I could hardly see to work, but after I read of Black-Draught, I began taking it. I did not have the headaches any more."

"When I have the sluggish, tired feeling, I take a few doses of Black-Draught, and it seems to carry off the poison and I feel just fine. I use Black-Draught at regular intervals. It is easy to take and I know it helps me."

This medicine is composed of pure botanical roots and herbs. Contains no chemicals. In 25-cent packages.

EXCERPTS FROM L. & N.
EMPLOYEES' MAGAZINE

An article in the L. & N. Employees' Magazine for October concerning Berea College, located at Berea, Ky., on the edge of the Appalachian Highlands characterizes Berea as the answer to the question: "At what institution in the United States does a student get the most for his money?"

Each year 2,500 mountain students receive the benefits of Berea's training. They get good meals at a cost of about 11 cents each and are quartered in neatly furnished rooms with hot water, clean linen and electricity at 65 cents a week. These necessities, together with the cost of registration and books, tuition being free, bring the cost per year to each student to an amount that never exceeds $146. At least one-fourth of this amount is earned by each student as a result of the labor he is given to do at the college as part of his training. Many, by working extra hours, earn their entire expense.

Berea's cost must be kept low to those who receive its benefits, for its purpose is to help a people whose cash income is almost negligible. In spite of the fact that many of its industrial departments operate at a profit, the college as a whole operates at an annual deficit of $110,000 which must be met entirely by the gifts of friends and scholarships.

R. L. Poole, supervisor of water stations for the L. & N. Railroad at Bayou, Ky., has recently been presented with the 25-year gold service button which the L. & N. gives as a mark of esteem to those who have served it for a quarter of a century.

Before going to Ravenna in 1915 Mr. Poole was with the L. & N. at LaGrange and Lexington, Ky.

After 45 years of continuous service as operator, dispatcher, chief dispatcher and assistant chief dispatcher, Harry H. Hancock of 1112 Main Street, Paris, Ky., has retired to the pension roll of the L. & N. Railroad.

Other veteran employees of the L. & N. whose retirement is announced in the October issue of the L. & N. Employees' Magazine are: Joseph F. Fyommes, engineer, residing at 2820 Hillcrest Terrace, Evansville, Ind., with a service record of 46 years; John E. Carr, clerk, 2420 W. Illinois St., Evansville, Ind., 39 years; Theodore Arnett, crossing watchman, 500 Longfield Ave., Louisville, Ky., 23 years; Elmer W. Thacker, conductor, Glenn Avenue, Covington, Ky., 18 years; Edward Gaupin, gang foreman, 1219 W. Market, Louisville, Ky., 29 years; Richard O. Elliott, supervisor of bridges and buildings, Nashville, Tenn., 34 years; Thomas Lee Moss, machinist helper, 1823 Russell St., Covington, Ky., 19 years; Joseph H. McLean, agent, Harlan, Ky., 45 years; A. L. Noss, claim agent, 1094 Blue Ridge Avenue, N. E. Atlanta, Ga.; Charles R. Blossman, warehouse foreman, 7814 Burtine St., New Orleans, La., 48 years; and Henry McGowan, car cleaner, 100 W. Magazine St., Louisville, Ky., 35 years.

Mrs. Martha Smith of New Haven, Conn., slapped her 51-year-old son several times on each cheek for being a "bad boy."

Winter Cover Crop Largest In History

Alabama farmers have this year purchased 1,256,289 pounds of winter legumes cooperatively through their farm organizations, reports Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. This tonnage included 233,989 pounds of hairy vetch and 1,022,300 pounds of Austrian winter peas. Farmers of the state contracted with Oregon farmers to grow the peas.

The tonnage this year compares with 1,253,225 pounds of winter legume seed purchased cooperatively last year. It will be noted that there is a big increase in the Austrian winter pea sale and decrease in the hairy vetch sale. Last year 737,170 pounds of hairy vetch and 516,055 pounds of Austrian winter peas were purchased cooperatively.

"The Farm Bureau has played a most important part in making Alabama a leader in the planting of winter legumes for soil improvement," said President O'Neal. P. O. Davis, Editor of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has written a historical sketch of winter legumes in Alabama, as follows:

"Ten years ago very few of these seeds were sowed and there was uncertainty as to how to do it and when to do it. Meanwhile, the experiment station had been working and continuing to work to answer questions concerning these crops which were then considered very promising. Time of sowing, depth of sowing seed, soil, fertilizer, and other subjects were studied. In due time the experiment station was able to tell farmers how to sow, where to sow, when to sow, and how to fertilize."

"With specific knowledge as to how to proceed the extension workers launched a campaign in behalf of the winter legumes. Farmers were told then as now that winter legumes are the cheapest way to enrich the soil, to add nitrogen and organic matter. These crops do not add phosphoric or potash. "This work was effective but it had not unfolded rapidly until the farm bureau entered the field as an organization to purchase seed and to do other jobs on the cooperative plan. Thus an organization of farmers completed a change from the experiment station to practical applications on farms."

Under favorable conditions the legumes planted on Alabama farms this year will add over $1,000,000 worth of nitrogen to the soil.

Mrs. Mary Logan of St. Louis wrote to a pastor a request that his church equip her with a set of false teeth.

Mrs. Albert Strohmeier of Evanston, Ill., was arrested and fined $5 for stretching a bare arm and shoulder out of a curtained automobile.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY—SPIRITUAL WEAPONS IN A WORLD WAR
Galatians 5:13-26

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

It is hard to find a new argument, for the liquor question has been before mankind from the earliest days. The family of Noah, for example, had to face the shame and disgrace of a drunken father. Today no one undertakes to refute the facts that science presents when it is demonstrated that alcohol is a poison. These deadly reactions are always exact and clearly understood. Personal liberty is about the loudest argument that is presented, in defense of the habit. Here our lessons text meets us and shows that Paul punctured that fallacy in his letter to the Galatians. Of course people have individual liberty but no one should do as he pleases to the detriment of self or of society. Real character makes one a servant of mankind and therefore one must not help forward the destruction of the other man. Paul was stern when he followed the teaching of Jesus and said "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Paul had the right kind of psychology in presenting the matter. He showed how to be constructive. "If they would endeavor to walk in accord with the Holy Spirit they would at once cease to center their thinking in themselves and see what they might obtain for their own satisfaction. All were aware of the works of the flesh, yet Paul catalogues them. Nearly every one is incited or increased by the use of alcoholic beverages."

Then one Paul's contrast—even the cumulative fruit of the Spirit, that matures when people seek to do righteousness. This mastery is gained through the Spirit, and thus men are free indeed to work out the best in their lives.

HOW DO YOU KNOW IT IS "JUST A COLD?"

By Dr. Christmas Seal

Don't be too quick to say "just a cold." If the patient is a child, the running eyes and nose may mean the beginning of measles, the teasing cough may be whooping cough, the sore throat may be scarlet fever or diphtheria. Even your own "cold" may be influenza, bronchitis, perhaps the early stages of pneumonia.

More than half the illnesses of winter are first classified as colds. Dr. Christmas Seal says that a large percentage could be cut short if every person with a "cold" would stop work and take at least one day's rest in bed—just one single day. Keeping away from people for that day would keep you from distributing your cold to others at its most contagious stage. It would help you to fight the early fever and give your heart action a chance to steady down. In most cases it would put an end to the cold. Many a case of fatal pneumonia would be prevented were this simple rule followed. Hanging around the house partly dressed, going from room to room and occasionally outdoors does not answer. The prescription reads "Stay in bed."

The railroads spent over $321,000,000 in equipment in 1929. The figures recording this expenditure on the railroads' investment accounts mean little to most of us. Their importance is better illustrated by the following:

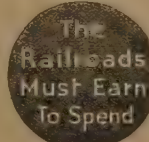

From the ECONOMIST

"It is difficult to conceive of any public utility being 99.99 per cent perfect in any aspect of its service, yet the railroads of this country in 1929 came just that close to perfection in the delivery of freight and passenger service, which means the avoidance of the old bugaboo of car shortages."

From the Scranton (Pa.) SUN

"The railroads have always been one of the main props for industry and, aside from the regular work of roadway betterment, which includes rails, ties and bridge materials, they draw upon almost every other department of trade. The millions to be spent by the roads will give a strong uplift to many lines which are sorely in need of orders just now."

On the receipt of adequate railway income, and sensible limitation of railway taxes and restrictions, depend to a great extent the prosperity, growth, employment, and general welfare of the country.

J. A. MAHAN WRITES IN INTEREST OF C. B. COX

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 13, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I desire to say a few words in behalf of my friend, Mr. C. B. Cox, who is making the race in this county for Tax Collector.

I have known Mr. Cox all my life—have been closely associated with him in a business way for a number of years—and can truthfully say that I have always found him to be thoroughly reliable in every respect. He is a good business man and fully capable of conducting the affairs of the Tax Collector's office in a way that will be satisfactory to all the people.

Knowing Mr. Cox as I do, I am frank to say, that if elected, no voter will have cause to regret having voted for him.

As we all know, the Tax Collector has nothing to do with fixing the County's revenue, that is raising or reducing taxes, his is just a plain duty of collecting taxes due the County and State as fixed by and according to law. Efficiency in service is what counts and I am sure Mr. Cox is capable of filling the place.

I hope you will consider these facts and on November 4th cast your vote for my friend, Mr. C. B. Cox, for Tax Collector.

Yours very truly,
J. A. MAHAN.

COOL HEAD SAVED LIFE

Presence of mind and a knowledge of what to do in an emergency often avert disaster, as was illustrated by the wife of a British official in India not long ago.

Seated at dinner with her family and several guests, she felt a snake coil about her ankle. Instead of shrieking with terror and attempting to flee, she quietly told those seated at the table not to move, and directed a servant to place a bowl of milk on the floor.

Presently a large cobra glided gracefully from under the table and approached the milk, which is said to be for this reptile an irresistible bait, and it was then killed by one of the men present.

The cobra is one of the deadliest snakes in the world, and while it does not attack people unless irritated it is responsible for about 10,000 deaths each year in India alone. No antidote for cobra poison is known and death usually results in a few minutes after the victim is bitten.

The lady in question knew the habits of the cobra and had the self-control to do just what was necessary to save herself from certain death. Whether she would have exhibited the same composure had the intruder been a mouse is another question.

When sued by his landlady, Patrick Dillon of Chicago, charged in court that she was "so mean that she powdered her face to save soap."

Gus Kennedy of Texarkana, Tex., who was equipped with eye-shade, goggles and leather gloves, crawled a distance of 18 miles on his hands and knees because he lost a bet.

NATURE'S SECRETS

Patient toilers in laboratories and elsewhere have wrested from Mother Nature many of her valuable secrets, but many others remain hidden from them, and may always remain so.

While an amazing number of synthetic products have been developed which even surpass the natural ones for which they serve as substitutes, there are countless other instances in which nature's handiwork can not be approached, much less improved upon.

And even among natural products there is a wide difference in quality for which it is difficult to account. What, for example is the secret of the superiority of Kimberly diamonds; of South Sea pearls? Or, in the vegetable kingdom, what can explain the peculiar excellence of Kentucky blue grass and the grapes of France? Who can tell why Pennsylvania crude oil has a paraffin base, making it especially desirable as a lubricant? How explain the virtues of certain natural mineral waters?

These and a multitude of similar questions have so far baffled the scientific world, and proved that nature at its best is beyond the power of man to equal.

As someone has suggested, if all nature's secrets could be discovered, psychologists of the future might make synthetic saints of all of us.

Sauces for Meats and Fowl

By ETIENNE ALLIO, Chef, Hotel New Yorker, New York City

SKILLFULLY prepared sauces can add greatly to the appetite appeal of many kinds of meats and fowl. This secret the French discovered long ago, and it is unfortunate that the American housewife so often passes by the opportunity to give an added zest to the piece de resistance of the meal.

In making a sauce, the greatest care should be taken that the least possible amount of fat remains in the liquid. Another excellent point to remember is to add a little sugar to the other seasonings, not for sweetening purposes but to bind the various flavors.

Orange Sauce for Roast Duck—Brown two tablespoons butter in a saucepan. Add two tablespoons flour and stir until the mixture bubbles and becomes brown. Add three-fourths cup meat stock. Cook until smooth and creamy, stirring constantly. Add six drops onion juice, one-half teaspoon walnut ketchup, one teaspoon sugar, few grains cayenne, and salt to taste. Continue stirring and add juice and grated rind of two oranges. Bring to boiling point. Serve around fillets of breast of roast duck, arranged on a platter with a pile of wild rice in the center.

Sauce Chevreux for Fish, Poultry or Game—Dissolve one teaspoon vegetable bouillon extract in one cup of boiling water. Add one-half teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon paprika, and salt to taste. Add one cup orange juice, pulp of two oranges, few slices of rind, and one teaspoon sugar. Brown two tablespoons butter in saucepan. Add two tablespoons flour, and cook until mixture is brown, smooth and creamy. Add slowly to stock mixture, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Take off fire and add one-half cup Current Sauce—To make a current sauce for roast lamb, add one glass currant jelly to a cup of brown gravy made from drippings in the pan. This is especially good when slices of the cold roast are warmed in it.

Purpose Of Going To Shantung

By J. T. Williams

In some former writing I told you about making a trip to Shantung, but I did not tell you what I was doing up there. You may be sure I was not traveling for my health, for at least some of the travel I do is not considered very conducive to good health.

In my work as Sunday, School Secretary of the China Baptist Publication Society I try to attend as many large meetings of Chinese workers as I can to speak to them and talk with them to try to stir them up on the importance of teaching the Bible in the Sunday School, and to show the great advantage of training young Christians for the service of the Master.

The Association at Pingtu was composed largely of preachers, teachers and the leaders in the churches around in the country. There were about one hundred and fifty delegates present, and the local people swelled the crowds to about three hundred. It was an inspiration to me to speak to that group of earnest Christians, telling them how Jesus went about the villages teaching and preaching, and urging them to give more time and energy to building up their Sunday Schools and really teaching and training the church members as well as to reach out for others.

The Moderator and clerk of the Association were Chinese and they carried on the work with as much smoothness and order as you would find in an Association at home. They worked earnestly and spoke well upon the subjects that were before the Association. Old Pastor Li (pronounced Lee) was sitting there a little back from the front watching the younger men do most of the work of the Association. After they had their say, Lao Li Hsiung Ti (Old Brother Lee) would get up and say a few words out of his wisdom and experience that always hit the spot and added interest and zeal to the work in hand.

Perhaps some of you do not know Pastor Li very well. He was converted more than forty years ago by reading a little tract called "Truth Manifested"—I showed a copy of it to many of you when I was at home last year. He has been an ordained pastor nearly thirty five years. He has gone up and down the country over several states in summer and winter, under the scorching sun and through drenching rains, and facing storms of sleet and snow, for what purpose? That he might witness for the Master. He has baptized more people than any living man I have ever heard of. One day I walked up to him and said: "Pastor Li, how many people have you baptized?" "More than five thousand," was his reply. Just think of what that means!

If you were to meet Pastor Li on the road you perhaps would think he is some old, ignorant codger, but he knows his Bible, he loves his Lord, he longs to see his people saved, and is fired with zeal and earnestness in witnessing for Him who gave his life a ransom for many.

As I sat and watched that group of Christians earnestly discussing and planning the Master's business my mind went back to the days when that faithful missionary, Miss Lottie Moon, first entered the gates of that ancient little city to witness for Jesus and found the people friendly. Then, not a Christian for miles around, now, several thousand of them in the city and the villages round about the country. Is it worth while? Yes, the coming of missionaries to China has been a blessing to hundreds of thousands and we are looking forward to the day when millions will be turning to the Lord.

Perhaps some of you have heard me say there are many things in China that help one to understand many things in the Bible. As I came back from Tsingtao, sitting on the boat on Sunday afternoon I read the book of Mark. Never before did it come so vividly to mind what it meant when it said the people crowded around Jesus to hear his words.

The day Bro. Lowe and I tried to go to Pingtu in his Ford and had to turn back on account of the floods, we stopped at one town that was having market day. With our hands full of tracts we went out to where the people were and began talking, preaching and distributing tracts. How the people did crowd around us and listen to the words of life! Then I could see how the people crowded around Jesus to hear the message that brought peace to their hearts. How I do long to be more like Jesus as I try to make Him known to the Chinese.

WITHOUT A PRESIDENT

It may not be generally known that every four years the United States is without a President for several hours, but such is the fact. The term of the outgoing President expires at midnight on March 3 and the new President is usually sworn in about noon on the following day. During the intervening hours the country is without a chief executive.

The question of whether a vacancy existed during this interval was discussed early in the history of the country. In response to an inquiry, Chief Justice John Marshall wrote on February 21, 1821:

"There has been uniformly and voluntarily an interval of 12 hours during which the executive power could not be exercised."

If an emergency demanded, the new President could be sworn in immediately after his predecessor's term expired at midnight on March 3, but no situation has ever existed to make this necessary.

Mrs. Gertrude C. Mah, young Chinese wife of San Francisco, was granted a divorce when she charged that her mother had sold her into matrimony and virtual slavery.

THE CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

J. B. ATKINSON, PUBLISHER

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Alabama in the interest of Clanton and the entire Chilton County

Entered in the postoffice of Clanton, Alabama, as second class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897.

Something Essential to Progress

Many Southern cities and towns are making energetic efforts to increase the tourist trade business, and it is highly commendable, and each such effort should be encouraged, but in the final showdown on the part of the tourist will be likely settled by the character of the highways over which they will travel, and not by the enthusiasm of the citizens of the town or city.

Those who tour in automobiles are becoming unweary individuals, being given to making exacting inquiries about roads before he sets out his route to take, and usually ends up by selecting those routes that will give him the best highways, offering the maximum in riding comfort. Some, however, are likely to select the highways that are more picturesque, or reduces the distance to a minimum, but when one route is good and the other bad, usually the communities on the bad route lose the patronage of the tourist.

The proposition of providing good roads is truly becoming important, due to the fact that the inclination to use the open highway is becoming more and more fixed in the minds of traveling Americans, and each season finds more and more persons abandoning the railroad for the automobile, which of course means that even though a city may have excellent railroad facilities, it can not hope to hold the trade of the tourist unless it also possesses equally good highway facilities.

It is fortunate that time has altered greatly the attitude of the people on this subject of good roads, making it no longer difficult to arouse the sentiment necessary to influence action in this line. Those who live in the rural sections have become just as devoted to the good road as has the city residents and when the two of them get together and move with union, then results are certain to be obtained.

Good roads bring prosperity to the rural dweller as it does to those living in the city, and both should work hand-in-hand until the entire South is covered with a network of highways that will be a lure to the millions who, each year set forth to find and view new scenes.

A vote for the Democratic nominees of Chilton County will assure clean government in our county.

If the people of the county desire to elect a person to the School Board, who is qualified, then they will vote for Mrs. Parnell

Arthur Martin is a product of Chilton County. He knows the joys and troubles of the farmer. He used to tote water to the field, before he began to say Gee and Haw or Get-up. His education and ripened knowledge by the experience he has obtained through the school of hard knocks, qualifies him for the office and he will appreciate it, too.

No better square shooter ever kicked up the dust of Chilton County, than Charlie Cox, who is running for the office of Tax Collector. He wants the office and is going out after it. The people of the county will make no mistake, if they elect him.

Austin Nivens is a man who could run the office of Sheriff without hand-cuffs and long range rifles. He is another one of the clean type of citizens whom the people can trust and place their confidence in without any doubt of future regret.

... but think about getting a real big man to offer his services for commissioner. We have it in the person of Mr. Sam M. Edwards, who by the way, is one of Chilton County's biggest men. He will make the scales jump to about 300 pounds and he too, is a square shooter and a man who thinks and uses his own head. Sam Edwards is a successful farmer and business man, and if things don't go right during the next four years with government affairs of the county, if the people elect Sam Edwards, they will find out the reason why and know where the money goes.

B. M. Killingsworth don't weigh as much as our friend Sam Edwards, but he can make a dollar do its duty. In the person of Burney Killingsworth, the Democrats of this county have selected a man who has the courage and ability to see that the county affairs are run upon a high plane and that the tax payers will receive for every dollar spent a dollars worth of labor or material. If the people of Chilton County want a man for commissioner, who is a farmer, who is honest and who will discharge the duty of the office without discrimination and honesty, then they can fill their wants by voting for Mr. Killingsworth, who will appreciate the office.

"Cotton Is Going Up"

In the "Isabella School News" in this week's issue of the News there appears a small sub-head which says, "Cotton Is Going Up," and under that a statement that the Home Economic Girls of the Isabella School have pledged themselves to wear cotton stockings. Whether the action of these girls will have any effect on the price of cotton is not the purpose of this editorial. But in this action is manifested a spirit, in a fine sporting way, which might well be an example to most of us. Cotton farmers have long refused to reduce their acreage, believing that their small plantings would have no effect upon the total amount. "If Texas would cut down its acreage, it might do some good," is a typical argument. People often fail to vote, thinking that their one vote will have no effect upon the outcome. Folks fail sometimes to take a part in civic improvements, believing that their small part would have no particular effect. There are many other things which people shy away from because they look too big, and they feel sure that whatever effort they might put forth would never determine the result. Let these arguments be as they may, these girls at the Isabella school have found a less expensive garment that is more serviceable than silk, and regardless of whether "Cotton Is Going Up" or not they will save money, and will have the consciousness that they have done something toward a desirable goal.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

I guess most everybody has heard of conditions being "aired" and I wonder how many folks in Clanton could bear a real straight news article in a paper. An article stating the facts, that is, such facts as a writer would see fit to give. Of course, nearly all the folks here know about things going on in town in a quiet, underhanded way, but I'll bet they would like to see a story about it in print. But of course nothing like that will hardly ever happen in Clanton for a long time yet. Not until the people here become broadminded and have courage enough to face the music, so to speak.

It takes a man with real courage to stop and face facts in the rough. But take for instance a man who tells another one thing, and then does another at a critical moment—in other words, kinds of double-crosses, then that sort of fellow don't have much courage. The man is not in him. Well, we might have some men like that in our town. He is also the kind of fellow who knows what he would like to do, how he would like to vote, or express his opinion when it is asked for, but when the showdown comes, he goes back on his word and does as another says do. Not much backbone there. Especially if he is a man holding a very responsible position.

Lots like the more I cuss about things, the worse they get, so I've about decided to lay off. Sales of merchandise are going one after another in Clanton. Those putting on these sales state they are selling things at a big reduction. A sale is not worth much if put on and not properly advertised, and when a fellow starts advertising a sale, he must do it carefully, lest his advertising be in vain. I gather from the editor that this newspaper believes only in legitimate newspaper advertising. Just say that about four people read each copy of this newspaper which is mailed out in this immediate trade territory. Well, with a circulation of say about fourteen hundred, then that means five thousand six hundred people would read this newspaper each week, with only a hundred say, are going out of this trade territory. Now an ad going to that many readers is real advertising. And a newspaper is not thrown away like a handbill usually is.

But of course, advertising with circulars is really the best in some instances. That can easily be ascertained by the advertiser, and if he is in doubt then, the printer, or newspaperman will be ready to advise him. Then there is another type of advertising. That is direct mail advertising. A circular letter properly arranged and worded to catch the eye, will not be thrown in the waste basket on first impulse when received, as is done in many cases. In cases where an advertiser wishes to do some direct mail advertising, then he should consult his printer, or newspaperman—unless he already has what he wants and his mind made up. In many instances, the printer has proven of great assistance to the advertiser using direct mail advertising. An advertiser using direct mail advertising naturally wants to get the best price he can, because he has postage to figure in on the cost of it.

One of the points maintained in the job printing department of this newspaper is to save the buyer as much money as possible, and still give him a quality of work that is high and shows taste. In any case where the cost of a job of printing is to amount up, then the buyer shows good judgment when he asks for bids from responsible printing plants.

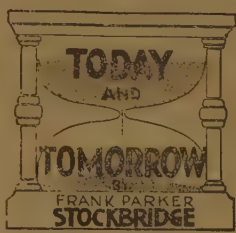

Now that I have departed with some good advice about what I know about printing, or think I know, I'll get off on something else. Maybe raise a little more sand.

That word maybe, gives me thought for some imagining. Maybe when I am dead and buried, the thoughts of the "Round Town" column will remain long in the minds of some people who have been hit between the eyes, although I have never mentioned their names in this column. But in doing things like that, it is my good intentions of trying to tell them, in a nice way, where they are making a mistake, and if they can't take a hint from me, then they'll just have to get sore. But I think it's a pretty swell idea to let folks know that they are not getting by with some of their 'slightly-soiled' work, without people knowing it. In some cases in town I have seen men who have really made more enemies in one year than they gained friends in two years. You know, that ain't making much progress, is it? It is not that I am really sore about something someone has done when I refer to it, but I am just trying to give the erring one a bit of a tip, in a friendly way, so they won't make the same mistake again, or will change their way of doing now. And here's something certain, straight from 'the shoulder: When I refer to condition existing, it exists, and if the cap fits you, then I am handing you a tip. Savvy?

Have been wondering lately whether I had better take up the discussion of the members of the fairer and warmer sex again, and have been trying to decide which was the worst, the blondes or the brunettes. I would include the red-heads, but they belong to an entirely different class altogether. Both the blondes and brunettes talk a lot, which is unnecessary. In fact I met a certain fair school teacher the other day, who is something of a blond and newly arrived in Clanton, and I often wondered while she was talking, how she managed to thing so fast in order to talk so fast and say so many words in such a short time. It was really becoming amusing to hear and watch her talk. Then about the time I was becoming interested in watching her lips move, some fellow drove up in a snappy roadster and away she went. I kept on listening to the radio.

I think I've cussed and discussed about everything in town in this column week after week, so I guess I'll just get off on another foot right away and try to give you folks a different side of life.

Heard that a fellow once said that the reason he didn't attend church was that he just couldn't go there and face the people who profess to be Christians, and who ran their accounts up at his store so far, failing to pay them, that he was forced to go out of business, because they wouldn't pay him what they owed him. I suppose he thinks they are not such real Christians. He thought they were all right and allowed them credit. Undoubtedly he thought wrong, and I ask you, can you blame him? It's no fairy story, so I'm told.

SILVER

With the decline in the use of silver for money, all over the world, the price of the metal is lower than at any other time in history, measured by the gold standard. The silver dollar, once cherished in the West and South about all forms of currency, has almost passed out of circulation.

Senator Odde of Nevada, the principal silver-producing state, now proposes the coining of a silver dollar which would have no special value but be a "token" like the half-dollar, quarter-dollar and dime, all of which are worth less as metal than their stamped value.

One good reason for restoring the silver dollar to circulation is the fact that it costs the Government about two cents a year to replace each dollar bill with a new one as the old ones wear out.

COMPETITION

Thomas A. Campbell, Montana farmer who has been showing the Russian Government how to apply American Agricultural methods, has returned and says that Russia will be a strong competitor in the world's agricultural markets in a few years, but merely because of her size. In other respects we have little to fear from Russia or any other European nation. While they are trying to introduce American manufacturing methods, the people as a whole move too slowly to accomplish as much in a given time as we do.

That is quite natural, when you consider that everybody in America is here because he or his ancestors had more than the average of initiative, courage and enterprise common to the people of the land from which they came. The dull, unimaginative plodders were left behind. If there is anything in heredity, we have a decided edge upon all of the peoples of the Old World.

POPULATION

The village of Whitehall, Owen County, Indiana, a town so small that it hasn't a newspaper, comes into the news again for the first time in ten years. Whitehall is almost the exact center of population of the United States.

The United States is getting settled. In 1920 the center of population was 32 miles west of Baltimore, in 1920 it was 18 miles west of Baltimore. In the course of the next hundred years the population center moved westward at the rate of about 4.83 miles a year.

From the center of population there are just as many people to the north as there are to the south, as many to the West as to the East, as many in any direction as in the opposite direction.

CHRYSLER

A Kansas boy who had a job and $700 in the bank in Oelwein, Iowa, went to an automobile show in Chicago twenty years ago. He wanted to see what the insides of one of those new-fangled machines looked like, how it worked. He could not find out all he wanted to know, so he asked the price of one of the cars. It was $5,000.

"I'll buy it," he said. He telegraphed back to Oelwein, to his bank to send him his $700, to several friends to endorse his note for $4,300. It was a tribute to his character and reputation that his friends did as he asked them. He bought the Winton car, drove it back to Oelwein and took his young wife for a ride, then proceeded to take the car apart. He took it down and put it together again eight times before he was satisfied that he knew all about automobiles. Then he got himself a job in an automobile factory.

His name was—and is—Walter P. Chrysler, and he is building in the world stands at Forty second Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, a monument to his success in designing and building automobiles.

Chrysler knew what he wanted and had the courage to go after it, and that is two-thirds of the secret of success.

SIMPLIFICATION

California announces that 112 state bureaus, commissions and departments have been consolidated into eleven. New York recently merged 180 different departments in 18. Maryland has reduced the number of state departments from 25 to 9.

One cause of high taxes is the multiplicity of government bureaus and the difficulty of fixing responsibility for the expenditure of public funds.

No nation has yet found out how to run a government efficiently and economically. We probably come nearer to it, as a whole, than any other great nation.

A "love injunction" was granted by a judge of Concord, N. H., which restrained James Huntington Niles from visiting Frances Keene because Niles refused to leave the girl's home when her parents requested.

Starting on a hike around the world with only $1 in her pocket, Miss Sybil Lassington of Boston believes her guitar, her voice and her money will see her through.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Cotton Drops Six Cents A Pound Since Farm Board Loans

Washington, Oct. 14 Mr. W. M. Garrard in an exhaustive survey of the cotton mill situation in this country and Canada, published in the September number of the Staple Cotton Review, reports that the Canadians blame the Hawley-Smoot tariff as one of the causes for the depression in the Dominion. He says:

"In the many trips I have made to mills in Canada and America, I have never found the Canadian spinner as discouraged as he is this season. There is a general opposition on the part of Canadians to the recent tariff passed in this country. Everyone is trying to find reasons for the present general depression in business, and the Canadians list the American tariff as one of the causes for the depression in Canada."

According to The Review, Mr. Garrard has been a student of the economics of cotton distribution and manufacture throughout the world for more than twenty years.

None of the Canadian mills visited by Mr. Garrard are in the market for new crop staples this fall.

"In New England the mill situation is even worse than it has been in years past," he says. "Heavy curtailment is in progress in all classes of textile operations. There seems to be no end to the unsatisfactory condition in the operation of New England mills."

Among the print cloth manufacturers of the South, Mr. Garrard learned that the decline in this class of goods was so great that the manufacturers told him that they would have to buy cotton at from eight to eleven cents in order to break even on that class of goods. And just now the market has fallen below 10 cents, although a year ago the Farm Board made loans to co-operators at 16 cents a pound.

Republican Floor Leader Tilson

seemed positively jubilant in one of his recent paradoxical speeches over the general decline in prices of commodities, using the fact to disprove, as he innocently imagined, Democratic statements concerning the increased costs of the Hawley-Smoot tariff to the consuming public. It will be pleasing to the tariff beneficiaries who contribute to Republican campaign funds to learn—for that is the plain inference—that the purpose of the Republicans in Congress in increasing the tariff tax in all schedules was for the purpose of reducing prices to the consumer.

Secretary Hyde Sees Red

Washington, Oct. 14.—Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has been sharply criticized by the press of the country for his statements concerning the short selling of wheat by agents of the Russian Soviet, the purpose of which, he alleged, is to depress the market and injure American farmers. Secretary Hyde's purpose, as his critics see it, is to find a loophole of some kind for the Administration.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press, (Rep.) says: "If any more astounding statement has ever come from an American Secretary of Agriculture, it would be hard to name it. The implication of course is that the Russians are partly responsible for present low prices of wheat in this country. ... So long as the present marketing system continues there will be a legitimate function for this form of trading."

"Secretary Hyde seems to be chiefly interested in finding a convenient scapegoat for prevailing low prices on wheat. He blames it on the Reds, saying they have deliberately forced prices down, forgetting that for every Russian speculative account, there are thousands of American."

The St. Louis Star (Ind.) satirically says: "The slump in wheat prices isn't due to President Hoover, the Federal Farm Board, the Republican administration, an act of God, or the Smoot-Hawley tariff. It is a deep, dark, demonic plot carried out by secret agents of the Russian government. ... We have it on the word of Arthur M. Hyde, Seneschal of The Department of Agriculture. ... It is evident there have been Russian-wheat sales in this country for future delivery. Grant that they have been 'short sales.' What then? All that indicates is that Russia, believing that wheat prices are going lower, has done what Americans do every day, hedged for a profit."

The Star then volunteers to help Secretary Hyde out of his dilemma. It continues:

"If Secretary Hyde wants a hot tip, which will solve 99 per cent of the political troubles of the Hoover administration, here it is: The Wall Street panic of October, 1929 was really caused by King Alfonso of Spain, who started stocks tumbling by closing out all of his accounts at a profit of several million dollars for himself. The darn rascal."

The Kentucky State Journal says:

"We are now told that Russia holds the whip hand in the wheat markets of the world because she has so much wheat to sell. ... If Russia is, as someone alleges, selling her wheat to get cash, regardless of her need of bread, she can not long hold the whip hand. ... It looks like a case of more excitement than the facts warrant. That excitement seems divided between London and Washington."

The New York World of October 1 says: "The sharp decline in wheat prices early this week can not be attributed to further short selling by the Russian government, for the Board of Trade has barred such transactions for the account of any foreign government."

... Now that the tumult and the shouting over this incident have subsided, it has become apparent that Secretary Hyde's unseemly and hysterical announcement of what the Soviet government was doing or trying to do in the wheat market did more to unsettle prices and to stampede traders than the Russian selling itself."

While Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge are worrying about the slump in wheat and cotton, Senator Fess' job is worrying about the indicated slump in the Republican vote.

"Wait-A-Wee-Bit" Johnny McKay—An Analogy

Washington, Oct. 14.—A correspondent in the New York World, telling of his youth in Ireland, gives a pen picture of a well known character there known as "Wait-a-Wee-Bit" Johnny McKay, who was always putting off with one excuse and another his daily tasks. As a result his crops went to ruin. His other peculiarity was that he would never discuss any subject about which there was any controversy.

"To sum up briefly," says this correspondent, "Johnny was one of those timid souls who always travelled in the middle of the road. He had none of the courage that characterizes the two Celtic races to which he belonged. In the conduct of his business the poor man showed that he was afflicted with chronic procrastination."

"Of late I have given considerable thought to 'Wait-a-Wee-Bit' Johnny McKay. And I have come to the conclusion that if he were an American instead of an Irishman, he would make an ideal President of the United States."

Mr. Hoover has taken the road as the Advance Agent of G. O. P. Prosperity,—but this time he is announcing no date for the opening of the show.

American Exports to Soviet Russia Gain 35 Per Cent, Despite Red Herring Committee

Washington, Oct. 14.—Despite the activities of the Fish Red Herring Congressional Committee, Soviet American trade for the fiscal year 1928-1930, which ended September 30th, amounted to $177,000,000 of which $145,000,000 was in American exports, according to a statement by the Chairman of the Amtorg Trading Corporation. The purchases exceeded by 35 per cent the figure established in 1928-1929, the highest up to that time.

The Chairman of the Amtorg Company said that Russia's purchases here showed a sharp decline last April from the preceding months of the fiscal year, "largely because of the tightening up of the credit situation." He added that the credit of this country had been effected here by the activity of the Fish Congressional Committee (commonly known as the Red Herring Committee) and to the criticism and "many wild statements" that had been made concerning Russian trade activities. These criticisms, as is generally known, have emanated from Secretary Hyde of the Department of Agriculture and other Republican propagandists, the principal effect of which has been to lessen the volume of Soviet American trade at a time when the expansion of foreign export trade is conceded to be a necessary factor in offsetting business and trade depression.

The net result in Mr. Hoover's farm relief plans is to set up a farm board to feed the farmers' wheat to the pigs and cows. Couldn't the farmers have done that without a $500,000,000 farm board's help?

"Feed wheat to cattle instead of corn," says Chairman Legge. Take away the corn farmer's market to make a market for the wheat farmer! Farm relief!—Dayton News.

In suing for separation, Mrs. Jeanne Rosen of New York says competition is too keen for her to attempt to hold her husband any longer, accusing him of showering attentions on at least 30 girls.

E. D. BANKS CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

HON. E. D. BANKS

(Pd. Pol. Adv. by E. D. Banks, Anniston, Alabama)

Having been nominated to enter the race of Congressman from this the Fourth Congressional District on the Independent Ticket with Senator J. Thos. Hefflin, and Hugh Locke, Hon. E. D. Banks was in Clanton in the interest of his candidacy the first part of this week.

While in town, Mr. Banks called at the News office. He is a resident of Anniston, Alabama, and is widely known over the state. He was the organizer of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Anniston and served as president of that organization, and also as president of the State Junior Chamber of Commerce for some time. In the interview with Mr. Banks, a representative of this newspaper learned that during his extensive work in all civic improvement programs in his home town and county, he has been affiliated with the Red Cross, having served as chairman of the Anniston Red Cross, and also served as chairman of the Anniston Fair

Isabella Schools News

COTTON IS GOING UP

Cotton will go up new since all of Isabella Home Economics girls have promised to wear cotton hose, rather than silk, to school. The girls voted to do it because cotton hose is less expensive, more durable, and warmer.

GIRL SCOUT ORGANIZATION

Thirty-six girls were present at the first meeting of the Girl Scout organization. Miss Celia Cumbee, local history teacher, will be captain. The organization promised to do big things. The plans are being made for an organization for the boys too.

Proteins from animal sources are generally better for poultry feeding than those of vegetable origin, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Meat scrap, fish meal, and tankage, are good sources of animal protein, and supply valuable minerals in addition. Another advantage of animal proteins, especially milk and meat scrap, is that they are highly digestible. Protein in a good grade of fish meal is probably equal to the same amount of protein in meat scrap. Tankage is not so good as the other proteins for poultry and needs to be supplemented with minerals. One of the best sources of animal protein is milk, which has a relatively greater feeding value than its actual protein content. It helps to prevent mortality of baby chicks, to increase the rate of gain of growing chicks, and to increase the feed consumption and egg production of laying stock.

Mr. Banks is a lawyer by profession, but due to his interests in civic and government affairs has not been actively engaged in his profession. Mr. Banks also stated while here that he would be back in this county sometime the latter part of this week, and possibly have speaking dates arranged in the county.

Young pigs are an easy prey for roundworms and until they are four months old special care must be taken to avoid worm infection. Fall pigs may be farrowed in individual houses on a clean pasture sown to a good forage crop on which no pigs have been pastured. Except in the extreme north pigs born in early fall will be past the age of greatest susceptibility to worms when it is time to put them into winter quarters. However, winter quarters should be thoroughly cleaned before pigs are placed in them.

Careless disposal of offal from livestock on the farm is one of the ways in which parasites are spread, according to the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, which says that offal should be tanked or treated in such a way as to kill all parasitic material. Offal is often thrown out and allowed to decompose in an offensive manner. Dogs eat this material, and as parts of carcasses infested with tapeworm cysts are rejected as offal, the dogs become infested with tapeworms which they in turn carry to livestock and infest them with the bladderworms. Among the tapeworms spread in this way is the deadly hydatid which forms a cyst the size of an orange, or larger, in cattle, sheep, and swine, and in man. Offal is also a prolific source of blowflies which breed in it in great numbers.

Verbena High School

One of the most interesting battles of the ages was raging at Verbena High School last week. This battle was fought by the Red Pirates, led by Captain Kidd and the Black Pirates led by the infamous John Silver. The Reds surrendered to the Blacks at noon last Thursday after a long hard struggle of one week.

Every year the pupils of this school sell magazine subscriptions. For several years they sold for the Curtis Publishing Company, but this year they represented the Crowell Publishing Company. Everyone in school thoroughly enjoys the contest and the rollicking fun he has at the party honoring the winning side.

Ethel Carle was admiral of the Reds with Rachel Messer and John Elland Jr. as the captains. Sue Sharp, the admiral and Sara Hollis and Milton Sharp, as Captains, led the Blacks to victory.

The school gets a certain amount of each subscription, and the pupils work for individual prizes.

The whole school breathed a sigh of relief when tests were over. But—can you imagine anybody making one hundred on geometry? Velma Patterson did.

The teachers returned from the Institute looking more grim and imposing than ever, with a notebookful of new ideas for making life miserable for the pupils.

No carriage was needed when B. S. Bennett and Miss Gwen Hawkins of Boston were married as they arrived at the church on single bicycles and rode away on a tandem.

After having her husband arrested for beating her, Mrs. Cora Mulveen of St. Paul testified, "His raspberry nose tells the whole story."

When Miss Mary Bradley of Taboro, N. C., found a man in her bedroom, she seized a shotgun and made him lie on the floor until officers arrived.

James Kelley of St. Louis stepped from the street onto the curb and into the arms of Henry Mason, from whom Kelly had stolen the suit he was wearing.

Chilton County Abstract Co.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth. However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Candidate for State Senator

As a candidate for State Senator from the 15th Senatorial District, I realize that I should express my views concerning matters that might interest voters before soliciting your vote.

1. I believe in majority rule instead of minority control, as we now have in some instances. And I shall stand for all elective offices, education or otherwise, being filled by expression of the voters interested.
2. More safe laws for protection of depositors in the state banks.
3. Reduction rather than increase of taxes and expenses if possible, but no reduction of school funds.
4. Continued progress along the lines of education and public health.
5. Continued road improvement without debts if possible.
6. Honest and impartial enforcement of the law regardless of class or creed.

In conclusion, will say that I solicit the vote and influence of every law-abiding white voter regardless of his or her past affiliation, realizing to the fullest extent that a bad citizen is a bad citizen, and a good citizen is a good citizen, regardless of whether he has called himself a Republican, Democrat or what-not in the past

Respectfully,

V. J. GRAGG.

Jeffersonian Democratic Candidate for State Senate.

Farmers Planning Co-op Turkey Sales

Farmers of the turkey producing sections of Alabama are turning their attention to cooperative turkey sales just before Thanksgiving. J. B. Sylvest, and J. D. Moore, marketing specialists of the extension service, Auburn, are making plans to assist the turkey producers in getting the best prices for their turkeys.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau reports that turkey growers take a great deal of pride in the fact that cooperative turkey marketing has been very successful in Alabama for the past four years. He says that they review the following facts with great interest.

"In 1926 the cooperative marketing of turkeys had its beginning in Alabama. During that year 166,000 pounds were sold which brought $48,000. In 1927 thirty-one carloads weighing 394,400 pounds were sold for $125,000. During the following year 28 cars weighing 316,000 pounds brought $101,000.

Last year 35 cars weighing 475,000 pounds were loaded by 7,000 farmers who received $121,335."

It is advised that all good sized, well matured, and fat turkeys be marketed Thanksgiving. If the turkeys are small and weigh less than 7 pounds for hens and 11 pounds for toms they should be kept for the Christmas market. Thanksgiving offers the best outlet for Alabama turkeys.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

A statewide appeal to Alabama farmers to plan crops wisely and farm safely and with saving, was voiced by Gov. Bibb Graves in the first public meeting held in Montgomery October 6th when representatives of organized agriculture, fertilizer manufacturers, agricultural workers and farmers met to thresh out farm prospects for 1931.

Conditions were described at the meeting as bad enough with a likelihood of getting worse, unless farmers planned their acreage with extreme care next year. The cause of the present low prices was said to be overproduction of cotton, with depression causing low prices the world over.

Adjusted production was given as the keynote for safety first. As an example most farmers will have to buy some corn at a dollar or more per bushel this year. Hay already costs twenty-five dollars per ton. Most of what the farmers have to buy was said to be far above the cost of Alabama production.

On the contrary, cotton was far below the cost of production and so cheap that some farmers were not going to pick their entire crop.

To avoid this farm tragedy, farm workers evolved a plan for adjusting conditions in Alabama, in order to secure safe farming. The plan in brief calls for the following farm practices:

1. Growing crops for food, feed and sale to give annual income.

2. Increase poultry, livestock and dairy production with sustaining feeds. Markets for the above are obtainable constantly.

3. Farm only reasonably level lands on which a good return can be had. Allow hilly lands to revert to forestry; trees are a crop.

4. Since every farmer can till but a certain number of acres, it will be undertaking this safety first measure be necessary for 1931 to fertilize less cotton and use more fertilizer per acre.

5. The cost of crop production should be reduced where possible by endeavoring to raise less acres intensively, than through planting the usual cotton acreage, with the average fertilizer application.

6. Since cotton production is the main cash crop in Alabama, much attention must be given to economical production of cotton.

7. Longer and better staple should be grown, since 44 per cent of the crop of 1929 was too short to be tenderable on the market and was sold at a penalty ranging from a fraction of a cent per pound to nearly two cents.

8. More information is needed about the cost of production, prices, acreage, business conditions, and outlook, etc., in order to guide farmers in planning acreage plantings.

9. Among those who spoke were Seth P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture, E. A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau, Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, L. N. Duncan, extension director, John Drakeford, president of the Alabama Bankers Association, Donald Comer, cotton mill owner of Birmingham, J. B. Hobdy, director of vocational education, J. B. Westbrook of the L. & N. R. R., J. C. Adams of the Virginia Carolina Chemical Company, R. J. Goode of Gastonburg, planter and member of the State Board of Agriculture, Congressman M. C. Allgood of Gadsden, and Congressman L. L. Patterson of Alexander City, and Congressman Lever of South Carolina, author of the Smith-Lever act of 1914.

Governor Bibb Graves, who issued the general call, presided at the opening, stated the purpose of the convention and pledged it his earnest support.

The J. Lee Long toll bridge over the Alabama River at Miller's Ferry in Wilcox County was dedicated with appropriate exercises Friday, October 10. The bridge was named in honor of the late J. Lee Long of Greenville, speaker of the house of representatives of the 1927 legislature and author of the act authorizing the construction of fifteen state toll bridges.

R. J. Goode, Jr., of Gastonburg, who served with Mr. Long in the legislature as representative from Wilcox County, presided at the dedicatory exercises. The eulogy on Colonel Long's life and public service was delivered by Thomas J. Judge of Birmingham. The bridge was christened by Miss Fannie Paul Burnett of Greenville, niece of Colonel Long.

The State Bridge Corporation has announced that two other bridges erected by it will be opened to traffic in the near future: the William Wyatt Bibb bridge over the Alabama at Old Claiborne on or about October 19th, and the Raphael Semmes bridge over the Tombigbee at Jackson in Clarke County, in November. Plans are being made for the dedication of the latter bridge November 11th.

NONE TOO OLD TO LEARN

Often one hears an uneducated man bewail his lot, complaining that he never had a chance to acquire an education. Usually such a man is one who actually labors not more than eight hours a day. He overlooks the fact that he could easily devote three or four hours daily to profitable reading and study, whereby he might overcome the handicap of which he complains.

Too many get the idea that unless they acquire an education in early life they must remain in ignorance. No greater mistake can be made. It is not when one begins to learn, but when one stops, that counts.

The trouble with the man or woman who goes through life in ignorance is usually nothing but sheer laziness. Think of Lincoln, getting an education at night from borrowed books, studied by the light from a fireplace. Or of Andrew Johnson who learned to write after he was married, and received an elementary education through his wife's instruction. Yet both rose to the office of President of the United States.

How great the opportunities of even the humblest today, in comparison with those of Lincoln and Johnson. Books, magazines and newspapers are within the reach of all. Machinery has given everyone greater leisure for self-improvement, if such is really desired.

No one need remain uneducated unless he deliberately chooses to remain so.

Mrs. Anna Levenson of St. Paul, was refused a divorce when she told the court that her husband spent all his money going to dances with other women.

E. A. Moser and E. Meyer, brothers-in-law and partners in business in Findley, O., have worked side by side without speaking for 20 years.

A turtle sent George B. Maddocks to jail when he was arrested in Pittsfield, Mass., for crashing into two other machines when the reptile bit him on the leg.

CULLMAN BUREAU LARGEST IN THE UNITED STATES

Alabama farmers now hold the record of having the largest county farm bureau in the United States. A report from the American Farm Bureau Federation, Chicago, Ill., to the Alabama Farm Bureau shows that Cullman County Farm Bureau, with a membership of over 2100, is the largest county bureau in the country. There are many county organizations in about 2,000, but none which surpass that of Cullman County.

TO HAUL WORLD'S FASTEST TRAIN

A "HUDSON TYPE" locomotive, series No. 5700, has been placed in service by the Canadian National Railways to haul the world's fastest train between Chicago and Montreal. To keep its schedule of 360 minutes for the 334 miles of this run between Montreal and Toronto, this locomotive will be required to operate frequently at a rate exceeding 80 miles per hour. This will not call for much effort as the driving wheels of this engine, the largest and speediest in Canada, are 80 inches in diameter. The locomotive with tender has an over-all length of 92 feet, 5 1/2 inches and weighs more than 331 tons. The tender will carry 20 tons of coal and 14,000 Imperial gallons of water. The boiler pressure is 275 pounds and the tractive power, without the booster, is 43,300 pounds. With the booster another 10,000 pounds is added. Beauty in design has been accomplished by the concealment of practically all the pipe above the running board and the polishing of the jacket. Five of these locomotives will be placed in service before the end of October.

The Scrap Book

A HUNDRED YEARS TO COME

By William Goldsmith Brown
Oh, where will be the birds that sing
A hundred years to come?
The flowers that now in beauty spring
A hundred years to come?

The rosy lip, the lofty brow,
The heart that beats so gaily now—
Oh, where will be love's beaming eye,
Joy's pleasant smile, and sorrow's sigh.
A hundred years to come?

Who'll press for gold this crowded planet,
A hundred years to come?

Who'll tread your church with willing feet,
A hundred years to come?

Pale, trembling age, and fiery youth,
And childhood with its brow of truth,
The rich and poor, on land and sea—
Where will the mighty millions be,
A hundred years to come?

We all within our graves shall sleep,
A hundred years to come;
No living soul for us will weep
A hundred years to come;

But other men our lands shall till,
And others then our streets shall fill,
While other birds shall sing as gay,
As bright the sunshine as to-day,
A hundred years to come!

SMALL TOWN, BIG STORE

Another instance of a big store in a small town has come to attention, that of Davy & Company in Evert, Mich., a town of only 1,300 people, but having a trading radius of 30 miles, according to Editor Katliff of the Evert Review.

The Review is 58 years old, the Davy store is 48, and during all these 48 years the store has never failed to have an advertisement in every issue of the newspaper. In that time a record has been kept which shows that the space used by the store would equal 1,359 full pages of the Review, which, by the way, is an exceptional weekly newspaper.

Here, then, is a combination hard to beat—a high class newspaper and an enterprising store that never lets an issue go out without its sales message, whether times are good, bad or indifferent. And such a combination will win almost anywhere, as it has in Evert, where people within a radius of 30 miles have their trading center in a town of 1,300.

Farmers Save Seed To Improve Staple

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 14.—Better cottonseed and improvement of the length of staple as one means of relieving the distressful cotton situation as it now exists are goals of Alabama cotton growers who are saving seed of the D. P. L.-4-8, Cook 307 (wilt resistant), and Cook 1627 varieties.

These varieties produce well and under the drouth conditions of this year have given a staple 7-8 inch and up, reports J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

County agents throughout the State are helping farmers to keep these seed pure and save them for planting. The seed are kept pure by observing gin days. Prior to gin days the machinery is cleaned and cotton of only one of these varieties ginned at a time.

Farmers in 15 counties are expected to save 40,000 bushels of D. P. L.-4-8 variety. This variety has been found by the Auburn experiment station to be one of the leaders in production in north and central Alabama, and it promises to be the leading variety in this sections until a better variety is found and developed.

Cook 1627 is another leader in production, and the staple of this variety meets the requirements of spinners. The Cook 307 wilt-resistant variety is best for south Alabama where wilt occurs.

Because a policeman arrested her for intoxication, Miss Alma Connor of Chicago almost bit off his thumb.

Cotton Prices For One Hundred Years

High And Low Price For Century Shown Below For Whole Country

Below is the cotton market as it has been given for the past 100 years, and gives one a good idea of how cotton has fluctuated. With the price so low as at this time, the table below will furnish extra good reading and study.

This table gives the high and low for the season and is based on the New York market. The price locally would range about one cent a pound lower.

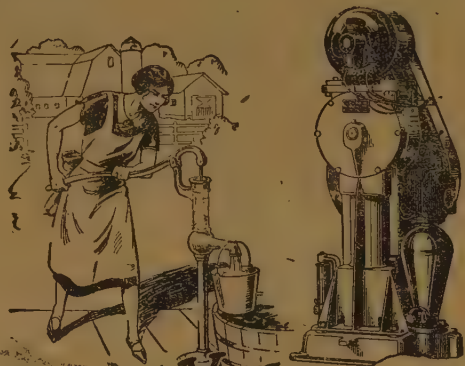

The highest reached, it will be noticed, $1.90 in 1864 and the lowest was five cents in 1843-5 and 1848. The highest price since 1867 was 43 3-4 in 1919 and the lowest 5-5-16 in 1898.

Following is the table:

Year	High	Low

Vote The Straight DEMOCRATIC TICKET On November 4th Save your party from disruption. Make a cross under the rooster and have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done your duty.

A Democratic straight ticket vote on November 4th will refute Republican office-holders of Alabama who declared in the State Republican Convention in Birmingham in August of this year that the election of Heflin, Locke and Powell would split the Democratic party in Alabama for the next fifty years. The Democratic party will triumphantly emerge from the November battle of ballots.

Too Late For Last Week

We were glad to see so many out at Sunday school, Sunday, to take a hand in God's work. We invite every mother and father to come and bring their children, and someone else. It is a serious thought. We should show each one how we should spend our lives in doing God's work. Every member is specially invited to come and help to carry out the plans next Sunday, 12th, that should be carried out. We invite all visitors who will to come and join us.

Three Years Ago

From Issue of October 17, 1927

Mrs. Leonard Williams has returned from a hospital in Montgomery and is doing fine.

A. L. Farley has purchased the Johnson Drug store here, and it will in the future be known as Farley Drug Co.

The Clanton Bakery will have a formal opening on October 26.

Miss Cora Lett became the wife of Mr. William Strock in Verbena at an impressive ceremony last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Downs are visiting in Denver, Colo.

Miss Grace Furr of Clanton was married to Mr. J. L. Butcher of Knoxville, Tenn., recently.

Mrs. Blanche Martin and C. D. Walls were married.

COTTON AFFECTS ALL

Considered offhand, it might appear that the present plight of the cotton farmers affects only themselves, or at most only those portions of the country where cotton is the principal crop.

It requires but a little reflection, however, to understand that when the buying power of the cotton industry is reduced, his ability to absorb the products of industry is likewise curtailed, and the manufacturers of all commodities, wherever located, are correspondingly affected.

The movement to find new uses for cotton, therefore, deserves the support of manufacturers of the North and East, and of the producers of any commodity whatsoever which finds a market in the cotton belt.

It is believed that cotton could be largely used instead of jute, of which we import 700,000,000 pounds a year, in the manufacture of cord, twine, burlap, bagging and the like. Many articles of wearing apparel now made of other material might be satisfactorily fabricated from cotton. Government economists assert that uses for an additional 2,000,000 bales of cotton a year might be found if the public generally would cooperate in the movement.

A greater consumption of cotton will benefit the whole country.

TRIALS SHOW THAT MEAT

CANNING IS PROFITABLE

Because of lack of feed due to the drouth and because some animals are unprofitable, it is expected that many Alabama cattle will be sold for beef this fall. Miss Helen Kennedy, nutrition specialist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, believes that it will be profitable for farm people to can some of these animals. Meat canning, she says, is becoming as popular in many sections as the canning of fruits and vegetables, and in this way a meat supply is conserved for the winter. Meat should be canned only during colder months, she said. The weather should be about the same as chosen for hog killing.

A recent study made by the Extension Service of the A. and M. College of Texas shows that the canning of meat is profitable. A hog weighing 150 pounds on foot was canned into beef paste, sausage, calk sausage, scrapple, rib, and roasts. These canned products, together with the fresh product of sausage, fresh scrapple, fresh ribs, the lard and cracklings, had a total value of $30.00. The cost of the hog on foot, plus the cost of cans and other expenses, amounted to $20.70, leaving a net gain due to canning of $9.30.

A bulletin on the home canning of meats may be had from county home demonstration agents, or from Miss Kennedy at Auburn.

Clanton Grammar School Honor Roll

In order to be on the honor roll a pupil must have A on every subject, no inexcused absences and no tardy marks against him. If he has A and B on all subjects, A on deportment, no unexcused absences, and no tardy marks, he may be on a second honor roll or a special mention list. Following is a list of pupils on honor roll for the first month:

1st Grade: James Duke Heflin, Frances Smith.

2nd Grade: Katherine Ware, Lurline Benson, Mary Wyatt, Berniete Lowe, Billy Callen, James Carl Martin.

3rd Grade: Annie Cordelia Smith, Grace Ezell.

4th Grade: Olive Rainer Elmore, Mildred Maddox, Mae Aniepe Polk, Nell Rockett, Theda Wyatt.

Special Mention List

1st Grade: Ray Coper, Louis Eubanks, Vernon Henley, Wilbur Prince, Clara Marie Cooper, Myrtle Cooper.

2nd Grade: Lorene Boone, Grace Carter, Frances Popwell, Joseph Green.

3rd Grade: Mary Frances Atkinson, T. J. Raspberry, Blanche Thomas, Thomas Pyron, Wyndol Murrah, Kathleen Petty.

5th Grade: Jane Neighbors.

The Fifth Grade had the largest representation at the lunch room on Monday, the day it opened. The lunch room is for the benefit of the child—let your child patronize it! If any money is made it will revert to the lunch room and every child and therefore every citizen of Clanton will benefit by it. The lunch room is solely for the good of the child and those who are particularly interested are very much encouraged with the result of the opening day. Mrs. John Browder has charge of the menu and all parents may be assured that their children are getting careful attention and a well-balanced warm, noon-day meal.

Next week there will be published a list of all children contributing at the dime shower which was given to help promote the lunch room.

Humorettes

A Scotchman found it necessary to notify his wife that he might be home late that evening, in which case he would phone her. This is what he told her:

"I'll ring ye at 6 o'clock. When ye hear the bell ye'll know it's me. Dinna answer it, and I'll get ma nickel back."

"And what did your poet do when you turned him down?"

"Oh, the poor dear threw himself in to the waste-paper basket."

He: Ah, it certainly does seem good to be dancing.

Her: Yes, I suppose there's nothing like the feel of a good toe under your foot again.

Doctor: Did you follow my advice and drink hot water an hour before breakfast.

Patient: I tried to, Doc, honest! But after the first 10 minutes I couldn't get any more down.

Station Master: "The pig can not go in the carriage with you. It must have a special compartment."

Rustic: "Thank you kindly, sir, but there is no need for all that ceremony about my old pig."

Judge: "What brought you here?"

Accused: "Two policemen."

Judge: "I don't mean that—drunk I presume."

Accused: "Both of them."

"How is your husband's lawsuit getting along?"

"He thinks he will either get two months in prison or two months in Palm Beach from it."

"Be careful, Junior. See that you don't hit your fingers with the hammer."

"I han't, mother. Daddy's going to hold the nail for me!"

Dekle-Dial Wedding Took Place Sunday

The marriage of Miss Melna Oneita Dial to Lieut. Geo. L. Dekle, of Athens, Ga., took place here last Sunday evening. This event came as a surprise to the countless friends of the couple.

Mrs. Dekle is the charming and attractive daughter of Mrs. Chloe L. Dial of Clanton and Montgomery. She has been a student at the Chilton County High School, and is a popular member of the younger social set of Clanton.

Lieut. Dekle is a member of the Government R. O. T. C. Unit at the University of Georgia, and is a young man of high standing in his work.

After spending several days in Clanton with the bride's mother, Lieut. and Mrs. Dekle will leave for Athens, Ga., where they will make their home.

Young Ross Held To Grand Jury

Huntsville, Ala., Oct. 14.—Thomas Ross was placed under $5,000 bond to await the next term of the Madison County Grand Jury following preliminary trial here Monday in connection with the slaying of his father, H. E. Ross, the night of September 27.

J. F. Matheny, foreman of the Ross Dry Cleaning Company's plant, who was arrested with the younger Ross about a week ago, was ordered released by Judge Blanton.

A crowded court room heard the state contend that Ross and Matheny rented an automobile the night of the killing that answered the description of a car seen near the house and that young Ross has misstated the amount of his father's insurance, which the state declared to be between $15,000 and $17,000.

Defense witnesses included Mrs. H. E. Ross, who was wounded by the slayer of her husband. She declared the slayer was a big, heavy-set negro and did not agree to the state's suggestion that it might have been a white man blackened. The slayer had negro's hair she said.

She told of the midnight struggle in her home, of the negro breaking from her husband and firing two shots, one of which killed her husband and one of which wounded her.

Other defense witnesses testified Ross and Matheny had been with them at a fair the night of the killing, the time being accounted for up to a few minutes prior to the killing.

G. E. Henderson, negro arrested soon after the slaying and who was protected from a mob by national guardsmen, is still being held in the Decatur jail with no preliminary hearing yet set.

Voters Will Approve Or Reject Health Unit

Department of Health may be in the county also.

It is evident that the services of a Health Unit in Chilton County has never before been more needed than at present, and from indications it will no doubt be needed more in later years. A program is being mapped out by a committee to give extensive publicity on the subject to the voters of this county.

W. G. RASBERRY ENDORSES SAM EDWARDS FOR OFFICE

Following we publish a letter from W. G. Rasberry, widely known citizen of this county, in which he endorses S. M. Edwards in his race for County Commissioner:

Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 14, 1930.
The Editor,
Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama,

Dear sir:

May I find space in your paper for just a few lines? I have a good friend and neighbor, Mr. S. M. Edwards, in the race for Commissioner of our county. He has been my neighbor for thirty-one years without any hard feeling of any kind. Mr. Edwards started out in life on a poor hillside farm to battle the hardships of life. He had a rough road to travel, for a few years.

Mr. Edwards, by taking the right steps in life has been very successful in business. He is a man of good sound judgment. I think he is a man well fitted for the place and believe he is asking for the office for the good service he could give to his fellowman. I believe Mr. Edwards would render service to all the people alike. As this is my first time to write a few words to a paper, I will close.

GRAGG BROTHERS BACK FROM TOUR THRU WESTERN STATES

After an absence of something like four months, Thomas and Vincent Gragg, sons of Dr. V. J. Gragg of this place, have returned to spend a while in Clanton.

While away they made an extended trip through the Western States, and into Mexico. They made the entire trip in their car, and brought back with them some things that are seldom seen in this part of the country, among which were sugar beets, and a fine specimen of the Coyotes that roam the western part of the United States. This animal they brought here is perfectly tame and could possibly be mistaken for an ordinary dog.

MRS. ELIZABETH KELLY DIED AT HER HOME LAST FRIDAY

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Kelley, age 69, died at her home on Billingsley, Route 1 last Friday, October 10. Funeral services were held on the following Saturday morning at eleven o'clock at the Bethel church, with Elders J. W. Howell, A. T. Davis and E. B. Tucker, officiating. Interment took place in the Bethel cemetery with Martin of Clanton in charge.

The deceased was born in Coosa County December 21, 1861, and was before her marriage fifty-two years ago. Miss Elizabeth Rich. She was married to Elder J. S. Kelly of Coosa County, and became a member of the Primitive Baptist Church at Liberty, in Coosa County when very young and later moved to Chilton County, there joining the Bethel church where she has been a faithful member as long as her health permitted.

The deceased is survived by her husband, J. S. Kelly, seven children, Mrs. W. H. Gillespie, Ed Kelly, Marvin Kelly, Mrs. O. B. A. White of Rockford, Mrs. W. W. Stroud of Billingsley, Mrs. H. N. Smith of Coopers, Oscar Kelly of Prattville. Three brothers, Joe Rich, of Houston Texas; Isaiah Rich, Clanton, and John Rich of Deatsville. Thirty-six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Newton Popwell and Maurice Dunlap motored to Birmingham Sunday afternoon.

Harry O. Van Hart, former assistant secretary of the Union Trust Co. of Cleveland, says he is very much alive, although his death has been announced in a nationally known magazine.

MT. PLEASANT JR. HIGH OPENS WITH LARGE ATTENDANCE

On last Wednesday, October 8th, the Mt. Pleasant Junior High School opened with the largest enrollment on record during the history of the school for the opening day. A large number of patrons, as well as friends of the school, were present.

Prof. L. C. Warr, principal of the County High School, and Hon. Percy M. Pitts, prominent lawyer of Clanton, were present and each made a very encouraging and inspirational talk in connection with educational work.

Mr. Pitts' speech centered around the subject of "The Purpose and the Value of an Education." His talk was condensed to a simple and interesting form and every child seemed to understand its full significance.

Prof. Warr's speech seemingly ran parallel to Mr. Pitts' talk, as he touched upon the "True Worth of Regular Attendance," in school. Both speeches were delivered in the most pleasing manner, thus giving the boys and girls a new incentive, a new inspiration to begin the new school year's work.

Hon. and Mrs. J. B. Atkinson and children were called to Vincent, Alabama Sunday night on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Atkinson's mother. They returned Monday.

CLAY MARCUS IS AGENT FOR NOVEL HEATING PAD HERE

Last Tuesday, the News office received a call from Clay Marcus, well known resident of this place, who had a very novel heating pad for which he has secured the agency in this county.

The pad is unlike anything the News force had seen; as it heats when you put water on it, using no matches, electricity, or fire. It comes in a very attractive container and can be carried with a person if desired, and is very expensive. So far, Clay has sold a large number in Clanton, and is continually taking orders, so he stated.

Aubrey Taylor, a student at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, spent the past week end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Taylor.

LOST — Strayed or stolen; medium size white; bob-tailed female dog; brown ears; short hair; name "Dot-sie." Left home Sunday afternoon. Return or information leading to recovery will be liberally rewarded by Mrs. J. C. Wilder, Thorsby.

INTERESTING FACTS GIVEN ON HEALTH UNIT

Information Given Concerning Establishment, Workings Etc. of Dept.

As has been stated, the voters of Chilton County will either reject or approve of having a county health unit operating in this county, in the election to be held on November 4. In order that a thorough understanding can be had by the people of the county, concerning the health unit, the News publishes the following information about it, which is a true statement as taken from a bulletin published by the State Health Department.

Out of the 67 counties in Alabama, 53 of them have health units operating, and those that do not have health units are striving to establish such service. Marion County was the most recent addition to this healthwork, and will have the services of a county health unit beginning within a very short time. The following information will tell what constitutes a health unit, an outline of the program of a county health department, the aims of the county health department, the result that may be expected from the operation of a county health department, and what is required to establish a county health department:

PLAN TO SHIP CARLOAD GOODS TO ORPHANAGE

Unity and Chilton Baptist Organizations Working Together in Undertaking

At the recent meetings of the Unity Baptist Association and the Chilton County Association, resolutions were passed to gather from over the county a carload of goods to be shipped to the Baptist Orphanage at Troy, Ala.

This shipment is scheduled to go forward on November 20th, it was stated, and will be shipped from Clanton. Both Baptist Associations have appointed committees to look after this work, and they are urging that all churches take up the matter and do their part. The goods to be shipped will be composed of anything that can be used at the orphanage, and donations of such goods are to be solicited from the people of the county.

The committee named from the Unity Association is composed of J. Watts Moore, of Clanton and J. Z. Mims of Clanton. The Chilton County Association committee is composed of Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby and S. J. M. Webb.

Anyone wishing any further information concerning the shipping of this charity to the orphanage at Troy is requested to see either of the men named above on the committees who will be glad to give information concerning it, or if unable to see either of these, B. Lawrence stated that he would be glad to explain it.

FEDERAL FARM BOARD SPEAK- ER TO BE HERE OCTOBER 30TH

Announcement has been made to the effect that Jos. O. Thompson, will arrive in Clanton from Tuskegee, Ala., next Thursday, October 30, and is scheduled to speak at the courthouse here that morning at eleven o'clock. Mr. Thompson is connected with the Federal Farm Board at Washington.

In a letter from Mr. Thompson, he stated that in his speech Thursday morning, his main topic would be "How the Federal Farm Board Can Help in the Present Cotton Crisis." This will be a public speaking and all farmers and business men are invited to hear Mr. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Wingard visited their son, Chester, at Georgia Tech, Atlanta, Ga., Sunday.

"When The Battle Is O'er"

(An Editorial)

Upon the broad and fundamental policies of our political parties rests our government. Whether these party principle are good or bad determines the degree of success or failure of the state and nation. No one man can be depended upon to incorporate all the vital principles of a political party within himself. But like the structure of the government itself, many men and many years of conditions of every sort contribute to and at the same time cull out the dross, until an organization is effected which through the soundness of its foundations is fitted to take the reigns of government and carry on the functions of government which a progressive people demand. Party government is not without fault, but not yet has a better way been found to conduct a democracy.

Now, when the political waters of Alabama are being churned into a frenzy, this newspaper pleads with its people to steer to the Democratic port on November 4th. Not unmindful of the many good men and women of our state who sincerely feel that they have just cause for grievance, but because we believe that therein lies the best interest of the State of Alabama.

Though the storm may be turned into a hurricane, and the good Ship Democracy may not be able to weather it, or might be cruelly maimed, there looms on the horizon no successor, and unless we make the port there still remains but chaos. Though insurgent Democrats and Republicans of Alabama wound the Democratic Party unto its death, they have nothing to take its place. This newspaper is opposed to destruction of this kind. It can but lead to anarchy. The insurgent Democrats and Republicans will not be able to form any permanent coalition which can in any measure take the place of the Democratic party. For after all, the ones in the Democratic party who are in revolt are still Democrats at heart and will remain so. They will never be satisfied to form any kind of permanent alliance with the enemies of the Democratic party. The present situation only tends to draw men of one faith apart.

So we believe the future of Alabama politics will be Democratic, as it has heretofore been, and the plea we make is that the Democrats of our state and county think well before they do anything that might be a disabling blow to the one party which is a part of those traditions and fundamental principles which mean so much to the people of this state. For whoever of the Democratic faith, under the stress of present conditions helps to disable the Democratic party in Alabama will be striking a blow at his own party, and "When the battle is o'er" even though he had won, he would still be the loser.

Gov. Bibb Graves Will Speak In County On Health Unit

The Governor Of Alabama Has A Message For The People Of Chilton County That Should Be Heard By The Entire Population

Definite announcement was made last Monday that Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama, will be in Chilton County next Friday, October 24th, for the purpose of speaking to the people on the proposed County Health Department which will be voted on in the election November 4th. The speeches of Governor Graves will not be political speeches, but he will tell the people of this county his views on the county health unit, and of the many advantages of such service.

Governor Graves has expressed himself as hoping that Chilton County would be the next county in Alabama to inaugurate the services of a county health department. On Friday morning at eleven o'clock, he will speak in the auditorium of the Jemison High School, at Jemison, Alabama. On Friday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock he will speak in the auditorium of the Maplesville High School, and Friday night at seven o'clock, he will deliver his message at the courthouse in Clanton.

It is being strongly urged that the people of Chilton County make it a point to hear Governor Graves at one of these places, and get his vital message on the county health unit, proposed for Chilton County.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lett were pleasant callers at the News office Monday

A special program has been arranged for the Young Men's Sunday School class of the Clanton Baptist church next Sunday morning, October 26. Rev. E. A. Childs, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church has consented to address the class on that morning.

Plans have been made to have a one hundred per cent attendance of the class if possible to hear the Rev. Childs who has a special message for the young men. All young men are invited to be present Sunday morning in the Young Men's Class which meets promptly at nine forty-five o'clock in the auditorium of the church. Ushers will be on duty at the doors to direct visitors to the class room.

MR. LANDE PLEASED WITH THE RESPONSE GIVEN TO HIS SALE

For the past several weeks, the Leader, the large and progressive dry goods store operated by Mr. M. Lande here, has been running large ads in the News, telling the people of this section of the many bargains they are offering. Again this week, The Leader has another message for those who wish to save money by taking advantage of its bargains, and the large ad, headed "Sale of Sales" is putting forth its message to the people. See the new bargains Mr. Lande is offering to his customers, by reading the ad in this issue.

BOARD OF EDUCATION WILL MEET ON OCTOBER 30TH

The Chilton County Board of Education will meet in the office of the County Superintendent on Friday, October 30.

Frank Thomas, of Gadsden, was in Clanton the past week end visiting his sister, Mrs. W. D. Spigener, and his brother, C. D. Thomas. He returned to Gadsden Monday, accompanied by Mrs. Spigener who will spend several days there.

coached by one of the producers most competent representatives, Miss Helen Sparrow. "Miss Blue Bonnet" was staged at the Maplesville school auditorium recently and judging from reports it met with unanimous approval of all those who were fortunate enough to witness its presentation. Miss Sparrow has been untiring in her efforts to make the presentation at Clanton one of the best, and those who will arrive to see this highly entertaining musical comedy are assured a fun evening, extremely fine entertainment, and should bear in mind that the play is being put on by the local P.-T. BILLINGSLEY MAN RISES IN DEFENSE OF HEFLIN

October 20, 1930.

"Some of the newspapers amuse me very much when I read their efforts to prove to the people that Senator Heflin should be defeated because he worked against Al Smith when he was candidate for President. They claim Heflin betrayed his party when he worked against the Democratic Nominee. However, the very next breath they tell the voters they are excused for working against the Tammany-Catholic Candidate of 1928, because he was an inferior Nominee, but now because there is no Catholic running for office in our state we should vote the straight Miller and Bankhead ticket. A plain contradiction! They tell the voters it is all right for them to go on record against Al Smith, but because Heflin worked against the Democratic Nominee he should be kicked out of his party and get defeated. Since they openly confess that the voters did right when they worked against the 1928 Presidential Candidate, we know the charge against Heflin is without foundation and that he helped his party when he worked against Smith.

"The Montgomery Advertiser and other newspapers who are working for the Miller ticket, claim they are doing so for the preservation of the Democratic party. This same paper advocated Al Smith for the Democratic Nominee before the Delegates ever met at the Houston convention. Grandma evidently knew then that it would be impossible for Smith to be elected. If the Advertiser wanted party harmony, why did she advocate nominating a Catholic which she must have known in advance that he could not be elected? With the fact that forty states gave Smith the most decisive defeat ever given a Presidential Nominee. The Advertiser will have to admit that she was awful ignorant if she did not know in advance that Al Smith could not be elected. People everywhere expressed the general belief that he could not be elected. In an issue of The Birmingham News for June, 1924, just before the nomination of John W. Davis, that paper is quoted by a widely circulated paper as writing this: If Smith is named he will be knifed in the doubtful states not only by the resentful and disappointed McAdoo strength, but by a great host of Democrats who are one day in their political alignment, and who are everlastingly committed to the "unwritten law" which has obtained since the creation of this country, that the Chief Magistrate must be Protestant. Therefore, The Birmingham News and The Advertiser evidently knew Al Smith could not be elected. Since they must have known their Nominee could not be elected The Advertiser must have worked before and after the Houston convention in an effort to destroy the party instead of working for harmony as they would have the people believe.

"When the Democratic Executive Committee denied Senator Heflin and others the right to run for office in their party, I believe they finished an old job that started before Al Smith was nominated. In an editorial of The Advertiser for May 20, 1928 you will find this: It is as we say, clear that the Alabama Senator has alienated himself from his party, and doubtless but for the extreme kindness or lack of nerve on the part of his Democratic colleagues in the Senate they would go into caucus and read him out of the party. According to the above statement of The Advertiser which was made before Smith was nominated, that paper seemed to want Heflin voted out of his party before he even had an opportunity to work against the 1928 Nominee. If the Democratic Executive Committee voted Heflin out of the party because he worked against the Democratic Nominee, why was strange influences working against him before the selection of their Nominee? Roman Catholics from Boston communicated with a member of the Senate in an effort to have them read Heflin out of his party. They read Governor Graves in an effort to have Heflin put out of his party. I believe money from the Catholics was the final cause of the Democratic Executive Committee's action against Heflin and others. I don't believe they voted him out of his party because he worked against Smith. They evidently voted him out of the party because he was fighting to keep the rules of Catholicism from being inflicted upon our country.

"If we keep Heflin in office we will continue to receive the services for the farmer and the laborer. We will be guided by one who is opposed to foreigners flooding the country and getting our jobs while Americans have to do without. Heflin is against social equality and many other evils destructive to the people. What is Bankhead interested in? I am told he was educated in a Catholic university and as we know, he is a millionaire attorney for the Alabama Power Co. and other wealthy interests destructive to the common people. According to reliable information Bankhead struck three white men off the jury list and placed a negro in their place. If you want one for the Senate who seems to be in favor of social equality and if you want to help the wealthy interests, vote for Bankhead. If you want white supremacy and want to help the common people vote for Senator Heflin.

Billingsley, Ala."

TELEGRAMS CAN BE SENT FROM TEXACO STATIONS

A contract permitting transmission of telegrams from gasoline service stations in all of the forty eight states has been signed between the Texas Company and the Western Union Telegraph Company, according to a joint announcement from the two companies today.

W. S. S. Rodgers, vice president of the Texas Company, said the arrangement will bring all the service stations of his company into the plan by which the Western Union has been accepting messages by telephone. The Western Union explained that the messages will be sent to the nearest of its 26,000 offices, and from there relayed by wire to their destinations.

Under this arrangement The Texas Company makes it possible, Mr. Rodgers said, for the automobilist to be connected directly with the telegraph company from any link in the largest chain of gasoline stations in the world. This direct communication, he pointed out, reduces the time of transmission of telegrams and assures greater accuracy and service. Stations will carry a sign familiarizing the motoring public with the fact that Western Union telegrams may be sent from those points.

Under this plan, which becomes effective immediately, thousands of highway points throughout the country will be linked with the Western Union system. Immediate transmission of messages is now assured from points which previously had no telegraphic contact with other cities.

MAIN STREET LOCKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York—Motoring through Huntington or Southampton, noting the names of the palatial estates that sprawl at the ocean's edge, is like turning the pages of the Saturday Evening Post.

Every resident bears some name that has screamed at you from the front pages. Calling them over sounds like a Blue Book of American business and industry.

Many of these summer homes include among their routine equipment speedboats, yachts, seaplanes, and as many as ten automobiles.

Wasted Enthusiasm

In company with a seasoned New Yorker, I was taking a peek at a particularly swank estate near Huntington. We drove inside the gates and stopped before a large white house on a hoble elevation, stately with rambling porch and tall white columns.

It at once burst into gasps of admiration. Whereupon my companion, with mingled amusement and disgust, informed me that I was wasting my eloquence upon one of the tenant houses! The manor house was further up the hill.

The administration of such an estate is a business of no mean proportions, calling for a young army of skillful servants. And these are no ordinary servants either. If you aren't careful one of them will check you up on your pronunciation.

I talked to one chauffeur who was a college graduate, and gifted with a fine vocabulary and manners to rank with best. Many a chauffeur lives in a home—always located on the estate—that would make an eminently respectable dwelling for any small town.

The most amazing of all the estates that I was privileged to peep at was that of Marshall Field, the celebrated merchant prince. This establishment was a community in itself.

One Man's Village

In addition to the "Big House," set far back amid vast acres of woodland, lawns and shrubbery, there were any number of tenant houses, garages, and enough roadways to lose any unwary motorist.

There were, besides, a school conducted solely for the children of tenants, a private movie for the proprietors of the estate, and an immense dairy. The latter is conducted because of the family's fondness for raising blooded dairy cattle, but the products are sold at regular commercial rates to the surrounding countryside.

If you are a stickler for the Latest Whoop in everything pertaining to the home, you must now have a made-to-order radio.

Out on Long Island the rage is slowly spreading. A young radio engineer has started the practice of equipping homes with special radios built to accommodate the architecture and acoustics of each particular home.

One such instrument that he installed was sold for $6,000. Harry Payne Whitney saw it and is said to have liked it so well that he ordered two—one for his New York residence and another for his summer home in North Carolina—each to cost between $7,000 and $8,000.

Making Life Easy

I really can't figure out what we're coming to. Science and invention seem determined to take so much of the effort out of life that there won't be anything interesting left to do—except meet the installment payments.

Here while I wasn't looking they have put on the market a new doodad for automobiles that clings to the dash and not only holds your cigarettes but also lights them, one by one, and throws them at you. Everything but rock the baby.

Sign on bridge: "Positively no vehicle shall be permitted to remain standing on this bridge at any time."

ALABAMA DROUTH SUFFERERS WILL COOPERATE WITH LOCAL AUTHORITIES

Alabama will proceed in an orderly systematic way to handle needy cases in the drouth stricken counties, according to a statement issued by Commissioner of Agriculture, Seth P. Storrs who is chairman of the state drouth committee.

First: There was the appointment of a central committee with Mr. Storrs as chairman, together with F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, E. A. O'Neal, Dr. L. N. Duncan and Mrs. A. H. Tunstall.

Second: This committee appointed a central committee in each drouth stricken county, 39 in all, whose duty it is to survey conditions, and report to the state committee. The county committee is as follows: Judge of Probate, superintendent of education, county farm agent, home demonstration officer, child welfare worker, health officer, one banker, President farm bureau and Red Cross Chairman.

Third: The above committee, will proceed in an orderly systematic manner to survey the families needing help, between harvest and beginning of crop time next year.

Fourth: Every needy family will be considered with regards to its ability to secure regular or emergency employment, food and supplies needed. The amount of credit needed, to finance the coming crop will be considered with reference to ability of local communities to supply credit.

Fifth: The county survey will not be a general observation of a hit and miss basis, but every county committee will investigate each case separately and report on the definite needs in writing.

Sixth: The committee may designate local workers to assist in the project. The district extension agent from Auburn, will visit each county and confer with county committees, the probate judge of each county being chairman.

State Chairman Storrs suggested that the committees start to work immediately, form committees and write to him for any information possible.

Detailed suggestions have been mailed to each committee.

In his report on the condition in Alabama, the Commissioner said:

"We are accustomed to hearing of starving China or the Far East. People do not starve in the United States, least of all in Alabama. Our government, and our ideas of humane Christian treatment of our unfortunates are in line with the principles of Good Samaritanism and too far advanced for us to permit any avoidance of our plain duty to our unfortunate citizens."

"This is a growing calamity that has befallen us. It will grow keener as the days grow shorter and the cold pinches harder. We must remember that the greatest duty is the one that lies nearest to our doors. Today, Alabama, giving the distress cry to its own. When the time comes, each county will be organized with a general state organization and able to care for its own."

Mrs. J. D. Inman of Memphis reports the hatching of a four-legged chicken, which is perfectly formed but walks on only two of his underpinnings.

Marius Saccis of Passaic, N. J., prolonged his conversation with his girl so long in a drug store telephone booth that the druggist forgot he was in there and locked him in.

Major Jeffers Takes Up the Fight Where His Noted Father Left Off

The Anniston Star shows up straightforward fight being carried on by Major Lamar Jeffers, Congressman from this district, which is termed a prolongation of the fight made by his father, the late Captain Henry Jeffers, many years ago in the behalf of the Democratic Party. The Anniston Star has the following to say about Major Jeffers. This editorial appeared in the Star, Sunday, October 19:

There is somewhat of natural sequence in the fact that Major Lamar Jeffers, Congressman from this District, is having to do battle this year against a Republican-Independent candidate that has been put in the field by the opposition to the Democratic Party. His father, a distinguished Confederate soldier who now lies buried in Hillside Cemetery, gave without stint of his energies and his brains in the fight to rid Alabama and the South of carpetbag rule after the War between the States, and the fight that the son is now called upon to make in behalf of the Democratic Party, the conservator of the best traditions of the South, is merely a prolongation of the fight that was waged many years ago by the late Captain William Henry Jeffers.

It is of interest, too, to note that in this fight Major Jeffers is representative of that same patriotism that characterized his distinguished father. He bears the wounds of the World War on his face and body and has been decorated by his government for bravery and distinguished service. More recently he was elevated to the vice-presidency of the Fida, that organization of veterans of all the allied nations, whose object is to prevent another such conflagration as that which enveloped the world in 1914. His opponent, on the other hand, although a young man of military age at the time the war broke out between the United States and Germany, is not known to have any service record whatsoever; and by his alignment with the Republican Party he is giving comfort to those who have long been the enemies of the South.

If Major Jeffers had done no more than serve his country with valor in a time of national peril, he would be entitled to the unanimous support of his constituency against his present opponent. That service has given him great prestige at Washington and is becoming of more worth every year as the veterans of the late war enter the Congress and the departments at Washington; for it is a well-known fact that there is no fraternity of men that sticks closer together than that fraternity of men who have faced shot and shell together.

But Major Jeffers has done far more than merely serve his country in time of war. As a Congressman he has been attentive to his duties and has accomplished as much for his district as reasonably could be expected of a Southern Representative when the Republicans are in power. The prospects are that this year the Democrats will regain control of the House and Senate and in that event he will be even more valuable to his constituency so that it would be suicidal for us at this time to turn him down for one who has no legislative experience whatsoever. The Anniston Star, however, has no fear of his reelection. There are enough ex-soldiers and enough fathers and mothers in the district who had sons in the service to assure that he will be returned to his post of duty by such a majority that his seat will never be endangered so long as he does his duty by the constituency to whom he is accountable.

One Change For The Better

There are many who believe that any change in manners and customs must be a change for the worse. There are others especially among the young folks, who eagerly welcome any change, regardless of its origin or its merits. Everybody realizes that social, economic and normal conditions have changed greatly all over the United States in the period dating from the beginning of the war. Doubtless some of the changes are improvements as certainly some of them seem to the thoughtful as recessions from older standards.

One change, however, seems to us definitely for the better. That is the change in the attitude to each other of city people and country people. Country folks no longer regard all city people as stuck-up snobs, nor do city people think of the folks who live in small towns as uncouth bumpkins. The reason for this is that city and country people today dress alike, have the same standards of schooling, eat the same sort of things, ride in the same kind of cars over the same good roads, see the same movies, hear the same things over the radio, read the same magazines and books, and so are beginning to act alike, for the first time since rivalry between rural and urban points of view began.

We believe that is a good thing. We believe that we shall never become a completely unified nation until all sectional differences and prejudices have been wiped out. And if that means modifying old standards, then let us modify them.

"ROUND TOWN"

--by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

As I said once before, when I started writing this column, I said to myself that I would not dabble in politics, but things are beginning to pop-off, blow-up, squirm and twist so much lately that I guess I'll just have to dabble just a little bit before the big guns are fired on November 4. Folks are saying so many things and leaving an opening for a darn good argument too. First thing I know some people will mistake this little increase in business which is slightly evident lately for that much promised, and long looked for Hoover Prosperity, but folk's there's no use in trying to fool yourself. The farmers round here are just spending what little money they have made from those enormous cotton prices they got this season. Here is a thought that has been in my mind for ever so long, at least since Mr. Hoover, (who as course everybody knows is our Republican President of the United States, a group of states which includes Alabama, a state that includes the County of Chilton) took his first sittin' down in the President's chair in Washington--Before he was elected, his and his supporters cry was, "Hoover and Prosperity," which meant that when Mr. Hoover became president everybody would have a good job, plenty to eat, well, it meant that we would live in a period of prosperous times. Well, I've been looking for those prosperous times ever since. I even ask anybody from other states I see, if those times are in their state and they answer, "No." The Bible says "Seek and you shall find," but I've been seeking and seeking just like everybody else has, and I haven't found prosperity, and the Republicans have had two years to live up to their promise, and I frankly believe that old saying that, "Promises are made to be broken," more than ever now.

And as I go on thinking about what the Republican administration has promised this thought strikes me as being pretty good--"The present economic depression may not have been due to Republican inefficiency, but why does not the Republican party demonstrate its boasted ability to provide prosperity by bringing it about?"

That is something to think about, ain't it. Folks ought not to talk about doing things before they do them, especially making promises. They ought to do them and then boast about it. First thing the Republicans know, the people will begin to believe that they are about to be among those things becoming extinct, and I guess they are, especially in our good old Southern State of Alabama. Some of you folks who are kind of in sympathy with the Republican Party in Chilton County just oughta go down in South Alabama, and see what folks there think about a person who says he is a Republican. I would tell you here, but I just hate to say it, because some folks round here might feel ashamed and a little hurt by it. Now, you remember what I said about giving folks round these parts little friendly tips, well, that's one I'm giving to anyone that the cap will fit this week.

If Hoover Prosperity means folks having to trudge up and down the highways, broke, nothing to eat, very few clothes, children starving cause their daddies are out of work, an unlimited number of people becoming beggars. If it means that the farmers, the backbone of the country will have to live like beggars, their children always undernourished, half starved, getting history's lowest prices for their products, then I don't care for that wonderful Hoover Prosperity that the Republicans were using as their battle cry of freedom. The only freedom that meant is the freedom a fellow has when he is put out of work and made to roam the road looking for a job. It makes me prouder than ever that I am a Democrat, and I'll bet there's lots of others who wish they were Democrats. Well, it is often said that wise men change their minds--and the road to the ranks of the Democratic Party in Chilton County is open to everyone. The more the merrier, you know.

Did you ever stop to think about there are only a very, very few Republican counties in this state? Well, our own county of Chilton is one of those few shadowy spots on a clear horizon, and we just got to clear it of that shadow, and see how we like it that way for awhile. One time when we had a Democratic President up in Washington, business was rushing, cotton prices were good, and things were stepping along nicely. Let's start in Chilton County and do our part to make things look Democratic and prosperous. Remember the saying about little drops of water, well, just stick your Democratic ballot in the box on November 4th, and we will ride on to victory. To the victor belongs the spoils, so they say, and I guess our Democratic candidates on the county ticket will just take the spoils and make something out of them after all.

Glance over the Democratic nominees in the column on the left and keep them in mind, and also keep in mind that they are citizens of our county who have the interest of the county at heart and really want to serve the people in a manner that will be beyond any type of suspicion. Here's the thing, summed up as I see it--the Democrats of Chilton County are a class of people who are friendly. They don't let any little old prejudices interfere with friendship, so I can't for the like of me see why all the people here can't be Democrats, and get in line with the rest of the people of this great State of ours. I really think that the most of them are Democrats, but just like to be a little different, whether it helps them any or not. Well, it's like the monkey said when he backed up to the lawn mower--it won't be long now.

ESKIMOS

Traders returning from the Hudson's Bay company of Eskimo families whose incomes in actual money run up to $40,000 a year, which they earn by trapping the rare white fox for its fur. These Eskimos, like all other uncultured people who come into possession of sudden wealth, have no idea of the value of money. They spend their incomes on airplane journeys, commercial aviators having discovered that there is easy money in flying up to Herschel Island, in the Arctic ocean, where these Eskimos live, and charging them $375 for a flight to Edmonton. They pay $300 a ton for coal with which to heat their igloos, buy the most expensive radio sets, and arouse the envy of their less fortunate neighbors.

Some moralists are inclined to criticize these Eskimos for their lack of thrift, but it seems to me as if they were getting more out of life than many persons who save their pennies. I deny themselves anything in the way of luxury.

WINE

It is not illegal, the Director of Prohibition declares, to make wine or beer one's own home for one's own use. The law does not prohibit the making of beverages which are not "intoxicating in fact," but prohibits their sale. It does not take a very long memory to recall the time when the domestic manufacture of wine for home use was a part of the year's regular routine in a large proportion of farm and small home. Elderberry wine, dandelion wine and wine from other fruits and ingredients shared honors with the grape. And our grandmothers always took pains to see that there was a supply on hand of "blackberry cord," which was supposed to have sovereign value in digestive disturbances. Probably blackberry cord would come under the prohibition ban today, for it certainly was "intoxicating in fact." But one needed a capacity far beyond the ordinary to consume enough of the old-fashioned home-made wines to become intoxicated by them.

ST. BERNARD

In ordering Italian border guards to fire on the monks of St. Bernard when they crossed the Italian border to rescue some snowbound travelers, the Fascist government outraged the humane sensibilities of the whole world. The hospice and monastery of St. Bernard, founded in the year 926 by Bernard de Menthon, is more than a Swiss institution; it is enshrined in the heart of the whole Christian world.

Who has not heard of the men who go to live in the caves of the Alps, as the monks have done for a thousand years? Situated 8,120 feet above sea level, at the summit of the oldest-traveled pass across the Alps, the Hospice is a refuge for travellers--though motorists are not especially welcome--and the home of the famous St. Bernard dogs. These great creatures, standing three feet tall, are a breed especially developed by the monks, with thick hair to withstand the cold, keen noses to sniff stray travellers caught in the snowstorms, and great strength to drag them to safety or run swiftly for aid.

More than 20,000 persons every year spend the night at the Hospice! No charge is made, but everybody is supposed to contribute the price of a night's lodging to the little church there.

HELIUM

Instead of being a rare gas, obtainable only at a high cost, as it was a few years ago, helium, the lightest of all the elements except hydrogen, is now obtained in practically unlimited quantities from the Government-owned gas wells in Texas and Oklahoma.

A movement has been started to induce the President and the Secretaries of War and of the Navy to permit the exportation of helium gas for use in commercial airships in other countries. Nothing could do more to aid in the development of dirigibles, and such an action on the part of our officials would go far toward better international relations. But the probabilities are that the advocates of war and the timorous ones who think the rest of the world is lying in wait to seize upon the United States, will make vigorous protest against letting any other nation have something which might be used in making war upon us.

HEAT

The newest vision of science is a substance which will take the place of steam for heating purposes. Diphenyl, a substance obtained from benzene, is said by the American Institute of Chemical Engineers to be much better for this purpose. It is a solid which melts at a temperature of 157 degrees and vaporizes at 492 degrees. Diphenyl would have boiler and pipes full of this solid, which would gradually become liquid as the fire was started, and would circulate through pipes and radiators like water. It holds heat better than steam, and is said to give off more of the heat from the boiler furnace, than steam does.

RESIDENT OF TITUS KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Mother Of Mrs. D. C. Alred of Clanton Succumbs To Injuries Received Sunday

Mrs. J. E. Guy, age 61, died Sunday afternoon, shortly after receiving injuries in an automobile accident which occurred near Calera, Alabama, and son, Henry, received injuries, when the car in which they were riding collided with a culvert guard rail on the Birmingham highway. E. E. Middleton was also in the car was slightly injured.

According to the story received by News, Henry Guy and Middleton had been in Coosa County spending several days and were on their way back to Birmingham, carrying Mr. Guy who was to visit her, son there. The party stopped in Clanton Sunday afternoon. Witnesses said that apparently Henry Guy lost control of the car as he rounded a curve and the car crashed into the abutment. The deceased is the mother of Mrs. C. Alred of Clanton and a sister-in-law of George T. Guy of Mountain Creek, prominent residents of Chilton County. The body was brought to Clanton where it was prepared for burial by J. Mell Martin, undertaker. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, with the Rev. Ernest A. Hays of Clanton and the Rev. Homer Wetumpka, officiating. Interment followed in the Providence Cemetery near Titus in Coosa County with J. Mell Martin, Clanton undertaker, in charge.

Surviving Mrs. Guy are her husband, Joseph E. Guy, Sr., of Titus; eight sons, W. E., L. D., J. M., and Reddie A., of Montgomery; Henry C. of Birmingham; Joseph E., of Wetumpka and M. A. of Ashwood, Texas; and two daughters, Mrs. A. Pierce of Titus, and Mrs. D. C. Alred of Clanton.

Reddie A. Guy, a son of Montgomery, is secretary for the State Law enforcement Department.

CHILTON MISSIONARY BAPTIST ASSOCIATION ENDORSES UNIT

At the annual meeting of the Chilton County Missionary Baptist Association, held recently at Isabella, west of Clanton, the association introduced and adopted a resolution heartily endorsing and recommending the proposed County Health Unit, of Department for Chilton County, which will go before the voters of this county on November 4th, to be approved or rejected. Following is a true copy of the resolution passed at the meeting of the association:

"In view of the fact that Alabama has the best health system in the world; and

"Whereas the benefits of this system are extended through County Health units; and

"Whereas for the past few years there has been an increasing number of dreaded cases of diphtheria and infantile paralysis in the County; and

"Whereas these diseases can be practically eliminated through the health units; and

"Whereas the County has sufficient funds to establish such a unit in Chilton County without an increase in taxes;

BE IT RESOLVED The Chilton County Missionary Baptist Association that this body endorse the movement to establish a health unit in Chilton County and that a copy of this resolution be published in each of our county papers.

Junior Beauty Revue Last Friday Night

The Junior Beauty Revue, which was put on at the Wadesonian Theatre here last Friday night, brought forth the prettiest little girls in Clanton to vie for the honor of the title "Little Miss Clanton" and the one who received a pretty little diamond ring.

The revue was staged immediately after the picture and a general boost of why you should trade with local merchants was given by Mr. M. Kelvin, who was here putting on this revue. Each little girl who was to enter the revue was led across the stage. Each little girl also represented a business establishment of Clanton, many wearing a banner showing who they represented.

Out-of-town persons served as judges to pick the prettiest little girl in the group. After each little girl had been presented and a talk was made concerning the establishment she represented, the judges called six of them back on the stage to select the first prize winner and the second. The little lady representing the Chicago Sales Company was picked by the judges as the prettiest little girl in the group, presented with the diamond ring and given the title of Little Miss Clanton. She is Marie Aldridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Aldridge.

The concerns of Clanton and the little girls representing them were as follows:

DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe, Joan Atkinson and Doris DeLoach; Chilton County News, Pearl Henley; The Leader, Gwendolyn Atkinson; Western Union, Jean Mullins; Clanton Cash Store, Lois Rockett; Clanton Drug Company, Martha Higgins; Sample Shoe Store, Inez Wyatt; Dixie Barber Shop, Ruby Tippet; James Sign Shop, Frances Bean.

Clanton Grammar School, Frances Smith; Central Alabama Hospital, Lois Cotton; Chicago Sales Company, Marie Aldridge; Clanton Motors, Sarah Nell Sessions; W. W. Fox Furniture Store, Essie White; Clanton Cafe, Mary Helen Maddox; Parrish Fruit Store, Mary Marjorie Maddox; C. E. Hornsby Co., Bootsie Harper; Nehi Bottling Co., Anne Callen; Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Co., Warrina Wingard.

"Little Miss Lois Rockett, representing the Clanton Cash Store was chosen by the judges for the second award, which was a surprise package. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rockett. Those who served as judges in this revue were from Oklahoma City and Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

Those contestants who received special mention by the judges, and called back on the stage were Miss Pearl Henley, representing the Chilton County News; Gwendolyn Atkinson, representing The Leader; Martha Higgins, representing the Clanton Drug Company; Mary Helen Maddox, representing the Clanton Cafe.

Howard R. Oden Has Message For Voters

Howard R. Oden, Democratic nominee from this county for Representative in the State Legislature writes a letter to the voters of the county asking for their support. The News publishes Mr. Oden's letter as follows: Fellow Voters of Chilton County:

Since I have so many friends in Chilton County who know that I stand four-square for things that are right, I hardly feel it necessary for me to give you my views concerning legislation. However, I want to assure you that it will be my privilege and pleasure to use my efforts and my influence to such measures as the people of Chilton County might want.

We have problems today that we never dreamed of. I have studied them for twenty years and believe that we need to use more and better judgment in the legislative halls of our great State of Alabama.

The next legislature should not concern themselves so much about new laws. My views on this matter pertaining to legislation is to modify our present laws in such a way that they may be better kept.

It has been my desire to do progressive farmign and it makes no difference what I take a part in I try to carry it out in a progressive way. Laws made should serve the purpose for which they are intended, and unless they are made in such a way that they can be kept then they, the laws, fail to bring about the desired progress.

Again, if I should be your choice, I promise you my best judgment on legislative measures. I wanted to see many of you personally before the election, but having my farm work to look after makes it impossible to do so.

Thanking you for your vote and influence on Nov. 4th, I am,

Sincerely your friend,
H. R. ODEN.

Concord-Billingsley

We had a nice time at the box supper last Saturday night. It seems that everybody enjoyed themselves and so far as the financial part is concerned, we did as well as could be expected under the conditions.

Last Sunday was our preaching day. Our pastor delivered two wonderful sermons, Sunday morning and Sunday night. This was his last appointment during this conference year, but hope that we will have the pleasure of having him for our pastor during the next year. We are glad to know that the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones who has been sick for the past two weeks is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Atchison returned to their home in Ensley after spending the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones.

Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Limbrick took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Lawrence Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Williams and family of Sardis community, and Mrs. E. A. McLain and children of Adams visited Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams and family Sunday.

Misses Gladys and Jewel Culver spent Saturday night with their aunt, Mrs. Fonza Williams.

Mrs. Dorothy Chastine gave her husband a surprise birthday supper in honor of his twenty-ninth birthday. A few close friends were invited and they had a real enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Fonza Williams visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Greer Culver, Sunday.

There will be Sunday school and regular preaching day at New Salem Sunday. Also B. Y. P. U. at six o'clock. Everybody has an invitation to attend these services.

Edgar Huett who has been sick for about five weeks is improving nicely.

Date Nearing For The Fair At Isabella School

As has been announced, Friday, October 31, has been set as the day when all of the Isabella Community will be in its best at the big Community Fair to be held at the Isabella school the entire day.

This is an annual event at this progressive community of Chilton County, and it is stated that the fair this year is undoubtedly to be bigger and better. There will be agricultural exhibits, home economics exhibits, and many others that will be worth the drive to the Isabella school. The public is invited to attend this community fair. There is always plenty of real food served at these fairs, too.

BOX SUPPER AT COUNTY LINE SCHOOL NIGHT OF OCTOBER 24

Announcement has been made that there will be a box supper at the County Line School, eight miles west of Maplesville, on Friday night, October 24th.

The program includes a full variety of readings, games, and stunts of various kinds, and if you attend this box supper, you will be assured of an evening of good entertainment. Proceeds from this entertainment will go toward paying for repairs on the school building.

JUDGE LEON McCORD SPOKE TO VOTERS HERE SATURDAY

A large crowd was present at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon to hear Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery speak in the interest of the Democratic Party.

Judging from reports received, and comments from those who heard Judge McCord, his speech was a masterpiece coming from one of Alabama's most widely known and ablest writers, jurist, and statesman.

HAVE YOU A "COOKING COMPLEX"? CURE IT WITH THESE—

If you're bored to tears with the "three squares" a day, if the family has elevated its finicky nose at some of your pet concoctions, or if the whole meal question has given you a complex against cooking—what you need is variety! Something new and special, something with that "different" touch, something so interesting to make it will give you a chance to rival Edison with your inventive skill in your own kitchen laboratory.

A successful painter constantly creates new pictures, a singer learns new songs, and the poet seeks new subjects—who can call cooking a lesser art? The kitchen wizard who would keep her own talent fresh and bright as a new cake pan will create new dishes, too, at least one a week.

It needn't be difficult, not in this age of the package and the can, this era of the easy way, not if you follow your chosen tested recipes with care. Pin on a bright gaudy apron, take out your newest utensils, fetch forth your manual of directions, and serve on your "Sunday-best" dishes, a new dish that will lower the family's nose and send your own complex flying like so much flour in the wind.

Here are some tested recipes which will help give you a head start of that rut:

Biscuit Tortoni

(French Whipped Ice Cream)

1 cup light corn syrup ½ tsp. gelatine
3 egg yolks 1 cup heavy cream
Few grains salt ½ cup macaroon
½ teaspoon vanilla crumbs

Beat the egg yolks light and add to the corn syrup, Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens—about five minutes. Add the gelatine soaked five minutes in water to cover. When cool, flavor, add salt, beat into the cream, whipped, and, transfer to little paper cases. Dust the tops thickly with the macaroon crumbs and put in a cold place to become firm. If possible, pack in an ice cream freezer, using equal parts of ice and salt, and put pieces of cardboard between the layers to keep the cases separate, or put in freezing compartment of automatic refrigerator.

The macaroons called for in the preceding recipe are a delight in themselves! Use the fresh-keeping cocanaut for this recipe, and only ten minutes of your time.

Macaroons Francaise

2 egg whites ¼ lb. pkg. or can of ¼ teaspoon salt cocanaut (1 1-3
¼ tsp. of vanilla cups)
3-4 cup gran. sugar

Beat the egg whites stiff but not dry. Add the salt. Beat in the sugar one-fourth cup at a time. Add the vanilla and fold in the cocanaut. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls of the mixture one inch apart on a baking sheet or inverted pan which has been well greased with unsalted fat or cooking oil. Bake in a slow oven (275 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. For Chocolate Macaroons, melt one square chocolate and add to recipe. 30 macaroons.

Instead of soup or fruit cup for that first course, go Continental:

Sherry Mushroom Canapes

6 mushroom caps pepper
2 tblsp. corn oil 1 tablespoon sherry
2 tblsp. cornstarch 1 flavoring
¼ teaspoon salt 6 rounds French
¼ cup cream Toast
¼ cup mushroom 2 hard boiled eggs stock Parsley

Soak mushroom caps in oil five minutes and remove from pan. To oil in pan, stir in cornstarch, salt and pepper. Add cream and mushroom stock made by cooking stems with water until tender. Add sherry, flavoring. On each round of French Toast place a slice of hot hard boiled egg and a mushroom cap. Garnish with sauce and parsley or strips of pimiento and serve as a first course canape.

For a dessert that's real fun to make try this modern version of "heavenly hash":

Date Ice Box Cake

2 cups (1 pkg.) dates ½ lb. graham crackers
(cut) (rolled)
¼ cup milk ½ cup nut meats

¼ teaspoon salt (cut)
1 teaspoon vanilla 2 cups (½ lb.) marsh-
½ pint cream mallow (cut)
(whipped)

Crush the graham crackers with a rolling pin. Cut the dates and marshmallows into small pieces with wet scissors. To the cut dates, add the milk, salt and vanilla. Add nuts and marshmallows. Mix well. Add graham crackers. Add whipped cream last. Form in a cylinder. Roll the sides in graham cracker dust. Wrap in waxed paper. Let stand 24 hours. Serve cut in slices with whipped cream or ice cream on top. 12 servings. If you have never tried Stuffed Gingerbread, you've missed something!

41 GARMENTS FROM SACKS

Talladega, Ala., Oct. 22—Haking 41 pieces of clothing from discarded sacks is the achievement recorded by Mrs. M. E. Bishop, farm woman of Talladega County. The articles included 10 dresses and 7 hats, and were exhibited at a fair. Mrs. Bishop started this work as the result of a demonstration by Miss Marriet Plowden, home demonstration agent.

EGG ASSOCIATION FORMED

Fayette, Ala., Oct. 22—Farmers of Fayette County continue to make notable progress in the production of yard eggs. In order to make these eggs more attractive to buyers producers have organized the Fayette County Egg Producers Association. Sales for one month amounted to $500. So reports J. C. Ford, county agent.

A PUBLIC SALE IN '49

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Alabama is maintaining her position at the top of the list in public health work, with a larger percentage of population served by county health units with full-time health officers than any other state in the union. This inviolable position is one of the achievements of the present administration, Alabama having attained first place, in January, 1929. For several years the state occupied third place from the health standpoint, being surpassed by Ohio and North Carolina. Both these states have been passed since the 1927 legislature made the additional appropriations which enabled health work to go forward on an increased scale.

Evidence of progress along this line is further shown in striking fashion by the following figures on number of Alabama counties having county health units: January 1, 1927, 30; 1928, 33; 1929, 50; while at present 52 of the 67 counties of the state have this protective public service.

Clay and Cullman counties made the largest reduction of illiteracy of white children 16 to 20 years of age (inclusive) from 1928 to 1930 as shown by the 1930 school census. Clay cut the illiteracy of 16 to 20 year olds 42.1 per cent and Cullman followed closely with a reduction of 41.4 per cent. Both Clay and Cullman provided opportunity schools for four successive years previous to 1930 and made vigorous efforts to enroll all illiterate boys and girls sixteen years of age and over.

The census revealed that the state on the whole had a slightly larger number of illiterate white children 16 to 20 years of age in 1930 than in 1928, the record showing an increase from 1932 to 1998. However, in all the counties where opportunity schools were provided and where the 16 to 20 groups were given a chance to learn to read and write for two years before the taking of the recent census, there was an appreciable decrease in the illiteracy of the 16 to 20 children.

Walker led the counties which had had only two years of instruction previous to the census with a 25.9 per cent reduction. Morgan had schools for two years, but failed to provide for these children in 1929, immediately be-the same number of illiterate 16 to 20 year olds in 1930 that she had in 1928. fore the census year, so Morgan had Etowah gained in school population (7 to 20) by 1397 but made 15.7 per cent reduction in the illiteracy of the group noted.

Ten counties had opportunity schools from four to two years before the census of 1930 and the results are indicated by the following table:

Clay 42.1 per cent, Cullman 41.4 per cent, Walker 25.9 per cent, Jefferson 25.6 per cent, Dale 21 per cent, Geneva 19.5 per cent, Etowah 15.7 per cent, Chilton 7.6 per cent, Jackson 6.9 per cent, Morgan no gain.

Five of thirteen counties not only made a reduction in the illiteracy of the older white children, but reduced the illiteracy of the school population from 7 to 20 years old.

Etowah made a reduction of 37.4 per cent, Jefferson 34.7 per cent, Clay 8.1 per cent, Dale 2.6 per cent and Walker 2.1 per cent.

AMERICAN BATTLESHIPS

At present the United States Navy has only four battleships which are less than 10 years old, the California and Maryland commissioned in 1921, and the Colorado and West Virginia commissioned in 1923. By next year only the last two will be within the 10-year age limit, which is considered the period of first line service.

The great ships Lexington and Saratoga, each 888 feet long, were originally intended to be battle cruisers, but under the terms of the Washington naval conference were converted into aircraft carriers and commissioned as such in 1927. Each can carry 40 combat planes and 32 bombing planes.

Owing to differences of opinion regarding the value of battleships in modern warfare, it is probable that few, if any of these vessels will be built in future. Costing from twenty-five million dollars up, a battleship or battle cruiser represents a lot of money—too much, many think, to put into one fighting unit.

NEWS FROM CHILTON CO. HIGH SCHOOL

Miss Anne Carmichael Visits Home Economics Department

Miss Anne Carmichael, Assistant State Supervisor of Home Economics, paid our home economics department the honor of a visit last Thursday. Miss Carmichael, complimented very highly the work that is being done. In a talk to all the home economic girls she told us the beneficial purpose of the course. "Home economics is not limited to sewing and cooking etc., but includes proper home care of children, social relationships, the proper way to decorate a home, and general management," the speaker emphasized. Home economics is a practically new course, not being more than fifty years old. She recommended quite an extended list of needed materials, which will be purchased right away. We are proud of our home economics department. All the students are doing some very practical work. She included our school on her list, and will visit us monthly.

Local Scouts Enjoyed Hike and Supper Out

The Boy Scouts of Clanton had a most pleasant outing at "John's Place" three miles north of Clanton, last Thursday night. Mr. Walker, Scoutmaster, and Mr. Varnell accompanied the boys. Those making the trip were John Hall, Joe Moore, Dan Smith, Grade Reynolds, Johnny Reynolds, Morgan Reynolds, Joe Hall Johnson, Arnold Poe, Hal Broadhead, Phillip Nelson, Wesley Danforth, Lawrence Gerald, U. L. Baker and Carl Jones.

Mr. Varnell Has Enthusiastic Biology Class

Mr. Varnell's biology class went on a field trip last Wednesday morning for the purpose of gathering insects and reptiles. The students found several specimens which will be preserved in alcohol for future study. They also gathered many insects for present study. Each one in the class has his own individual tools for dissecting the specimens and working out his own conclusions. A routine of supervised study was followed by the students first dating the experiments and observing and recording the animals and insects that were noticed, and secured. Since biology is the science of life, it not only creates an interest in living organisms, but gives us a desire to study these structures from a practical first hand point of view.

Fashion Show A Splendid Success

Last Tuesday night, the Fashion Shoppe from Montgomery, presented a "Fashion Show" sponsored by our local P-T-A. Quite a nice sum was realized, which will be used to further the equipment of our stage. Some splendid attractions were rendered between acts. They were as follows: Mary Courtland Jones in "Uncle Walt and Skeezix"; Jimmie Wyatt in "Boys Will Be Boys"; Charlie in "This Happens in the Best Regulated Families." Mrs. Jones also danced to the "Fashion Show" song. The show was given by Carl Jones, second was drawn by Sallie Mahan, third by Clidie Clackley, fourth by Louise Marcus, fifth by F. M. Tate and the sixth was drawn by Mrs. Joe Mims.

Saving The Soil Of Chilton County

By C. E. STAPP

The maintenance of a fertile soil is the first requirement of prosperous and permanent agriculture, and yet there are comparatively few farmers in Chilton County who realize the amount and value of the fertility lost by soil washing. The surfaced seven inches of average Chilton County soil contains approximately 984 pounds of nitrogen, 671 pounds of phosphate, and 9211 pounds of potash to the acre and when we realize that in one rain there was washed off a test plot of one acre in Auburn 951.2 cubic feet of soil, we will realize what a tremendous loss we are incurring annually. The problem has reached a point in this county where the productive power of many rolling farms is fast dwindling and many other farms are being gullied. The aim of every farmer who has rolling land should be to hold the soil in place.

Soil erosion is caused largely by runoff water. Nature originally clothed the earth with forests and plant growth which sheltered it from the force of the elements. She provided a covering of dead leaves and plants and left the soil in a good physical condition to absorb the rain water, thereby preventing runoff to a large extent. Now that man has utilized the timber on the rolling lands, the soil has been laid bare and robbed of its organic matter, with the result that the accumulated energy of the rain flowing over the surface of the ground is carrying away thousands of tons of soil material. The Mississippi River alone carries each year about 7,500,000,000 cubic feet of soil in suspension. The value of the phosphate and potash alone in this is worth over $3,000,000,000. What is even more important is that some of this is coming out of the pocket books of the people in this community.

There are two kinds of erosion—Sheet erosion and gullying. Sheet erosion washes away soil material to a more or less even depth from a whole field or area, and forms the well known galled spots in our fields. Sheet erosion naturally removes the more fertile parts of the soil as they are the smaller particles of the soil. Gullying tends to cut up fields in small patches that are hard to farm and in addition destroys some farming land, but this type of soil washing can usually be controlled by first preventing erosion.

Since erosion depends directly upon the amount of speed of the runoff water, protective and preventive measures usually includes practices which diminish the amount of runoff and the rate at which it flows over the ground. If the rain water can be made to sink into the ground or flow slowly over the surface there will be little erosion. There are three ways which the farmers of Chilton County can prevent the erosion of their soil; first, by deep contour plowing; second, by having cover crops such as vetch and peas growing on the soil and by incorporating these cover crops into the soil to improve its water holding capacity; and third, by the use of terraces to collect the surplus water and to direct it gently off the field.

The terrace which has proven most satisfactory in Chilton County is one which has a variable grade. That is, one in which the grade increases as the amount of water to be carried increases. The terraces should be of sufficient height to prevent the water from washing over and should be of sufficient width so that the height will not make the sides of it too steep for the use of modern machinery and so that rows can be run on the terrace as the best rows in the field will always be found on the terrace.

I am planning a terracing school to be held in the county the 13th, 14th, and 15th of November.

News In Brief

The airplane has been used in Hawaii to plant trees. A large eroded area was sowed to a mixture of tree seeds by airplane, a United States army plane broadcasting 1,689 pounds of seed from an elevation of 2,000 feet.

Most soft drinks are artificially colored with so-called certified dyes, harmless, and suitable for use in beverages and other foods, says J. W. Sale of the Federal Food and Drug Administration. The ordinary 7-fluid ounce bottle of artificially colored soda contains only about three-hundredths of a grain of added coloring matter.

The net returns from purebred and grade Aberdeen-Angus calves sired by a purebred bull were from two and one-half to six times greater than the profits from calves from native Arkansas cows and native bulls, a three-year experiment conducted at Jonesboro, Ark., shows.

Willingness to cooperate with Government agencies and with civic groups interested in the beauty of the Nation's highways, to do away with the "evils of present-day outdoor advertising," has been expressed by spokesmen of leading outdoor advertisers.

Where English sparrows become too numerous in a locality it is often necessary to control them. Economical and effective means of controlling these birds, where they become over-abundant are described in a leaflet, 61-L, "English Sparrow Control," just issued by the U. S. VERBENA RESIDENT SAYS IT'S TIME TO GIVE HEFLIN THE GATE

Below we publish a letter from Mr. Lila Shepard, a resident of Verbena, Alabama, in which she expresses her views on the United States Senatorial race in a rhyming manner. Mrs. Shepard's letter follows:

October 20, 1930

Being a staunch Democrat I am, of course, much concerned with everything printed on the subject. I have always been deeply interested in politics, though have never taken an active part, but I have just read an article in O. L. Millican, and my curiosity has gotten the best of me, to such an extent I feel I must write and ask him just exactly what part of Alabama he allude to in reason Number two for Hefflin's return.

I went to hear Mr. Hefflin speak at Montgomery some bit ago. I was thinking to hear a silver tongued orator, one who I've been told could twiddle the birds off the bush, so you can imagine how disappointed I was when he compared himself to a dog. I am sure he will remember for C. Y. Brown was the rabbit. But he seemed more like the old grey horse to me, not just exactly what he used to be.

I think he has had his finger in the pie long enough, even the ignorant people are beginning to see his bluff. In Alabama the name Bankhead has long stood for honor and glory. Then why not go in with one accord and repeat the story. That a new broom sweeps clean is a proven fact; then why send our poor old worn out Thomas back? Seems to me the preacher is the last man to want him back again, for their salaries have not been payed up in the Lord knows when. And as for the poor old farmer and his cotton, by the Hon. Thomas they have long been forgotten. Then if proof of the pudding has any weight, they above all should show him the gate.

If we, like Methusala, had a thousand years to live, might another chance to Mr. Hefflin give, but since life is short, and hard times to boot, I think the opportunity has arrived to use the word scot. Hefflin's had an awful long stay. It is time a Democrat had sway.

Mrs. LILA SHEPARD,
Verbena, Alabama.

DR. V. J. GRAGG of Clanton Candidate for State Senator

As a candidate for State Senator from the 15th Senatorial District, I realize that I should express my views concerning matters that might interest voters before soliciting your vote.

1. I believe in majority rule instead of minority control, as we now have in some instances. And I shall stand for all elective offices, education or otherwise, being filled by expression of the voters interested.
2. More safe laws for protection of depositors in the state banks.
3. Reduction rather than increase of taxes and expenses if possible, but no reduction of school funds.
4. Continued progress along the lines of education and public health.
5. Continued road improvement without debts if possible.
6. Honest and impartial enforcement of the law regardless of class or creed.

In conclusion, will say that I solicit the vote and influence of every law-abiding white voter regardless of his or her past affiliation, realizing to the fullest extent that a bad citizen is a bad citizen, and a good citizen is a good citizen, regardless of whether he has called himself a Republican, Democrat or what-not in the past

Respectfully,

V. J. GRAGG.

Jeffersonian Democratic Candidate for State Senate.

South Clanton Notes

Mr. Tom Taylor has made the former home of Judge Guldridge, into a lovely and commodious bungalow home for someone.

Mr. Felix Woodyard has moved his family into a splendid home in South Clanton. "Felix" is noted for fastening on to a paying investment, like South Clanton, whenever it presents itself.

The slightest touch of frost that showed up Sunday morning put many of the farmers to hustling to get their potatoes dug and housed. Owing to the famous dry weather that prevailed throughout this section in the late summer, the crop is not up to normal. A little home made butter and taters come in mighty handy in those long winter days when it's too cold to either work or cook. Don't your mouth water when you remember those good old roasted taters and nice yellow butter, we used to eat around the fireside at "home" in those olden days?

The sugar cane crop is also about ready to hit the evaporator. Lord, Lord! How those old time sugar boilings come back to our mind about this time of year! A crowd of young people come in and a big kettle of syrup is allowed to go into candy. Boy and girl "pulling candy" and stealing a kiss now and then around a big "log heap" outdoors. Don't you remember? No cigarettes nor whiskey, but fun, oh my!

Cotton picking is rapidly winding up out here for this season. The crop was hardly up to normal, but was much better than it promised to be a month or so ago. It don't matter so much, I guess, for what it did make didn't bring anything no how.

The corn crop is short, though some of the farmers say they will have enough to skin through on another year, provided the "Missus" will make the hoecakes thin.

A good deal of hay has been harvested, but nothing approaching what should be every year.

Health is fine out here and happiness seems to be pretty general, considering these lean times. God still reigns and everything is certain to be all right.

FEDERAL QUARANTINE LIFTED ON FLORIDA FRUITS ON 15TH

The battle line drawn against the Mediterranean fruit fly on the 150 mile front between Florida and Alabama, on which National guardsmen and employees of the state department of agriculture stood for months with the battle cry, "They shall not pass," has been ended as a victory for these forces against the fly.

Besieged on all quarters by an airtight quarantine, backed by trained soldiery and organized agriculture and transportation, no fly or larvae has ever been found in Alabama. With Alabama and all Southern states resting safely, an armistice has been declared, and the quarantine in force since June, 1929, has been revoked by the U. S. Department of agriculture.

According to Seth P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries at Montgomery, October 15 has been set as the day on which the U. S. Government will declare that a fruit blockade no longer exists between Florida and other states including Alabama. After that date, citrus and other fruits can enter Alabama with no restrictions.

The quarantine will still be enforced around St. Augustine, Florida, where a few larvae were found last summer. Otherwise the heating and cooling needed to kill the eggs or larvae will be discontinued and fruits will leave Florida as usual.

Regarding the relief felt in Alabama at the release of the quarantine, Mr. Storrs said: "The military quarantine enforced by this state and the nation, was a terrible remedy to invoke, but it was absolutely necessary. The future of the fruit industry in the South, was at stake. Thousands of workers and millions of dollars were employed to stop the fly. All America was on guard and treasure untold would have been poured out had it been necessary."

"Counties in which the fruit fly flourishes, can raise little but pineapples, as all soft, fleshy fruits, of which there are about 70 in the United States, cannot be produced. There is no question regarding the deadly character of the fly. It is the most destructive fruit insect known in Europe and Hawaii."

"Last year the heating and cooling to destroy the fly, dried the fruit. Today it is a matter of congratulation that the dry pithy grape fruit will no longer be found on our tables. No longer will uncertain quality exist. Today, citrus fruits will do more than look golden, for they will taste of Florida's golden sunshine."

Commissioner Storrs was of the opinion that insects were more dangerous and caused more damage than such fearsome beasts as rattlesnakes, lions and tigers. He was of the opinion that it would not be long before the fruit fly would be definitely exterminated in

Miss FRANCES WILSON, Correspondent

The Thorsby Institute Library reports a circulation for the first month after the opening of school of 780 books and periodicals. This record does not include a large number read or consulted in the library. A welcome gift of fifteen dollars will be expended for new books very soon.

The joint meeting of the two State Conferences of the Congregational and Christian Churches, held at Wedowee, Ala., October 14 to 16, was attended by Revs. E. W. Butler and Joseph E. Each and Miss Marian Fairbank; and they bring back an enthusiastic report of the meeting. It was a meeting that marked the making of history in these two denominations. The significant thing in this joint meeting was that the two conferences actually merged and next year there will be, not a joint conference, but one United Conference known as the Congregational-Christian Conference of Alabama. A constitution and by-laws governing the new united body, was adopted. Henceforth there are one. This action follows the lead of the two National bodies, which have united. A fine spirit of fellowship and cooperation prevailed in all of the deliberations of the Conference at Wedowee and the delegates from Thorsby Congregational church express the feeling that this marks a very decided advance in answering the prayer of Jesus, "That they all may be one."

the United States. He said that when this was accomplished, it would be the first case of record in which mankind had succeeded in exterminating an insect in this country.

The most that has been done with insects, like the weevil in cotton, mosquitoes, or flies, is to keep the damage within low limits. The remarkable control given the fruit fly was attributed to the cordial cooperation between Florida and Alabama and the U. S. forces.

So deadly an insect could not have been exterminated by a single state alone. The combined forces of various states and the strong arm of federal control was needed to safeguard the southern fruit industry. The state quarantine measures on fruit and vegetables are vested in the department of agriculture and Commissioner Storrs was plunged into the midst of a battle against the fly on the first day of his taking office in June, 1929.

J. G. Duncan, Jr. Democratic Candidate For STATE SENATOR

Fifteenth Senatorial District, Comprising the Counties
Of Autauga—Chilton—and Shelby

Eight years ago, Chilton County nominated a man for the State Senate, Autauga and Shelby Counties fell in line, gave him their support and elected him. Four years later it was Shelby's time they nominated a man and Autauga and Chilton fell in line, gave him their support and elected him. As the Democratic Nominee this time, I appeal to the voters to bear in mind that, according to the custom, it is Autauga's time to elect a Senator for this District. If I am elected to the State Senate I shall look to the interest of each County in the District in a fair and impartial way and shall support such measures as will be for the upbuilding and the best interest of our District and our State. Your vote and influence will be appreciated.

- a. One full-time county health officer who is a duly qualified physician. He is the director of the department and is held responsible for the public health activities carried on in his county.
- b. One full-time nurse whose duty it is to carry on such portion of the health work as is best suited to her training and ability. She works under the direction of the county health officer and among her duties are the following: Assisting the county health officer in the examination of school children; immunization of people against typhoid fever, diphtheria and smallpox; home visits to mothers regarding the correction of defects in school children; instruction in the care of expectant mothers, infants and children, and in the prevention of tuberculosis.
- c. A full-time sanitary inspector, usually a layman, is concerned with both urban and rural sanitation. It is his duty to inspect and supervise the sanitation of both public and private premises; to advise and assist in malaria control work and the protection of private water supplies. His duties also include the inspection of barber shops, cafes, soda fountains, dairies and other food-handling establishments.
- d. One full-time office secretary attends to records, reports, and correspondence. Her entire time during working hours is spent in the office of the health department.

Program of Activities

A very well defined program of activities is followed in an effort to obtain the maximum benefit at a minimum cost. Embraced in this program are the following major activities:

1. The control of the soil pollution diseases—typhoid fever, dysentery and hookworm. The campaign against these robbers of Alabama's coffers embraces the installation of proper sanitary conveniences, the protection of water supplies, and the administration of typhoid vaccine.
2. The control of the acute communicable diseases—smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, and diphtheria—by vaccination, inoculation, and isolation; the control of malaria by screening, draining of mosquito breeding places, oiling where drainage or like procedures are impossible; and the administration of quinine; lastly, the suppression of the social diseases. That this last group may be eventually eradicated from Alabama is the hope that forms the foundation of the venereal clinics that have been instituted in many towns and cities in every county of the State.
3. Second in importance only to the control of the soil pollution diseases is the measure of protection offered mothers in the hygiene of maternity and infancy through the ministrations of kind and sympathetic nurses; the regular and systematic examination of school children; the inculcation of proper health habits; and the medical examination of adults.
4. That these major activities may yield the results one has just right to expect, a program of education and publicity is conducted that the benefits of health protection may be known to all.

Certain minor activities make their contribution to a well-rounded program. The inspection of food-handling establishments, the investigation of nuisances of still births and maternal deaths attended by midwives; the supervision of the reporting of communicable diseases, of the recording of all births and deaths, and the work of midwives.

Aims Of A County Health Department

From such a program designed to include all who may seek its benefits, these immediate ends are sought:

1. One hundred per cent safe disposal of excreta.
 2. One hundred per cent public intelligence of the health program.
 3. Equality of opportunity for health as well as education for every child of school age.
 4. Prompt reporting and control of communicable disease.
 5. Complete and accurate registration of births and deaths.
- The final results expected are:
1. A higher level of health and efficiency.
 2. Lowered death rates.
 3. Lowered incidence of preventable disease.
 4. The saving of millions of dollars due to the saving of health.
 5. Increased production of wealth due to increased health.

What Is Required To Get A County Health Department

It will be asked of the Commissioner's Court of Chilton County to put up $5000 a year, to which sum the State Department of Health will add a sum of $4000 a year. This total sum of $9000 will go to pay the expenses and salaries of the county health officer, the nurse, the sanitary inspector and the office secretary.

Will Not Increase Taxes

The operation of the county health department will not increase the taxes one penny. The funds from the county come from the county treasury from funds raised from existing revenue law of the county and state, and Chilton County is able to expend this amount of money each year to safeguard the health of her people, and it is certain an investment that will pay in return great dividends.

The election to determine the want of the voters of this county toward a county health department will be held on the same day as the general election, so that when a person comes to vote for or against the county health unit, a service greatly needed in Chilton County, and a service that will not cost the people one penny in additional taxes, but will serve them year after year, being paid for with money raised through revenues already established.

From a study of the above outline of the work of a county health unit, we, the physicians of the county, make the open declaration that such a program of work is sorely needed by the people of Chilton County. The health of our people is worth more than everything else we have. We should not think of delaying any longer the proper administration of public health measures, which can be obtained in no other way than through the establishment of a county health unit under the State Board of Health.

We very sincerely insist that the people of Chilton County study this great question carefully, and be prepared to go to the polls on November 4th and cast your votes for the Health Unit. IT WILL NOT INCREASE YOUR TAXES.

AWARDS GIVEN CHILTONIANS AT STATE FAIR

Isabella Community Awarded 1st Prize in Community Exhibits at State Fair

Chilton County was again bringing home honors from the State Fair, held at Montgomery during the past several days, when the Isabella Community, west of Clanton was awarded the first prize in the Community Exhibits at the Fair.

Mrs. S. E. Bruce was awarded fourth place in the county exhibits. This exhibit was prepared by Mrs. Bruce, personally. The County Exhibits were divided into two groups, the story type, which showed progressiveness step by step, and the other was of the old type, showing farm products. The Chilton County Exhibit, as prepared by Mrs. Bruce was of the latter type, and brought $115.00 as fourth prize. Mrs. Bruce is to be congratulated on receiving this distinction, and her efforts in this work are to be commended.

Comments coming from those countless persons who saw the exhibit of the progressive Isabella Community were more than favorable. The display showed that untiring efforts had been put forth in getting up farm products and arranging them for the best display. This community exhibit showed clearly the progressiveness of that forward community of Chilton County and the interest its residents take in the improving of their homes, farms, schools and churches.

The first award in the community exhibits given to the Isabella Community was $150.00. The exhibit showed home and farm products, and the progress of the community. Howard R. Oden, Earle Thomas and Miss Cora Belle Maddox are to be complimented in this award, as well as all those who are so interested in the Isabella Community.

The Chilton County Club was represented at the Fair in Montgomery also, and were given third place in the county exhibits of its type, receiving an award of $30.00. Five heifers from this county were shown in this exhibit. The bull owned by E. P. Mims, in the Temple Community, was given second place in his class. There were fifteen bulls in the young bull class, which included three from this county and owned by Archie Taylor of Cooper, Laughton McDowell, and W. H. Rasmussen. These three bulls were placed fifth, sixth and seventh in their class. Bulls owned by R. M. Foshee, of the Mt. Pleasant Community, and H. R. Oden of the Isabella Community, classed as older bulls, were placed in fifth and sixth place in their class. The Angus bull owned by J. N. Dennis was second in his class, and received favorable mention from the judges.

In the Isabella Community Exhibit, a miniature improved model farm was displayed in a most attractive and impressive manner. This model farm was used through the courtesy of the C. E. Hornsby Co., International Harvester dealers of Clanton, and played a great part in the appearance of the exhibit. A check-up on the farmers in the progressive community of Isabella showed that there were very few who did not use International Harvester or McCormick-Deering farm equipment.

Chilton County should feel justly proud of the persons and communities who brought to the county such honors from the State Fair, receiving them against the other counties of the entire state.

MRS. LUCIE PARNELL VISITOR TO CLANTON LAST MONDAY

Mrs. Lucie B. Parnell, said her two attractive daughters, of Maplesville, were in Clanton Monday. While her daughters were shopping, Mrs. Parnell was here on business in the interest of her candidacy for the office of a member of the Chilton County School Board.

Chilton County should feel honored to have the opportunity to elect a woman of the fine qualities as is Mrs. Parnell. To those who know her personally, she is a woman of such distinction that it is need to fill a place in the body that has charge of the educational system of our county. She is a thoroughly educated woman and believes in the principles of education.

Charlie E. Wyatt, who at one time Clanton boasted as having, a citizen, but who is now located at Titus, Alabama, was in Clanton Saturday. Mr. Wyatt called at the News office and had his name added to the fast growing subscription list of this newspaper.

Stapp Will Hold Terracing School, Thurs., Fri., Sat.

County Agent Stapp has announced that he will conduct a terracing school on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 30, 31, and November 1.

This school will be conducted at the farm of Willie Hamilton, located about two and one-half miles west of Clanton. During this school Mr. Stapp will give instructions in the locating and building of terraces. He will be assisted by representatives from Auburn, and several instruments for this work are to be used.

The instructions are to begin this morning early, and continue Friday and Saturday. It is urged that as many as can attend this terracing school, and they will be able to see how the work is done as well as receiving instructions from Mr. Stapp and the Auburn representatives.

FRANK CALLEN WILL BECOME PRES. OF BANK

Callen Will Succeed Boyd As President Of Peoples Savings Bank

A change in the personnel of the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton will become effective on November 1, when Frank J. Callen will succeed H. Glenn Boyd as president of the institution.

Mr. Boyd will go from here to Selma where he will become vice-president of the City National Bank, one of the oldest and largest banks in west Alabama. Mr. Boyd has served as president of the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton for four years during which time he has won countless friends for the bank, as well as taking a large part in the establishing of the Peoples Bank, at Jemison. Chilton County will no doubt regret the loss of Mr. Boyd, and congratulate Selma on acquiring a man of his calibre.

Mr. Callen was at one time president of the Peoples Savings Bank, and was succeeded in 1927 by Mr. Boyd, later becoming affiliated with the bank again. He is a man that needs no introduction to the people of Chilton County, as he has been prominently connected with the banking business in Clanton since 1914.

CECIL SMITH AND FAMILY HERE DURING THE PAST WEEK END

Hon. and Mrs. Cecil Smith and children of Lakeland, Fla., arrived in Clanton Friday and were the guests of the former's parents, Hon. and Mrs. A. C. Smith.

Mrs. Smith and children will remain in Clanton several days visiting friends and relatives, while Mr. Smith returned to Lakeland Sunday.

Hallow'e'en Carnival At Verbena School

According to an announcement sent out this week, Verbena High School is all ready to stage their annual Hallow'e'en Carnival on Hallow'e'en night, tomorrow night.

It was also stated that no admission will be charged to this frolic and everyone is invited to come and join in the merry-making crowd on that night.

There will be booths where you can purchase many good things to eat, and other booths where there will probably be something to keep you entertained for a long while. Everything is under supervision of competent persons and a great time is assured those who can be there.

MR. & MRS. ROBERT WILLIAMS CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

On last Sunday, October, the 26th, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of the Isabella community celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary with a spend-the-day. At the noon hour the guests were invited into the dining room where a bountiful dinner was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Lunn Williams and children; Bazelen, Van, Dorman, Noah J., Broades, Lamar and Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. Surgeon Williams and two children; Lena, and Floyd; a niece, Mrs. Ida Curran of Louisville, Ky.; two great-nieces, Ma Mae and Alma Barnes, Selma; Mrs. Walter DeShazo.

A. S. Johnson, one of the progressive citizens residing on Billingsley, Route 1, was in Clanton Saturday, and called at the News office, having his subscription marked up for another year.

Health Protection Without Added Taxes

(AN EDITORIAL)

Along with the heated discussions concerning the political conditions in this county, there should be some heated discussions of the proposed County Health Department for Chilton County, that the people are going to vote on during the election next Tuesday. The discussion of the County Health Department, however, should not be in any way to compare with the political discussions for the very fact that there should be no question involved as to whether Chilton County shall or shall not secure the services of such department, and the reason for that is because there is only one side to the proposition—the side that plainly discloses to the people of Chilton County an opportunity to improve the health conditions in the county without added expense in the way of more taxes.

That one point alone should be sufficient to show any progressive thinking person that he or she should not hesitate to vote in favor of the proposed County Health Department for this county in the election Tuesday. The fact that the Chilton County Medical Society, which is composed of the outstanding physicians of the county, has openly endorsed the movement to secure such a department, and practically all the outstanding organizations of Clanton and the county have also made statements through the newspapers to the effect that they most heartily endorse the bringing to Chilton County the beneficial services of a crew of workers trained to look after the health conditions of the county and whose duties are to do all in their power to improve such conditions.

When bringing the subject of the health unit to mind for consideration, every citizen, regardless of stands in politics, should not only think of himself, but also keep in mind his children and their children, who will, no doubt make Chilton County their home for many years to come. As has been stated in articles appearing in this newspaper, the services of a County Health Department for Chilton County will in no way cause a rise in taxes, but that the expense of operating such department will be taken care of from funds already being secured from present revenues. Not only is that true, but the State of Alabama takes care of a large portion of the expenses of the department.

It can not be truthfully said that Chilton County's health conditions are such that a County Health department is not needed. Already reports are out that some of the schools in our county have extremely low attendance now, due to sickness of the pupils who should be enrolled and attending regularly. Increased production of wealth due to the increased health is another major item that should be taken under consideration. A community of people who are enjoying health is a community that will prosper, and a county of healthy people is a county that will prosper. Millions of dollars could be saved in Chilton County with the saving of the health of the people and this is one of the ends sought by the work of those composing the County Health Department.

The people of Chilton County will be the ones who will say whether or not they are interested in the health conditions here on next Tuesday, November 4th, when they go to the polls to cast their vote for or against the services of a health unit, a service greatly needed in Chilton County and an extremely beneficial service that will not cost the people here one penny in additional taxes, but will serve them year after year, being paid for with money raised through revenues already established.

Democratic Nominees All Well Qualified

The Democratic Party of this County has won the battle. The nominees of the party are men and women who come from the best citizenship we have. They are each well qualified for the office they are asking the voters to vote for them, next Tuesday and they will serve the people efficiently and courteously. All that the taxpayers want out of a public servant is honest dealing and efficient service, and every nominee of the Democratic Party will render that kind of service, to the voters while serving the people, during the next term. Let every citizen who desires to see his county go forward and make progress vote for Howard R. Oden, for the Legislature, C. B. Cox, for Tax Collector, Arthur D. Martin, for Tax Assessor, S. M. Edwards and Burney Killingsworth, for Members of the Commissioners Court and Mrs. L. L. Parnell, for Member of the School Board and J. A. Nivens, for Sheriff. These are worthy citizens of your county. Give them a trial and play the game so that the people will win.

While Howard R. Oden, the nominee for the Legislature, has not been able to canvass the voters in person, those who have kept in touch with him know that during the last two weeks he has been engaged in placing exhibits at the State Fair, in Montgomery, doing his best to advertise Chilton County and our farm interests. He and his associates have made, as will be disclosed from reading of the awards made by the Fair authorities, a wonderful showing for Isabella community. Mr. Oden is one of the progressive farmers of this county and the people will make no mistake in sending him to the Legislature.

Methodist Circle Will Serve Dinners During Court Week

Members of circle Number 4 of the Clanton Methodist church have announced that they will serve dinners during court week here beginning Monday, November 3. As yet they have not located a building where they will serve, but stated that a large sign will designate the place when they do get located.

Those who are in town and are going to be here for lunch will surely get a fine dinner if they let these ladies of Clanton serve them. The committee in charge of the menu is composed of Mesdames T. C. McSwain, John Armstrong, M. A. Gore, while the ticket committee is composed of Mrs. Vernie Teel, Mrs. Horace Jones and Miss Mildred Shaw. Don't forget that these ladies will be waiting to serve you a delicious dinner during court week, beginning Monday.

Cake Sale At Hill Grocery Store Sat.

It was announced this week that the Home Maker's Sunday School Class of the Baptist church will hold another of their successful cake sales at the Hill Grocery Store on next Saturday. The cakes sold will be home-made, and one can bet they will be good. The ladies of this class wish to tell the people to come to Hill's and buy their cake for Sunday dinner.

JOHN DURWOOD MULLINS AND ELIZABETH MURPHY ARE WED

The countless friends over this and other states, of John Durwood Mullins and Miss Elizabeth Murphy, received a surprise when they were informed of the marriage of Miss Murphy to Mr. Mullins, which occurred on last Sunday in Talladega, Alabama.

Mrs. Mullins is a member of an old and prominent family of Aliceville, Alabama, and a graduate of Alabama College, at Montevallo, being named as one of the popular members of the young social set of Clanton, Aliceville, Montgomery and Montevallo.

Mr. Mullins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Renfro Mullins of Clanton, and a graduate of the University of the South, Sewanee, and attended Marion Institute. He has for some time, been connected with the firm of Mullins & Moore here, where he holds a responsible position, with his father as senior partner of the firm.

The wedding was quietly solemnized in the presence of only a few relatives and intimate friends. After an extended wedding trip the couple will return to Clanton to make their home.

PRESBYTERIAN DISTRICT CONF. TO BE HELD HERE FRIDAY

Announcement has been made that the District Conference of the Woman's Auxiliary of the East Alabama Presbytery, will be held in Clanton at the Presbyterian church on next Friday, October 31, which is tomorrow.

The meeting will be called to order at ten o'clock Friday morning, and is expected to last until sometime in the afternoon. Mrs. R. A. Young of Troy who is president of the organization is expected to be here to preside over the meeting.

Visiting delegates to the conference are expected from Prattville, Deatsville, Tuskegee, Wetumpka, Greenville, Montgomery, and Elmore, Alabama.

MAPLESVILLE BANK IS DAMAGED BY BURGLARS

Residents of Maplesville, Alabama were suddenly awakened about four o'clock Tuesday morning by a loud explosion coming from the direction of the bank, and according to the story secured by the News, they found on investigation apparently burglars had attempted to blast their way into the building.

The information stated that the front of the building was badly damaged by the blast, but from indications the thieves made no attempt to molest the vault, and it was stated that nothing was found missing.

Sheriff Collins and deputies were immediately called to the scene, and as yet, no arrests have been made in the matter.

Monday night, the Alfred Drug Company, of Clanton fell victim to shoplifting when, it was stated, a man picked up merchandise valued at approximately $15. It is believed that the one responsible for this theft, is probably connected with the attempted Maplesville bank robbery.

Hon. J. O. Middleton, of Birmingham was among the prominent out-of-town visitors to Clanton the past week end.

Mr. Charles Gullidge, prominent merchant and business man of Verbena was a business visitor to Clanton Friday afternoon.

J. H. Martin, one of the prominent citizens of the Providence Community, near Jemison, was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

NEWS FROM CHILTON CO. HIGH SCHOOL

Cotton
By Dorothy Sessions
Cotton originated in India about six hundred years before the Christian Era. It was used for clothing in the early days of human history, but its use and introduction into Europe was very slow although it reached Europe in the early part of the sixteenth century. It was not until 1621 that it was introduced into the United States.
The cotton plant is a perennial plant, but on account of frost in the United States it is treated as an annual. The plant is a small bushy shrub and grows from four to six feet in height. The leaves of the plant often vary in shape on different ones of the stems. The flowers are somewhat like a holly hock with five white or yellowish petals. The blossoms stay a day or so and drop off leaving a small pod which increases and finally bursts in sections, leaving the cotton disclosed.
Cotton thrives best in a warm humid atmosphere, with loamy and sandy soil. It grows best in a moist even warm breeze and a rich soil.
Cotton is planted in March or April. The ground must be carefully prepared, after which the seeds are sown in rows about four feet apart. When the seeds have sprouted the "chopping" process begins and the plants are left about twelve inches apart. During June and July the plant grows rapidly and the blossoms appear and then the bolls mature in August. Each field is gone over about three times. After the cotton is picked the next process is to remove the seeds from the lint. This is called ginning. After it is ginned it is compressed into bales.
Cotton is graded ranging from fair to middling, then to ordinary. Fair is the highest and ordinary is the lowest.

Cotton is then sold to spinning mills or to regular cotton merchants. It is then made into thread or cloth which requires a long process.
Cotton is a non-conductor of heat and is the shortest fiber. It is grown in the United States, India, Egypt, Russia, China and certain South American countries.
There are five kinds of cotton: The Sea Island, which is the finest; Upland which is grown throughout the South; Egyptian, South American, and East Indian.
Our Senior I Home Economics Class wishes to encourage everyone to wear more cotton clothes. Everyone knows the price of cotton and every individual can help by buying cotton garments when possible.

"Miss Blue Bonnet" A Success
By Esther Lee Dennis
"Miss Blue Bonnet," one of Wayne P. Sewell's musical comedies, was presented Friday night, October 24, at the Chilton County High School Auditorium. It was one of the most interesting and most successful plays ever given at this school for some time.
The cast, as a whole, was of the very best to be selected. "Dr. Evans" Mr. Horton Walker, was always trying to fix things for the family, but always seemed to make them worse. Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Burton Higgins, his wife was forever and eternally trying to get Magnolia, her daughter, Miss Margaret Kendrick, a wonderful husband. Other old maid in the cast hunting a husband was Minerva, Miss Ruth Sessions, although practically deaf, usually caught most of the gossip of the town, and always had her eyes wide open. Hickory Stout, Mr. J. B. Varnell, played his part 100 per cent. Janice Danforth was "Miss Blue Bonnet" and the heroine, while Burton Hills, Mr. Broadus Conatser, was the hero. Others taking part in the play were as follows: Mrs. W. M. Greene, Miss Josephine Martin, Miss Edna Cofield, Misses Gladys Williams, and Vivian Gray, two former graduates of the class of '30, John Ponder Lawrence and Clark Polk. The chorus girls played their parts most beautifully. Excellent readings were rendered by little Misses Dorothy Higgins and Mary Frances Atkinson. Their numbers came in between acts.
We, the entire school, wish to thank the cast and those who helped to make our play a success. We especially want to thank the business men and merchants of Clanton who so generously gave us advertisements which were printed on our programs.
C. C. H. S. Defeats Montevallo
By Morgan Reynolds
The Chilton County High School defeated Montevallo High in a good game of football last Friday, final score being 12-6. Harvey Melton carried the ball over the goal line both times, in the first and second quarters. Chilton hit the line so hard that Montevallo gave away and Chilton went on through for their touch downs. The Montevallo boys made their touch down in the third quarter by short runs and forward passes. Neither team kicked goal. Chilton was on Montevallo's one-yard line, but failed to make a touchdown, so the ball went on to Montevallo.

When PAIN Comes
WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which quickly neutralizes acids. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.
One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali neutralizes instantly many times as much harmful acid, and then the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.
Get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, the kind physicians have prescribed for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

S. M. Edwards Tells Views In Letter
Following we publish a letter from Sam M. Edwards, Democratic candidate for member of the Commissioner's Court of Chilton County, in which he tells of some of his views relative to the office which he seeks:
Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 27, 1930.
Editor News:
Please give me space to say a few more words to the voters of Chilton County. On the 4th day of November you are going to choose a commissioner to serve you for the next four years, from District No. 2. All you are going to get out of this office is service. Your commissioners have the welfare of your county in a large measure in their hands. Hence, there is quite a responsibility attached to this office. I have not tried to hide out from any question. I have told you that if elected I will hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may. I favor a more permanent road building program. There is much yet to be done to the roads of Chilton County before we can truthfully boast that we have good roads. Our bridges in many parts of the county are far from satisfactory. If elected I would insist that all parts of the County should have its rightful share of road working. I believe in a days work for a days pay. If elected I will give this office the same attention I would my own private business, and I will do my best to make each dollar do its duty. I believe the poor should have an equal chance with the more fortunate ones of our county. If I am elected your commissioner on next Tuesday, the grand jury will not have to call my attention to the negligence of the poor house. I will look after that myself and try to keep it in a condition that the grand jury will approve of, and not condemn. However, I favor some system of old age pension instead of this old humiliating alms house. But if we have to keep this alms house then I say, let us keep it in a manner that is above reproach. I favor good schools and stand ready to help when it is possible to do so. I have previously told you I wouldn't have any pets, and I have invited the voters to investigate my business ability in private life. I would have liked to meet every voter of the county, but my farming interests have took up my time so it will be almost impossible for me to see all the voters of the county, and so I want you to take this as my personal appeal to you for your support and influence, and in my last words to you before you cast your vote next Tuesday, I promise you upon my sacred honor that if you trust this office to my care, I will do all that is in my power never to give you just cause to regret the vote you cast for me. I want to urge every voter to go to the polls next Tuesday and without political prejudice, vote for the candidate that you believe will give you the best service.
Thanking you for the splendid encouragement I have received throughout the county, I beg to remain,
Yours truly,
S. M. EDWARDS.

SEN. HEFLIN SPOKE IN CLANTON LAST SATURDAY
United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, spoke to a large crowd in the Court House, at Clanton last Saturday. The Court House was filled to capacity some thirty minutes before the speaking began, and by the time the speaking started at 10 o'clock, there was gathered around the court house some five hundred persons. It was estimated that the Senator spoke to around one thousand people, for two hours, during which time he outlined the things that he had advocated in the past as Senator and Representative in Congress. The speaking was opened with prayer led by the Rev. Mr. A. C. Nelson, who is now over 95 years old and one of the active Confederate Veterans, of those left to tell the tale of what happened during the sixties, when Carpet Bag rule, was attempted to be placed over the people of the south.
Senator Heflin, explained his position, in this campaign and outlined and told why that he would not support Alfred E. Smith, in 1928, for President and stated that if he was nominated again, that he would not support him. The Senator seemed to be at his best on the occasion and entertained his audience with many humorous jokes. One that seemed to appeal to the audience which was composed of mostly Republicans, was one that he said happened with Mr. Bankhead, and the Probate Judge of this county. He stated that Mr. Bankhead sent for the Probate Judge of this county to come to Montgomery and that when he arrived that Mr. Bankhead placed his arms around the Judge's neck and kissed the Judge on the top of his bald head and said to him, "Louis, who's sweet?" and that the Judge replied, "both uv us."

DR. BARSON FILLED REGULAR APPOINTMENT HERE MONDAY
Dr. S. A. Barson, widely known eyespecialist of Montgomery was in Clanton Monday to fill his regular appointment here. Dr. Barson comes to Clanton on the last Monday in each month, and can be found at the Exchange Hotel here, where he has facilities for taking care of his patients.

Hallowe'en

Hallowe'en—the eve of All Hallow, as the old English term goes, All Saints Day in the church calendars—has long been regarded in the folklore of northern Europe as the night when witches turn out in force and the powers of magic are loosed in the land.

The superstition seems to have its root in the idea that on All Saints Day the powers of evil must take an enforced vacation. They may muster strength to cope with a single saint, but not with all of them. So the night of October 31 is a witches' frolic, up to the stroke of midnight, and those who would invoke the aid of supernatural beings to shape or foretell the future, or who would pacify them, can call upon them on Hallowe'en with a surer certainty of response than on any other night of the year.

Doubtless among some of the primitive peasantry of Europe there still persists a genuine belief in the power of witches to do actual harm. We know that there are American communities of foreign stock in which the belief in witchcraft is still prevalent and active. But to the general run of Americans Hallowe'en is not a night of terror but rather one of jollity for the young folks, seeking and half believing in the disclosures of the mirror in the dark or the shape of the apple-peel cast over the left shoulder.

Every season, we were going to say every community, has its own special tradition for the celebration of Hallowe'en. It used to be much more the excuse for mischievous boys to lift gates from their hinges, hang "tick-tacks" at windows and otherwise raise Cain in ways only small boys can invent, than it is now. Hallowe'en nowadays is more of an excuse for giving a party, with or without the ancient custom of "bobbing" for apples in a tub of water or walking backward down the cellar stairs holding a lighted candle in one hand and a mirror in the other in which the face of the lucky girl's future husband may be discerned.

The Farm Board Is Learning

The Federal Farm Board has had about sixteen months of experience in its work of administering the Cooperative Marketing Law. Its members have learned a great deal in that time. In the beginning they were new to the job. Only one of them, Chairman Legge, had had anything which might be called national experience in agricultural problems. The others were able enough men, but their individual experience was limited to territorial activities or to the marketing of certain commodities.

There is evidence that the Farm Board members are acquiring a national point of view, and that they have discovered several fundamental facts, concerning which there seemed at the beginning to be some doubt among the Board members. Those facts, as stated by Mr. Teague in a recent address, are:

Agricultural problems will not be solved by legislation. The law of supply and demand can not be ignored. The greatest assistance to agriculture by the Government must be the gradual development of grower-owned marketing systems.

Now that the Farm Board has learned those things, and we have Mr. Teague's word for it that all of the members now accept them as truth, there is hope that more rapid progress may be made in bringing agricultural marketing to a point where the growers really get what their products are worth.

Stopping The Paper

The following was taken from the Montgomery Advertiser and we pass it on to our readers:

A weekly newspaper over in Georgia prints this interesting story:

"A few days ago, a subscriber, who is a well-known citizen, came to our office and stopped his paper, for the reason, he said, that it did not just suit his fancy. We have since met him on the street, and it is amusing to note the look of surprise on his face that we are still in existence, despite the fact that he 'stopped his paper.' Some day—and it won't be long, either—that man will be no more. His heart will be stilled forever. Neighbors and friends will carry his lifeless clay to the silent city, and lay him to rest among the flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a good neighbor and beloved citizen he was (which we hope the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake)—and in a short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out there in the cold, cold ground, wrapped in the silent slumber of death, he will never know that the last kind word spoken of him was by the editor of the paper which he so 'spitefully' stopped. Did you ever pause for a moment and think that your editor, whoever he may be, will write your obituary some day?"

No editor, well-seasoned in the business of writing, expects everybody to agree with him on all subjects. In fact, sometimes he can not agree with himself.

If everybody agreed with the editor he would be of all men the most miserable. There would be no subjects left to argue about, no cause for disputation.

But this much is certain.

Some day the editor will write your obituary.

Even before a kindly undertaker has thrown dirt in your face and patted down the job with a spade, the editor will be scratching his head and trying to think up a few kind things to say about you.

Of course, you won't then be able to read what he has to say. Mighty few people, when they die, leave accurate forwarding addresses.

Also, newspapers are printed on wood pulp paper, not asbestos.—Jackson Daily News.

"ROUND TOWN"

—by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

By now you folks ought to know a thing or two after what I told you last week about this political wrangle. Some folks have an idea that The Democrats started this thing, but I am of the opinion that the Democrats are going to wind it up, whether they started it or not. I notice in the papers that Mr. Hoover has got a fellow hired now to find jobs for all those folks who don't have jobs. Well, it looks to me like that fellow has got a job, and the next question is, how long will it take that man to get things fixed up like they ought to be fixed.

Old man P. T. Barnum was right when he said there was a sucker born every minute. I can't see for the life of me why some folks don't stop and think about the future a little further ahead than their nose. It's certain that we are going to have political parties in the country for many years to come, and so why can't folks realize that, and instead of stirring up more messes, do what they can to smooth down what has already been stirred up. It's just like I have always said, humans are funny things. Do you know the story about the rolling stone. Well, they say it gathers no moss, and you know what happens to a fellow who is always jumping from one thing to another. Well, he don't ever amount to much, either. It takes a fellow with lots of stickability to one thing to ever accomplish much, and I know you folks don't want to be rolling stones, or a jumper like that. Anyway, I'm sticking to the good old Democratic Party, because I believe in that party lies the hope of the South, and maybe the hope of the nation. You know you never can tell.

Some folks tell me that Thomas Hefflin is still a strong Democrat, but what the dickens is he jumping on the Democratic nominees so hard for. But he did do one thing rather amusing, he played whaley with the Republican party in this county, judging from what I heard he said in his speech here Saturday morning. Speaking of speeches, I wonder what you folks thought about that speech of Lamar Jeffers Saturday afternoon. His was a speech that was a speech. Did you know he went over yonder in France and did some real great things in the war? Well, he did, and the people here ought not to forget it when they vote. You didn't have to ask him to go over in the war and do the outstanding things he did—he just went over there and done it. Well, now he is asking you to do something for him, and it ain't running out into gunfire either, he just wants you to vote for him for Congressman.

Clanton has just broke out with sales so it seems. Some are successful and some not so successful, in my opinion, and I kind of study such things as that, trying to figure out where those not so successful are making a mistake, and so now I have just about figured it out why about two of the sales opened here in past few days have not been so successful, although there were men imported to put on said sales, pull big stunts in advertising and that sort of thing. Now, it's just like I have always said about advertising—it has to be done right. If you was puttin' on a sale here, you wouldn't go put an ad in a Greek paper somewhere, cause there ain't many Greeks around these parts and they don't do much trading. But on the other hand you would put an ad in a newspaper that goes to the folks who have got the money to spend, and not those who just take a paper because it's their political paper and when they see an ad in that paper, they don't want it means.

When I get to talking about how some folks do, I just naturally get to thinking about these things called humans in general. Studying folks is a wonderful thing if you are careful in doing it, and I try to be careful. The majority of humans have two sides, I don't mean that they are two-faced, but I mean that they have two dispositions, so to speak. Now if you don't believe that, just take a stranger, and study their actions for awhile and then get personal with them, and if they try to get peeved at you, don't let them. Nine times out of ten you will find two-in-one. When you get personal with a person, then you are delving into their real self. I have found that once you get them in the notion that you have them cornered, then you will see why I always say that human beings are funny things. And a tip now—it's awfully easy to get things in a mess when you are trying to delve into a person's real self.

But if you ever find a person you would care to like, and can't, just make it a point to find out what is down in their hearts. Then and there you will more than likely find that they are a type of person worth liking. I am speaking altogether from experience, and being Chilton County's Certified Critter Sizer, I think I have a right to delve into people's hearts and see what is in them. And, also due to the fact that when this election Tuesday will probably settle who is going to do what, I intend to resume my critter sizing in a large way, taking up as some of my subjects, some business men, politicians, and school teachers, because it is about time now for me to begin to commence to pick my "Who's Who" for this year.

Shelby and Autauga County Papers Are Endorsing Duncan

J. G. Duncan, Jr., Has Endorsement Of Newspapers In Counties In His District

In last week's issues of the Shelby County Reporter, the newspaper at Columbiana, Alabama, and in the Prattville Progress, the newspaper at Prattville, appeared editorial comments on the candidacy of J. G. Duncan, Jr., who is the Democratic Nominee for the office of State Senator from this district. Both these editorials are complimentary to Mr. Duncan, and the News is pleased to publish them. The Shelby County Reporter has the following to say:

SHELBY COUNTY DEMOCRATS MUST DO BEST FOR DUNCAN

There is a phase of the contest for state senator that Shelby County Democrats should consider very seriously. We have a rule in the Democratic party by which the counties alternate in furnishing a candidate for this important office. This year it is Autauga's time and Autauga's candidate is Mr. J. G. Duncan, a fine young man well qualified for the place.

Ordinarily there would be no doubt of Mr. Duncan's election by a good majority. But the late entrance into the contest of an Independent candidate from Chilton County may serve to complicate the situation to some extent.

It seems to me that the Democrats of Shelby County owe the Democrats of Autauga County a debt that absolutely must be paid in the coming election. Even though this is Judge Weaver's own county, we must see to it that Mr. Duncan, our Democratic nominee for the state senate runs right along with the leaders of our local ticket. It would be a fine thing if we could make him lead the ticket to redeem ourselves for the slip-up of twelve years ago.

The following was taken from the Prattville Progress:

GRAVES DUNCAN FOR THE STATE SENATE

Mr. Graves Duncan is the Democratic nominee for the state senate from this senatorial district composed of Autauga, Chilton and Shelby counties. He deserves the support of every voter of this district regardless of party affiliations. He is a good business young man and comes from a business family and it is such we need in our legislature today. The Progress editor who knows something of the needs of our district and Alabama, who has had the honor of representing this district in the state senate is closely associated with Mr. Duncan in a business way, knows him to be high class and conservative in every way and worthy of this office. The voters of this district, regardless of how they are in the present campaign, will make no mistake in voting for Mr. Duncan. He is in every way faithful, a hard worker, conscientious and will vote for those measures that mean for the best interests of all Alabama. He should receive all the votes of Autauga county and a majority in the other two counties. Autauga county presents to the other two counties the name of Graves Duncan as a worthy and capable representative and urges a majority for him. It now appears he will win by a large majority. Under the agreement to rotate it is Autauga's time to elect a senator.

THE NEWLY WEDDED By W. M. Praed

Now the rite is duly done,
Now the word is spoken,
And the spell has made us one
Which may ne'er be broken;
Rest we, dearest, in our home,
Roam we o'er the heather:
We shall rest, and we shall roam
Shall we not?—together.

From this hour the summer rose
Sweeter breathes to charm us;
From this hour the winter snows
Lighter fall to harm us:
Fair or foul—on land or sea—
Come the wind or weather,
Best and worst, whatever they be,
We shall share together.

Death, who friend from friend can part,
Brother rend from brother,
Shall but link us, heart and heart,
Closer to each other:
We will call his anger play,
Deem his dart a feather,
When we meet him on our way
Hand in hand together.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

An interesting summary of Alabama tax laws, with particular reference to industry, was contained in a recent issue of the Manufacturer's Record, the article being written by John C. Curry of the State Tax Commission. Mr. Curry pointed out the advantage which Alabama possesses over other states in having a lower basis for property tax assessments, and also in the fact that the State Constitution prohibits the levying of income or inheritance taxes. He also referred to the fact that in Alabama constitutional limitations protect the taxpayer against any excessive increase in property tax rates without changing the Constitution.

Mr. Curry's article, which occupied a page in the Manufacturer's Record, should be of interest to Alabamians generally as information on the taxation system of their state, and is given below in full:

Location in Alabama during the last few years of a great number of new industries has directed attention to the tax laws of this State, particularly with reference to their effect upon industry. Rapid growth of our industrial centers would appear to indicate that the tax laws of Alabama are quite favorable to industry.

The fact that the Alabama Constitution does not permit the levy of an income tax or an inheritance tax is of such importance to capital and industry as to deserve early mention in any discussion of the State's tax laws. The State Constitution provides: "All taxes levied on property in this state shall be assessed in exact proportion to the value of such property." The revenue law provides: "All taxable property within this state shall be assessed for the purpose of taxation at 60 per cent of its fair and reasonable market value."

The rate of taxation for state purposes is fixed at 6.5 mills, or 65 one-hundredths of 1 per cent annum on the assessed value. This is the maximum rate permitted by the Constitution for state purposes. The Constitution limits the rates to be levied by counties, municipalities, and school districts. The county and municipal rates vary in accordance with the needs at the time of levy. The school district rate is a maximum of 3 mills and, while not levied in every district, is practically statewide. The average rate for state, county and school district purposes for the last tax year was 20.858 mills:

State levy _____ 6.5 mills Fixed.
Average County levy (for all purposes) _____ 11.358 mills varies.
Special School District _____ 3.0 mills fixed.
Average _____ 20.858 mills.

The assessments are made by the county tax assessors and are subject to review by the County Board of Review, which is composed of members of the County Board of Revenue or Court of County Commissioners, except the Judge of Probate, and the county tax assessor. The State Tax Commission supervises all assessments.

All property of public utilities, and shares of domestic corporations are assessed by the State Tax Commission. These assessments are certified to the county assessors for entry in the tax books of the county, and taxes are collected thereon, as on other assessments.

It is well to note that the basis for ad valorem assessments in Alabama is 60 per cent of the fair and reasonable market value of the property, while in most states the basis is 100 per cent of the value of the property. It is admitted that the actual assessment is usually below the 60 per cent basis. In addition to the higher basis used by most states, their rates are usually higher than those in Alabama. Therefore, a comparison of the basis of rates in Alabama with those of almost any other adjacent state will reveal that we have not only a 40 per cent advantage in basis, but also an advantage in rate. The constitutional limitation of all rates in Alabama assures the taxpayers that an excessive increase in rates is impossible without a change in our Constitution.

For the purpose of encouraging the building, extending and operating of factories for the spinning of thread and yarn, and the knitting and weaving of cloth and other fabrics of cotton and wool in this state, and plants for the purpose of building ships, and factories for the manufacture of bags, wood pulp products, paper, wood cabinets and farm implements, or any other manufactured products, the governing body of any county or city is authorized to remit the taxes assessed on such factories or plants, and also on all of the capital stock of such plants or factories for all county and municipal purposes, for a period not exceeding five years from the date of incorporation or organization or completion of such plant or factory. In the opinion of the Attorney General, this exemption cannot apply to the school millage tax, but does apply to all other county and municipal taxes.

Calcium cyanamid manufactures are exempt from all state, county, and municipal property and privilege taxation for 10 years.

In addition to other exemptions which do not directly concern industry, the following property is exempt from taxation: All cotton or other agricultural products in the hands of the manufacturer, which have been produced in Alabama during the current calendar year; all raw material, including coke, produced in Alabama during the current calendar year, when stocked at any plant or furnace, for manufacturing purposes in Alabama; all manufactured articles, including pig iron, in the hands of producer or manufacturer thereof, and at place of production or manufacture, shall be exempt from taxation for 12 months after production or manufacture.

An annual franchise tax is collected by the State Tax Commission from domestic and foreign corporations, as follows: Two dollars per $1000 of capital stock of domestic corporations and $2 per $1000 of capital employed in the State by foreign corporations. As annual permit fee based on capital stock ranges from $10 to $100 for domestic and $5 to $100 for foreign corporations.

A tax of 2 cents per gallon on gasoline is divided among the several counties for maintenance of public roads and bridges. An additional tax of 2 cents per gallon is collected for use of the State, to pay principal and interest on state road bonds.

For special educational purposes there are levied: A gross receipts tax of 2 1-2 per cent on intrastate business of railroads; 2 1-2 per cent on gross receipts of telegraph, telephone, and express companies; two-fifths of a mill per kilowatt hour on hydro-electric power manufactured and sold; 2 1-2 cents per ton on all coal mined; 4 1-2 cents per ton on all iron ore mined; 3 per cent of value at mine or quarry on sand, gravel, slag, and other minerals than coal and iron; an annual privilege tax of $20,000 on sleeping car companies; a sales tax of 15 per cent of the wholesale sales price of cigars, cigarettes, and cheroots.

The license tax received from sale of motor vehicle tags is used for interest and retirement of road bonds and maintenance of state roads.

A number of small annual privilege or license taxes are levied on various classes of business which we do not enumerate here, because very few of these have any direct effect on industry.

The State Tax Commission is composed of a chairman and four associates all appointed by the Governor, and has supervision over tax assessors, collectors, and Judges of Probate.

All returns for assessment of ad valorem taxes are filed with the tax assessor, except those of public utilities. The returns are due October 1 in each year and become delinquent on the first Monday in February following. The taxes due on the ad valorem assessments are due on October 1 following assessment and become delinquent January following due date and bear interest at 8 per cent from date of delinquency.

VOTE FOR

E. D. BANKS, FOR CONGRESS

To The Voters of Chilton County:

I am a candidate for Congress from the Fourth Congressional District of Alabama on the Jeffersonian Democratic Ticket. Owing to the limited time in which I had to make the race I find that it will be impossible for me to see each individual voter personally before election day. Therefore, I am taking this opportunity to solicit the support of every white voter in Chilton County and the other counties of the Fourth District.

I am a Democrat. I voted the Democratic ticket prior to 1928. But when the nominee of the Houston Convention repudiated the party platform and disregarded the precedents and principles of the Democratic Party, I refused to follow such leadership. As chairman of the Anti-Smith organization in Calhoun County I fought the election of Alfred E. Smith and with the aid and assistance of liberty loving men and women we carried the county against Smith by a majority of approximately five hundred votes.

My opponent, elected chiefly by the prohibition and labor vote of this district, deserted his friends and the cause they championed in 1928, and now stands aligned with the friends of unrestricted immigration and the destruction of the Eighteenth Amendment. Despite his desertion of 1928 and the fight he now wages, he comes again, seeking re-election, without any record of achievement, telling the people "Now is the time to vote for the party and not for the man."

This District is entitled to, and has a right to, demand far more than it has received during the past ten years. What has my opponent accomplished for the Fourth District? Where is the Veterans' Hospital which was promised this District and which it should have had? What has any county in this district received from the Federal Government thru his assistance? Ten years of representation should assuredly be crowned with some record of achievement.

I pledge to the voters of the Fourth District that when I go to Washington as their Representative I will represent all the people regardless of party alignment, and that it will be my pleasure to work as actively for all the counties in the district as I will for my own.

CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL (Too Late for Last Week)

Everyone is well pleased with the success the lunchroom had last week and we wish for it continued progress. Mrs. Browder, who has charge of the lunch room, is quite capable of managing it successfully. She is a graduate nurse, and knows many valuable things about diet and nutrition; you may be assured that she is giving your child a well balanced warm lunch. The lunches which are served the children for 10c could not be bought at any cafe in town for twice that much, and we believe the lunches served at school are cheaper than the lunches which the children have prepared for them to bring from home.

Following is the list of children contributing at the dime shower:

Doris DeLoach, Helen Parish, Lila B. Henley, Sarah Nell Sessions, Charles Neighbors, Frances Smith, Wendell Parrish, Mitchell Powell, Leon Kirkland, Jack Lowery, A. J. Citizens Endorse

Candidacy Of Charlie Cox

During this week several letters have come in from the many friends of C. B. (Charlie) Cox, endorsing him as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County, on the Democratic ticket. Following we publish some of the letters:

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Downs endorse C. B. Cox for Tax Collector.

If C. B. Cox was known by all the voters of this County as well as we know him, the race would be over.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Downs.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 29, 1930.

To the Voters of the County: Would like to say just a word to you before the election. I am not in politics nor do I take any active part in it, but this time I can say that I am especially interested in the election of Mr. C. B. Cox Tax Collector.

Everyone knows Charley and knows that whatever he takes a hold to do, he does it right. I have no fear in saying the people will make no mistake in electing him Tax Collector. He is thoroughly reliable and able to give good service to all the Taxpayers. I don't know of a man in the County better qualified than he, nor one who the people would be prouder of as their Tax Collector.

I invite your serious consideration of this matter before casting your vote—then I believe you will vote for him and by so doing I feel like you will never have cause to regret it.

Yours truly,

—O. M. Carter.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 27, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

The day of election is near—we will elect State and County officers—there is one man on the County ticket I am especially interested in, and that is Mr. C. B. Cox for Tax Collector. I am well acquainted with this man and I don't believe there is a better man for the place in the whole County—he is honest, a clean man and thoroughly competent to carry on the business of the office to the credit of the County.

Mr. Cox has never held office and I feel like the voters should pass the offices around and not keep one man in a life time.

Very truly,

—J. A. Mahan.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 28, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

It will not be long now until we will elect our State and County officers. I am especially interested in the election of one man and that is Mr. C. B. Cox, for Tax Collector. I have known Mr. Cox for a long time and have had a great deal of dealings with him and can say I always found him to be fair and honest in all things.

I would consider it a personal favor for my friends in the County to vote for him. He is fully competent to and will give efficient service to all.

Thanking you to give this consideration, I am,

Very truly,

—M. F. Jones.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 27, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As the election day is almost here, when we will go to the polls and elect our County officers, I want to speak a word to the voters in the interest of one man—that is Mr. C. B. Cox, candidate for Tax Collector, of Chilton County.

It seems to me that the voters of the County should be glad of an opportunity to have such a man as he is for one of their servants. He is well known all over the County as a successful business man; is honest, thoroughly qualified for the place and will give efficient service to all. I believe a majority of the voters feel as I do about it and for that reason he will win.

Very truly yours,

—T. S. Pyron.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 28, 1930.

To the Voters of the County:

Would like to say just a word about the election next week. I am not in politics nor do I take so very much interest in it, but this time will say I am especially interested in seeing our Democrat ticket in the County elected.

We have a splendid chance to win

J. G. Duncan, Jr. Democratic Candidate For STATE SENATOR

Fifteenth Senatorial District, Comprising the Counties Of Autauga—Chilton—and Shelby

Eight years ago, Chilton County nominated a man for the State Senate, Autauga and Shelby Counties fell in line, gave him their support and elected him. Four years later it was Shelby's time they nominated a man and Autauga and Chilton fell in line, gave him their support and elected him. As the Democratic Nominee this time, I appeal to the voters to bear in mind that, according to the custom, it is Autauga's time to elect a Senator for this District. If I am elected to the State Senate I shall look to the interest of each County in the District in a fair and impartial way and shall support such measures as will be for the upbuilding and the best interest of our District and our State. Your vote and influence will be appreciated.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court In Equity No. 884.

J. C. Dubose, Complainant, vs. Alice Dubose, Defendant.

In this case it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of J. B. Atkinson that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Alice Dubose to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 22 day of November, 1930, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, this 22nd day of October, 1930.

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria have him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds of children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Klinner-Ratliff Wedding

A wedding of the past week which was of much interest to the Sardis Community was that of Miss Rosa Ratliff and Mr. Arthur Klinner, which occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Ratliff, Sunday morning at ten o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Limbrick in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. Immediately following the ceremony the couple motored to Birmingham and other places.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Ratliff. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Klinner. He is a splendid young man and has been holding a position in Detroit, Mich., for some time. They have the interest of their many friends wishing them a long and happy life together.

News from Thorsby

Miss FRANCES WILSON, Correspondent

Rev. Judson L. Cross of Boston, Mass., spoke in Chapel at Thorsby Institute Monday morning, October 27. It was enjoyed very much by both faculty and student body.

The young people of Thorsby are rejoicing that once again old T. I. has begun entertaining them with games of basketball. Saturday afternoon, October 25, the two literary clubs of the Thorsby Institute, the Philamatic and the Pushmataha, played a very tight game of basketball. Mr. Arnold Littleton acted as referee. At the end of the game the score stood 18 to 17 in favor of the Pushmataha. Cheer up, Philamatic! We're counting on you next time.

Eight of the T. I. teachers enjoyed a picnic breakfast in the woods Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Moody (Iola Gerald) of Birmingham spent the week end with Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald. Mrs. Moody is visiting here for this week.

Miss Margaret Davidson, who has been visiting and lending "a helping hand" to the churches in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama, has returned back to Thorsby.

Thorsby Institute was honored Sunday by having as its visitors several of its former graduates. They were Mr. Ben Brown of Andalusia, Mr. Yancey Kelly and little daughter, Audrie, of Birmingham, and Mrs. Stringer (Boona Lee Wood) of Birmingham.

Miss Margaret Butler of Birmingham spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Butler.

Miss Frances Wilson has returned home from Birmingham where she did temporary work as assistant auditor for the Brown Funeral Homes & Insurance Co., Incorporated.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morgan and children visited Mrs. Morgan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cox of Deatsville visited Mr. and Mrs. Alton Cox Sunday.

Mr. E. N. Bentley spent Monday in Selma.

Miss Jennie Robinson made a business trip to Birmingham Saturday.

Mr. Herbert Adams of Collinsville was the week end visitor of Miss Ruth Martin.

Mrs. Marion Smith (Jewel Martin) spent the week end with her husband at Livingston where he is attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Davenport and Mr. and Mrs. John Childress and children visited Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Davenport at their home in Phil Campbell this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hawkins and Miss Ina Buckner and her friend, Mr. Farris Clark, all of Birmingham, visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Buckner, of Thorsby Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Gracie Littleton spent Wednesday of last week at the hospital in Clanton.

Mrs. Donald Merchant, who went to the hospital in Montgomery last Tuesday and had her tonsils removed, is back home now and doing nicely.

Miss Effie Lou Neugent of Birmingham spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. Roy Rayburn and children returned to their home in Birmingham Saturday. She has been visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Peterson spent the week end in Birmingham visiting their children.

Miss Gertrude Jones had as her guest Sunday Mr. Theodore Hayes of Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Ruth Gerald spent the week end at home.

There will be a stereopticon pictures and lecture at the Congregational church next Sunday night, November 2, at 7:15. The title is "The Upward Trail" in Shaowu. It is a true story of a boy's life.

Master Henry Villadsen of Tuscaloosa is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Robinson.

The Ladies Aid Social will meet with Mrs. J. O. Johnson Thursday, October 6.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pate and their daughter, Roma Lee, went to Wetumpka Saturday where they were joined by Mr. Hollis Pate and wife and Lester. From there the party attended the Fair at Montgomery.

Mr. J. H. Goddard is ill again. We all wish for his speedy recovery.

The Congregational Aid is having a chicken supper at the home of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald Thursday evening from five until eight o'clock. Come and get a delicious chicken supper for only 25 cents. The proceeds will go toward buying a new heater for the Congregational church.

The P.-T. A. Social will meet on Thursday, October 30, at the home of Mrs. Lela Martin. Mothers, please come and let's make this a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood and their son, Frank, and Dr. and Mrs. Edgar of Clanton, attended the Alabama-Vanderbilt football game at Birmingham on Saturday, October 25.

Last Friday afternoon Prof. Bean and the boys of the Thorsby Junior High challenged the remaining teachers and the girls of the Thorsby Junior High to a spelling match. It was very interesting. The girls won. Then there was a contest in singing. The boys had a chorus and the girls had a chorus. The boys chorus won.

Several new pupils have enrolled in the Junior High School this week.

Miss Montgomery from Montgomery, from the Department of Education, spoke Wednesday, October 29, at the Chapel exercises of the Thorsby Junior High.

The following pupils of the Thorsby Junior High won blue ribbons for being perfect in spelling the week of October 20: In the eighth grade, Helen Kendrick, Ruth Foss, Mae Parker, Gracie Watley, Jack Higgins, Grady Popwell. In the seventh grade, Ila Mae Bean, Jane Billingsley, Laura Hilyer. In the sixth grade, Eason Parker, William Sharp. In the fifth grade, Sam Bentley, Eugene Smith, H. L. Collins, Mary Nell Pate, Hattie Lee Porter, Florine McCary, Margaret Ward. In the fourth grade, Lois Parker, Fay Martin, Grace Martin, Carl Foss, Frances Conway, Juanita Maddox. In the third grade, Mildred Wayne Adams, Jewel Brown, Marie Each, Kathleen Honeycutt, Julius Barrett, Howard Minor, Roy Edward Hayes, Jack Littleton, Norman Peterson, Mary Wright. In the second grade, Melvin Blackmon, Thomas Childress, Jeff Cleeckler, Tullis Blankenship, G. W. Collins, Mary Alma Goodgame, Clementine Nations, Horace Oliver, Clemeintine Pearson, Billy Ward, Ruby Raybon, J. W. Williams, Roland Williams, Horace Jr. Williams, Lloyd Williams.

The three Circles of the Missionary Society met Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church. Circle No. 2 was in charge of the program. They have forty-two members on roll now.

Prayer meeting and choir practice will meet Wednesday evening at the Baptist church. Mr. Sutlive will conduct the Prayer Meeting.

The Altruist class of the Baptist church invites all the young people of Thorsby from the ages of 17 to 25, who are not attending Sunday schools elsewhere to come and join them. You will be more than welcomed.

November 3 is now the time for all V. I. Granville the distinguished English actor, will present "Dramatic Interludes" at Thorsby Institute Auditorium November 3, at 8:00 o'clock. It will be a presentation in costume and make-up of the principal characters from the drama of all time. The following are some of the characters which will be impersonated: Oedipus from "Oedipus Rex" — Sophocles; Faustus, "The Tragical History of Dr. Faustus" — Marlowe. Duke of Gloucester, "Richard III" — Shakespeare; Harpagon, "The Miser" — Moliere; Fedya, from "The Living Corpse" — Tolstoy; Francois Villon, the great French poet — Selected.

Mr. Granville is sent out by the Dramatic Interludes Bureau, New York Admission 50 and 35 cents, 35 cents for teachers and students of the Institute and Public School of Thorsby.

Coming at a later date will be another interesting feature of the Lyceum Course; a concert by Richard A. Von Calio, "The One Man Band." He will give such numbers as: 1. Reminiscences of Russia (Peace and Revolution), Russian Church Chimes, Piano-Accordion, Acroplane, Bugle and Whistle guns; 2. The Mocking Bird, Piano-Accordion, Chimes, Bells, Birds, Electric Snare Drums, cymbals, bass drums; 3. Marimba Solo (Somewhere a Voice Is Calling) played with four mallets; Perfect Day, Saxophone, Chimes, Baby-slide Trombone; 4. "Overture," Poet and Peasant, Marimba and Xylophone Solo, piano; 5. College March, played by ten different instruments.

The program includes twelve numbers. I have heard Mr. Von Calio give his concert and also tell of his experience as a spy during the World War. I am looking forward to hearing him again with a great deal of pleasure.

CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

Several weeks ago there was held an assembly for the whole school. There being no auditorium, the children were marched out on the campus where a very successful chapel was held. Last week another such assembly was held with the sixth grade in charge of the program. A very interesting program on the month of October was held. Several of the important days in October such as Columbus Day, James Whitcomb Riley's birthday, the first Colonial Congress, and Halloween were featured. The remainder of the program was devoted to the study of autumn. The fifth grade will have charge of the program next time and then all the grades down through the first if the weather remains favorable enough for us to go out of doors. These assemblies are beneficial to the children and all of them seem to enjoy them.

C. B. COX ADDRESSES THE VOTERS OF THE COUNTY IN THE INTEREST OF HIS CANDIDACY FOR TAX COLLECTOR

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 29, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

It has been my desire to see all the voters of the County in the interest of my candidacy for Tax Collector, but owing to the limited time I have had to do so, I feel it will be impossible to see all. I don't want anyone to feel slighted if I have not seen them.

I am asking all the voters of the County, regardless of their past political affiliation, for their support.

I desire to say further along this line, I deeply appreciate the expressed interest in my behalf of my friends who are of a different political belief, and I trust my conduct in this campaign will merit a continuance of their good will.

I promise each and all, if elected, I shall strive to conduct the affairs of the office in such a manner that no one will have cause to regret having voted for me.

I urge all voters to go to the polls and vote in this election.

I thank one and all for any courtesies shown me during this campaign and sincerely solicit your support on November 4th.

Sincerely yours,
C. B. COX.

Mr. E. D. White endorses C. B. Cox for Tax Collector.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 28, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I rarely ever take any part in politics and am not much of a writer. I would like to say just a few words in the interest of one man, and that is Mr. C. B. Cox for Tax Collector. As I see it, and I believe a majority of the voters of the County see it as I do, we should be glad to have an opportunity to elect a man like Charley. He is a home-grown boy—born and raised in our County—has by hard work made a success of his business, and now for the first time asks the voters to elect him as Tax Collector. Charley is thoroughly fitted for the place, well qualified in all respects, to administer the affairs of the office that would be a credit to the County. Honestly, voters, let's put this man in. I have good reason to believe he will be elected.

Thanking you, I am,

Very truly,
—E. D. White.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 29, 1930.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

C. B. Cox the Democratic nominee for Tax Collector of our County, is a gentleman of sterling worth character. When we place men with his qualities in public office, from constable to United States Senator, we can expect a return of prosperity.

Yours truly,
—J. M. VanDerveer.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. B. F. BOOCKHOLDT

By I. W. Chaulker

Eva Davis Boockholdt, daughter of O. S. and Minda Byrd Davis, was born January 27, 1898, in Wadsworth, Alabama, and died October 7th, 1930, in Montgomery, Alabama.

Between these two dates, lived and labored one of the most beautiful characters the writer has ever known. During the years from 1905 to 1915 Bro. Davis, the father, and his excellent family lived in Clanton, Alabama. There Eva passed from childhood into blooming young womanhood. As she "grew in stature she grew in favor with God and man." She chose that goodly part—the Christian's life, joined the Methodist Church and devoted herself without stint to its service. She never ceased to work for her Lord and Master until she ceased to live.

In 1916 she was happily married to Boldren F. Boockholdt in Calera, Alabama. The happy couple soon moved to the Capital City where the remainder of her life was spent. She left a noble husband and a bright son, Otis, ten years of age. These, with the parents, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Howard and Mrs. John O'Gwynn, mourn her loss. Yea, more than these: a whole community, a whole church mourns her loss. It seems to us that really her place can not be filled, but we all know where to find her.

We carried her body to the church where they covered her casket with flowers, both rich and rare. We laid her body in the tomb October 8th, but the memory of her beautiful, faithful life lingers like strains of a sweet song.

STANDARD OIL TO SELL TIRES

At Their Stations and Through Independent Dealers

Louisville, Ky.—(Special)—W. E. Smith, President of the Standard Oil Company, Incorporated in Kentucky, announces that Company will enter, at an early date, into the business of selling automobile tires throughout the States of Kentucky, Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi.

In his statement issued to the press today, Mr. Smith said, "The growing demand for more complete and exacting service by the motoring public makes this addition to our business a necessary and logical one."

"The tires to be offered by the Standard Oil Company, Incorporated in Kentucky, will be first line and first quality in every respect and will be made by experienced and reliable manufacturers."

"The Standard Oil Company, Incorporated in Kentucky, will retail tires, tubes, and the usual tire accessories at certain of its own service stations, and will be prepared to render complete tire service along with that of supplying the motorist with gasoline, motor oils, greasing service, etc."

"A special feature in the Company's plan is that of offering tires to independent dealers operating filling stations and garages. Tires will be offered to these dealers on a wholesale price basis, assuring them satisfactory profits. It will be the desire of the Company to cooperate with and include these resellers in its tire selling program rather than disturb the business of those dealers, many of whom are valued customers of the Company on petroleum products."

"A little later the Company will, through its representatives or otherwise, present this feature of its marketing plan to dealers and retailers."

"The Company will guarantee every tire sold, whether by its dealers or service stations. This plan provides for a twelve months' guarantee, regardless of mileage, on all tires sold for use on passenger cars, and six months' guarantee, regardless of mileage, on all tires sold for use on commercial cars. This guarantee protects against accidents, blow-outs, cuts, bruises, rim cuts, under inflation, wheels out of alignment, faulty brakes, or any other road hazard. In event of such a condition arising during the guarantee period, the tire will be repaired free-of cost to the owner, or replaced with a new tire for which the owner will pay a price equal to one-twelfth of the usual price multiplied by the number of months the tire was in service, if used on commercial vehicle."

"Adjustments and service, under the Company's guarantee, will be made by any of its dealers or at any of its service stations selling these tires in the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky and Mississippi. Furthermore, arrangements have been made whereby the Company's guarantee will be fully honored elsewhere throughout the United States where the same tires are sold. Likewise the Standard Oil Company's dealers and service stations will honor similar guarantee on the same brand of tires sold elsewhere."

"A moderate scale of charges will be made for service on tires after expiration of the guarantee period, and on other makes of tires."

J. W. COX HAS NICE PATCH OF SUGAR CANE NEAR HERE

Saturday brought J. W. Cox to Clanton for a visit. Mr. Cox is one of our progressive farmers who resides in the Fairview Community, west of here. While in town he called at the News office and left some stalks of fine looking sugar cane that he grew on his farm. He stated that although there was a lack of rainfall on his cane patch, he was able to grow cane that measured, on an average, of six to seven feet in height. He also stated that he hoped to start turning it into syrup in about ten days.

TWO EXTENSION GROUPS MET IN CLANTON LAST SATURDAY

Instructors from the University of Alabama and the State Teacher's College at Jacksonville, Alabama, were in Clanton Saturday holding Extension Courses for Chilton County teachers.

There were approximately thirty teachers composing the 'Extension Group of the State Teachers College, with Prof. A. C. Shelton as instructor on "Methods of Teaching." This group met at the courthouse.

The group of the University of Alabama met at the high school here with Miss Coleman as instructor. There were something like thirty county teachers attending this meeting also.

Mrs. Sara Allen, 90, of Birmingham, Mich., has never missed a church service for 77 years, which makes a total of 4,004 consecutive services.

W. M. U. QUARTERLY MEETING HELD AT LIBERTY HILL

Following is a report of the recent meeting of the W. M. U. of the Chilton County Association:

The W. M. U. Quarterly meeting of the Chilton County Association met with Liberty Hill church on October 23, 1930, with good reports from several churches. Mrs. A. J. Ratliff was elected as District Supt. No. 3 instead of Mrs. Griffin. Our next meeting will meet with Thorsby Baptist church in January, 1931, and we hope to have a good report from each church that has a W. M. U. Let's get to work now and go forward in the work. We can, if we will do our part and ask God to help us.

Sincerely,
—Mrs. W. H. Rayburn, Sec.-Treas.

JOHN GORE MOVED FRUIT STAND TO MULLINS BLDG.

Those persons who are looking for the fruit store of John Gore will no longer find him on Sixth Street, near the Clanton Laundry, but will find him located in a newly arranged place of business on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway, just at the rear of the Mullins & Moore Store. There Mr. Gore has his business neatly arranged, with plenty of light, and from all indications he will soon have to enlarge his present quarters on account of an increase in business.

HAS ANYONE FOUND A PAIR OF CHILDREN'S SLIPPERS?

J. L. Conway, who resides on Thorsby, Route One was in Clanton Saturday, and while in town called at the News office. Mr. Conway stated that last Thursday he was in town and lost some childrens shoes from off his truck somewhere between Clanton and the Isabella Community. If anyone has found these shoes, Mr. Conway will be greatly pleased to have them returned to him.

Never Ending Search

For better ways to cut food prices

As food merchant to a nation, A&P bears a responsibility greater than that demanded of a mere trader in food. Selling food to great numbers of families involves the well-being of millions of people. Reducing the nation's food bill calls for more than the slashing of grocery prices.

It calls for everlasting watchfulness for better methods of food growing and producing, of shipping, of handling and storing, of marketing and retailing food—command of every invention and every means known to man for assisting the flow of food from its sources to the store counter.

Because A&P assumes the entire task of bringing food from producer to consumer, its responsibility to the public is greater than if it performed but a small part. Its search for better methods must be never-ending. Its way of lowering the cost of food to the consumer must be the best.

A&P makes food prices low by the best methods of Today. A&P will keep food prices low by the best methods of Tomorrow.

HEAVY DAMAGE IS SUFFERED BY FIRES HERE

Jim Woodley Suffers Heavy Loss in Farm Equipment When Barn Burns

Considerable damage was suffered when three fires broke out in various parts of the county during the past week end. The barn of Jim Woodley, who lives northwest of Clanton was destroyed by fire last Thursday morning early. One mule was burned to death and two more were burned so badly that it is said they are in serious condition, while another was slightly burned. Quite a bit of farming equipment was also destroyed in the barn as well as a large quantity of feed which was stored in the barn. It could not be learned as to how the fire originated.

The store of J. L. Scroggins, in West End, Clanton, was badly damaged when fire broke out in it early Sunday morning. The alarm was turned in about one o'clock and the local fire department responded immediately, and although the blaze had gained considerable headway in the building, the firemen were able to gain control of it in short preventing it from spreading. The blaze was confined to the inside of the building which is a wooden structure. Practically all the fixtures and stock were damaged beyond repair. The blaze is said to have originated from a small heater in the rear of the store.

The house owned by Tommie Childress of Thorsby, and located just south of Thorsby at Strasburg near the railroad was totally destroyed by fire about midnight last Saturday night.

So far as a representative of the News could ascertain, there was no one living in the house, and the origin of the fire could not be learned.

KIWANIS CLUB COMMENDS H. G. BOYD, WHO GOES TO SELMA

Following is a copy of a resolution recently passed and adopted by the Clanton Kiwanis Club, concerning the departure of H. Glenn Boyd to Selma. Mr. Boyd has become vice-president of the City National Bank at Selma, after serving as president of the Peoples Savings Bank in Clanton for approximately four years:

A RESOLUTION

Whereas, Mr. H. G. Boyd has tendered his resignation as a member of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, owing to his removal from Clanton to Selma, and

Whereas, Mr. Boyd has been, since the organization of our Club one of our most faithful members and one of our most earnest workers in every cause which has been undertaken by our Club, and

Whereas, His removal from our city is a distinct loss, not only to the Kiwanis Club, but to the community of Clanton and Chilton County as well, therefore, be it,

Resolved: 1. That we, the members of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, express to Mr. Boyd our sincere regret that he has decided to leave our town and county;

2. That we appreciate most highly the faithful manner in which Mr. Boyd has served the better interests of our Club, our Town, and our County, as a member of this Club and through every other means possible;

3. That in parting with him as a member of our club and as a citizen of

NEW FEATURES

No doubt our readers have noticed that several weeks ago several new features had been added to the News. Each week there will be found a Sunday School Lesson for the Sunday following the Thursday the paper is published. On the editorial page Parker Stockridge conducts his column "Today and Tomorrow" with some fine thoughts, and elsewhere Ernest Camp, Jr., has a witty column, "Main Street Looks on Broadway," and for the children there is the "Pinky Dinky" comic strip.

In the very near future we intend to give our readers some of Bruce Barton's extremely fine writings in "The Way of Life," and we have also made arrangements to secure pictures of persons occupying places of news interest.—The Editor.

BOY SCOUTS SERVE AS USHERS AT BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY

The sermon, "Scouting for Jesus," preached at the Clanton Baptist church last Sunday night, by Dr. S. J. Ezell, was more effectively impressed on the congregation by the services of Boy Scouts of Clanton acting as ushers at the services in full uniform.

SILAS KELLEY, AGE 72, DIED AT SON'S HOME, WEDNESDAY

Silas Kelley, age 72, died at the home of his son in the Mount Pleasant Community on Wednesday, October 29th. His death came suddenly.

Funeral services were held on the following Thursday morning at eleven o'clock at Samaria, with Rev. B. Lawrence officiating. Martin of Clanton was in charge. The deceased was preceded to the grave ten years by his wife. He leaves nine children, twenty-one grandchildren, and other relatives.

DONATIONS TO ORPHANAGE BEING URGED

"Dollar Day" Set For Nov. 23 To Meet Payments on Judson and Howard Colleges

The Baptist State Executive Board of Montgomery is prompting what they call "Victory Dollar Day" on Sunday, November 23d. The purpose of this is to meet the payments now falling due on bonds issued some years ago on Howard, and Judson Colleges, and the Baptist Hospital at Selma. The suggestion of Dollar Day has met with wide favor. While it is hoped and expected that many who are able will give more than a dollar, according to the suggestion of conscience, it is believed that nearly everyone can give one extra dollar to help take care of the solemn obligation and promise of the denomination.

Dollar Day envelopes will be sent out to the churches for wide distribution. The Baptist churches of this county are invited to co-operate in this comparatively easy but very important method of meeting an emergency which is on the Executive Board. Dr. Barton, Secretary-Treasurer, reports enthusiastic reception of this undertaking both from the associations and from individuals in many parts of the State. The rural churches which do not have services on the fourth Sunday, the 23d, can observe the day just as well on another Sunday. The church treasurers should hurry all funds to the Baptist State Executive Board, 127 South Court St., Montgomery.

We also commend to the churches of the Unity and Chilton Associations a hearty cooperation in loading a car of farm produce for our Baptist Orphanage at Troy, November 20th. The two associations are sending a car jointly to our children. Each church should have a committee to gather up all kinds of provisions—chickens, corn, potatoes, syrup, canned fruit and meat, and bring it to Clanton either November 19th, or 20th, to be loaded. Let all our churches help in this worthy matter.

J. Z. MIMS, Moderator, Unity, B. LAWRENCE, Mod., Chilton.

FAMILY REUNION AT HOME OF MR. AND MRS. E. N. WILSON

An affair that proved very enjoyable for those attending was a family reunion Sunday, October 26, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Wilson.

All the children of the family with the exception of two were present, and several grandchildren were there. The reunion was in celebration of the seventieth birthday of the elder Mr. Wilson.

Mrs. C. B. White, of Birmingham has returned to her home after spending several weeks here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. White.

Miss Zora Guy spent the past week end as the guest of Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin in the Isabella Community.

Miss Loris Calloway, of Birmingham, was a visitor in Clanton Sunday.

Miss Dolly Wells, a student at Alabama College, Montevallo, spent the past week end with her parents in Jemison.

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, was in Clanton Monday.

J. E. Guy, Jr., Died At Wetumpka Home

Funeral services for J. E. Guy, Jr., age 49, who died at his home in Wetumpka Tuesday, were held yesterday morning at ten o'clock, at Wetumpka, Alabama. Death came as the result of a heart attack while he was shaving. He is manager of the Elmore County Bonded Warehouse Company at Wetumpka. He is a nephew of George T. Guy, of Mountain Creek, and a brother of Mrs. D. C. (Bud) Alred of Clanton.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Anllis Kelly of Montgomery, and Mrs. Lonnie Palmer of Wetumpka. Five brothers, A. Reedy Guy, Montgomery; W. E., L. D., and J. M., of Montgomery and M. A., of Ashford, Texas, his sister, Mrs. D. C. Alred of Clanton.

Mrs. J. E. Guy, Sr., was killed in an automobile accident near Clanton about two weeks ago.

REGULAR SERVICES AT THORSBY BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY

There will be services at the Thorsby Baptist Church on next Sunday morning and evening, according to an announcement from the pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones.

At the morning services, to begin at eleven o'clock, Rev. Jones will have as his subject, "The Weary Christ." At the evening services, to begin at seven-fifteen, the subject of the sermon will be "Seven Reasons Why I Do Not Want to Go to Hell." A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend these services.

This week there is being installed in the church building a modern furnace heating system, and it will be ready for use by Sunday it was stated. This will assure those attending the Thorsby Baptist church a comfortable building despite weather conditions.

Mother Of Chas. Franz Died Friday Morning

Mrs. Rosaltha Jane Franz, age 70, died last Friday, October 31, at the home of her son, Charles O. Franz, who resides just east of Clanton, and who is prominently connected with the Alabama Conference of Seventh Day Adventists in Clanton.

Funeral services were held on the following Saturday afternoon at the Seventh Day Adventist tabernacle here with Mr. W. W. White, pastor of the Birmingham church officiating, burial followed in the Clanton cemetery with Martin of Clanton in charge.

The deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. M. C. VanHorn of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. C. L. Ashley of Battle Creek, Mich. Two sons, O. T. Franz of Charlotte, Mich., and Charles O. Franz of Clanton. Eleven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. She came to Clanton something like six years ago from Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Garrison of Birmingham spent the past week end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. White at their home here.

Miss Ethel Mize and Cora Belle Maddox, members of the Isabella school faculty were visitors to Clanton Monday.

Clanton Cyclist Pedals Way From Clanton To New London, Connecticut, and Has Returned

Showing no ill effects of having rode a bicycle through approximately fourteen states, Edison R. Thompson arrived in Clanton last Monday about midnight on his trusty bicycle that carried him from Clanton to New London, Conn., and return.

Thompson left Clanton on September 3 with New London as his destination. The route he took was to Birmingham, to Anniston, to Atlanta, Gainesville, Spartanburg, S. C., Salisbury, S. C. thru the State of North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Washington, D. C., where he stayed three days, and from there to Baltimore, Md., to Philadelphia, Pa., Wilmington, Del., Trenton, N. J., Newark, N. J., New York City, staying there three days, then to Brooklyn, N. Y., New Haven, Conn., Providence, R. I., then to New London, Connecticut, arriving there September 21, and staying until October 13.

He did not follow the same route back. He stated that to rough parts of Virginia he encountered about thirty miles of snow, and plenty of rain and fog, on his return trip. While in Brooklyn he visited the United States

Chilton Co. Teachers To Be Paid On Time

Information was given out this week, definitely, from the office of the County Superintendent of education stating that the school teachers of Chilton County will receive their salaries as usual, instead of after the first of the year, as has been first stated.

This has been made possible by an action taken by the County Board of Education at their last meeting here last Friday. The Board voted to borrow enough money to pay all teachers in the county their regular salaries on time, although the State will not issue warrants until January 1, it was stated. It was also stated that approximately $20,000 will be borrowed to carry out the plans of the local board.

The members of the Chilton County Board of Education are to be commended on this action, which will undoubtedly prove of great assistance to the county at this particular time.

W. L. WILLIAMS RAISES EXTRA NICE POTATOES NEAR MAP'VE

W. L. Williams, one of our county's progressive farmers, who lives on Maplesville, Alabama, Route 2, was in Clanton last week, and brought with him some fine sweet potatoes, a quantity of which he left at the News office.

Mr. Williams stated that in cases there were only twelve of his potatoes in a bushel, by weight, and that he made 98 bushels on one-half acre of ground, and harvested over one-hundred bushels in all.

GEORGE BURNETT CONFINED TO HOME WITH TYPHOID FEVER

George Burnett, who resides near Thorsby, Alabama is confined to his bed with an attack of typhoid fever. Latest reports stated that he is doing as well as could be expected.

Mrs. Omar Henson Shot Last Monday

Information reached the News this week stating that as the result of a quarrel between Mrs. Martin Wright and Mrs. Omar Henson last Monday afternoon at the former's home, near Coopers, Mrs. Henson was painfully injured in the hand when Mrs. Wright's husband is said to have shot her.

The information stated that Wright had been placed in jail here. Mrs. Henson is the daughter of Bill Davis.

MRS. MARY EVEREE DUKE DIED LAST SUNDAY MORNING

Mrs. Mary Evere Duke, age 20, died at St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery Sunday morning, November 2, as the result of giving birth to a son. She is the wife of Carson Duke, and resided in the Poplar Springs community.

Funeral services were held Monday at Poplar Springs church, with the Rev. W. P. Lowery, and the Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby conducting the services. Interment followed in the Poplar Springs cemetery, with Martin of Clanton in charge.

Surviving is the husband, parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cox, and infant son, four brothers and four sisters.

W. S. Parrish, of Mitchell Dam was in Clanton Monday of this week.

DIEF'S SERVICE STATION NOW SELLING PAN-AM GASOLINE

Dief's Service Station, popular service station here, located on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway has announced the change from dispensing Standard Oil products to Pan-Am products, the change having occurred the first of this month.

This station when first opened, was one of the many large stations handling Standard Oil Products, and now has joined the large force of the Pan-Am Company. New and modern Pan-Am pumps have been installed, and other various changes have taken place at the station, transforming it into a real, up-to-date Pan-Am Service station. There will be no change in the line of tires, tubes, etc., as handled by the Dief's Service Station, as the Goodyear tires and tubes will continue to hold their popularity at this station.

UNOFFICIAL RESULTS ON ELECTION GIVEN

Health Unit For County Is Defeated By Almost Three To One

The Democratic Rooster won a great victory in the State, but failed to come out in the lead in this county, according to the unofficial returns, as received from the election Tuesday.

The proposed county health unit, which was voted on in the general election Tuesday, according to the unofficial returns, was defeated by approximately a three to one vote.

On the county ticket, Aikens Collins is in the lead over A. D. Martin by something like six hundred majority. W. G. Culp leads C. B. Cox by a majority of about four hundred, while J. A. Nivens ran close to W. H. Gillespie in the Sheriff's race, with less than two hundred. Percy Pitts led Howard Oden by a safe majority in the race for Representative, while Killingsworth and S. M. Edwards were defeated by a safe majority by Joseph Cobb and J. M. Mims, on the Republican ticket.

Although J. G. Duncan, Jr., lost in Chilton County in the race for State Senator, he came out ahead in Autauga and Shelby counties over Dr. Gragg on the Independent ticket, and George Weaver on the Republican ticket.

There were a few boxes that had not been heard from as we go to press. While Bankhead, Miller and Merrill won sweeping victories over the State, the Heflin-Locke race was won in Chilton County. Major Lamar Jeffers won an easy victory over E. D. Banks on the Independent ticket in the race for congressman from this district. Complete official returns will be given in next week's issue.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY IS GIVEN FOR SUNBEAMS

The basement of the Baptist church was the setting for one of the weirdest of all Halloween parties given on the eve of all Saints. About fifty children were there. Besides the leader, Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, Mesdames M. C. Smith, Herschel Gore, G. C. Armstrong, T. W. Rockett, were invited to meet together on Friday afternoon to work all the magic they knew to overcome the wiles of the witches, and the influence of an unlucky day. It was a night of ghosts, witches and goblins. The place was decorated in a weird and spooky way with black cats, bats, owls, and pumpkin heads. The ghosts came dressed in sheets, and pillow cases, and their rakish costumes gave an added spice of adventure to the scene. The usual Halloween games were played and ghost stories were told. Many games and contests were enjoyed. The refreshments were suggestive of the spirit of Halloween. At the close of the party the children who were walking were given a broom to ride home on. The Sunbeams won't forget this party, "Will we Sunbeams?"

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fox motored to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bates of Vincent spent the day here Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Atkinson.

THORSBY CASH & CARRY STORE

Operated By A. A. Cox, Handling A Supreme Line of Groceries, Fruits, Vegetables, Canned Goods, Feeds, Flour and Notions

One of the most practical and efficient men in the grocery business today is A. A. Cox, situated in Thorsby, and enjoying the confidence and liberal patronage of the people of this section of Alabama.

This store is recognized as one of the most popular in the city, for the reason that there can be found in their stock at all times, the very things you need to make the table attractive and most inviting; carrying a full and complete line of vegetables, groceries, candies, tobacco, cigars, notions and feeds.

The obliging and cordial treatment of each individual customer has made for the Thorsby Cash and Carry Store an enviable reputation, and in view of this the store has built a trade that extends to the most remote sections of this and adjoining counties.

Mr. Cox, being numbered among our most progressive citizens, believing in all those things that will help us onward and upward, has been in a large measure responsible for the constant increase in the business, and this coupled with his practical ability along the grocery line, has made for the Thorsby Cash and Carry Store a most inviting place to trade, and thus giving the patron the absolute assurance that he is getting good goods at the lowest possible price the market affords.

If you are not already a patron of this progressive store, regardless of where you live, it will pay you to come to Thorsby, call at this aggressive establishment, and learn their prices and the high quality of groceries they continually carry in stock.

QUEER FAMILY MUDDLE

A case is reported which presents an unusual problem of relationship among the members of a certain California family. The man in the case has found a solution of the problem by giving himself up for bigamy.

Ten years ago he married a supposed widow, a Mrs. Stapleton, who had a 16-year-old daughter. Hearing later that his wife had a living husband in Texas, he left her and married the daughter, who has since borne him three children.

Recently he learned that Stapleton had really died before the widow's remarriage, consequently he finds himself with two wives on his hands, one of whom is his mother-in-law and the other his step-daughter, while his three children are the grandchildren of his first wife. A rather awkward situation for all concerned.

When Earnest Brown of Rochester, N. Y., was captured after escaping from the penitentiary, he explained he was bored because the time passed too slowly.

WEYLER, THE BUTCHER

General Valeriano Weyler of Spain who died a few days ago at the age of 92, was the last of the officers of high rank who sought to suppress the final revolution of Cubans against Spanish rule. To his ruthless policy was largely due the popular indignation which finally led the United States to espouse the cause of the Cubans in 1898 and win their freedom.

Weyler was sent to Cuba in 1896, shortly after which he adopted a most brutal "reconcentration" system whereby Cuban women and children were herded in concentration camps, where thousands suffered and died. He became generally known throughout Cuba and the United States as "Weyler, the Butcher," and as such he is remembered in the western hemisphere.

He was recalled from Cuba in 1897, but the sentiment against Spain because of his acts was crystallized by the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor on the night of February 15, 1898, and made war inevitable. Soon Cuba was freed from Spanish rule forever.

Weyler later became captain-general of Madrid and held numerous important military commands. About four years ago he was court-martialed on a charge of plotting to overthrow the government, but was acquitted, and had since lived quietly in retirement.

CAT PSYCHOLOGY

What does a cat do when it sees a rat? Sounds like a foolish question, doesn't it? And ordinarily it would be, but Zing Yang Kuo, a noted Chinese psychologist, says it all depends on the cat's bringing up.

After innumerable experiments with 59 kittens in his laboratory, he finds that sometimes cats and rats become affectionate playmates. This occurs when the cats and rats are placed together practically from birth. Even without this contact, only 45 per cent of his kittens attempted to kill rats unless they had seen their mothers do it, while after seeing a rat killed nearly all followed the mother's example.

So, Prof. Kuo says, "our studies show that kittens can be made to kill a rat, to love it, to hate it, to fear it, or play with it."

All of which is interesting, even though the practical benefit of this knowledge of rat psychology is not apparent to the layman.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for the people were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early time were drastic plagues and plagues for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, useful for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, laxative.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from indigestion, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BD, Monticello, Illinois, for a trial bottle.

"When I was a child, if I did not feel well, or if I had a cold, my mother gave me Black-Draught," says Mrs. Orpha Hill, of Wofford, Ky. "When I was married, it became a family medicine in my own home, as it was in my mother's."

"I take it for headache and especially for constipation. When I get bilious, my skin gets yellow and I have a very bad taste in my mouth, and a drowsy feeling all during the day. My eyes burn and I get dizzy, or my head is 'swimming.' When I take Black-Draught, it seems to drive the impurities out of my system and I feel fine. I am seldom without this reliable remedy."

CLANTON LAUNDRY & CLEANING CO.

One of Our Chief Assets, Insofar As Convenience and High-Class Workmanship Along Their Line Is Concerned

The housewives should be mighty thankful that they have within easy access the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company, located here in Clanton and possessing a reputation for doing the very best work that is turned out in this section.

This laundry, owned and operated by men who are skilled in the business, are never satisfied with anything short of first-class work, and train their help accordingly, feeling and knowing that the people of Clanton and surrounding territory are duly entitled to the best, and in view of this every effort is put forth in behalf of good work at reasonable prices.

Their laundry is well equipped not only to turn out high class regular work, but specializes in one-day service delivery, if so desired. Another strong feature of the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company is their ability to do family washings, either in the wet or completely finished. With the prices they have on the family wash proposition it is scarcely worth the wife's serious effort to trudge and labor a whole day at home when she can save her strength and have washing done in a more sanitary and convenient way.

The Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company makes it very handy for their patrons, regardless of where they live—a phone call will bring their route-man, the work will be done with neatness and despatch and will be delivered again to your door.

The representatives of the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company are men who stand well in the community; are interested in it and its people; are thorough business men, conducting a business that is not only an asset to the community, but one that is as necessary as any for the convenience of the public. Their ability to do work equal to the best is not doubted by any, therefore, we respectfully suggest in this review edition that if you are not already a patron of the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company, to become one, and note the good, clean, substantial work they turn out at a most reasonable price.

CLANTON CASH STORE

A Modern Store Filled to Overflowing With Seasonable Merchandise That Should Appeal Strongly To Every Buyer in This Vicinity

It is highly interesting to shop at the Clanton Cash Store, inasmuch as their windows are so well representative of the inner-store and the many seasonable things they carry in stocks—goods that should appeal to every man, woman and child who is interested in high class merchandise offered at almost matchless prices.

This store is centrally situated, and carries a line of men's and boys' ready-to-wear that is seldom duplicated in a city the size of Clanton and the quality of this merchandise is of the standard brands that are known everywhere for service and satisfaction. Aside from ready-to-wear for men they carry an attractive line of haberdashery, notions, dry goods, shoes and sundry other articles that go to make a complete and comprehensive line that is modern, strictly fashionable in everything that is the mode of the day and seasonable, hence it will pay you to visit this aggressive, high-class store, get fully acquainted with their stock and prices, and thus learn first hand that the Clanton Cash Store can save you money and in every instance, give you high-class merchandise of a variety that will please and render entire satisfaction.

This popular and modern business concern also operates the Ideal Dry Goods Company Store at Maplesville, where also you are offered most distinctive values six days in the week, hence in this issue we take pleasure in referring the people to these two enterprising stores when in need of anything in their line.

UPCHURCH DRUG COMPANY

The Rexall Store, Well Established and Well Regulated, And Is Far In Advance of This Section of Alabama

Doubtless every citizen in Clanton is exceedingly proud of the fact that they have in the Upchurch Drug Company Store one of the finest equipped and best regulated stores of its kind to be found anywhere in the state.

This store carries everything in the drug line, fills prescriptions with accuracy, and gives you every attention to be hoped for in the way of courteous and obliging treatment, and their systematic business policy actually saves you money when you become a regular patron of this busy, careful and modern drug store, in every way, complete and the real drug store of this section of Alabama.

The managers and owners of this exclusive drug store are recognized as among our best and most substantial citizens, sparing neither time nor expense in making their store both attractive and inviting.

Especially is this store noted for its ability to fill and compound the most difficult prescriptions with accuracy and precision, carrying constantly in stock all the necessary elements in the pharmaceutical line that are needed to do so.

The Upchurch Drug Store also enjoys a reputation for carrying in stock a large and well selected line of choice box candies of the highest grade, and at prices that appeal to all, and this, no doubt, accounts for the large and select trade they have in "sweets."

Their drinking fountain, you would think, was the fountain of perpetual youth, judging from the many young and old that frequent it so regularly, this for the reason that this fountain prepares its many flavors from pure extracts and handles only the superior grades of ices and ice cream.

In addition to drugs this store carries a full and complete line of toilet articles, rubber goods, novelties, and a line of accessories thereto that is well worth your inspection, so in view of these facts we would suggest a visit to this store and thus get acquainted with their stock of goods, their prices and their ability to serve you, and we assure you that in every instance it will be a mutual benefit to all concerned, and that in every instance you will be well satisfied with your purchase and the price paid.

Mr. Upchurch is deserving of much credit for the establishment of this successful business which is favorably known from coast to coast and from the Gulf to the Canadian border.

CLANTON MOTORS

Selling the Ford Products, the Car Supreme, in Action, Style and Durability—Service and Accessories, and Genuine Ford Parts, A Strong Factor

Competitors, and some others, claim that there are other cars built just as good as the FORD. None, however, claim that there is built a better car—regardless of price.

And this is plainly verified by individuals who have tried the higher-priced cars, and found them wanting, in comparison with the durable, time-tested, ever-ready and conscientious FORD.

No farther away than our neighbors in Southern Alabama, lives a family, one of the wealthiest in the state, who have been accustomed to owning and driving high-priced cars costing as much as $5,000, and even more. Last spring they stored with their local dealer their $5,000 worth of automobile and there it has remained ever since. Some time afterward the garage man, who housed the high-price car, happened to meet one of the family on the street, and casually remarked to him: "Say, Mr. H., when are you going to take your car out of the garage?" To the dealer and garage man's surprise, he answered: "Dam if I know. Guess we'll just leave here there and become junk."

Upon further inquiry by the garage man, who, by the way, handles a line of cars that are direct competitors of the Ford, learned that the wealthy family had just recently purchased two Fords and that their "nigger" driver, upon being questioned as to his likes and dislikes concerning the FORD car remarked: "Say, boss, I sure does like to ride and drive in dis yer Fo'd betta' than in that big old boat." And the dealer learned further that the members of this wealthy family preferred riding in the Ford to the supposed luxuries of the high priced car, which they are now allowing to become a part and parcel of the discarded car list.

The Clanton Motors handles a full line of accessories, and service cars with entire satisfaction. They are one of the best equipped garages in the state of Alabama and at all times employ good mechanics, positively allowing no inexperienced help to experiment on any car. They are in the business to stay; like it and are making a life's study of it, and this is the fundamental of their success.

In this review we recommend the FORD car as the best money can buy, and the Clanton Motors as the best equipped to do your repair work, for their stock is complete with a garage space that is equalled by none in this section, and in fact and indeed throughout the whole state. The Clanton Motors building and its efficient management, Mr. T. J. Littlejohn, are to be highly commended for the manifest interest they have taken in the city and community by erecting this sturdy industrial building in Clanton.

Reduce the Acid

SICK stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Prosperity vs. Depression

PROSPERITY is up for election, running to overthrow DEPRESSION.

It's for the people to decide which will be chosen. Every man and every woman is privileged to ballot—every day.

DEPRESSION has no rightful place with a hundred and twenty million people, exchanging goods and services—capable—accustomed and willing to work—more highly skilled than other peoples—leaders in efficiency and progressiveness—backed by the vast natural resources of the United States. When we make it possible for the man who works to have a job we make it possible for him to buy food for his family and so help all business, including that of the farmer.

The rest of the world is of small importance compared with that free market of 120,000,000 people—homogeneous—of like tastes, habits and aspirations—living under the same laws—free of trade barriers. Foreign trade may be troubled by tariffs and revolutions, but at their peak our exports represented only five and a half billions of dollars of gross business in a year out of a total American income of ninety billions.

Stagnation of circulation is what's the matter with agriculture and with business. Everyone can help to get that circulation moving again.

Government can't make Prosperity—alone. Bankers and other business leaders can't make Prosperity—alone. It's the people, united in opinion and purpose and courage, who determine Prosperity. They can elect it—none other.

Ballots that will be validly counted, for PROSPERITY are of many kinds. Some one of them every man and woman can cast. For example:

Help a deserving man or a woman to get a little paying work—or, better, a regular job.

Spend wisely and not too timidly, and anticipate scheduled expenditures so far as is practicable.

Turn the deaf ear to false, mischievous rumors; and don't repeat them, if you do hear them.

Be willing to pay a fair price. Don't take advantage of the other man's necessity. Recognize that he has as good claim to a fair profit as you.

When a vampire that fattens on the miseries of others shows up, help to make him unpopular.

Discourage calamity howlers.

Keep business moving evenly, and remember that, to the average man, his job is his particular business. When possible, reassure him against his fear of losing it.

Save, but save wisely, not in fright. Invest for the profit that sound enterprise pays and for the added profit that will come after the hysteria of pessimism has passed.

Doing Things Differently

Sometimes a difficult situation can be altered by the simple process of doing things differently from the way in which they have been done. A case in point is the feeding of wheat to cattle and hogs.

Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board said the other day that the feeding of wheat has become so general that it may absorb enough of the surplus wheat to affect prices in favor of the farmer. A few progressive farmers started this several months ago, when the bottom first dropped out of the wheat market.

If everybody who is feeding beef cattle or hogs would feed wheat, those who have tried it assure us they can produce more beef or pork per bushel of wheat fed than by feeding the same amount of corn. At the present comparative prices of the two grains, this is economy. As this is written, there is a spread of less than three cents a bushel between the prices of wheat and corn on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat is abnormally cheap, corn not much below a normal price for this time of year. The only reason why corn is usually fed to livestock and poultry instead of wheat is because corn is so much cheaper. At anything like the same price, wheat is the more profitable feed.

The general feeding of wheat instead of or in combination with corn, through this Winter, would do more for farm relief than any amount of new legislation could accomplish.

Bunk

By Frank Parker Stockbridge

A rumor is being circulated all over the country, to the effect that President Hoover is shortly to give his approval to the manufacture of beer containing 275 percent of alcohol. The brewers, according to the rumor-mongers, are ordering new machinery by the million-dollars' worth, and before New Year's Day expect to put several hundred thousand men at work making beer, buying quantities of grain from the farmers for this purpose, and thus at one stroke restoring farm prosperity, eliminating unemployment and repealing the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law!

It is interesting, but it is all bunk. Nothing of the sort will be done. It would not be worth paying any attention to, were it not for the fact that it is not only being passed by word of mouth to business men, bankers and others who are in doubt whether to believe it or not. Even if the President desired to open the door to the free manufacture and sale of real beer, of which desire there is not the slightest evidence, there is no authority under the Prohibition law or any other whereby he could do so. The law is extremely clear and explicit. No beverage containing more than one-half of one percent of alcohol can legally be made or be sold in the United States, and only Congress can change that. The likelihood of any such action by the present Congress or the next is about equal to the likelihood of a collision between the earth and the moon.

We know whereof we speak, when we say again that this wide-spread rumor, which some of the city newspapers have been printing as if it were true, has no foundation except in the imaginations of the people who wish it were true.

"ROUND TOWN"

—by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being, wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

* Let's us folks get down to business now that the election is over and we all know who is going to be what, and you fellows that lost in your race, just take it as it is and forget it until next time, cause it's done done now.

Hallowe'en night brought lots of mess on our streets here, after our youngsters got through plundering through town. And one of the things I noticed was that the majority of those making up the parties were girls about the age of 13, 14 and 15 years. In my opinion this didn't look so good some young girls to be out at night dragging garbage cans into the street and lining the streets with trash of various kinds. Anyway, the streets were in a powerful mess when the little groups of merry-makers went home.

On December 19, 1929, this column first saw the light of day, so that means that it won't be long until we will have a birthday—our first one. I remember that the first attempt at writing this column ended with only three or four short paragraphs, and the majority of that was devoted to one, Mr. M. Lande, and in it I told of the large amount of business his store. The Leader, was doing at that time of year, and if I should wish to do that at this time, I would have to make it stronger, because I believe that he is still doing lots of business. But guess it is just natural,—don't he know how to advertise? You betcha life he does and he gets the business too.

Now after almost a years time, this column has grown into a large size. Speaking of improvements, permit me to toot my horn and that of this newspaper by calling your attention to the appearance of this newspaper about four years ago. You laughed at it didn't you? Sure you did. I'll bet there wasn't half a dozen people reading it. Now I think they can boast of several thousand readers, and all are satisfied readers too. And another thing I want to call your attention to is the fact that the Chilton County News stands third from the top of the eleven outstanding weekly newspapers in Alabama, as picked and named by the Alabama Press Association. That is an honor never before brought to Chilton County, and the newspaper that you laughed at four years ago, brought that honor to this county. Speaking of the press association makes me think about the joke we have on the editor of the News, about being the champion baby nurer in the state.

Had a little conference with our editor not long ago, and I was thinking of a newspaper trying to please everybody, and he said it couldn't be done, and called my attention to the fact that there are something like 23,000 people in Chilton County, and he didn't try to please them all, but stuck to certain principles, that are right, however he added that he was open for suggestions from anyone. And I guess he's right, cause first thing 'he knew if he tried to please them all, he might be like the story of the man, the boy and the donkey.

Was down in Verbena not long ago and had occasion to stop at the Verbena Service Station, where Charlie Gulledd hangs his hat, and has as his very competent assistant, Miss Daisy Whitworth. That is certainly a busy place if you ask me, and I've been noticing the ads Mr. Gulledd runs in this newspaper about Mansfield tires, and by George, he has got some real low prices on that good tire, and service—well, you get it there and pronto. Sometime just drop by and see for yourself.

Was talking to Broadus Connatser the other day and he tells me that round at Fox's Furniture Store, they are going to sell you something, and sell it to you cheap, and judging from what I hear about the prices they have placed on their goods, it would pay you to buy it there and buy it now while it's cheap.

Somebody said the other day that I was as crazy as a loon. Well, I don't know what a loon is, but still I might be crazy, and even if I am, they say the Lord takes care of a baby, a crazy person, and a drunk man, but they didn't tell me whether He took care of fools or not.

All through this paper this week, you will see write-ups about different places and people in this part of the county. It makes good reading matter and a Mr. Payne has been in Clanton several days doing this work. He tried to see all the merchants about it and I guess he did. Anyway when you see an article with a head about some business, it's a darn good article, if I do say so. And did you know that this newspaper is held up by many persons throughout the state as a model weekly newspaper? And it takes a whole lot to make a model newspaper, one of the main things being its service to the community where it is published, and the News has "It."

And so John Mullins has taken upon himself a helpmate. Twas quite a surprise to me, but after I saw the newest Mrs. Mullins, I really couldn't blame John for his action. And frankly, I thought that when he got married he would have a great big church wedding, but he did it like I am going to—maybe.

Looks to me like that the people of the county are not so interested in the health conditions, judging from the vote they cast for and against the proposed health unit. But I guess they will have to live and learn, but there ain't no use in making a great big mistake just to learn something if you can help it beforehand.

The good ole Democratic Rooster just crowed a big one over the state, and crowed some in this county, and I believe that the next time it will crow bigger and better than ever, cause the next crow from this county will be a crow of Victory. The only thing I am afraid of is that he may strain his vocal cords then.

Didn't anybody get murdered during the election Tuesday nor on Tuesday night in Clanton, and the whole thing was rather quiet, in fact quieter than I expected. One fellow did get into a bad fix up in Thorsby Tuesday night, but I don't know whether it was on account of politics or not.

Something ought to be done about that fire siren alarm we have here, cause it didn't blow so well Saturday night, and didn't make any of our firemen hear it. But those few who did hear it, really got up and got.

BUILDING

Building operations in the United States go by fits and starts. One year there will be a building boom, the next year a depression. One reason is the difficulty of financing the spread between first mortgage money and the building owner's capital.

Some Chicago builders have a plan whereby the people concerned in the building industry do this financing themselves. Contractors, supply manufacturers, dealers in building materials, architects, and labor are to take a part of their pay in junior mortgage certificates which will be required to build. This plan will not reduce wages or profits, but generally adopted will make building operations independent of general financial conditions.

BOULDER

Things are moving in the Hoover Dam project at Boulder Canyon on the Colorado River. Power lines are about to be run to the site, to furnish energy for the handling of the immense masses of stone and concrete which will be required to build the dam. Engineers are being appointed, plans have been made for the town to house the ten thousand workmen who will be employed on the job, bids have been asked for some of the materials which will be first required.

It takes time to carry out a great project like this. Five and one half years is the lowest estimate from the day construction begins until the dam is finished. It takes a lot of time to prepare to begin work.

That is the difficulty about relying upon public works to relieve a sudden stress of unemployment—it takes so much time to plan and provide for financing them that by the time the work is ready to begin the period of unemployment may be almost over.

SUGAR

The announcement by the Department of Agriculture that the Federal sugar cane experiment station at Canal Point, Florida, has developed a cane which yields a third more sugar to the acre than any previously known variety, and is at the same time resistant to cane diseases, is of importance to everyone in the United States. We consume several times as much sugar as any other nation in the world. Our sugar producers have had difficulty in competing with foreign sources. The sugar industry in Louisiana was practically wiped out a few years ago, by plant diseases; the Mississippi flood of 1928 almost finished the job. But the introduction of a new type of sugar cane from Java, known as "P. J. 213," that should mean, eventually, both a reduction in cost of sugar to the consumer and better profits to the grower.

The new cane developed in Florida, called "C. P. 807" yields a ton more sugar to the acre of cane than does "P. O. J. 213." That should mean, eventually, both a reduction in cost of sugar to the consumer and better profits to the grower.

FRAUD

A Florida man shipped a carload of oranges to a produce dealer in Virginia. The dealer sent the shipper a check for $250. The Florida man invoked the recently enacted Federal Produce Agency Law and halted the dealer into the Federal court. The proceedings disclosed the fact that the net proceeds of the sale of the oranges was nearer $700 than $250. The court ordered the dealer to pay the shipper an additional $463, with interest, and to pay it before November 4 or go to jail.

It looks as if there is at last a way in which shippers of farm products can get the money due them. State and local laws don't protect them; they operate in favor of the local dealer and against the shipper from another state. The Federal courts are not subject to local influences, and the new law seems to have teeth in it.

EDUCATION

We spend more money for education than for anything else, but there are still hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of American grown-ups who have never learned to read and write. The death of the old day of Thomas Young, whose occupation was that of "public writer," in a good-sized town close to New York city, revealed the fact that hundreds of persons in the White Plains who could not write were in the habit of going to him to write their letters for them. In New York State alone, by the Census of 1920, there were 425,000 persons over 10 years old who could neither read nor write, and all but 10,000 of those were over 21. Nor were they all foreigners; more than 30,000 were native-born whites. The number is probably smaller now; the 1930 Census figures on illiteracy are not yet available. But there were more than three million white folks over ten years old, and nearly two million negroes, who could not read in any language, in 1920, and the probability is that there are still three or four million illiterate citizens.

When James Dorsey of Duluth, Minn., was caught in a store at three a. m. he told the policeman who arrested him that he was "taking stock."

On grounds that her husband refused to excess and neglected her to attend moving picture shows, Mrs. Joseph Cesal of Chicago has been granted a divorce.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York—Nine months I have spent in New York. Yet I have not eaten more than a half dozen decent meals—and all these at private homes and apartments.

No matter where you eat or what you spend, it seems almost impossible to find pure, fresh, and unadulterated food, intelligently cooked and served.

Like almost everything else you buy here, food is usually an ingenious swindle.

Tasteless Vegetables

Vegetables and fruits, in particular, are unfit for human consumption. That is, in the opinion of one who comes from the South, where the humblest laborers in the cotton fields eat better vegetables than New Yorkers pay cover charges for.

All the vegetables I have seen in New York taste exactly alike—exactly like water-soaked sawdust. They are not fresh, and no one knows how to prepare them.

Then there is milk. After drinking some of the pale, pellucid fluid that parades under that name, I can understand one reason for the pitiful little sunken-jawed children that haunt these streets... their wasted, heart-breaking little bodies.

Milk! Any self-respecting, God-fearing cow who saw this stuff would turn over in her stall and weep great, salty tears.

It is about the color of household ammonia, and contains about as much butter fat as the clear, sparkling liquid that we used to quaff from the Old Oaken Bucket.

You stop at a fruit stand and pay as high as ten cents apiece for "apples," and what do you get? A large, rather well-shaped fruit of pale green or yellow color with a flat, flavorless meat and no juice whatsoever.

Down in the mountains of Tennessee and Georgia, such junk is fed to hogs. But so long as New Yorkers don't know, and can't get any better—who cares?

The Orange Swindle

But perhaps the biggest joke—or the biggest burglary—is the "orange juice" you buy at innumerable street stands. Thousands of people have convinced themselves that this is excellent for "health."

It's a thin, concoction of plain water, sugar, artificial color and a casual dash of orange. Health! Orange juice! Haw! Haw! Haw! A walk around the corner would do a lot more good.

I am told that even the "chocolate" candy that I buy is principally cinnamon, ingeniously used to simulate chocolate, with just enough of the real article added to give the product a deceptive color and flavor.

Even the air in New York City—and I am not joking—is adulterated. It reeks with a larger percentage of dirt, carbon monoxide (auto exhaust), chemical fumes, and other foul, nauseous gases than the air anywhere else that I have been luckless enough to discover.

Mounted on one of the high buildings on lower Broadway is a machine that tests the "purity" of the atmosphere by sucking air from the streets all day. Every twenty-four hours that one machine, in that one place, pulls in SEVEN TONS of solid dirt. That gives you a ROUGH idea.

The Water Is Pure

As yet, these clever New Yorkers have found no way to adulterate the water that we drink. But give them time! Give them time! Rome wasn't built in a day.

Otto Kahn, the banker and philanthropist, owns twenty-five automobiles. And his chauffeur states that all of them are constantly in use.

—Just goes to show that the wealthy have their cares and burdens, too. If I had twenty-five cars to use all in one day, I don't believe I'd get anything else done whatever. Tough life!

"Who's that new girl I seen you with last night?" "That ain't no new girl, it's my old girl painted over."

Isabella School News

Isabella Defeats Montevallo 12 to 6. Isabella seems to have awakened to a new spirit last Friday when they played Montevallo at Isabella. During the first quarter Montevallo made two threats to score, bringing the ball within three yards of the goal line, but each time they were held for downs.

The second quarter was a punting battle between the two teams.

After the half, each team seemed to have come back with a determination to win. Isabella kicked off. Montevallo made a nice return run. Luther Mims made a beautiful broken field thirty yard run for a touchdown through the Montevallo line, and the third quarter ended with the score 6 to 0.

Isabella made several nice off-tackle runs during the next quarter, which finally placed the ball within a few feet of the Montevallo goal. Isabella made a trick pass, which was received by Burnette, which resulted in a touchdown. Isabella tried to buck the line, for the extra point, but finding Montevallo's line too stiff to buck it over, failed.

Then having but a few minutes to play neither team showed any more good plays and the game ended with the score 12 to 6. After the game the boys from each team were served plate lunches by the Home Economics girls.

The Community Fair, which was held Friday, was well attended. At the lunch hour plates were served in the Home Economics rooms. Dr. H. M. Nix of Maplesville made a short speech explaining the County Health Unit.

Many attended the play, "Eyes of Love," that night. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the school.

On Saturday night, November 8th, two string bands will be at the school auditorium to entertain with a musical program. Admission is 15 and 25 cents. Proceeds go for church benefit. Everyone is invited.

A CORRECTION

A correction is to be made pertaining to those who helped put up the community exhibit at the State Fair. Those helping were Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin, Miss Ethel Mize, Miss Dorothy Manning, Miss Nellie Hayes, Mr. Howard Oden, Mr. Earle Thomas, Mr. O'Neal Turner, Miss Cora Bell Maddox.

WHAT IS GOOD ATTENDANCE WORTH?

By Hollis Hiten

The title to this article has no reference to the money value of good attendance, but if there is any positive correlation between grades in school, and earning power out of school attendance has a money value. Since this condition has been proved to be a fact there is all the more reason for building and maintaining good attendance records.

Following are the results of a little check-up on the effect of attendance on grades: (This data is for the Junior High School boys of the Verbena High School for the first month of school this year)

The average grade of all the pupils included in this check-up was 72.83 per cent for those who attended every day. For those who were absent one or more days the average was 70.38 per cent. This shows a difference of 2.45 per cent. The average number of days absent per pupil was 1.375. Thus each day absent from school means a lowering in grade of 1.78 per cent.

On this basis 7.02 days' absence from school will cause a C plus student to fall according to our system of marking. Likewise 4.21 days' absence will cause a C student to fail. A "barely get by" student can not afford to be absent at all. Three days' absence will cause an A student to fall to B plus, etc.

Of the Junior II and Junior III classes' marks 35.48 per cent of the marks given to pupils who come every day were conditions or failures while 51.85 per cent of the marks given to pupils who missed one or more days were conditions or failures. Tardiness was not considered with absence. It was included in the first group, as if it were perfect attendance.

This data is by no means complete, and can only serve as an index to the real state of conditions, but it does show that there is a positive correlation of poor attendance and poor grades.

We have proved that attendance can be improved by continued working, using devices, etc., in the Verbena school this year. For example, the group which is the subject of the above data, had an increase the first month of this year of 14.5 per cent over the first month of last year, 1929-30.

Attendance is worth considering.

Wide-Awake Class of Boys In Soils and Crops
By Theodore Littlejohn

Mr. Varnell's agriculture class of boys are doing some very practical work in agriculture this semester. They have planted already twenty pounds of Italian rye grass on the campus. They have completed the project of the study of cotton, and are now ready to study all phases of the cultivation and nature of corn. The class has also made some soil tests, which everyone enjoyed.

Hon. Lamar Jeffers Visits School
By Ruth Elyne Maddox

Tuesday morning we had with us one of the most distinguished visitors we have ever had in the history of our school in the personage of Hon. Lamar Jeffers. He gave us much food for thought in his enlightening talk. He urged each of us to look to the future, to utilize our time and opportunities, and to work towards a goal.

In another part of Mr. Jeffers talk he showed the close contact we may have directly with the government through representatives. He mentioned the great opportunities which we have of studying our government. The speaker prevailed upon us to thoroughly study our state and national problems and endeavor to draw sound logical conclusions. He reminded us of the duty of preparing ourselves to become good citizens. We were grateful to Mr. Jeffers that from his busy round of activities he gave the time to visit our school. Through his personality we made us feel nearer to our lawmakers, and to our government.

The Importance of Good English
By Pearl Vinson

The term "Good English" means the English used by the best speakers and writers of the English language. Therefore we may look upon it as the most nearly perfect English of the day. It is both simple and powerful and one of the ground pillars of the success, advancement, and enlightenment of the English world. It is the medium through which we communicate and exchange ideas and thoughts. Usefulness and prominence are common ambitions of people and to attain either, especially in a social way, it is of most vital importance to be able to speak good English.

Senior Class Has Charge of Assembly Program
By Faye Petty

Each week a class has charge of chapel exercises. Wednesday morning, October 29, the Senior III class had charge. Devotional was conducted by Homer Carroll, who made a most impressive talk. Class songs were sung, and announcements made. Next Wednesday, the Senior II Class will have charge with Miss Kendrick leading.

Collins Chapel News

The enrollment at the present time is 180. There were eighty that received attendance slips last Friday. The old school building on this campus will soon be moved. As soon as it is completely moved we are going to sod the lawn with winter grass.

Next Monday, November 10, the people who are interested in Collins Chapel will begin preparing the ground for the new church building. The women will bring dinner for the men who work. Everybody is invited to come and help work.

CLANTON SHOE SHOP

Clanton's Reliable Shoe Repairer,
Where Honest Prices and Honest Work Reign Supreme

By Frank J. Payne

Winter is fast approaching and it is highly necessary that you give early consideration to the matter of your own shoes, and those of your children, for the reason that it is a well-known fact that dry feet mean the saving of many a dollar in doctor's and druggist's bills.

For this reason in this edition we want to call your attention to I. D. Armstrong's high-class repair shop, situated here in Clanton, enjoying the distinction of being a first-class mechanic and one who thoroughly understands the shoe repairing business.

His prices are consistent with the superior-class of work he turns out, which stands him in a class to be recognized as among the best, and yet he is most considerate in his charges. Regardless of what serious condition your shoes may be in it will pay you to bring them to the Clanton Shoe Shop and have them looked over. In short notice Mr. Armstrong will tell you just how much it will cost you to have same made practically new, and the saving—the gain—to you will be beyond compare.

Mr. Armstrong is a sincere and honest business man and strives to please his many patrons; his business aids the community much and he is manifestly interested in the community and its progress, thus fully deserving of the liberal patronage of the masses.

Sales of miscellaneous farm products on curb markets in Alabama have reached and passed the one and a half million dollar mark. Reports to Miss Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent, Auburn, show that the total sales since establishment of the first market at aGdsden in 1923 now total $1,563,620.98. Sales this year show an increase over sales of last year, despite the drought and business depression.

PINKY DINKY

FAIR ENOUGH

By Terry Gilkison

Concord-Billingsley

On last Saturday morning the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones and took away their darling baby boy. He had been sick for about a month. He was fifteen months old and will leave a vacant place in their home. We pray God's blessings and benedictions on the bereaved, for He is the only one who can comfort them on this occasion. The little fellow was laid to rest in the Sardis Cemetery Sunday, with Rev. Jeff. Deason conducting the services.

Last Sunday afternoon a social for the C. E. Society was held at the home of their leader, Mrs. Willie Mae Weldon. They played many interesting games and had some little contests, served hot chocolate and cake. All members were present, except one.

A miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Emfinger last Saturday night in honor of Mrs. W. R. Pike. Several attended the shower, presented their presents. Everyone had a real enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Tindall and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Williams spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Surles and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Lawrence Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Little and Mrs. W. H. Little spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cowart of Coosa County spent the week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Williams visited Mr. and Mrs. Lon Buzbee Sunday afternoon.

J. MELL MARTIN

A High-Class Funeral Home Modernly Equipped, Well Regulated, Under Most Efficient Management, At Your Service In Clanton

The residents of any city and community should be justly proud of the fact that they have within their midst a funeral parlor and service that offers adequate accommodations and assures us that our loved ones will be laid to rest in a manner most befitting the occasion.

In the Martin Funeral Service, under the direct supervision of Mr. J. Mell Martin, a high-class citizen and an adept funeral director, Clanton and the people of this and surrounding communities have a man who is fully capable in every way to serve them with every convenience commensurate to the last sad rites connected with the dead.

His service consists of equipment modern in every particular; of well trained and practical help; of caskets and other materials of the very best carried in stock; of carriage and ambulance service seldom equalled by others, and of a funeral parlor unexcelled in this section of Alabama, and these all to be applied to your convenience, arrangement and appliance of all those things which go to make a funeral cortege most applicable to the occasion.

Mr. Martin, who is considered one of the most efficient morticians in the state, and is at present Secretary-Treasurer of the Alabama Funeral Directors Association, gives his personal attention to every detail of the work; sees that his well prepared plans are carried out to the letter; relieves the bereaved of all necessary arrangements, and lays to rest the deceased in a manner most becoming his profession.

The Martin Funeral Home, through the strict attention of Mr. Martin, has established for itself a reputation for high-class work, which has made this concern popular with the masses, therefore, it is self evident that he is a man in much demand in his profession. He is of the congenial disposition, and his ability to serve the public well and faithfully adds much to his professional and commercial life and is a wonderful asset to his business and the community as well.

Says Wilson Made Mysteries Popular

Detective and mystery stories came out of the behind-the-woodshed age with Woodrow Wilson's open acknowledgement that he liked them, according to Heywood Brown, noted literary and theatrical critic, in Woman's Home Companion.

The former President, says Brown, justified the boyishness in many great men that showed they like thrillers and that such stories are fit subjects for the mighty to read. On the other hand, Conan Doyle, next to Poe the greatest mystery writer of ages, was heartily ashamed of his character Sherlock Holmes, and often wished to be rid of him. Despite which, Sherlock grew to be one of the greatest fiction characters ever known.

"When President Wilson, who was, even in the eyes of his enemies eminently respectable," says the writer, "propped himself up in bed at night to discover who it was that thrust the ivory paper knife into somebody's midriff, we all began to flaunt the books that once had been handled furtively. It became the stamp of careerists to seek solace from their many duties in the noadyness of swift-paced mystery dramas."

Meanwhile, Conan Doyle, states the writer, was a martyr to the form of writing that he like least, while great men were growing famous by professing to like his characters.

POWELL'S PRESSING SHOP

"And They Look Like New, When We're Through," A Good Slogan for This Progressive Concern

The wide-awake owners of the Powell's Pressing Shop said a mouthful when they coined for themselves the slogan: "They look like New, when we're through."

The management are aggressive and believe in doing their work well, and the large business they have built is evidence of the fact that they please the public in a most highly satisfactory manner.

Cleaning, pressing, dyeing for you in a high-class way, is about all you could ask from any firm. The Powell Pressing Shop tells us that they have dyed for many a man and woman, yet they live and hope to dye for many others whom they already know, and desire to make the acquaintance of others for whom they are willing to dye.

Cleaning and pressing is not a specialty with the Powell Pressing Shop—it's their business and they know the business thoroughly and do their work well and this has been the prime factor in building this successful business. Their prices are reasonable and you can depend upon them. They do specialize in mail order business and give same careful and prompt attention. Just call the Powell's Pressing Shop, Phone No. 58, and their representative will be at your service, receive your work and have same promptly executed with neatness and entire satisfaction.

Once a customer of the Powell's Pressing Shop, always a customer, for the fundamental of their success in business is based on the idea of catering to and pleasing the individual in each and every instance.

HONOR AFTER 40 YEARS

A belated honor came to one of agriculture's greatest benefactors a few days ago, when Prof. Stephen M. Babcock of the University of Wisconsin was given a gold medal and $5,000 in cash in recognition of a service performed 40 years ago. He is now 87 years old.

It was in 1890 that Prof. Babcock perfected a method of determining the exact percentage of butterfat in milk. The process consists simply in adding a proper quantity of sulphuric acid to the milk contained in special long-necked bottles, whirling them for a short time, when the butterfat will rise to the top and the amount can be read off by means of scale marks on the bottle necks.

Instead of patenting his process, Prof. Babcock gave it to the world, and it has been in use ever since. Watered milk has no chance of getting by when this test is applied. As Governor Hoard of Wisconsin once said: "It has made more dairymen honest than the Bible has ever made."

The prize mentioned was given by Senator Capper of Kansas for "the most distinguished service to American agriculture." Perhaps everyone will agree that the prize was worthily bestowed, not only because of the importance of Prof. Babcock's discovery, but also because of his generosity in freely giving it to the public instead of taking the rich money rewards which a patent would have assured him.

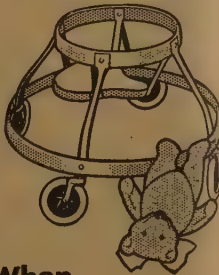

Because he peeped through a window at a courting couple, Geo. Brasin of St. Louis was arrested and fined.

Judge Samuel A. Davis of Danbury, Conn., instructed that a warrant be made out for him and he then fined himself $2, the same fine imposed on others for violating the parking rule.

Has Magic Fingers

Ignatz Jan Paderewski, 70, once prime minister of Poland, the world's most famous pianist, returns to America for a concert tour

PADEREWSKI'S RETURN

Ignatz Jan Paderewski, the world's most famous pianist, who will be 70 years old on November 6, has returned to America for a series of 72 concerts which will end next May. In spite of his age, it is said that the veteran musician plays with much of his former brilliancy.

Paderewski is not only a great musician, but an eminent statesman and humanitarian as well. In 1900 he established a prize fund for American composers in appreciation of the cordial reception accorded him in his numerous concert tours in this country. During the war he devoted the proceeds of his concerts to the relief of Polish war sufferers, later organizing Polish volunteers in the United States for service with the allied armies in Europe.

When the new Polish republic was organized at the close of the war, Paderewski took a leading part in its establishment and became its first premier. Although artistic skill and a talent for statesmanship are rarely combined in the same person, Paderewski performed patriotic services of a high order during the first years of the new nation, of which he is a native.

While he has made much money in his lifetime, his generosity has been so lavish that he is now, as he himself admits, a relatively poor man. His present tour is being made in an effort to place himself in more comfortable circumstances.

The affectionate regard in which he has been held by the American people since his first appearance in New York in 1891 will doubtless insure him the warm welcome to which his fine character and extraordinary musicianship entitle him.

To Dedicate Bridge

At Jackson, Ala.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 4.—A motorcade from Mobile, representing the Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and patriotic societies will attend the dedication of Raphael Semmes Bridge, at Jackson, Ala., on Armistice Day, and the Mobile Associations are joining those of Jackson in urging a large attendance from the southwestern sections of the state most directly benefitted by the construction of this bridge as an important link of Highway No. 5, creating the most direct route between Chicago and the Gulf.

John Oliver, Jr., Post No. 85, American Legion, will make the dedication of the bridge, the central feature of their Armistice Day celebration and will assist in the entertainment of all visitors. Members of the Lamar Y. McLeod Post No. 3, Mobile, will also attend the celebration in numbers, furnishing several cars for the motorcade. The Alabama Department of Archives and History, in charge of the dedication of the fifteen bridges built by the Alabama Bridge Corporation, announces that Mayor T. Semmes Wainwright, of New Orleans, will take part in the program making the acknowledgment of appreciation of the Semmes family. Judge Ben D. Turner of Mobile will preside. Dr. N. B. McLeod of Selma will deliver the invocation and the benediction will be by Rev. W. S. Guice. Other features of the program remain to be officially announced. Dinner will be served by charitable organizations of Jackson, there will be a football game in the afternoon, and a dance at Legion Park that night.

The Mobile motorcade will leave the Chamber of Commerce at 8 a. m. November 11th, giving ample time to reach the site of the bridge by the time of the opening exercises at 10.30 a. m. The Mobile organizations are taking steps to give National prominence to the opening of the bridge, improvement of the tourist routes of which it is an important link, and to the excellent trade territory through which these routes pass.

PROSPERITY vs. DEPRESSION

PROSPERITY is up for election, running to overthrow DEPRESSION.

It's for the people to decide which will be chosen. Every man and every woman is privileged to ballot—every day.

DEPRESSION has no rightful place with a hundred and twenty million people, exchanging goods and services—capable—accustomed and willing to work—more highly skilled than other peoples—leaders in efficiency and progressiveness—backed by the vast natural resources of the United States. When we make it possible for the man who works to have a job we make it possible for him to buy food for his family and so help all business, including that of the farmer.

The rest of the world is of small importance compared with that free market of 120,000,000 people—homogeneous—of like tastes, habits and aspirations—living under the same laws—free of trade barriers. Foreign trade may be troubled by tariffs and revolutions, but at their peak our exports represented only five and a half billions of dollars of gross business in a year out of a total American income of ninety billions.

Stagnation of circulation is what's the matter with agriculture and with Business. Everyone can help to get that circulation moving again.

Government can't make Prosperity—alone. Bankers and other business leaders can't make Prosperity—alone. It's the 'people, united in opinion and purpose and courage, who determine Prosperity. They can elect it—none other.

Ballots that will be validly counted for PROSPERITY are of many kinds. Some of them every man and woman can cast. For example:

Help a deserving man or woman to get a little paying work—or, better, a regular job.

Spend wisely and not too timidly, and anticipate scheduled expenditures so far as practicable.

Turn the deaf ear to false, mischievous rumors; and don't repeat them, if you do hear them.

Be willing to pay a fair price. Don't take advantage of the other man's necessity. Recognize that he has as good claim to a fair profit as you.

When a vampire that fattens on the miseries of others shows up, help to make him unpopular.

Discourage calamity howlers.

Keep business moving evenly, and remember that, to the average man, his job is his particular business. When possible reassure him against his fear of losing it.

Save, but save wisely, not in fright. Invest for the profit that sound enterprise pays and for the added profit that will come after the hysteria of pessimism has passed.

TIFFIN - KLINNER
FURNITURE CO., Inc.

The Home of Good Furniture in Clanton, Carrying in Stock A Line That Is Unsurpassed in Art and Durability

By Frank J. Payne

One of the most complete lines of furniture to be found in this section of Alabama is on exhibition at the Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company's Store. One of the popular stores of this city that is continually offering the newest and most attractive line of furniture at the lowest possible prices, hence enjoying a large patronage not only from the city, but from all the surrounding territory.

We venture the assertion that probably because they contribute to a larger degree than any other institution in this important work, this justly popular furniture house is one of the most essential features to the commercial and community life of this section. This big furniture store, under the direct supervision of modern day business men is replete with furniture for the home, and regardless of what may be your need in this line, they have it for you at a very reasonable price. Standard makes of furniture will be found throughout their immense stock. Library tables, living room suites, stoves and ranges, rugs, refrigerators, mattresses, beds, furniture of every kind, and all these articles for the home are represented by standard makes that are known the country over.

The Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Company are a very prominent firm in this city, and are rated among our best citizens, who thoroughly understand the business in which they are engaged. It adds much to the commercial life of the community to have such a store as this, whose proprietors are always boosters for the general welfare of the community and ever ready to lend aid to any measure that will help us onward and upward.

It is impossible for us to give a detailed idea of the immense stock carried by this firm for the convenience and accommodation of the public, or the high quality offered at very reasonable prices.

A visit to this store, however, will prove to you that it is the proper and most advantageous place to buy. This establishment and the men who direct its affairs, are contributing in no small measure to the progress and development of this section of the state, and especially to that section for a radius of many miles around. This community is more progressive and more attractive by reason of their activities, and in this review of our onward progress we wish not only to compliment them, but at the same time urge all our readers to visit the Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Store when in need of anything in the furniture line.

Jemison F. F. A.

The Jemison F. F. A. had a very interesting meeting on Tuesday, November 3, 1930. The work of the past year was discussed and plans for the coming year partially outlined.

This meeting was primarily for the election of the officers. The following officers were elected: Hollis Merriant, president; J. C. Satterwhite, vice-president; Wilson Clements, secretary; Jessie Splawn, treasurer; Ensley Atkinson, reporter; Mr. J. P. Montgomery, advisor.

Maplesville News

Mesdames H. M. Nix, F. A. Shanks, Sallie M. Perry, attended the Chilton County Parent-Teachers' Association at Chilton County High School last Saturday. They reported a splendid program.

The Hallowe'en entertainment at Maplesville School Saturday evening was enjoyed by a full house. A nice sum was realized.

We have one of the best schools ever. The teachers are doing splendid work; also the P-T. A. means business.

The Baptist church is still without a pastor for the ensuing year.

The B. Y. P. U. has on an interesting membership contest, and is rendering splendid programs.

Mr. E. L. Stringfellow and little daughter, Julia, were week end guests of his mother at Tuscaloosa.

Mrs. Sallie Shanks has returned to Maplesville after an extended visit to Selma and other points.

Mr. Abney Brown of the University, Tuscaloosa, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Brown.

The many friends of Mr. J. P. Payne rejoice that he has returned home from King's Hospital in Selma, where he underwent a serious operation.

Mr. R. C. McFerrin, Mrs. Mollie McFerrin, Mrs. James Day, Miss Herman Carter were guests of Shanks families Sunday afternoon.

Mesdames J. P. Payne and E. L. Stringfellow made a business trip to Clanton Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smoke and daughter, Annie Belle, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Haynes and daughter, May Nelle, of Selma, Ala., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Shanks Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Gwin and son, Billy, Jr., of Pottersville, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cothran, Mrs. Paul Phillips of Selma were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gwin Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. W. H. Abney, teacher of one-teacher school at Cox, Bibb County, and Miss Verta Mae Helms, the supervisor, carried the Fourth and Fifth Grades to Montgomery Saturday. The children are studying the geography of the Southern States and the teacher proposed the trip to impress them further with the size of their own State of Alabama, and acquaint them with parts of its imperishable history.

On the portico of the great Capitol the children formed a semi-circle and looked upon the brass star that marks the spot where Jefferson Davis swore to protect and defend the Confederate States of America. In the first White House of the Confederacy they were told again of a cause lost, but never surrendered, and shown the bullet riddled flags that Alabama heroes bore. From the Capitol they were taken to Woman's College.

The greatest thrill perhaps was the visit to the Governor. He received them graciously and chatted with them for quite a while.

They visited Lanier High School, big department store, Jefferson Davis Hotel, and other important scenes. These impressions stamped upon their memories will linger throughout old age.

BIG BROTHERS BIBLE CLASS WILL BROADCAST SERVICES

The Big Brothers Bible Class of Montgomery will broadcast an Armistice Service on Sunday morning, November 9, from 9:45 to 10:45 over stations WSAF Montgomery and WAPI Birmingham. A special program has been arranged and the large auditorium in which the class meets, is expected to be filled to overflowing. The services of this class are regularly broadcast over WSAF, and the hook-up with WAPI will enable everyone in the State to enjoy the program. Music on this occasion will include war songs which were on the lips of everyone during the war. Hon. Luther Patrick, Assistant Attorney General of Alabama, add popular radio entertainer, will give a patriotic reading. The principal address of the day will be by Judge Leon McCord, class teacher, who is one of the South's best known authors and lecturers. The Rev. Pearce McDonald, Chaplain of the Montgomery Post of the American Legion, will offer the prayer.

The Montgomery Post and the Montgomery Chapter of the Legion Auxiliary will be present at this patriotic service, and a special invitation has been extended to men stationed at Maxwell Field. Legion Posts over the State will also be invited to send representatives or tune in.

Armistice Day is not a memorial day, it is a day of rejoicing. In 1918, when the news of the signing of the Armistice was received, throughout the entire nation people poured out on the streets and celebrated. Bells were rung, whistles blown, sirens were tooted, and enthusiasm and joy were unbounded. Twelve years later it is fitting that we should pause in our daily occupations and recall the importance and significance of this great day.

The program of the Big Brothers Bible Class in Montgomery will reach many who would otherwise not be able

Kiwanis Club of Clanton Commends H. G. Boyd

our community, we feel the loss of a very valuable friend who has always shown himself able and willing to champion in a big-hearted and patriotic way every measure for the progress and welfare of our community.

4. That we commend Mr. Boyd to the city of Selma as one of the most valuable assets any community could acquire, as a business man of the highest type and ability, as a citizen who can be depended upon to do more than his part in the upbuilding of the community.

5. That a copy of this resolution be made a part of the permanent records of this Club; that a copy be given to Mr. Boyd as a token of the friendship and warm personal admiration that we hold for him; and that a copy be sent to the Kiwanis Club of Selma.

International Sunday School Lesson for November 16

THE BELIEVING CENTURION—A GENTILE WHOSE FAITH JESUS COMMENDED

Matthew 8:5-13

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

He is a wise man indeed who is able to give a true estimate of values. All kinds of ideas were in the minds of people while Jesus was in the midst of His ministry. The Teacher had a right to expect the best results from His disciples and was amazed one day when, in truth, He had to commend the faith of a Roman Centurion above that seen in any of His own school or race.

This man was a gentile, and Jesus might have the same attitude toward him as did other Jews. So the elders of the synagogue were sought to plead the case in their joint behalf. Later the Centurion makes personal approach to Jesus, for he had truly identified himself with the sick man. It is still true that in proportion as we are conscious of being in the presence of Holiness we are the more aware of our own worthlessness in comparison. The very home of the Centurion is too humble for Jesus to even enter it. Then quick thinking and increasing belief help to solve the problem.

As a man of authority over others this Roman commander gives his orders and they are obeyed, whether he follows through with his eyes or not. Jesus must have still greater authority in the realm of the spirit. Therefore, in boldness of faith request is made that healing be effected through the word of His power. Such faith is rewarded and the servant becomes well forthwith.

This act of sublime faith was prophetic and gave evidence that Jesus was to become the redeemer of mankind regardless of the race or condition of the individual.

Mrs. S. E. Armstrong of Clanton spent Sunday in Mt. Creek as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gray.

JOHNSON URGES MORE VIGOR FOR DEMOCRATS

Commends Democrats on The Fight Made In Campaign
Before Recent Election

In a letter addressed to the voters of Chilton County, and given the News for publication this week, Dr. N. S. Johnson, chairman of the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee, tells the voters that they will have to stick together and bring a real victory to the party at the next opportunity. Following is Dr. Johnson's letter:

To the Voters of Chilton:

I wish to thank you for the very loyal support given the Democratic committee, candidates, and myself in the campaign just closed.

We made a good fight, we proved conclusively that Democratic sentiment in Chilton County is on the upgrade. Men who had not voted a Democratic ticket in years made a cross under the rooster, went home and slept soundly through the night and the next morning didn't even have a bad taste in their mouth. This is a Democratic State, and justly so, our fathers and grandfathers made it so and we have never had an occasion to depart from their teachings. Chilton County has more voters than the average county of Alabama and if we could forget our differences and come together under the old standard, we would be a power in this State. We need a permanent organization that functions every month in the year every year. Then we need the good old doctrine taught, so that people may know and realize that we are not a tradition, but a live working force. Of course we are going to have to stick together and not run off after every will-o-the-wisp which some disgruntled politician lights, thinking it will develop into a beacon light. Come on, it's time Chilton County quit marking time and take its place in the councils of this State and nation. Again I thank you for the privilege of serving you and the many evidences of confidence imposed in me and the committee I represent.

N. S. JOHNSON.

THORSBY GETS GOOD MENTION IN BIRMINGHAM AGE - HERALD

In the Birmingham Age-Herald, of Monday morning, November 10, appeared an item concerning Thorsby in the column, "Up State and Down State," and was a quotation from E. L. Thornburg:

"Thorsby is noted as an educational center largely through our splendid private high school maintained by the Congregationalists of our town," said E. L. Thornburg, Thorsby, Chilton County, a visitor to Birmingham. The efforts to grow fruit at Thorsby have been successful as regards peaches and grapes. We have considerable dairying interests with a good farming section surrounding the town of about 700 inhabitants."

FORMER JEMISON RESIDENTS RECENT VISITORS TO CLANTON

Among the visitors to Clanton Sunday were Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Massey and little daughter, Stanley Millap and Miss Temple Millap, all of Birmingham. Mrs. Massey, Miss Millap and Mr. Millap were at one time residents of Jemison, Alabama.

COUNTY SCHOOLS OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY TUESDAY

All the schools in Chilton observed Armistice Day last Tuesday with appropriate programs in the morning and were given a half holiday in the afternoon. Each school was to hold some kind of Armistice Day program in a chapel exercise, and observed two minutes of silence at eleven o'clock Tuesday morning in honor of the fallen soldiers.

Landscape Gardener To Be Here Today

Sam S. Brewster, landscape gardener from Auburn is scheduled to be in Clanton today, and according to an announcement from the high school Parent-Teacher's Association, Mr. Brewster will be at the high school auditorium this afternoon at three o'clock, at which time he will give a lecture on landscape gardening.

Everyone is invited to come and hear Mr. Brewster, and it is believed that he will be able to give out some real helpful information to those who are interested in this line.

NEXT STATE SENATOR

J. Graves Duncan, Jr.
The Democratic nominee who was elected State Senator from this District which is composed of Chilton, Shelby and Autauga Counties. Mr. Duncan is a resident of Prattville.

BAPTISTS ARE BEING URGED TO FILL CAR

Committees Give Information About Articles That Can Be Used At Orphans Home

The drive being made by the Unity Baptist and the Chilton County Associations in this county, to send a carload of provisions to the Orphans Home at Troy is being put underway and the people are being urged to assist all they can in loading this car which is scheduled to leave Clanton Thursday, November 20th.

Some suggestions concerning the articles that can be shipped and are needed at the home has been given out by the committees from the two local Baptist associations.

Suggestions For Loading Orphanage Car

FOOD: Canned vegetables. Fresh and canned fruit, syrup, dry corn, peas, beans and peanuts. Hay, cotton seed meal and hulls, flour, meal, sugar, coffee, rice, oatmeal and other cereals and cured meats.

CLOTHING: Any kind of cloth for making garments. Ready made garments for children, any size.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS: Quilts, sheets, pillow cases, spreads, blankets, comforts, towels, rugs, chairs, home or porch. Any kind of kitchen or dining room equipment.

FARM IMPLEMENTS AND TOOLS: Hoes, rakes, shovels, forks, axes, reap hooks, pruning knives, saws and hammers.

Further, if there has been anything overlooked that is useful for the farm or home, it is needed. The committees as appointed by the Associations will tell you where and when to deliver these goods that they may be loaded on the car. The committees are composed of J. Z. Mims, J. Watts Moore, W. J. Billingsley and S. J. M. Webb.

Two Persons Brought Here From Wrecks

Two persons were brought to the Central Alabama Hospital this week as the result of automobile accidents on the Birmingham - Montgomery highway.

Chris Cassimus, of 2100 Fifth Ave. N., Birmingham, was brought in Monday afternoon after the car in which he was riding was struck by a transfer truck near Thorsby, according to information. Cassimus was not badly injured, and was released Tuesday. It was stated that the driver of the truck which is alleged to have struck the Cassimus car did not stop.

Mrs. Carolyn Gibbons of Montgomery was rushed to the hospital here in a Martin ambulance Monday afternoon suffering with internal injuries received in an automobile accident just south of Verbena. Other occupants of the car, which was a Buick, included two other women and a man, giving his name as Nobles, of Montgomery. They were not seriously injured. Mrs. Gibbons was expected to be able to return to her home Tuesday.

S. P. Shaw, prominent citizen of Jemison, was in Clanton Monday.

Optimist: Oh, well, hard times can't last forever.

Business Man: Neither can I.

Democrats Carry State By Big Majority, Official Count Shows

And Are Urged On To Realize Victory In Chilton County
At The Next Election. Official Returns
Show Democrats Stronger

While a sweeping victory came to the Democratic Ticket over the State of Alabama, and almost nation-wide, the Republicans still came out ahead in the county races in this county, the official count made Friday showed. The closest Democratic candidate run-off was J. A. Nivens for Sheriff, who was defeated by Walter Gillespie, by a very small majority, and all the county Republican nominees were elected.

In some boxes over the county, the Democrat vote showed up strong for county candidates, although J. Thomas Hefflin and Hugh A. Locke, Independent, carried the majority in the county for the offices of United States Senator and Governor. Lamar Jeffers, Democrat, slid through to victory in this county and throughout his district, over E. D. Banks, Independent, for Congressman. J. Graves Duncan, Jr., Democrat, lost by a small majority in Chilton County. He carried Shelby and Autauga counties over Dr. V. J. Gragg, Independent, and George Weaver, Republican, for the office of State Senator, leading both in the race.

Reports coming in last week showed that the Democrats will control both houses of Congress. At any rate, greatly reduced Republican majorities in both houses were assured.

In Autauga County, the count showed a Democratic victory throughout. Bankhead led Hefflin by a small majority, in Autauga County, while Miller came through with a larger majority over Locke, for Governor. The best known as Statesville, in Autauga County gave a solid Democratic vote, with the Prattville beat running three to one Democratic.

The entire county Democratic ticket in Shelby County was also elected by a large majority. Lamar Jeffers led E. D. Banks for Congressman in Shelby County, by a majority that reached over 1,000, the report showed. Miller carried the county by something like a 200 majority, while Hefflin led Bankhead by a very small majority.

Motor Freight Association Has Meeting In Clanton

At a recent meeting of the members of the Alabama Motor Freight Association, Clanton was named as the place where the association would hold a barbecue. The barbecue was held on the vacant lot adjoining the Fox Store here last Saturday afternoon.

It was planned at first that the meeting and barbecue would be held at the high school grounds, according to Mr. R. D. Smith, Secretary of the association, who also stated that due to some misunderstanding concerning the plans, they were forced to meet elsewhere.

Among the distinguished visitors to Clanton for this meeting were some of the directors of the Association, and included R. D. Smith, secretary of the association, Montgomery; F. D. Bpoks, Fort Deposit; E. D. Jackson, Montgomery, and S. McDonald, of Prattville. T. C. Reed, president of the association, of Birmingham, was unable to be present. Quite a number of Clanton citizens were invited to this meeting through the courtesy of the Alabama Motor Freight Association. There were delegates here from almost all parts of the state for this affair.

The Alabama Motor Freight Association has headquarters in Montgomery, Alabama, and has as its members practically all the motor freight companies in the state.

CHESTER JEROME CASSEL DIED HERE LAST THURS. AFTERNOON

Chester Jerome Cassel, age 23, of Thorsby, died at the Central Alabama Hospital here last Thursday afternoon at three o'clock, as the result of injuries received during a quarrel in Thorsby on Tuesday night, November 4th.

Funeral services were held on the following Friday afternoon at two o'clock at Liberty Hill church with the Rev. Homer Carroll officiating. Interment followed in the Liberty Hill cemetery with Martin of Clanton in charge.

Surviving are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tead Cassel, and two sisters, Gussie and Marge, all of Thorsby, Ala. Active pallbearers were Clifford Floshee, Bill Tippet, S. Q. Foshee, Herbert Ward, Vester Lockhart and Melvin Lockhart.

Democrats of Chilton County are being urged to gather up all forces and start now preparing for the fight in the next election in Chilton County, being greatly encouraged by the results of the recent election, which brought out plainly the fact that the tide is turning in Chilton County and the Democratic Party is now coming up on the top side, although the turning may not be completed until the results are shown from the coming elections in the county, one of which will without a doubt place a Democrat in office as Judge of Probate.

That the Democrats in Chilton County have been more encouraged than discouraged, is clearly shown by the numerous comments from old time Democrats concerning the election November 4th, which brought the Democratic Party to the front in loyalty in the state. This has apparently brought the fighting blood into local Democrats stronger than ever, and the determination to bring Chilton County back into line with the rest of the state at the next opportunity appears to be the intention of the party.

Democrats Win In Coosa

In Coosa County the Democrats showed their loyalty by electing a full Democratic ticket in the county, according to the official returns, although Senator Hefflin had a majority over John H. Bankhead of 64 votes. Hugh Locke, Independent, was defeated by Judge Miller by 9 votes in the county.

Health Unit Defeated Here

The proposed county health unit for this county was defeated by a vote of 1392 for the unit and 1723 against it. These two figures show a total of 3115, which also shows that all those who voted for candidates did not vote either way for the health unit. Elsewhere will be found a tabulated form showing votes from all the twenty-six boxes in Chilton County.

Change Is Made In Train Schedules In Clanton

The Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co. has announced changes in train schedules over the line at Clanton. Train No. 9 will arrive at 8:32 a. m., instead of at 8:42 a. m., Train No. 2 will arrive here at 9:42 a. m. instead of 10:23 a. m., as it has in the past, and Train No. 3 will arrive at 5:02 p. m., instead of 4:20 p. m., as in the past. These changes have already become effective.

DEMOCRATS STAND FOR RIGHT —RIGHT WILL WIN OWEN SAYS

Among the many encouraging statements from loyal Democrats over this county comes a letter from J. R. Owen, one of the prominent citizens residing in the western part of the county, in which he gives out some sound advice to Democrats of the county. His letter follows:

A Word to Democrats

The election is over and officers elected for the coming term of Chilton County. Democrats, let us not be discouraged with the defeat and look forward to win next term. Let us pull together with our officers elected with a good will, and help make our government a better and stronger one.

Remember, we are living in a Democratic State, and our roster crowded big over our state, and also crowded some in our county. And next time he will crow for victory. I believe we are right, and "right" will win.

Yours for prosperity and better government.

J. R. OWEN.

LEONARD WILLIAMS OUT AGAIN AFTER BEING CONFINED TO BED

The News is pleased to state this week that T. L. Williams, district manager of the Alabama Power Company here, is able to be out again, following an operation at a Montgomery hospital. Mr. Williams was at his desk Monday morning.

W. W. Williams, of the Concord-Billingsley community, was among the visitors to Clanton Monday.

OUR NEXT GOVERNOR

Judge B. M. Miller
The Democratic nominee for Governor of the State of Alabama, who was elected November 4, by a sweeping majority over Hugh A. Locke, Jeffersonian candidate.

LOCAL POST OF LEGION WILL SPONSOR SHOW

Fiddlers Convention Scheduled

A & P INAUGURATES DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

On Monday morning, November 3, The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., launched a daily radio program over both the Red and the Blue networks of the National Broadcasting Company under the name "Our Daily Food."

This program which is entirely devoid of advertising, consists of important facts about food gathered from the most authoritative sources. One of the chief features is the news of the movement of various foods from their sources to retail stores. Other important subjects are cookery; new methods of saving time in the kitchen; authentic information about the best methods of preparing foods; highest medical advice on practical nutrition; advice from specialists on wise buying of food and budgeting of the family food expenditures; in short, any and all food topics which are of interest and value to the woman in charge of a home.

Among the high authorities from whom this information is gathered are various U. S. Government Departments, such as the Department of Commerce, Public Health Service, and the Department of Agriculture and its Bureau of Home Economics and Agricultural Economics.

This program goes out over the Blue Network at 8:45 and over the Red Network at 9:45, Eastern Time, every morning, except Sunday.

J. C. Price Held On Murder Charge

J. C. Price is being held in the jail in Clanton charged with the murder of Chester Cassel, of Thorsby, Alabama according to information.

Cassel died in the Central Alabama Hospital here Thursday of last week as the result of a wound on the right temple, said to have been inflicted by Price during an argument in Thorsby on the night of November 4.

Price was arrested on Wednesday of last week at his home near Thorsby. It is possible that he will be given a preliminary hearing soon.

Verbena Service Station
Is Telling About Tires

Wants World To Know About The Low Prices Now Placed On Mansfield Tires

Having been inspired by wonderful sales on Mansfield and Olympia tires, the Verbena Service Station, at Verbena, Alabama, is this week telling the world about the Mansfield and Olympia tires they handle, and the wonderful values they can offer on such tires.

In a statement from Mr. Charles Gullledge, operator of the popular Verbena Service Station, he had the following to say, "Since we took over the exclusive agency for the Mansfield and Olympia tires, we have been well pleased with the response motorists have given to our announcement of this agency, and have been more than pleased with the large number of sales on these tires. We believe that our demonstrations and servicing of these tires, coupled with the extremely low prices on them, has been largely responsible for the sales we have made."

From time to time, the Verbena Service Station has carried ads on these tires in the News, and is this week carrying another of their large ads, giving prices on all makes and sizes of Mansfield and Olympia tires. At the Verbena Service Station, you are assured of the utmost in service, whether you stop there to purchase tires or not. Mr. Gullledge went further to state that, "One feature we take pride in is the fact that when adjustments have to be made on the tires we sell, we make the adjustment right in our own station, saving the customer a lot of time and waiting. The tire are not sent to the factory for adjustment."

Concord-Billingsley

Everybody come to church next Sunday and hear our new pastor, Rev. Larce Headley. He will serve us during the next conference year. He is going into the ministerial work, and we hope that he will do the things that God would have him do, and that will be best for our church.

Mrs. Dorothy Chastine is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. Mandy Roebuck, of Montgomery, Alabama.

Misses Connie and Salie Shaw, Virginia Little and Allie Williams spent some time with Misses Bessie and Jattie Williams Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fonza Williams and children spent the past week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Williams.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN

It may be surprising to some to be told that for nearly 100 years after the Declaration of Independence no women were employed by the government, but such is the fact, according to a recent statement by the president of the Civil Service Commission.

The first law permitting the employment of women as clerks in Federal government offices was passed in 1870. Today more than 28,000 women are employed in such offices in Washington alone, while nearly 60,000 more are employed outside of the capital city.

Women are being appointed to such government positions as bacteriologist, biologist, botanist, chemist, economist, educationist, patent examiner, pharmacologist, physicist, statistician, zoologist and technologists of various kinds. As is well known, many women hold post-masterships.

The employment of women in private business has shown a steady increase also, the number of women wage-earners being nearly ten million.

Whether this increasing activity of women in industry, business and the professions is an indication of an improved civilization depends upon one's viewpoint. However, that may be, women have shown their ability to engage successfully in nearly every vocation under the sun, and that they will continue to do so can not be doubted.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.
The Human Unit

"A sound mind in a sound body" is the ideal condition of health. When your physician is called to see you, he views you critically, first, as a whole. Swiftly he scans the person in front of him; he notes position of body, color, expression, movements—or lack of them, utterances—or absence of them; he notes tremors, involuntary expressions in muscle, nerve and bone; his sweep is accomplished in far less time than it takes to tell it—he does it automatically, often does not himself realize the keenness and activity of his own perception in arriving at a conclusion as to what the matter is.

The human as a unit is, indeed, the first and most important consideration. I may say here quite adverbially that, over half the people who demand the service of a physician, are first of all, "run-down" and tired mentally.

In these days worry and apprehension—the eternal watching the clock—makes men sick; it greatly lessens bodily resistance to disease. Timely vacations would cure half of our patients, but, suppose the worker, the man who is working the tread-mill hasn't the time or money to take the needed vacation? The mind must keep on and on, tearing down the wholly subservient body!

How futile, it seems to the physician, to prescribe medicines to relieve a condition that only rest, mental and physical, can cure! How helpless is the physician who is called to minister in conditions that he is powerless to relieve!

The purpose of this sketch, then is to urge people to take advantage of every moment of mental and physical calm that presents itself. No one is compelled to belong to a half dozen organizations that consume as many nights each week and destroy rest. Take care of the mind and the body will be a fitter home for it.

Texaco 13 Out For Another Record

The spectacular speed team of the skies—Captain Frank M. Hawks and his Texaco 13 racer—is out for another record.

Already holder of a dozen flying marks, the last eight of which have been established within four months in the fastest commercial airplane in the world, Captain Hawks and the Texaco 13 are now aiming at the fourteen hour record for the 1,400 mile flight from New York to Havana. The present record is held by the veteran monoplane Columbia, which was piloted by the late Wilmer Stultz.

Announcement of the new flight has been made by The Texas Company, for which Captain Hawks is superintendent of aviation, and the takeoff on what is intended as a seven hour journey will occur as soon as formalities pleted and weather is favorable. The flight is expected to be made within the next several days.

The trip will be via Columbia, S. C., and Miami. Captain Hawks hopes to cover the 600 miles to Columbia in less than three hours, the 550 miles from Columbia in about two hours, and the 250 mile hop from Miami to Havana in about an hour and fifteen minutes. For difficult navigation, especially over the Florida Everglades, Captain Hawks will use a new artificial horizon, which supplements his special array of pioneer engine and navigational indicators.

The impending flight confirms recent reports that Captain Hawks was planning a mystery hop, and follows closely a series of high speed tests in which the noted pilot in the Texaco 13 has established a half dozen records aside from the flights of last August on which the famous team first crossed the country in 14 hours, 50 minutes, 43 seconds, and returned in 12 hours, 25 minutes with the Cuban government are minutes, 3 seconds. The plane has averaged as high as 270 miles an hour or four and a half miles a minute.

Time To Terrace To Stop Erosion

Reports from nearly all parts of Alabama showing that farmers have nearly finished harvesting crops means it is time to terrace, says J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Thousands of acres of good Alabama soil are ruined each year on account of poor terraces or poorly constructed ones and it should be the aim of every farmer who has rolling land to hold the soil in place, Mr. Wilson said.

"The time to terrace is as soon as possible after crops are harvested," he continued. "At this time weak places may be located and strengthened with a minimum of time and labor. A good plowing of old terraces in the fall insures proper control of erosion during winter, and also gives the soil a chance to settle."

New terraces built in the fall become firm and strong enough to withstand most of the heavy summer rains.

Mr. Wilson's stated that the broad-based, variable grade terrace is the best type to build, because it is stronger and can be cultivated. He believes rolling land with as much as a 1 per cent grade, that is one foot fall in 100 feet, should be terraced. This can be done for from $2.00 to $5.00 per acre, he said.

Farmers interested in terracing can get a copy of the bulletin, "Terracing in Alabama," from their county agents.

FOREST SERVICES WARNS NOT GLUT XMAS TREE TRADE

An adequate supply of evergreen trees to cheer American homes at the Christmas season is in prospect. The cutting of trees has already begun in the northern tier of States. In response to numerous inquiries, the Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture says that Christmas tree cutting need not necessarily deplete the forests, if the cutting is carefully done and only surplus young growth not needed for maintaining full stands of timber is taken.

That the joy brought by Christmas trees may be undiluted by possible losses to farmers, the Forest Service offers a word of warning against hasty cutting of trees with the expectation of unusual markets. Christmas trees from farm woodlands are frequently a source of added income to the farmer, but he is likely to regret it if he ignores the law of supply and demand.

"Find a market with a responsible buyer before doing any heavy cutting of trees for sale," is the Forest Service's advice, based upon the experience of farmers in various localities in past years when uncouncted thousands of fine trees had to be consigned to the dump because of glutted markets. Indiscriminate cutting and peddling seldom pays. Especially in the larger cities, farmers must compete with large commercial shipments from northern forests.

There are two or three points in favor of local trees, says the Forest Service. They are generally fresher and retain their leaves better than earlier harvested evergreens shipped from a distance. Local contacts can be made ahead of time and orders taken. If the trees are cut from crowded stands as a thinning operation, and if the farmer can get sufficient return for his labor, Christmas tree cutting may bring the farmer some extra cash—very acceptable in a short crop year—and also leave the woods in better shape for future growth. The farmer will gain by cutting discriminately, leaving the most vigorous trees to grow into valuable timber, thinning where trees are overcrowded, and taking inferior, stunted, or crooked trees, the crowns of which are often admirably suitable for Christmas decorations.

Forest Service men find that often in dense stands several thousand young saplings may exist on an acre of ground on which only a few hundred can ever mature. Christmas tree cutting, then, may aid tree culture.

Output, Sales And Collections Better Says Power Head

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 7—"Business in Alabama appears to have begun a definite movement toward improvement and we feel that this movement will continue," Thomas W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company, declared today following his return to Alabama from the East.

"This opinion is based upon the figures derived from the operation of the electric and other important industries in the State, which past observation and experience have proved to be reliable indications of the current trend of business. Serving industry, agriculture and homes over practically the entire area of the State it necessarily feels at once a slowing down or speeding up of activities in these primary sources of all business."

Continuing, Mr. Martin said: "Alabama Power Company, having faith that business conditions could and would improve, has continued its construction program throughout the year and has endeavored to have its entire organization function more effectively than ever before in its efforts to give the public economical and efficient service."

"Our power output and use for the year shows at this time approximately normal figures. During the month of October, the use of electricity in our operations throughout the State exceeded the amount used during the same month of 1929 and shows an increase over the month of September of this year of 9.6 per cent. In view of the fact that the domestic use of current has been increasing throughout the year, these increases indicate the resumption of activities by manufacturing enterprises as well as the full seasonal use in farming operations.

"Collections for both service and merchandise have improved over 1929, and past due accounts are gratifyingly small. Sales of electrical appliances have gone steadily ahead, the first nine months of the year showing a gain of 9 per cent over the same period of 1929.

"Since our Company's service touches practically all business activities in the State, these facts appear to be reliable indications that business is improving and that conditions in Alabama are becoming more and more encouraging."

At last it can be told! Dull Men

I am getting old enough now so that some of the little acorns which I saw planted are beginning to show up as quite sizeable oaks.

For example, there was an office boy in the place where I worked after leaving college. He was not a bright office boy. We did not think he would ever amount to very much. He did not think so himself. He told none of the Vision which we read about. He just kept on keeping on.

Well, the other day I picked up a trade paper, and there was a big photograph of our ex-office boy, and the announcement that he had just been elected president of a rather important company.

As years go on, and the business of the country expands, his company will expand with it, for he will be a careful administrator. And some day his associates will give him a dinner and hail him as a great leader, and his picture will be hung in the Board Room.

Perhaps you have read Mr. Woodward's biography of General Grant. If so, you remember that he stood low in his classes at West Point, and was later discharged from the army. When the Civil War broke out he was such a failure that his letter offering his services to his country was not even answered by the War Department.

The army was full of more brilliant men. Halleck, for instance, knew all about tactics. In any crisis he could tell just what Napoleon would have done. McClellan had a touch of genius. What did Grant have?

He had a superstition. When he started out on anything he hated to turn back. It applied even to small things. If, when he left the house in the mornings, he found he had forgotten something he never retraced his steps. Always he went forward. And when he came to command armies he did the same thing. Doggedly, ploddingly, but inexorably he pushed ahead.

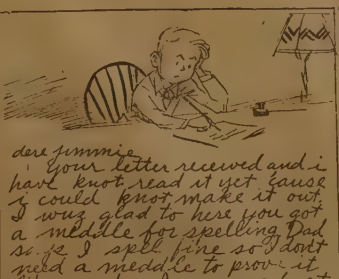

When I was in college, the President said, "Henry Ward Beecher, when a student in Amherst College, stood at, or near, the foot of his class. Nearly a hundred years have passed, and Amherst College has produced no second Henry Ward Beecher, though many men have stood at, or near, the foot of their class."

Just being dull, or standing at the foot of the class, is no assurance of success, of course. On the other hand, it is nothing to be discouraged about—a fact of which I see more evidence almost every day.

Entered in the postoffice of Clanton, Alabama, as second class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897.

Did They Die In Vain?

Twelve years ago, on November 11, 1918, the guns ceased firing and the embattled nations of the world called a halt to the war which had raged for four long years, and in which all but a few minor countries among the civilized nations of the world had been involved.

From the consequences of that terrific conflict, the world has not yet recovered. Indeed, generations will have passed before all of the human and economic waste of that war will have been repaired and replaced. Much that was lost can never be recovered. Other young men will grow to manhood, do their share of the world's work, but the millions who perished with their life work still unfinished can never return.

Among all of the nations involved in the war there has been growing up an anti-war sentiment, which may eventually have the effect of keeping some of these countries out of future wars. That is, however, to be doubted. Our own country, in the words of our war President, Woodrow Wilson, went into the war in the hope and belief that by so doing we might put an end to war as a means of settling international disputes. The United States of America took the lead in establishing a League of Nations, the avowed purpose of which is to bring about closer international understandings and so prevent trivial irritations from developing into serious quarrels.

Our country is a member of the World Court of International Justice, before which it is hoped, eventually nations will try their grievances against one another as individuals do in the civil courts of peace.

We have taken the lead in the effort to abolish competition in naval armaments and the foremost maritime nations of the world have contracted with us to limit naval construction for years to come.

All of these efforts for peace, however, fade before aroused national hatreds. There are war clouds all over the world today. There is actual warfare in Asia, several of the nations of South America have lately resorted to arms in their internal revolutions, there is an unrest in India, which may easily and unexpectedly come to a climax in war. And threatening the peace of the entire world is Red Russia, controlled today by irresponsible and fanatical visionaries who have avowed their purpose of compelling the entire world, by force, to accept and adopt their particular political and social program.

It must be the earnest hope of every intelligent person that our boys who perished in the great conflict should not have died in vain, that their sacrifice may prove in some way to have advanced the cause of peace and put an end to the horror and waste of war. But let no one delude himself with the belief that other and greater wars than the world has yet seen may again devastate civilization.

Unfair Competition

In addressing the American Bankers' Association in Cleveland recent, President Hoover said:

"I have never believed that our form of government could satisfactorily solve economic problems by direct action—could successfully conduct business institutions. The Government can and must cure abuses."

What a howl would go up from the business world if the Government of the United States, merely because it happens to have the necessary facilities in its navy yards, should go into the business of building merchant ships, in competition with the commercial ship builders. The United States Government owns an excellent airplane manufacturing plant in which it builds experimental planes for the navy. Suppose the Government should go into the airplane manufacturing business for the general public? It would be perfectly obvious to everybody that this was something which the Government has no business to do.

Printing of Government documents, maps, postage stamps and money, are a proper function for the Government's printing establishments. But when the Government of the United States engages in the business of printing return envelopes for private citizens, it is unfairly competing with the job printers of the nation. It would be unfair competition even if a fair commercial rate were charged for the work; it is worse than unfair when this work is done for less than cost.

The National Editorial Association, and practically every other association of newspaper publishers and printers, have protested for years against this practice. This year a more determined effort than ever is being made to induce the Congress just elected, if not the one already in office, to take Uncle Sam out of this petty competition with his nephews.

The Story of Fire Prevention

The study of fire control is said to be almost as old as the history of man, but in former centuries effort was chiefly given to working out ways and means of keeping fires from spreading.

Scientific work designed to prevent the occurrence of fire is of very recent origin and most of the progress has been made in the last three decades.

Organized fire prevention, according to an authority first came into being in Ohio. In that state the nation's first fire prevention association was formed, the second fire marshal's law was passed, the first Safe and Sound Fourth of July authorized and the first state building code committee created. These Ohio organizers were called to other states to assist in starting similar movements. Fire prevention was given official governmental support when, in 1920, Woodrow Wilson proclaimed Fire Prevention Day, which has since become Fire Prevention Week.

Now, due mainly to the work of such organizations as the National Board of Fire Underwriters, intensive fire prevention activities—ranging in scope all the way from promotion of better building laws to the apprehension of arsonists—are carried on throughout the nation. Our fire waste is still gigantic—but it is the fault of citizens if they have neglected to learn the rules of fire prevention. It is to be hoped that some day we will realize the tragedy of the waste, and fight, as a nation, against it.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

Being, more or less, a person who has learned to keep my eyes and ears open, and my mouth shut, I have, by way of satisfaction, become something of a person in whom young married couples confide. But I don't hear from both sides of the house at the same time, only one at a time. The Young wife tells me of her troubles, and then maybe the discontented husband will want to confide in me, and I've found in many cases the dear little mistreated wife is in search of, and in sore need of consolation, and in that case I am placed in a most embarrassing position so to speak, at times, and have often wished the Frigidair would boil over or something. Then maybe the husband will look up and say he just must get out and do something—pull a wild party somewhere, with some women.

Then, and as was, I am again placed in a position not wished for, because I don't want to console a man's wife in the way it really should be done, and neither do I care to go around pulling wild parties with wilder women, and married men knowing them like I do. But the poor old boys look so pathetic I just give in and agree that that is exactly what they need, and so off they go, leaving their wives at home—wanting something everybody is looking for.

Now—let's just reverse this thing. Put the wife in the husband's place, and vice-versa, and apply it to Clanton. Use your imagination, take a tip, and see how far I missed my guess.

The above paragraph brought to my mind a question asked me the other day, "Who is included in Clanton's high-stepping society?" The question puzzled me for the moment, then I considered the term 'high stepping' and it was instantly answered. In Clanton we have the good, substantial social circle, and we also have circles, referred to correctly, as high-steppers, members of which I could, without much trouble, point out, I believe. These are (no I'm not going to name them) the persons who are always seeking the out-of-the-ordinary in amusement and usually make a loud noise but never amount to much in society. It might all be summed up in the one word, "pretense." Now, and here, let me issue one of my far-famed tips. Pretense can not and will not last long, it can be easily seen through and brings nothing at the show-down, and after all, isn't it the outcome of the show-down that really counts? I'm getting a little off the subject and really should not be talking about something so serious. But taking it all in all, Clanton's "400" are a bunch of good sports, and are all just humans.

Speaking of the above makes me think of the Prohibition question. I'll be willing to bet my long ones this winter that nine out of every ten of Clanton's "400" would be in favor of modifying the Eighteenth Amendment, or repealing it altogether. Then if this should occur, I was just wondering if the prohibited beverages would then be as enticing as is now. I am kind of the opinion that they would not, because the majority of humans like to do things that are not common, or ordinary, and should the amendment be repealed, then present-prohibited beverages would be common, and in my opinion would not find a place in many places they do now.

Well, now I suppose you folks would like to know what I think about the outcome of the election. I don't think it would be wise for me to state it in detail, because I don't think the editor would let it pass into print, but anyway, I'm still a Democrat and prouder than ever over it. The Democrats just took things into hand and won a great victory over the state and almost over the entire United States, but something happened in Chilton County—or maybe it didn't happen, which leaves Chilton County looking politically, to me as being a bad spot on a darn good apple, if you can imagine Alabama being an apple, and I know the people here just get excited when election day rolls around, and don't stop to think about what the state thinks of our country because it is a Republican county. Well, you folks who didn't vote on the Democratic ticket should oughta stop and THINK now and then, instead of doing some of the things I hear about in my history-making trips round town. After all, the good old Democratic party in Chilton County is still in fine fighting shape, and has lost nothing—has everything to gain.

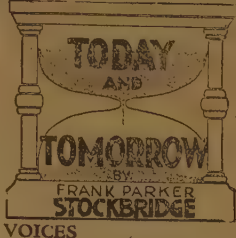

The Worker's Share

Henry Ford in his new book declares that by 1950 the average wage of the skilled American worker will be $4 an hour, or $27 a day. Mr. Ford apparently does not think the five-hour day will have become general by that time. But the annual report of the president of the metal trades section of the American Federation of Labor urges that body to adopt the five-hour day and the five-day week as a part of its general program for the improvement of wage conditions.

Of course, with increasing wages, commodity prices will tend to increase, also, but experience so far with the rising wage scale does not show that this increase is proportional. Wages in the principal industries are much higher compared with those paid before the war, than commodity prices are by the same comparison today. The worker's dollar does not buy as much as it used to, but he gets enough more dollars to make up the difference and leave him a larger balance than he used to have.

It is difficult to understand how, in a democracy such as the United States of America is supposed to be, there can be any serious opposition to any general movement to give the wage-earners an adequate share of what they earn. Of course, to be equitable, the movement must be general; it is unfair to the workers and to the business community as a whole, to have high wages and short hours in one industry and long hours and low wages in another. So, too, it is not sound economics to have such differences in the same industry in different parts of the country, as the difference between working conditions in the textile industry in Massachusetts and North Carolina.

All economic history tends to prove that in the long run the wage-earner wins what he demands. The industries which are still working on the ten-hour day will have to fall into line sooner or later, and those which are paying low wages will have to come up to the standard of other industries when business picks up again, as it is now showing decided signs of doing.

VOICES

The head of a college of music has got into the newspapers by announcing that the pitch of American girls' voices is getting lower, and attributing this to "yelling at football games and smoking cigarettes."

It is much more probable that the American type is changing through the admixture of races, and that the average American girl has a better muscular development than her grandmother had. Physical training rather than cigarettes would tend to enlarge the breathing passages which affect the pitch of the voice.

If a change which this teacher has noticed is genuine, much the better. The high-pitched American female voice, almost shrill, grates on sensitive ears. Women may admire sopranos, but most men prefer the deep-toned contralto voice.

JUNK

Nearly a year's experience with the plan, adopted by all of the large automobile makers, of offering a bonus to dealers for "junking" used cars, seems to have had a good effect, not only in stimulating the market for new cars but in removing dangerous vehicles from the roads.

Ford is paying $20 for each hopeless Ford car delivered at the factory. Other makers allow from $20 to $40 to dealers for each car junked in the presence of responsible witnesses or factory representatives. The dealer has to find his own "graveyard" for the wreck, and that is a difficult problem in some localities. Almost every abandoned quarry and mine has been filled to the top with old cars. On some of the undeveloped streets in the suburbs of New York ancient automobiles virtually line the roadway on both sides.

There is a fortune waiting for the man who will discover a cheap and speedy way of reducing ancient cars to their original raw steel.

NOISE

Hiram P. Maxim, son of one great inventor and nephew of another, and himself the inventor of the gunman's pet, the Maxim silencer for firearms, has found a way, he tells the world, to keep noise out of the house even with the windows open.

The principle of such an invention will be, of course, in the large cities, where noise interferes not only with sleep but with the health of those who get no respite from it through the twenty-four hours. But everywhere there will be a demand for a silencer of the sort for hospitals and rooms from which all external sounds must be excluded, as well as for places near railroads and other sources of noise.

TAXES

One of the things we are going to hear more about in the next two or three years is the proposal for a Federal Sales Tax on all merchandise. They are a good many items. At present the Government levies a sales tax on automobiles, corporation stock sales and some other things. A few states have tried the sales tax as a means of raising revenue. The get the sales tax in general use in almost all of the states, as everybody knows. New York levies a tax on the sale of stock.

Advocates of the sales tax contend that it is the fairest of all forms of taxation, being based upon definite transactions in which money changes hands. Since the war many European countries have adopted it, and it ranks second only to the income tax as a revenue producer. Germany gets 15 percent of her public funds from the sales tax, Belgium, France, Austria and Czechoslovakia somewhat more.

Whether our Federal Government ever tries it on a large scale or not, the effort to pass a sales bill is likely to be made in the next Congress.

EINSTEIN

George Bernard Shaw, who has the clearest mind of any man in England, introduced Professor Albert Einstein to a London audience the other night as "the man who has created a new universe." Eight men, each in his own time, had changed our conception of the universe, in Shaw's estimation. They were Pythagoras, Ptolemy, Kepler, Copernicus, Aristotle, Galileo, Newton and Einstein.

Each of those scientists gave the world a new conception of natural laws. Each in his turn proved that the others had been wrong, but each of them served the purpose of his times. Over a period of two thousand years man is gradually learning the truth about the world he lives in. A few hundred years from now some scientist, equipped with better measuring instruments than are available today, may prove that Einstein is wrong in his theory that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points and that light travels in curves instead of in straight lines. But his theory will stand until somebody finds an unescapable fact which contradicts it.

That is the way scientific knowledge grows. Man probably will never know all the facts about the universe, but we are learning faster now than ever before.

Within forty-eight hours after the Hoover Administration had put an embargo on shipments of arms and munitions to the Brazilian revolutionists, those same revolutionists were in control of the government of Brazil. Was the Administration misinformed of the situation there or uninformed? Plainly here is another "achievement" of the administration for Chairman Fess to boast of.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Secretary of War Hurley's Hot Shot

Speech Explodes at the Breech
Washington, Nov. 12.—Commenting on the speech by Secretary of War Hurley delivered in New York, in which he denounced critics of the administration as "kept muckrakers and paid liars" and charged that they were attacking the "character" of the President through "false and malignant propaganda," the New York Times says:

"It is possible that the Democratic publicity is better handled than the Republican. Certainly the series of reprints of speeches and of newspaper editorials which are dripping every day from the Republican Committee make the dreariest kind of reading."

The Times takes sharp exception to Secretary Hurley's charges concerning the "attacks" upon the President's "character" through "false and malignant propaganda." "In fact," says the Times, "there has been very little or nothing of this. Mr. Hoover's judgment has been questioned, some of his appointments have been challenged, his unhappy relations with Congress and with many of his own party have been dwelt upon, but what evidence has Mr. Hurley of concerted efforts to 'vilify the President?' Personally, Mr. Hoover has been remarkably free from abusive assaults. No one has impugned his integrity. . . . He may have been regarded as a maladroit politician. . . . It may be a political drawback for a President to get a reputation for 'bad luck' but that implies no reflection upon his honesty, or his indefatigable labors in what he believes to be the public interest. . . .

"The Secretary of War seems to have exposed himself, in his New York speech, to the charge that the big gun which he fired did more execution at the breech than at the muzzle."

Charge of Democratic Stock Market Plot by Robinson (Rep. Ind.) Fizzles Big Papers Ignore It

Washington, Nov. 12.—The chief fizzle of the Republican publicity campaign, in the estimation of some sections of the press, was the widely advertised speech of Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana on the Tuesday night before the election.

So much importance did the administration attach to the Robinson radio address, that they not only issued copies of it in advance to the newspapers, but preceded these with a special statement directing the reporters' attention to the forthcoming blast in which the Indiana Senator charged the Democrats with a plot to discredit the Hoover administration by bear raids on the stock market.

The blast was set off according to advertisement, but the newspapers conspicuously ignored it. Practically none of the big daily papers in the East even mentioned it by so much as a line.

The probable explanation of why the huck was passed to Robinson, it has been stated, is because he was the only Republican Senator so careless of his reputation and so lacking in imagination that he could not realize the position in which he was placing himself, who would accept it. . . . The circumstance that not even the Republican newspapers would print the stupid charges was construed in itself as an index of how the country regards Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana.

Neely's Graphic Picture of Unemployment Distress and Suffering

Washington, Nov. 12.—The following graphic word picture of the bitterness and distress incident to unemployment in West Virginia was drawn by former Senator M. M. Neely of that state in one of his campaign speeches:

"Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! Everywhere we hear the heavy tread of this weary host marching from a bankrupt, discouraged past to a future over which a sky of midnight blackness hangs, in which no star of hope can now be seen. These marchers' hearts are heavy; their pockets are empty; they are ragged and hungry and distressed. They sleep out of doors, with nothing under them but the cold ground, with nothing over them but the clouds and the stars. These ragged, hungry, suffering soldiers are followed by countless women and children who are also ragged and hungry and distressed. Their limbs are bony; their bodies are gaunt; their faces are pinched and drawn. The heartless, hideous spectre of famine stalks before them; suffering hovers above them, humiliation and misery walk by their side."

"This army has been enrolled under the rule of those in high places who only two years ago promised that the poorhouse would be abolished; that poverty would be banished; that prosperity would be lavished on one and all."

Overtaken by "Hoover Prosperity"

Washington, Nov. 12.—What "Hoover Prosperity" has done for a Georgia farmer is told in a petition in bankruptcy filed in the United States District Court at Savannah by Cleveland C. Cadwell, as reported in the Savannah Press. He lists his assets at $400 worth of corn, a small amount of sugar cane, potatoes and hay, all ungathered. He had a small bank account, he says, but the bank "went busted." He asks an exemption of $300, stating, "I have a wife and five minor children and we have worked hard and have done our best to pay our debts, and went almost half naked and almost half-fed and we don't think we ought to be left entirely out of this matter."

"Hoover prosperity has overtaken me—my all is gone, save the little $300 homestead, and I am bagging this out of the said corn, etc., that I have made this year."

Special to Chilton County News

Twelve hundred youthful experts in the science of rural living will pour into Chicago the day after Thanksgiving. The next day, November 29, the annual congress of the 4-H clubs of the country opens, and these youngsters will show the world from then until December 5 just how to extract the best from life in the country.

These 1,200 will represent the largest number of boys and girls in the history of the work. There are about $50,000 of them enrolled in these clubs now, as against 756,000 last year, a gain of nearly 100,000. The enrollment includes about 60 per cent girls and 40 per cent boys and is localized into about 60,000 clubs scattered over the whole country.

The Chicago congress is the climax of the year's work for them. A number of the winners of last year's contests and demonstrations will be trying for honors again, while the clubs they represent are hoping to maintain the standard set last year.

The Rogers county, Okla., group of livestock judges, including Otis Munsh, John Ramsey and Cleat Wilhoit, in winning the judging contest last year set a mark of 1,593 points, which will be difficult to match, while Evert Neal of Linn county, Iowa, with his individual record of 542 points out of a possible 600, also set a record which will need a lot of shooting at before it falls.

Another Iowan who featured the congress last year was Waldo Mommenn, 18, of Miles, Iowa. His "Mile," a 1,225-pound, 20 months-old Aberdeen-Angus steer, won the junior feeding contest. The champion pen of lambs was shown by Earnest Moore, 16, of Eaton, Ind., while Myron Mayhew, Aledo, Ill., showed the first prize pig.

In a division of the congress distinctly southern in nature, the four Baker boys, Hensell, Clyde, George and Seaborn Baker, from Menlo, Ga., won the cotton exhibit for their state. Blanche Rose of Decatur, Iowa; and Betty Higgins of Croton, Ohio, carried off the honors for home improvement exhibits and window curtain treatment, respectively, while Ingrid Mattson, of Iron River, Mich., in winning the poultry championship compiled a remarkable record in the face of many difficulties.

Keen competition this year is expected for the Lipton trophy, presented by Sir Thomas Lipton annually, which was won last year by Helen M. Haldiman of Monroe, Wis., and John C. Patrick of White Oak, S. C. The trophies are awarded for the best 4-H club record in work over a period of years. Besides those mentioned there are the crops judging contests, poultry judging, corn and potato exhibitions, meat identification contests, girls style show, the decoration and health contest, canning competition and scores of others.

These contests show only a part of the functions of the clubs, and the Chicago congress, interesting as it is, is only a part of the whole year's work for the youngsters.

The outstanding characteristic of 4-H club work," said Dr. C. B. Smith, chief of the federal end of the work, "is that each member conducts a substantial piece of work, designed to show some better practice on the farm or in the home or community; keeps a record of results; explains the work to others; and makes a final report on the work."

THE OLD RELIABLE

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.

OVER 3 1/4 BILLION DOLLARS per Year Saved the Users of Railroad Service..

In spite of the fact that the railroads of the country have spent for improvements to their property, in addition to proper maintenance, over $6,800,000,000 since 1920, and during most of this period have provided almost perfect service, their freight and passenger rates, measured by the receipts per ton mile and per passenger mile, have declined 15.5 per cent and 10 per cent respectively. In other words, if the receipts per ton mile and passenger mile had been maintained for the years 1921 to 1929, the public's freight and passenger bill would have been over $6,100,000,000 greater, or nearly equal to their capital investment, in these years.

During this period, also, the rate of return on the railroad property investment has averaged less than three per cent.

The railroads are striving earnestly to continue their excellent service, but it is manifest they cannot continue to do so indefinitely unless they obtain sufficient revenues to meet their obligations, provide adequate improvements, and obtain a reasonable return on the value of their property devoted to public use.

Measured on the same basis as the information given above, the patrons of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company have saved over $150,000,000 by reason of reduced freight and passenger receipts for transportation service over this Railroad.

Excerpts From L & N Employees' Magazine

The treasurer of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad recently received $2.50, according to the L & N Employees' Magazine for November, from a woman who "skinned" one of two railroads several years ago. With the remittance came the following letter:

"Please accept $2.50 and place in your R. R. Treasury. Several years ago I failed to buy a ticket for my small son of six years, and as I do not even remember whether I came on L & N or Southern, I will pay you half and Southern road half.

"If company does not wish to accept, please do not return or reply to this. Just give it to a needy cause, for there are plenty such nowadays."

A diamond-studded pin, emblematic of 50 years spent in the service of the L & N Railroad, was presented by W. R. Cole, president of that company, to its foreign freight agent, J. A. Bywater, it is learned from the November issue of the L & N Employees' Magazine.

Mr. Bywater, a native of Newport, Ky., began his business career as a cash boy in a department store of Louisville, Ky. In the spring of 1870 he entered L & N service as a bell boy in the general offices and worked his way up to the position of foreign freight agent, which he has held since 1899.

Pointing to the alarming increase in automobile traffic fatalities in recent years in comparison to fatalities at grade crossings which have shown no increase, W. R. Cole, president of the L & N Railroad, in the L & N Employees' Magazine for November declares it to be a problem offered purely and simply by the indifference and recklessness of the motorist. He believes that a sense of safety has not been developed in the minds of the great mass of the motoring public. This indictment is fostered by the fact, pointed to by Mr. Cole, that 40 percent of the grade crossing accidents on the L & N happen at crossing protected by watchmen, by visible or audible signals or by gates; that 40 percent of the accidents are caused by the automobile being driven into the side of a train which has already occupied the crossing; and that 54 percent of the accidents happen in broad daylight mostly to persons who live in the community.

Referring to the grade crossing phase of the traffic problem, Mr. Cole points to the fact that although 180 million dollars were spent in 1926-7-8 eliminating grade crossings, there was a net increase of 2,044 grade crossings over the country in that period. He declares it a manifest impossibility to eliminate even a relatively small part of the 240,000 grade crossings now in the country, and explains that the matter resolves itself into the problem of facilitating movement of traffic at points of density.

Loyalty To Your School

Helen Roberts

Anyone and everyone admires a boy or girl who is loyal to his or her school. Be true blue to it, and stand up for it. Don't down your school! Boost it! Be a booster. Loyalty is one of the big qualities that go to make up a good all-around school student.

There are many ways on can be loyal to his school. One is to stand up for and abide by the laws and regulations, another is to take part in all school activities and school affairs. The third and greatest is to be proud of the chance I have of going to school.

Armistice Day

By Jewell Taylor

The greatest day ever known in American History, is the day the Armistice was signed, November 11, 1918. On this day, many sad hearts were made to rejoice. The Armistice differs from anything in the War. It means that the soldiers will see home again and that the war will stop. Many countries which took part in the allies have made memorials in honor of the American soldiers who came to help them fight.

Armistice Day

By Alice Petty, 12 Years of Age

Armistice Day!

It's not far away, On November 11, 1918

The hearts at home were pining. While all the brave soldiers were resigning

After they were released, Forever they expected peace.

Why should we remember that great day?

When we found that our nation Would not be taken away?

We don't appreciate it like we should; not even like we could. But remember that part of the year, And give the Red, White and Blue at least one cheer.

Senior II Play At Assembly

By Virginia Eubanks

The student body of the Chilton County High School enjoyed a most interesting program given by the Senior II Class, and directed by Miss Margaret Kendrick, class advisor and English teacher.

The name of the program was "How Pokey Huntas Saved the Life of Captain John Smith." Characters were as follows: Herman Harris, Esther Lee Dennis, Frances Maddox, Ethel Mae Jones, J. C. Maddox, Jane Roberts, Elizabeth Stanley, and Sallie Mae Mahan. The curtain was raised on a chorus singing. The wooded scene of the new stage served as the trees. The sun was rising as the cold north wind blew through the trees, and the Captain John Smith came into the Indian Village and at once fell in love with Pokey Huntas, daughter of chief Powder Can. In the meantime, the chief appeared and ruined the happy scene, carrying off the Captain to the wood block. At this time Pokey Huntas appeared, and told her father he would have to kill her if he killed Captain Smith. The entire play was in pageant form.

Elmore Farmer Fatally Stabbed

Wetumpka, Ala., Nov. 9.—G. E. Harden, 55, formerly of the Titus community in Elmore County, 20 miles from here, was fatally stabbed in an altercation with Jim Allen, also of Titus, at the home of the former at 7:30 Saturday night.

Allen was arrested shortly after the affair by Sheriff Holbrook and is being held in the Elmore County jail here in connection with the stabbing, pending preliminary hearing.

When officers visited the farmhouse Sunday morning to make an investigation, they discovered a gasoline-burner whiskey still in the house.

According to officers, evidence showed that both Harden and Allen were drinking prior to the fracas. Harden was stabbed straight in the heart with a knife.

The house in which Harden lived, and in which the still was found, belonged to Allen, officers said.

Both men had lived in Elmore County several years and were well known, it was said.

Allen has recently completed a prison term, officers said.

Harden is survived by a wife and several grown children. Funeral for him was held Sunday afternoon.

Denied admittance by the father of his sweetheart, Luther Harris of Indianapolis drove his automobile thru the front wall of her home and was later arrested on a charge of intoxication. To be able to speak several languages is desirable, but not so important as being able to think clearly in one.

Billie Douglas Wells died on last Sunday evening at two o'clock. The Death Angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Festus Wells and took away their darling little boy, Billie. He was two years and 2 days old the day of his death. He was a bright and loving little fellow, and was loved by all who knew him.

O, how we will miss him, but he has gone to dwell with the One who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

He was laid to rest Monday evening in the Pine Hill cemetery. Rev. A. C. Nelson preached the funeral. Prayer was offered by Rev. Honeycutt. Rev. Davis dismissed the services with prayer.

He leaves to mourn his death a father and mother, little sister, and a host of relatives.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

Carrots fried with apples are tasty. Corn fritters may be made from leftover corn on the cob. To 4 tablespoons fresh corn add 1 teaspoon melted fat, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt; mix to a batter and fry in deep fat.

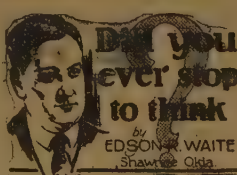

Soft jelly can be used up in many appetizing ways. Spread it on pancakes; on jelly roll; put it in pastry shells with a bit of whipped cream on top; fill apples that have been cooked tender in sirup with some of it; put a bit on such milk desserts as blanc mange, custard, Spanish cream, or bread pudding.

The housewife who buys Government-graded beef knows she is getting what she expects. Uncle Sam's official stamp shows both the class and grade of the beef, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which supervises this grading and stamping service. The classes of beef in order of excellence are steer and heifer beef, cow beef, stag beef, and bull beef; the official grades in order of excellence are Prime, Choice, Good, Medium, Common, Cutter and Low Cutter. Consumers in a community that is not now supplied with Government-graded beef may learn from dealers how such beef can be obtained, says the Department of Agriculture.

"Steel Head Forecasts Prosperity"—Birmingham News-headline. Glad it wasn't a bone head.

Members of a recently discovered savage tribe are so heathenish that they never try to reform their neighbors.

Frederick B. Patterson, President of the National Cash Register Company, says:

"Business always is looking for the unusual man—the man who does the unusual thing under unusual circumstances. It is not so difficult to pick a man who stands out when conditions are good, but it is an entirely different thing to make a selection of a man who rises above bad times. Business wants men who think for themselves; who are a jump ahead of the crowd. It seems to me that we have passed into a new era of business in the world. In the course of a changing condition business needs men who have been thinking in terms of precisely such situations as we face at this moment. Successful business is a question of having thinking men at the helm."

"The unusual man, in good times, is far seeing. He observes the trend of things the world over. He is both a student of men and a student of conditions. I do not mean that he should have been able to put his finger exactly on the date when the pendulum began to swing away from our accustomed prosperous conditions. But he should know that things were in a course of change, and in good times he was building a structure, that could weather the winds of adversity that blow in so-called bad times."

"Business men want men of this calibre—creators of principles that will fit the new order. And it is not so easy to find men of this type, because humanity, after all, follows along pretty much the same course of thinking in commerce and industry. In days of prosperity it takes as level headed a man to keep the ship of trade on an even keel as it does to ride out a storm of depression. This seems to be a pretty hard lesson to learn, but until we learn it we shall go on meeting new world conditions by applying old principles and traditions. The Unusual man will be able to match his wits against constantly changing conditions and keep himself poised and balanced."

Hon. A. R. F. Webster, editor of the Georgetown (British Guiana) Daily Chronicle, says:

That in a world more or less glutted with over-production of nearly every commodity, or, as Arthur J. Cook, the noted English socialist and labor leader, puts it, under-consumption, rather than over-production, it is a comfort to turn to one country which produces two commodities in which there is neither over-production nor under-consumption. British Guiana is one of the world's great producers of bauxite, the native ore of aluminum, and its vast forests provide a great reservoir for the production of wood pulp to keep the paper machines of the world busy, no less than the wonderful new industry for the making of artificial silk, variously known as rayon.

British Guiana is situated on the north east shoulder of the continent of South American, between Venezuela on the north and Brazil on the south. At present it produces about 50,000 tons of aluminum per annum, or about 200,000 tons of raw bauxite ore. This quantity does not come from all over the country, but from the operations of a single corporation in one district. Deposits are, however, spread all over the country and other corporations have but to come, see and conquer. The country is possibly capable of producing 500,000 tons of aluminum, rather than 50,000 tons, and that would still leave the world's consumption undisputed.

In the centuries that have gone before, iron and steel, copper and brass were the great industrial metals on which commerce was raised. In the 20th Century and after, it is aluminum which is going to play that part; in airships no less than in automobiles; and from fish hooks to great elevator cranes. The world requires more, not less aluminum. And then it will still want more when the far corners of the earth will have to be scoured for it to supply the constantly growing demands.

Mrs. Edith Stephen of Fort Wayne, Ind., won a divorce charging that her husband's relatives whispered whenever she approached them.

When arrested for intoxication, a young lady of Boston gave her name as Constance Marie Angelina Sylvia Murial Gladys Jones.

Mrs. Mary Kane of Chicago was reprimanded in the court of Domestic Relations because she was "too lazy to keep her home clean."

Baker Junior High School News

Our school has been running since October 3. We are having one of our best school years.

On the day of opening Dr. and Mrs. Hobby were present, also a great number of patrons. Our school is open for visitation of those who are interested in the school.

The School Pigs

We have two school pigs, to which we give our scraps. After the school is over we are going to sell the pigs and pay on the piano, as we did last year.

The P.-T. A. meets every second Friday. All patrons and people who are interested in the school are invited to come.

Two of the Pupils, Elsie Vinson and Mary Chastain.

A POLITE SUGGESTION

The gallantry of an old-time western newspaper man is recounted in a story which recently reappeared in several publications. It concerns the late great actress, Sara Bernhardt, and the late Sam Davis of the Carson City Appeal.

Mme. Bernhardt and her company were playing in the West, when Davis was requested by the San Francisco Examiner to meet her in Reno and accompany her to the then metropolis of California, and he did so.

After several days of acquaintance, during which Davis naturally showed the actress every attention, the time came to part, whereupon "the divine Sara" expressed her appreciation of his kindnesses by kissing him on either cheek and then on the mouth, saying:

"The right cheek for the Appeal, the left for the Examiner, the lips for yourself."

Nothing daunted, Davis made the polite suggestion: Madam, I also represent the Associated Press, which serves 380 papers west of the Mississippi River."

Whether he received the additional expressions of appreciation to which he appeared to be entitled, the story does not state.

THANKSGIVING FOR HEALTH

(Dr. Christmas Seal)

Health should be Number One when we sum up our blessings for which we will give thanks this week. To know how to be genuinely thankful for health you have is a blessing in itself. Too many people never give any concern to health until they have lost it—and what would we give for its return? When we have the finest gift and think we are in danger of losing it then it becomes a very personal matter—but once gone, how much it costs in everything. Let's give thanks for health.

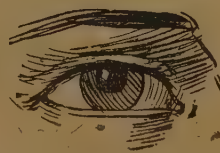

Dr. Christmas Seal wishes to remind you that health is often thrown away in foolish indulgences. We like our food—so we eat too much. Stimulants brace us up—so we get the habit. It is expensive to consult a doctor for every little ailment—so we dose ourselves. "Oh, Health! Health! The blessing of the rich! The riches of the poor! Who can buy thee at too dear a rate, since there is no enjoying the world without thee?"

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headache, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. 3B, Monticello, Illinois.

WHERE DO THEY HIDE THEM?

Strange as it may appear, the ladies are doing with fewer handkerchiefs year by year. So, anyway, is the report of the Bureau of Census.

This source of information vouchsafes the fact that while men used eight per cent more handkerchiefs—or at least bought that many more—in 1928 and in 1929 than in previous years—women used 5.9 per cent fewer than they had during similar census-taking periods.

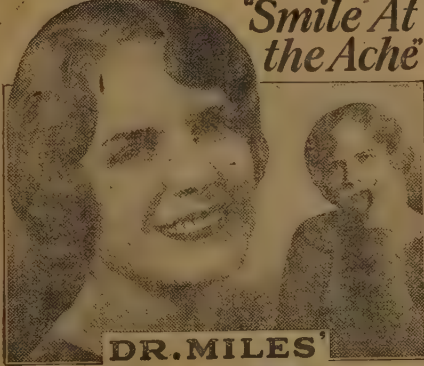

But tut! What can the gentlemen be doing with their increasing handkerchief consumption? Let every woman look to her escorts these days. They may be keeping handkerchiefs up their sleeves. Well, they must be keeping them somewhere. There is, of course, the classic breast-pocket with its touch of muslin peeping out upon the world. Then there are hip pockets, vest pockets, top coat and overcoat pockets—but it's a mystery just the same. Do they keep hankies in all those caches?

On the other hand, we understand perfectly the falling off in feminine handkerchief consumption. This brings us straight to a pet hate. Really there should be more pockets in female attire. Any man who is perpetually called upon to stow away upon his own person "vanities," indelicately lush powder puffs, lipstick, and all manner of feminine minutiae will surely endorse this heartfelt proposal. Yes, there certainly should be more ladies with pockets.

When Herbert Gruen of Chicago, accused of picking pockets, was asked by the court if he had anything to say, he replied, "Yes, can I go out to lunch?"

Trains failed to move near Albany, Ore., when swarms of caterpillars crawled on the tracks, making traction of the wheels impossible.

Chilton County Abstract Co.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth. However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

News from Thorsby

Miss FRANCES WILSON, Correspondent

The Helen Keller Literary Society will present "The Sunbonnet Girl" an operetta in two acts at 7:30 Saturday night, November 15, in Helen Jenkins Hall. Admission will be 25 cents. The cast of characters and choruses include forty-five members of the society. Everyone is invited.

Miss May Stoddard, a teacher at the Thorsby Institute, was called away on Wednesday, by the sudden death of her brother, Dr. Cyrus Stoddard, of the Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. He was seriously injured by an auto while he was crossing the street in South Sudbury, Massachusetts. Dr. Stoddard was on his vacation and was spending it touring New England, but was not in his car at the time of his death.

Mr. Yancey Kelly was a visitor to Thorsby friends Sunday.

Mrs. H. M. Gerald and Miss Odie Lee Arthur were the invited dinner guests of the Thorsby Institute Sunday.

Mr. Maddox, Miss Jennie Mae Thoroman and Miss Odie Lee Arthur motored to Birmingham Monday evening where they attended the concert of Richard Crooks, the famous tenor singer.

Mrs. E. W. Butler is teaching Miss Stoddard's health class during her absence.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton are expected home the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. Burt Higgins' mother, has been suffering seriously from the effects of flu.

Dr. S. C. Wood has been detained in bed by flu for the past week. Reports say that he is better now.

Mr. Albert Pate was carried to the Baptist Hospital in Birmingham for an operation last week. He is resting better this week.

The P-T-A. will have a continuation of their rummage sale Saturday. It will be about the same as last Saturday.

Miss Clara Vines spent this week end in Birmingham with her brother, Mr. Luther Vines, who is a senior in Howard College.

Mr. Ben Franklin spent Sunday in Birmingham with his son, Dr. Horace Franklin, of the Hillman Hospital.

The Baptist Social will meet with Mrs. Relious Franklin Thursday afternoon. Everyone is invited.

Mrs. J. D. Buckner was called to the bedside of her sister in Birmingham last Thursday.

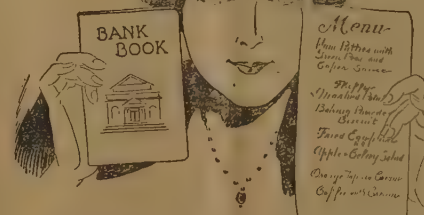

William Kinsell and Vivian Brown were married by telegraph while the minister and bride stood beside a clicking telegraph instrument in Minneapolis and the bridegroom was in a cable office at Anchorage, Alaska.

Mrs. Laura Moulton of Stroudsburg, Pa., lost three of her front teeth when her car backfired while she was cranking it.

A plea that strong cheese, not liquor made him ill, failed to save J. J. Burnett of Buffalo from jail.

A Two-Dollar Dinner for Six

Ham Patties with Green Pea and Capers Sauce 75¢
Pluffy Mashed Potatoes 10¢
Baking Powder Biscuits 11¢
Fried Eggplant 35¢
Coffee with Cream 15¢
Orange Tapioca Cream 25¢
Apple and Celery Salad 25¢
Coffee with Cream 15¢

IN these days after the drought when the careful housewife has to keep a canny eye on her food expenses, it's interesting to know that a dinner like the above can be served to six people at a cost of approximately two dollars.

To make the main dish and sauce, proceed as follows:

Ham Patties: Mash the contents of two 7-ounce cans of ham loaf, with a fork, shape into twelve small balls and roll in one slightly beaten egg and then fine crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 350° until golden brown, and drain on brown paper.

Green Pea and Capers Sauce: Melt three tablespoons butter, add three tablespoons flour, and stir until smooth. Add the liquor from an 11-ounce can of peas and one and one-half cups milk, slowly stirring and cooking until creamy and smooth. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add the peas and two tablespoons capers. Serve hot over the patties.

Orange Tapioca Cream: Cook four tablespoons minute tapioca in one and one-half cups boiling water in a double boiler for about fifteen minutes or until transparent. Add four tablespoons sugar and the contents of one 8-ounce can of orange juice, and cook in one-half cup whipped cream and chill thoroughly.

LAWRENCE WRITES REGARDING PAYMENT OF INCIDENTALS

Supt. of Education B. Lawrence has the following to say in regard to the recent ruling of the Attorney General on the payment of incidental fees in the schools:

"No doubt everyone knows that recently the Attorney General has held that the law authorizing trustees and the County Board of Education to levy and collect incidental fees for the schools has been held unconstitutional. I believe that all of us will agree that incidentals should be taken care of other than through the assessment of fees. I feel that the Attorney General is contending for the thing which ought to be done.

"The only regret that anyone can have is the fact that the ruling coming at the time it has has left many of the trustees facing an embarrassing situation. Fuel, etc., must be supplied in some way. Certainly none of us want the children to remain in school uncomfortable and perhaps be made sick as a result of not having fire. We know furthermore that things must be had for the teachers to use in their instruction. Many of the trustees in order to provide these things have created obligations expecting to pay for the supplies out of funds collected as heretofore. Now what are these trustees to do if they have no funds with which to meet their obligations?

"So far the Legislature has failed to make any provision for incidental funds except as the trustees were authorized to collect these fees from the parents. It is hoped that the Legislature will make some provision for this in the coming session. At least I believe that the vast majority of us will agree that it should be done.

"I have this suggestion to offer. Let the patrons of all the schools contribute according to their abilities to the end that we may take care of these needs until such time as we can secure the funds with which to do it. Personally I am in favor of eliminating the fees, but of course we know that the funds will have to be provided otherwise if this is done."

Yours for better schools,

B. LAWRENCE,
County Supt. Education.

When officers found him on top of a filling station, William F. Boyd of Memphis, stated, "I was so drunk I didn't even know where I was."

Charles Green of Columbus, O., told the police, when they found him suffering from lack of nourishment, that he had rather starve to death than to eat potatoes, as this was the only food he had.

Freight Association Holds Meeting In Clanton, Ala.

tically all concerns hauling freight over highways by motor, in the state, and Clanton should feel honored that the association selected it for the place to hold their meeting and barbecue.

In a statement to the News, Mr. R. D. Smith, secretary of the association, had the following to say in regard to the operating of motor freight vehicles in the state:

"This is an organization composed of a membership from every part of the state, all operating under the supervision of the Alabama Public Service Commission, and are sober, industrious citizens whose efforts and ambitions are to give the shipping public a quick and dependable freight service. Records will show that the authorized motor freight carriers pay on the dollars invested, the highest taxes in the State of Alabama.

"For the first time in the history of our railroads, they are asking for permission to lower their rates. Had there been no motor freight industry, the railroads as usual, would have been clamoring for increased rates. On cotton alone, the motor freight industry has saved the Alabama farmers this year, an average of $1.00 per bale on every bale of cotton produced."

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special, for it's ready! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is a. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A cooled tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any retention of bad breath. Whenever children can't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Mrs. Isabelle B. Cushman of Detroit was ordered to reduce the number of her pets when neighbors complained that her family of 19 dogs, 16 cats, 4 white rats, a canary and some goldfish was a public nuisance.

Churches Are Freed Of Debt In Recent Drive

Pastors And Congregations Being Congratulated On Achievement

METHODIST CHURCH, B. ANNEX DEDICATED

Two of the most impressive and important services ever held in the Methodist church and the Baptist church of Clanton were held here last Sunday when the Methodist church building was dedicated and the Sunday school annex of the Baptist church was dedicated, as the result of a drive staged recently to raise funds with which to pay off the indebtedness incurred by the construction of the buildings.

Much time and talk had been given concerning the debt owed by these two churches and methods as to how these debts could be paid, for some time. Finally, about three or four weeks ago, forces were gathered and a drive long to be remembered in Clanton was started to raise the necessary funds. This drive apparently met with success and approximately $16,350 was raised from various sources, all of which came as gifts toward this cause, for the two churches, and it will be many, many years before the people of Clanton will have another opportunity to witness the dedication of a Methodist church or a Baptist Sunday School annex, because this was done Sunday and the Methodists and Baptists of Clanton deserve and are receiving heartiest congratulations on this achievement, and it is most certainly quite an achievement to free the two largest churches in Clanton of a long standing debt.

The Methodist church held their dedicatory services Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, and there was no services held at the Baptist church at that hour, as the Baptist congregation shared with the former in this program. Bishop W. N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, delivered a most impressive sermon at this occasion, which was masterful.

FIDDLER'S CONVENTION AT THE COUNTY LINE SCHOOL

Announcement has been made that there will be a Fiddler's Convention at the County Line School House tomorrow night, November 21, beginning at seven o'clock. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents, and everyone is invited to come and take part in this occasion. Proceeds from this are to go to the school.

A & P STORE IS NOW LOCATED IN NEW PLACE

G. C. Armstrong Invites Public to Visit New Home of Popular Grocery Store

A cordial invitation has been extended to the people of this section by G. C. Armstrong, to visit the A & P Store of Clanton in its new home, where they now have everything in fine shape. Mr. Armstrong, who is manager of the local store is perhaps, one of the most widely known merchants in this county, and wishes to have his many friends call on him.

The A & P Store moved last Monday night from the building up near The Leader, into the building formerly occupied by Moore's Store, next door to J. H. Broadhead & Son, and still on Main Street. The front of the new home of the grocery store has been painted a brilliant red, and the gold lettered sign can be easily found. The interior of the building has been almost completely made over to suit the needs of the grocery store, and presents a handsome appearance.

There will be no change in the personnel of the local A & P Store, and no change in the policy, it still being their slogan, "Where Economy Rules."

Grover Harris, Jr., came over to spend the past week end with his parents here, Mrs. and Mrs. G. C. Harris, Sr.

Aubrey Taylor of Auburn was in Clanton over the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Taylor.

MRS. LEILA MABEL POTTS DIED AT HOME NEAR HERE THURS.

Mrs. Leila Mabel Potts, age 23, died at her home near here last Thursday, November 13th.

Funeral services were held on the following Friday in Carville, in Tallapoosa County, with Martin of Clanton in charge.

Surviving is the husband and three small children.

BERRY GROWERS WILL MEET IN CLANTON FRI.

All Farmers Being Urged To Attend Meeting to be Held At The Courthouse

A meeting of the Clanton Berry Growers Association has been called for next Friday afternoon, November 21, at 1.30, for the purpose of discussing some important matters to the farmers, according to an announcement from C. E. Stapp, County Agent, made Monday. The meeting will be held at the courthouse auditorium.

The objects of this meeting as pointed out by Mr. Stapp are to discuss a change in the method of marketing; to check up on the acreage and condition of plants; to see if some move can be made to increase the acreage to berries; to discuss some other crops that can be handled cooperatively.

Mr. Stapp also stated that any farmer who is not a strawberry grower is urged to attend this meeting Friday.

CHANGE MADE IN OPERATORS OF BELL TELEPHONE CO. HERE

A change in the personnel of the telephone operators at the local exchange of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company took place in the last few days.

Mrs. Grier Culver, who has been connected with the Telephone Company here for some time has been relieved by Mrs. Gertrude Usselson, who has recently become a resident of Clanton. This change became effective sometime this week.

It was stated by telephone company authorities that this change was for a period of six months. There is no doubt that the patrons of the telephone company in this territory who have been served by Mrs. Grier, will regret to see her away from the office and hope that she will be able to resume her duties when the time arrives.

Mrs. Usselson, who has had experience in this line will give the users here of the service of the telephone company her best in telephone service. Her husband has been connected with the L & N Railroad here for sometime.

Farmers Still Selling Cream At Station Here

County Agent Stapp reports that 76 farmers brought cream to the cream station at the office of the Farm Bureau here last Saturday, bringing in 160 gallons, and received pay for 400 pounds of butterfat, which is equivalent to 460 pounds of butter. Although the price on this cream is not as high as it could be, Mr. Stapp urges farmers not to be discouraged in this matter, stating that he is of the opinion that the price of cream will surely go up shortly.

In making this report, Mr. Stapp pointed out the fact that there are several thousands of acres of waste branch land in the county that could be cleared and made very profitable if put in pasture and allowed to be grazed by good dairy cows.

Last week's issue of the News carried a splendid article in the County Agent's Department, on how to mix home grown feeds for best results when it is to be fed to dairy cows, and anyone wishing an extra copy can get same by calling for it at the News office. Mr. Stapp went on to state that many farmers in Chilton County could well afford to reduce their cotton acreage and grow more feed for dairy cows. He stresses good cows because low producing cows, handled as dairy cows, never produce their owners profits.

WORK IS STARTED ON CHURCH AT COLLINS CHAPEL

The work of constructing the new church at the Collins Chapel community has begun and the foundation for the building is being laid. Services are to be held in the school building during the construction of the church.

KIWANIS CLUB ELECTED NEW OFFICERS HERE

J. Mell Martin Elected President With W. M. Wyatt Vice-President

At the regular weekly meeting of the Clanton Kiwanis Club held last Thursday, officers for the coming Kiwanis year were elected.

J. Mell Martin was elected as president of the club, with W. M. Wyatt, as vice-president. J. C. Page was elected treasurer and W. M. Polk, Sr., District Trustee. The following were elected as directors, S. J. Ezell, John Hollis, J. R. Mullins, Percy M. Pitts, S. R. Powers, E. E. Upchurch, and Prof. L. C. Warr.

The office of the secretary was not renewed at this time due to the fact that the club does not elect the secretary, but this is done by the board of directors, who will call a meeting for this purpose.

These newly elected officials of the Clanton Kiwanis Club will assume their duties as such officers on January 1, 1931.

Mrs. A. D. Martin of the Mulberry Community was in Clanton shopping last Monday.

J. C. Price To Get Preliminary Monday

A preliminary hearing will be given J. C. Price next Monday morning, November 24, before Justice of the Peace H. M. Simpson, with Lawrence F. Gerald attorney for the defense. Raymond C. Smith will act as prosecutor.

Price was arrested and placed in jail here charged with the murder of Chester Cassel, who died as the result of a knife wound in the head during a quarrel between he and Price on the night of the election, November 4, in Thorsby, according to information given the News this week.

AGED RESIDENT DIED AT HOME COLLINS CHAPEL COMMUNITY

Wiley Gore, aged 80, died at his home in the Collins Chapel Community last Sunday, November 16th, at eleven o'clock.

Funeral services were held on the following Monday morning at Collins Chapel, with Dr. S. J. Ezell, Rev. Z. Y. Appleton, and Rev. J. P. Lowery conducting the services. Interment followed in the Collins Chapel cemetery, with Martin of Clanton in charge.

The deceased is one of the oldest residents of the county and a prominent citizen in his community. He is survived by his wife, and three sons, Perry, Green and John Gore, all of this county.

RHODES INFANT DIED AT HOME ON ROUTE TWO LAST FRIDAY

Gerty Lane Rhodes, the three weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rhodes, died last Friday, November 14, at the home of her parents on Clanton Route Two. Funeral services were held on the following Saturday, with burial in the City Cemetery, here.

Status Of Unemployment Conditions in Chilton County To Be Studied by Emergency Committee

Information received by the News Tuesday in a telegram from Theodore Swann, chairman of the Alabama Emergency Employment Committee, operating in this state, stated that Chilton County has been asked to cooperate with this recently appointed committee in a state-wide survey that is to be made for the purpose of determining the status of the unemployment situation.

The information stated that the commissioners of this county and the mayors of the towns in the county have been asked to give their cooperation in this matter and assist in bringing this survey to a point that will probably bring aid to the situation.

This survey will embrace all federal,

BOX SUPPER AT NEW HARMONY SCHOOL ON TUESDAY NIGHT

The News has been requested to announce that there will be a box supper at the New Harmony School on Tuesday night, November 25th. Everybody is extended a cordial invitation to come, and the proceeds will go to the school.

LOCAL SCOUT ORGANIZATION GETS CHARTER

Prof. Zebulon Judd, Auburn, Talks To Scouts at Meeting Last Thursday

The local Boy Scout organization, which has been active for the past few months, received its charter at its meeting last Thursday night, officially designating the local organization as Troop No. 47.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Scouts here last Thursday night, Dr. Zebulon Judd, professor of Education at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn was present, and gave the boys a talk that was thoroughly impressive from start to finish. There were also present Hugh Adams, L. A. Ward and John J. Seigwald, of Selma. Mr. Seigwald is the Scout Executive of this district.

Certificates were also given the members of the Scout Committee of the local Kiwanis, composed of C. E. Stapp, J. C. Page, V. J. Gragg, S. R. Powers, John Hollis, Raymond Smith, S. J. Ezell, Ernest A. Childs, with Horton T. Walker as Scoutmaster. The Scouts will hold their regular weekly meeting again tonight.

Dates Set For School Holidays This Year

Definite dates have been set and announced for the holidays for all the schools in Chilton County for Thanksgiving and Christmas, according to information from the office of the Supt. of Education.

All the schools in the county will take Thursday and Friday, November 27 and 28, as Thanksgiving holidays, resuming their work on the following Monday, December 1.

Christmas holidays will begin immediately following the closing Friday afternoon, December 19, and continue through to Monday, December 29, when they will resume their work as usual.

"INGAGI" AFRICAN WILD LIFE PICTURE SHOWING, MONTVALLO

The Strand Theatre, in Montevallo is presenting to the public the wonder picture, "Ingagi," a picture of the wilds of Africa. This adventure film, combining actual scenes with an almost unbelievable tribal legend of the Congo, provides numerous thrills, as well as being extremely educational.

This is not a silent picture, but has all the natural sounds of the wild life of the Congo. Leon Dillingham, who appears in the picture, was in Clanton yesterday, and will also be in Montevallo Saturday, November 22, when this picture will be shown at the Strand Theatre there. They will have three shows, and there will be no advance in price of admission.

The picture will also be shown at the Wadeson Theatre tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bentley have been visiting Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

William Hester spent the week end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hester.

HOME MAKERS CLASS TO HOLD CAKE SALE AT A & P STORE

The Home Makers Sunday School Class of the local Baptist church will hold a cake and candy sale at the A & P Store here on Saturday, November 22, according to an announcement made Tuesday by the class reporter, Mrs. J. Lee Smith.

The cakes and candy will be home made.

LEGION POST FIDDLERS SHOW GETS BIG CROWD

Said By Many to Be One of Most Enjoyable Conventions Held in Clanton

What has been said by many of those who attended, the Fiddler's Convention held at the courthouse in Clanton last Tuesday night, was one of the most interesting and enjoyable fiddlers conventions ever held in Clanton in a long time.

The convention was put on by the Chilton County Post of the American Legion, and the auditorium of the courthouse was filled to capacity by persons from all over this section of the state. The weather seemed to clear up in favor of this occasion and there was not a hint of any unsuccessfulness on the entire program.

There were approximately twenty-two fiddlers from all parts who took part in the contests and as the result, the judges showed that Orville Wright, young fiddler from near Isabella, was due first prize, which was five dollars in cash, and much comment was made on the youthfulness of Wright, and his ability to play. Second prize went to Ira Howard, of Verbena, and third prize went to R. A. Johnson.

In all there were thirty-one prizes awarded, the three main prizes being in cash, while the others were in small sums of cash and various articles donated by merchants of Clanton.

One of the features of the program was a speech by Congressman Lamar Jeffers, of Anniston, and a distinguished World War veteran, and an outstanding member of the American Legion, having been recently elected to serve on the Congress of the FIDAC, an international military organization. He represents the United States in this organization. His speech was apparently thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd attending.

Those taking part in the fiddling contest were Henry Cleckler, A. H. Courtney, W. J. Seymore, W. A. Wright, E. N. Watkins, J. H. Wright, R. A. Johnson, Zed Mims, W. B. Clark, R. D. Caton, M. N. Burnett, Orville Wright, Archie DeLoach, Herman Lowery, Ira Howard, R. Chasteen, Lee Caton, J. W. Smith, L. L. Courtney, J. C. Terrell, F. Smith and W. O. Smith.

Hill Grocery Company Marks Off Fifth Year

The local Hill Grocery Store, whose location in Clanton is known throughout this section, has marked off its fifth year in a splendid service to the people of this county, according to J. W. McEathern, manager of the store, who makes his home in Clanton also.

Mr. McEathern stated that according to statistics the Hill Grocery Company are the largest food distributors in Alabama when it comes to handling sugar, lard and flour. He also pointed out to the News that the people of this section will always find practically everything they want in the grocery line at the store in Clanton, and believes that the people will find this store a decided convenience.

Elsewhere in this issue of the News will be found the usual ad from the local Hill Store in which they are offering some attractive bargains in their line of merchandise. Mr. McEathern went on to state that the people will find them always ready to render any service possible for the community and for the trade.

Misses Lulu Burks, Eunice Logan, Icie Bell Cobb, and Mrs. Mamie Kirby, of the Stanton High School faculty were in Clanton shopping Saturday.

Local Club Will Send Young Lady To B'ham-Sou.-Howard Game

DECISION TO BE MADE FOLLOWING LUNCHEON

Clanton will be represented at the Birmingham - Southern and Howard football game next Saturday, November 22, in Birmingham, by a young lady of this place who is to be chosen by the local Kiwanis Club at their luncheon today.

The young lady who is to be picked from the beauties of Clanton, who have been nominated by a special nominating committee of the club, will be among the beauties from other towns in the state who are to be guests of honor at the game, and who will participate in the game, and who will represent the beauties of Clanton at the Magic City. This feature is being sponsored by the Birmingham Junior Chamber of Commerce.

'Miss Clanton' will leave here Saturday morning and turned over to the guest committee in Birmingham, and she will wear a banner designating her as the one chosen to represent Clanton and the Kiwanis Club.

The announcement of the young lady chosen will be made immediately following the weekly luncheon of the club today, and the decision is to be made by voting of the members of the club.

The special nominating committee has named the following young ladies of Clanton from whom one will be chosen: Misses Ruth Sessions, Janiece Danforth, Gertie Mae Fiquette, Zora Guy, Mary Heard, U. L. Foshee, Ruby Warlick, and Louise McSwain. Misses Alma Gentry, Vivian Gray and Katy Mae Rogers were also nominated, but when informed of their nomination, declined on account of their inability to go Saturday.

Miss Edith Simms, who is in training at South Highland Infirmary, spent the past week end in Clanton.

Miss Nell Sumner, of Alabama College, was here the past week end and had as her guest, Miss Jettye Vaiden.

Miss Madge Scarborough was attending an educational meeting in Birmingham last Monday.

Jim Roberts, a student at Auburn, spent the week end in Clanton with friends and relatives.

LARGEST VOTE CAST IN RACE FIGURES SHOW

Figures in Senatorial Campaign Forwarded to Senator Gerald P. Nye

Alabama Democrats in giving John H. Bankhead a majority of 50,016 in his senatorial race against Senator J. Thomas Heflin, cast the largest vote in the history of the state official figures on file at the secretary of state's office show.

These figures, giving Bankhead 150,985 to Heflin's 100,969, are being forwarded Senator Gerald P. Nye at his request for an official count of the senatorial race in the general election.

The official vote in the gubernatorial race and other constitutional contests has been filed with Gov. Bibb Graves and will be canvassed during the first five days of the next session of the legislature by a committee appointed by the speaker of the house.

The official vote in the ten congressional districts follows:

NO WORDS FOR SOS

Many arguments have been indulged in as to the words for which the distress signal SOS stand. Some have thought they stood for 'Save Our Ship,' 'Save Our Souls,' or other similar sentences.

According to the Navy Department the letters are not abbreviations at all, being merely an arbitrary signal selected because of the simplicity of making and understanding it in dot-and-dash code.

In this code S is made by three dots, O by three dashes, so the signal SOS is expressed by three dots, three dashes and another three dots.

Prior to 1912 the radio distress signal was CQD, which some said stood for "Come Quick, Distress." Whether this supposition is correct or not, that's the idea it sought to convey.

After driving 72 miles into the mountains for a vacation trip, Herbert Kern of Portersville, Calif., discovered that he had forgotten a sack of doughnuts, so he drove back for them.

When A. C. Smith of Detroit went down to fix his furnace, he heard a sepulchral voice say "Yoo-hoo" and after investigating he found an owl sitting inside the furnace on the dead ashes of last year's fire.

George H. Sweeney, publisher of the Pueblo (Colorado) Chieftain, says: "What has become of the dreamer?" "In years past how many times have we heard someone criticised by the words, 'He is only a dreamer'? Then it was the man who built air castles for his community's future was regarded as but a dreamer.

"Today, if we but reflect, we probably find that same dreamer far ahead of us either financially, politically, or socially, and there just because he was a dreamer.

"Modern business speed, in fact every modern achievement is but the fruits of some dreamer's foresight.

"To continue progress, whether it be personal or community, we must all be dreamers, and then, more important than all, we must dream out loud.

"The way to dream out loud is to use proper advertising and repeat it often enough to insure the accomplishment of its purpose.

"America's wonderful business today is but the result of dreamers advertising their air castles. Scan your newspapers, your magazines, listen to your radio, you can but agree.

"Are you, in your personal, in your community life, a dreamer? Most people, most communities have but to dream out loud to become successful."

Boyce House, editor of The Ranger (Texas) Times, says: That a red-headed boy on a football field is always conspicuous and any good playing he does is seen more readily by the crowd than is the work of any other player.

The reason, of course is, that he is different.

Towns should seek to be different from their neighbors. Tourists don't want to see places that are as much alike as row after row of "company houses" in an old time coal mining village. Skyscrapers, handsome homes, beautiful schools — travelers can see these without leaving home.

Tourists crave the odd and the picturesque. They want "color." And almost every town has some feature that, if not unique, is at least unusual.

Almost everyone remembers the horned frog that emerged from the courthouse cornerstone at Eastland, Tex. When the new courthouse was built, the sculptured likeness of "Old Rip" was chiseled on the walls and the lifeless figure of the frog has been placed in a glass-encased mausoleum in the courthouse rotunda where it is viewed by thousands of strangers each month.

Our city, Ranger, gained fame for its oil. Today, a full-sized derrick stands on Main street as a symbol of petroleum treasures.

When the name of your city is mentioned, it should suggest something else, as: Taos, artists; Cheyenne, the round-up; Troy, collars; or Reno, divorces.

That something about your town that is different will capture the interest of the visitor and he will then note your paved streets and big factories. He may move there or invest there. At least, he will later tell his neighbors about your town and they will want to visit it. And as the tourists are spending four billion dollars a year, your city should go after its share.

Let's have less emphasis on mere size or wealth and more stress on developing the personality of a town.

Let a city—instead of imitating Chicago or Hollywood—just be itself.

One Year Ago

From Issue of November 21, 1929

An interesting event of last week was the wedding of Miss Alma Robinson and Mr. William Eugene Hudleston. The ceremony was performed on Friday afternoon at four o'clock at the Clanton Baptist church.

Captain William Patrick Lay will be signally honored on next Saturday when the power development on the Coosa River now known as Lock 12 will be officially named Lay Dam.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, will address the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon today.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Williams of Birmingham spent the past week end in Clanton as the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams and Mrs. J. W. P. Murphy.

Mrs. L. F. Gerald and Miss Madelyn Orr were joint hostesses to the Music Study Club at the home of Mrs. Gerald last Tuesday afternoon.

We Eat With Our Eyes

THE above heading is a fact, not just a trite saying. When food attractive, in color is set before us, the sight of it stimulates the appetite, gastric juice and increases its quantity, in preparation to receive and digest the food we are about to eat. Hence the expression: "It makes my mouth water." No less an authority than W. R. M. Wareham of the Food & Drug Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture made this statement recently in a radio talk.

"Nature," he said, "has tinted our natural foods with all the colors of the rainbow, and we have formed the habit, through the ages, of associating various flavors with the colors of products. Take, for example, blackberries as we see them on the bush. If they are black, we know without tasting them that they are ripe and luscious. If they are red, we know that they are unripe and sour. These things we know by experience, and this experience is infallible. You probably have never seen peas colored blue, nor macaroni colored red."

Color in Canned Foods

That is the reason why more and more canned foods are now put up in those sanitary enamel lined cans which preserve the hues of highly colored fruits and vegetables much better than the ordinary containers. The shining interiors of these cans not only present, a tempting appearance themselves, but provide contents that conform to the housewife's ideas of what colors the foods should be.

"I'm A Producer And A Shareholder In The Swift Family"

"You can't blame me if I take more than an ordinary interest in the affairs of Swift & Company. I'm interested in two ways. First—as a producer. Second—as one of 45,000 shareholders.

"I'm glad to belong to this big family. And if you'd ask me to sum up why, I think I'd say—

- 1—Swift & Company is one of the most efficient organizations in America. Only an exceptionally well run concern could possibly thrive on an average margin of less than 2 cents on every dollar of sales.
- 2—As a producer I receive the going market price for the best butterfat, eggs and poultry I can deliver. Swift's nation-wide distribution, because of their 600 car routes and 400 branch houses, assures me of an ever-ready market. I am not subject to local glut or shortages.
- 3—Swift & Company employs 58,000 people who receive just wages. These employees live in the communities where they work. Many of them are our own neighbors. They spend their money with our merchants, build their homes here, pay taxes like you and me. They contribute to the well being of this town.
- 4—As one of 45,000 shareholders, I receive a return on my investment.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth. However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

L. O. Brackeen Quits Bureau

Publicity Director Will Head Agriculture Department's Radio Service

Concluding two years of service as director of publicity for the Alabama Farm Bureau, L. O. Brackeen has submitted his resignation to the bureau's executive committee with the announcement that he would soon assume the duties of departmental editor and director of radio service of the state department of agriculture. Mr. Brackeen succeeds Howard C. Smith, resigned.

In submitting his resignation, Brackeen declared he would give wholehearted co-operation to the farm bureau upon assuming his new duties. He praised the farm bureau's activities, and said their services to the state's farmers had been of untold value. He received a vote of thanks from the committee for his work.

A native of Limestone county, where he learned dirt farming, Mr. Brackeen received his early education in the county public schools, later attending the district agricultural school at Athens, graduating from there and Florence State Normal. Upon his graduation from the normal school Brackeen took a post graduate course in agriculture at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

Mr. Smith's resignation is effective November 15. He is expected to re-enter the field of specialty writing with which he has long been identified.

C. E. Green of Dansville, N. Y., recently received two messages on the same day, one from New York telling that he was a grandfather and the other from San Diego, Calif., announcing that he was a great-grandfather.

On account of the bad weather there was no preaching service nor Sunday school Sunday morning, but we had a very commendable Christian Endeavor program Sunday night. Several good talks were made and special music was rendered, which was very appropriate for the occasion.

A special music committee was elected Sunday night, this committee consisted of two, Mr. Hudson Williams, and Mrs. Bertie Mae Little.

They will render special music along with our C. E. program. Sure it make them more interesting.

After the C. E. program our new pastor, Rev. Larce Headley, delivered a wonderful sermon. We are sure that he will make us a good pastor, if the people will cooperate with him and do their part.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Y. Sims and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams and family. Rev. Larce Headley and Mr. T. L. Williams took dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Williams Sunday.

Mrs. J. P. Williams and daughter, Bessie and Jettie, were in Clanton shopping last Saturday afternoon.

Come to school next Sunday and bring someone with you.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Another attempted encroachment upon the freedom of the press is seen in a reported request of the Federal Farm Board for action against a Nebraska weekly newspaper which has dared to criticize the workings of that body.

According to a dispatch to the New York Times, the board has asked the Federal Trade Commission and the Post Office Department to investigate the offending editor.

Regardless of the merits of the newspaper's criticism, it seems that the marshalling of these formidable government forces against a little country weekly is a rather ridiculous proceeding.

It is generally recognized that the Farm Board has a difficult task, and by many it is believed that it has been assigned an impossible one. But the board is a public body, and as such should be subject to such comment, favorable or unfavorable, as every citizen has a right to make with respect to other public bodies and public officials, not excepting Congress and the President of the United States.

The fact that the board has seen fit to try to set up such a censorship as the dispatch mentioned refers to will be taken by many as rather strong evidence that Chairman Leake and his associates are not sure of themselves. In any event it indicates that they are too emotional to handle their important job with calm assurance.

Alabama Economic Review Is Planned

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 19.—Work on the manuscript for the first issue of the "Alabama Economic Review" is being rushed to completion here by the bureau of economic research of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. It will cover current agricultural, industrial, economic, and financial conditions, and will be published December 1.

The review will be the first of its kind ever issued in Alabama and is being prepared by Prof. H. L. Mason under the direction of Dean J. W. Scott, head of the department of economics and business administration. The department of agricultural economics, of which Prof. J. D. Paine is head, is cooperating with Professor Mason in collecting data.

The review will give figures on the production of cement, iron, steel, coal, and lumber, on insurance sales, textile spindles in operation, building contracts awarded, automobile sales, gasoline consumption, banking and financial conditions, all aspects of agriculture, merchandise shipped, and business failures.

Figures for the month reported will be compared with figures for the previous month and with the corresponding month of the previous year. Figures on general business conditions will be compared with figures on conditions in Alabama.

The bulletin will be circulated among bankers, business men, manufacturers, farmers, industrial leaders, professional men, and others interested. It will be issued monthly.

HOW LONG FOR DISEASES TO "TAKE"?

Dr. Christmas Seal

Dr. Christmas Seal once saw a movie in which a character came into contact with leprosy and immediately his hand became leprosy. Everyone knows better than that. We do not break out with disease the moment we make contact. There is a period of incubation in which the disease is working its way into the system before manifestation. This period varies greatly with different diseases. Leprosy is a disease of slow growth that may take years to show itself, whereas scarlet fever incubates at high speed, and will develop in the exposed child in from two to seven days.

It must be understood that there is no such thing as an absolutely fixed and definite time for a disease to incubate. Many factors cause variation. Even such things as the season of the year or age of the patient may make a difference. One cannot be much more definite than to say that smallpox has an incubation period of 12 to 15 days; chickenpox 14 to 21 days; measles 8 to 15 days; infantile paralysis 3 to 10 days; and diphtheria to 5 days.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

The unemployment problem in Alabama is receiving the attention of leading industrial and business leaders of the state, who met in conference with the Alabama Industrial Development Board November 15, at the capitol and launched a definite program to aid the jobless. The meeting resulted in formation of the Alabama Emergency Employment Commission, consisting of members of the state industrial board, all of whom are leaders in industry in the state, and the other prominent business men attending the conference. Theodore Swann of Birmingham was named chairman of the emergency employment commission; Crawford Johnson of Birmingham, vice-chairman; and Thad Holt, secretary, the work of this commission to be conducted through the Birmingham office of the state industrial board.

Plans were perfected for an employment survey of the state, and for this purpose a chairman was appointed for each congressional district, who in turn were requested to name chairmen for each county in their districts. The district committees are to find out the status of federal, county or municipal public works projects in their respective districts; estimated employment on such projects and obstacles to carrying out such projects, if any; the status of employment in manufacturing plants and in the building-trades; and data as to commercial trade, wholesale and retail, and agricultural conditions.

Hops was expressed at the conference that the federal government can be induced to speed up public works for which appropriations have been made but on which work would not normally be begun in a year or so, and to make available up to five years ahead of the schedule originally intended the federal appropriations for roadbuilding. It was pointed out that the federal government in its proposed cooperation in the drive against unemployment wants specific information on existing conditions. It was for the purpose of getting this data that the district organizations were set up. An executive committee was also named, consisting of members of the Alabama Industrial Development Board district chairmen, and others to be appointed by Chairman Swann. This committee will meet in Birmingham November 25 to go further into the matter.

The state government is already doing everything possible to combat the unemployment problem. Work has been given to every man who could be legitimately employed in the service of the state and public works in which the state is interested have been developed as rapidly as possible. The policy of state cooperation in meeting the unemployment menace is in line with the similar policy of the federal

Thanksgiving

Once more the people of the United States have been called upon by their President to observe the last Thursday in November as a day on which to give thanks for the manifold blessings which we have been vouchsafed.

Thanksgiving is one of the few days which is celebrated as a holiday in every part of the United States. Of New England origin, dating back to the days of the Plymouth Colony, more than 300 years ago, its appropriateness has appealed to all America.

For we of this country have been more abundantly blessed than have been the people of any other nation in the world. We may grumble at "hard times" and point to inequalities as between man and man, and think we are pretty badly off, but we must remember that by comparison with any other part of the world, we are exceedingly well off, that the inequalities which divide our people into the successful and the unsuccessful are far less marked than the inequalities which exist elsewhere between the upper and lower classes.

The Pilgrim Fathers gave thanks to God on Thanksgiving Day for material blessings with which their physical condition had been ameliorated. We are all too prone today to take all of the credit for material progress to ourselves. Few today rely upon Divine Providence to take care of them, in spite of the express promise:

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

Our faith is less simple than that of our forebears. We do not look for direct and instantaneous answer to prayer. But deep down in our hearts we, as a people, still believe that somehow, if each does his individual best to live up to the spirit of religion, he will not suffer for lack of food and shelter and the normal comforts of life.

There is still faith in the words of the Psalmist: "I have been young, and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

This particular Thanksgiving Day of 1930 seems to us to be one upon which the religious origin of the occasion should be kept in mind. We have been through a hard year. We are still not "out of the woods" so far as material prosperity is concerned. But we have lost nothing which counts if we have not lost the faith in ourselves, in our neighbors, in our Nation and its ultimate high destiny, which all of our history justifies. So long as we hold to that faith and continue to believe that something higher than human power is still guiding us, we have every cause to be thankful.

Keep Up The Good Work

The Red Cross is making its annual appeal for funds. In a few days the Christmas Seals of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will be offered everywhere.

These are two noble causes, to which everybody ought to contribute.

The work of the Red Cross is continuous. Wherever there is life to be saved, homeless to be sheltered, victims of catastrophe to be relocated, fed, and started out anew in life, the Red Cross is the first agency in the field and the one which does the most good. By virtue of its office, the President of the United States, whoever he may be, is also president of the Red Cross. It is, in effect, an unofficial arm of the Federal government.

The recent drought gave the Red Cross an opportunity for service. So did the Mississippi flood of a couple of years ago, the hurricane disaster in Florida, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo. And hundreds of minor disasters, constantly occurring, keep this organization busy. It has no money except what the public gives.

The work of the Tuberculosis organization is of almost equal importance. Tuberculosis is diminishing, but only because of the constant watchfulness and educational work of the devoted men and women who are giving their lives to that work. Buying Christmas seals for a cent apiece is an easy and practical way for everybody to help.

"Buy Now"

Philadelphia deserves credit for initiating the "Buy Now" movement, which is being taken up by Chambers of Commerce all over the United States.

It is sound advice. If everybody would act upon it, business would pick up rapidly.

Everybody needs something. Many are holding off their purchases hoping for better times. So long as they continue to hold off, business will not improve. The way to make business better for everybody is to buy now.

That does not mean merely "do your Christmas shopping early," though that advice, always sound, is sounder than ever this year. It means going ahead with the purchases you would like to make but have been hesitating about making.

If everybody, or even half of the people of the United States were to act on this advice and buy now, the backbone of the business depression would be broken. That does not mean that the return of prosperity would be instant, but it would be greatly hastened.

Every retail purchase not only depletes the merchant's stock, making it necessary for him to order new goods, but it puts money or credit in the merchant's pocket with which to pay for the new goods he orders. His order in turn, added to those of other retailers, has the same effect upon the wholesaler and distributor, and those, in turn, go back to the mills for their fresh stock.

YOUR dollars, once passed across the merchant's counter, will thus do its share toward increasing factory payrolls. Prosperity can only be restored by putting dollars into circulation—your dollars and your neighbor's dollars.

"Buy now," is a good slogan, and buy at home.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

To start the thing off with a laugh this week, here's one I heard about a very modest young lady. She was so modest she shuddered to even think of the bare ground and trees in Winter. And another, "Would it be correct to say that under the present administration instead of getting the breaks, we got the 'broke's'?" And here is maybe a solution for the low cotton prices—have all candidates order their gift cigars filled with cotton instead of the cabbage leaves now in use. And another—Keep seeing something about the title of a movie "Half Shot At Sunrise." Well, I've seen some that looked as if they would be fully shot and out of navigation by sunrise.

There is a song that is extremely modern and one can hear it most anytime over the radio. It is entitled, "Give Yourself a Pat on the Back." That is all right, but there is nothing that can beat a friendly hand on your shoulder. A fellow named James Whitcomb Riley has the right idea and can express it better than I. Here is the way he puts it:

When a man ain't got a cent,
And he's feeling kinda blue,
And the clouds hang dark and heavy
An' won't let the sunshine through,
It's a great thing, O my brethren,
For a feller just to lay
His hand upon your shoulder
In a friendly sort o' way.

It makes a man feel curious,
It makes the teardrops start,
An' you sort o' feel a flutter
In the region of the heart!
You can look up and meet his eyes;
You don't know what to say
When his hand is on your shoulder
In a friendly sort o' way.

Oh, the world's a curious compound,
With its honey and its gall,
With its cares and bitter crosses—
But a good world after all.
An' a good God must have made it,
Leastways, that is what I say
When a hand is on my shoulder
In a friendly sort o' way.

Not so long ago I was in a discussion with a friend concerning how some people are liked and others disliked, and we discussed it for quite a while, bringing out the pretending some people do in their efforts to be liked and admired. But we finally reached the conclusion that to be liked by others, one must be natural. Take old people and children for instance. They are all liked by others and appear to be lovable, and the simple reason for this is that they act natural. There is a great lesson there for some of us who are neither old people nor children.

Now, who said it couldn't be done? I'm asking you. For a long time the people of Clanton, that is the Methodists and Baptists have been scheming and planning and working to free their churches of debt. That was being done back when times were good, or better than they are now, and still it seemed a terribly hard task. And then when things got a little tight in the business world, our two preachers, Ezell and Childs, just buckled under their belts tight and said it could be done, and they did it. Sunday marked a great day for Clanton, when the Baptist and Methodist churches were dedicated to the services of the Lord, free of a long standing debt.

Ain't it funny when a fellow gets in a tight he begins to think of the One above, the all-seeing One, and gets to calling on Him a little oftener than he would when everything is running smooth. Well, that is not exactly right. Anyway, that might have been one thing that went a long way in bringing our churches out of debt. Some of these fellows like myself, who are in a bad way, began to think about calling on the Lord for help, and decided we had better do something about our churches, before we started asking Him for favors.

Putting all jokes aside, folks, you needn't try to get by without telling or asking Him about it. I've decided that a long time ago, you may be able to get by all the men you see in your business, but just remember there is one person who sees it all and knows it all, and He don't forget it either. Better stick to the right thing.

I expect I should have been a preacher instead of a fellow writing a column like this. But I don't know which would be the most difficult. If I could be like Ezell or Childs I wouldn't mind it. But you don't find men like them just anywhere at anytime.

A man remarked to me recently that he was getting old and couldn't get into the hurly-burly of his life and had decided to enjoy raising flowers. I knew him well enough to believe that he is really enjoying raising his flowers much more than he enjoyed hobbies that called for more activity in his younger days. There are many things that we can enjoy and appreciate in life if we only take the time to look for them. It is a much mistaken idea that pleasures, to be attained, must be constantly chased. Many pleasures will come to you with little cultivating. Think of those things such as flowers, birds and trees, and too, there are the pleasures to be gotten from music and other arts. Everyone should have some kind of a hobby, provided it is a good hobby, and it should be something that is altogether different from their usual line of work. There is much pleasure to be derived from a hobby.

And before I put on my nightcap I'm gonna give this column a little finishing touch this week. Well, during my life I've seen lots of wolves in sheep clothing, and too, I've seen some calves (pretty ones too) in silk. I say that prosperity is just around the corner, and that's one corner I wouldn't mind taking on two wheels. I've seen an advertisement reads, "Before you ask for that raise, look at your heels," yes and you may have to take to your heels. If you wonder why, here's the answer, one reason a fellow who writes a column like this gets by with as much as he does, is because everybody considers he is off his trolley anyway, so why bother with him. Excuse me, the Frigidaire is boiling over.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Democrats Will Organize Next House, Says Chairman Shouse

Washington, Nov. 19.—That the Democrats will organize the House in the Seventy-second Congress is the confident declaration of Chairman Joutett Shouse of the Democratic National Executive Committee, based both on the known election returns and the likely changes in the close vote in districts that will add to the Democratic majority. In his statement, Chairman Shouse says:

"The Democrats should have the advantage in the recounts which will be numerous," and he pointed out that the close majorities which may be changed are more numerous in districts carried by Republicans, than those in which the Democrats were victors.

"Democracy's sweep at the polls last Tuesday," Mr. Shouse's statement said, "was even greater than the tally of Senators and Representatives who succeed Republicans indicates. In every section of the country a phenomenon of the campaign was the narrow margin by which the banner-bearers of the Republican party held onto their seats. Take the case of Speaker Longworth, who ordinarily has been sure of a 30,000 majority. He squeezed in this time by a tenth of that number. Then there is Tilson, of Connecticut, spokesman for the President and Republican floor leader of the House, whose majorities have run from 10,000 to 30,000. His escape was so narrow that an early report from Connecticut counted him defeated. Will Wood, of Indiana, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee and Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, accustomed to 30,000 majorities, is another who barely got by this time. And Hawley, of the Ways and Means Committee, who was elected two years ago with a majority of about 60,000, just missed being numbered among the casualties last Tuesday.

"In scores of districts the Republicans retained their seats by an edge so small that none of them can be sure that he is really in until the final compilations are made.

"No summary of the election would be complete if it did not pay some attention to the estimate of the result by Robert H. Lucas, Executive Director of the Republican National Committee, in which he said: 'Everything considered, the result must be taken as a vindication of the national administration,' and 'as convincing evidence of the abiding faith of the thinking people of the country in the leadership of Herbert Hoover.' His further deduction is that the Democrats have carried merely those states which would naturally come to them in the reflex of any election of the Republican landslide of two years ago.

"This suggests that Mr. Lucas counts such incidents as J. Hamilton Lewis' 700,000 majority in Illinois and the election of twelve or thirteen Democratic Congressmen in that State and the turning of practically the entire Indiana delegation over to the Democrats as indicating the continued faith of the American people in the Hoover Administration, and that the complete evaporation of a Republican House majority of 103, and the substitution of Democratic control of the House, as merely a normal political happening that need cause his party no great concern."

The Democrats gained nine Senate seats and lost one—a net gain of eight. The next Senate, on the face of the unofficial returns stands: 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Labor—a greater victory than anticipated.

When it comes to politely showing a Lady the door and bowing her out into a snow storm, Colonel James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois has no peer among the gallant knights of history.

Grundy Tariff Act And Farm Relief Failure Factors In Democratic Victory

Washington, Nov. 19.—In finding reasons for the impressive Democratic victory in the late election, the Baltimore Sun includes the Hawley-Smoot tariff act and the failure of the administration's farm relief law among the prime factors.

"It would be inaccurate and inadequate to treat the chastisement of the Republican Party as no more than an act of poetic justice," says the Sun. "Mixed with more or less blind backswinging against a party which had sought to make its name a synonym for prosperity was a certain conspicuous condemnation of specific party actions. When harsh realities took the place of castles of money in the air some of the people began to think of such measures as the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act. That flagrant and callous repudiation of the promises of Mr. Hoover and the Republican party, which Mr. Hoover signed in disregard of his obligations. . . .

"People began to think too about such measures as the misnamed farm relief law, under authority of which an administration that prates constantly about the glories of individualism in business life has gone in for price fixing and open-market speculations with the taxpayers' money and has squandered millions."

The Sun concludes that "this election has reminded the Republican Party that it is, after all, subject to the will of the people. There is no better way of saying that it was a good election."

Mt. Pleasant News

The Mt. Pleasant Parent-Teachers Association met several days ago and organized. Mrs. L. C. Warr, District P.-T. A. Chairman, and Miss Scarborough, Elementary School Supervisor, were present and assisted in the organizing. Fifteen joined at the first meeting. Others are expected to join at the next meeting which will be held at a date not yet announced. Watch for announcement of this meeting and arrange to be present as there are several problems of community interest which will be discussed.

The school work at Mt. Pleasant is progressing nicely. Several new enrollments were made this week which brings the total enrollment near 200. Due to fall gathering and the varied farm work there are some who haven't yet entered school. The next two weeks will see the school enrollment go well beyond the 200 mark. Sixty-two have thus far enrolled in the Junior high work.

Athletics are now beginning to take full form during the recreation periods. The larger boys have been busy getting the basket ball court cleaned off and smoothed down in readiness for the current season. The prospects for a winning team are good. Mt. Pleasant lost four of her regular players last year through graduation, which leaves only one player in which to build a team around this year. Curtis Traywick, the returning player was "high-point" man on last year's team. In eleven match games with other Junior high schools he netted the ball for a total of 101 points.

The boys basket ball team was organized last week. Curtis Traywick, being-elected Captain. Practice is now well under way, and with the new and inexperienced material we hope to develop a team which will not only exemplify a winning spirit but real sportsmanship.

The girls of Mt. Pleasant plan to organize a team this year. A court is now being prepared, new goals, boards, etc., made ready.

A Chicken Supper will be given at the school building at an early date. The P.-T. A. will sponsor this move. Watch for the date of it, which will be announced later. A great time will be had by everyone present.

The Elementary teachers, Miss Littlejohn, Miss Bean, and Miss Rainey attended the Demonstration exercises in Elementary Class-work held at the Clanton Grammar School on Friday, November 7th.

Miss Mildred Rainey, Primary teacher, spent a pleasant week end at the home of Miss Lesta Cobb, who lives and teaches in the Oak Grove community.

Attendance in school has been very good, even though, much farm work had to be done. Mt. Pleasant won the Attendance pictures for the months of November and January last year.

A beautiful Loving Cup was presented to the school by the Peoples Savings Bank, for the best yearly attendance for last year. We hope to share in these honors again this school year, so let every boy and girl who attends this school be present every day possible.

Of course Perfect Attendance counts most in a boy or girl's studies, so let's win two honors in the place of only one.

Seventy pupils at Mt. Pleasant were awarded Perfect Attendance Certificates for the month of October.

Child Care and Training

The Child Care and Training Class in Home Economics III has taken up a project with the beginners, ages from 6 to 7 year, in the first grade. The class is to better the physical, mental, and social development of the child. Simple play ground equipment is being provided for the smaller children in school. A great deal of work has been done with the pre-school child in this class. Some of the features the girls enjoyed in this phase of work were the observation of the first grade and the party with the pre-school children.

Isabella F. F. A.

The F. F. A. is increasing rapidly in membership. Many good plans have been made for the coming year in F. F. A. work.

Isabella Defeated Piper

The Isabella football team appears to be determined not to be defeated in their new field here, and demonstrated this by defeating the Piper team on November 11 by a score of 12 to 0, on the local gridiron.

The next game following that with Piper was played at Montevallo, against the Montevallo team. It rained thru-out the game, and either side did not score, ending in 0 to 0 tie. This game was played Friday, November 14.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 3—Definite assurance that Chevrolet will introduce a new car for 1931 on Saturday was revealed here today during the staging by Chevrolet factory officials of the first of fifty dealer meetings to be held in the next five weeks throughout the country.

Included in a carload of equipment brought in for the meeting was a new car substantially bigger than the current model, and extensively changed in appearance.

Although the meeting was closed to the public, it was learned that H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., who attended the meeting here, told the 500 dealers and associated bankers in attendance at the City Auditorium that the car would be publicly announced the coming Saturday, and that, despite its increased size and improved appearance, it would be priced considerably below current levels.

Dramatic incidents attended the presentation of the car. It was trucked under canvas from the freight shed to the stage of the Auditorium, and there, boxed in by velvet drape and under a flood of spotlights, disclosed to the audience.

A burst of applause greeted the unveiling of the car, and when the announcement of new lower prices was made, a wild cheering dealer group interrupted proceedings for several minutes.

The cars is longer than the present Chevrolet and changes and refinements are so extensive that it has a decided "big car" appearance, one dealer reported.

If the sentiment among the dealers here is any criterion, the new car ought to prove the most successful product in the history of the company.

Last Saturday, November 15, Polk Bros. Motor Co., Inc., local Chevrolet dealers placed one of the new 1931 models on display in their showroom, where it is now being viewed by a large number of people in this section.

FRED HENLEY AND MISS KATHERINE OWEN MARRIED OCT. 29

"THE EARLY BIRD" WILL BE PRESENTED AT MARBURY

The following article was taken from the Birmingham News of last Sunday. Mr. Henley was at one time a resident of Clanton and this item will no doubt be of wide interest in this section:

Henley-Owen Marriage Announcement is Made.

Ramer, Ala., Nov. 15.—The marriage of Fred L. Henley, formerly of Ramer, to Miss Katherine Owen, is announced, the ceremony having taken place in Anniston, on October 29.

Mrs. Henley, who is the daughter of the late C. A. Owen, tax collector of Bullock County for many years, and Mrs. Owen, is a member of the faculty at the Alexandria School in Calhoun County. She was graduated in the Class of 1928 at Alabama College at Montevallo, where she took special training in library work.

Mr. Henley, who was reared in Chilton County, was educated at Thorsby Institute, and later attended the University of Alabama. He was a World War soldier, serving in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Henley, formerly of Ramer, now of Montgomery. While living here he took an active and leading part in social, church and the business life of the town. At present he is in business with headquarters at Roba.

After Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Henley will be at home in Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Crawford and two sons of Birmingham visited the family of W. B. Corley in South Clanton Sunday. Mr. Crawford is widely known in Birmingham as a busy man of affairs and well informed as to the present conditions in the Magic City. His description of the condition of the less fortunate people of Birmingham and their sufferings at this time shows plainly that relief is needed.

BIGGER AND BETTER

PRESENTING THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such wide popularity. In both the chassis and body, you will find expressed, as never before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

The new Chevrolet is longer, lower and strikingly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar and chrome-plated parabolic headlamps. The long hood sweeps back gracefully into the new body lines. And never was Fisher's fine craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six! They are roomier, more comfortable, and throughout exhibit that attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is better. The wheelbase is longer. The frame stronger. The steering easier. The clutch more durable. There is a smoother, quieter transmission. Wherever finer materials and more advanced design could increase Chevrolet quality and economy—improvement has been made. The new Chevrolet Six is an outstanding achievement—it is the Great American Value!

» » AT NEW LOW PRICES « «

Chevrolet has long been one of the lowest priced cars in the world. Yet due to the savings of volume production and increased manufacturing efficiency, the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is offered at new low prices. Come in today. See and drive the new Chevrolet Six. Learn the economy of owning a modern, fine quality, six-cylinder automobile.

Boy Scout Activities of Clanton

Dan Smith, Troop Reporter

The local Scouts took charge of the Armistice Day program at the High school Armistice Day. John Ezell, a member of the troop, made an interesting talk on Armistice Day. Rev. Childs led the devotional and spoke about peace making. All Scouts who had their uniforms appeared with them on.

Troop Meetings Thursday November 13

Thursday night the troop met at the Chilton County Farm Bureau office. Mr. Walker, our Scoutmaster, was present. At first we engaged in some games, while waiting on Mr. Seigwall, executive of this district. When he came the troop was presented with its charter and this was received by the troop by saying the Scout oath. He also told us our troop number, which is No. 47.

Rev. Childs, Rev. Ezell, Mr. Powers of Lay Dam and Mr. Stapp were present with certificates certifying that they were committeemen of this troop. Mr. Walker, our Scoutmaster, was also present with a certificate certifying that he is our Scoutmaster. Mr. J. C. Page was to be present with his certificate, but was not present. After the troop meeting Mr. Seigwall held a patrol leader's meeting. The patrol leaders present were Dan Smith, Wolf Patrol; Joe Moore, Kangaroo Patrol; and Searcy Martin, Owl Patrol, of Lay Dam. At this meeting we decided that the troop color, which is shown by our neckerchief, would be blue and yellow, and the topic for study at the next troop meeting would be first aid. After this the meeting was closed. The next troop meeting will be tonight at 6:30.

Take an interest in the Boy Scouts and back them and they will prove to you their value to their community.

Patrol Activities

The Wolf Patrol met in the basement of the Methodist church last Saturday night at 6:00. Different bandages were studied and a few games were played. The next meeting will be Saturday night at 6:00.

Lay Dam Scouts

The Boy Scouts of Lay Dam, under the leadership of Mr. Powers, the superintendent at Lay Dam, are making fine progress in Scout work. On the morning of November 7, the Scouts went on a hike which is described below:

The Bob Whites Hike

November the 7th dawned bright and clear, a day the Bob White Patrol of Lay Dam had been looking forward to. The Scouts met on Thursday night to get everything together. The next day about 3:30 p. m. the Scouts, accompanied by Mr. Powers, their Scoutmaster, started on a ten-mile hike, taking tent, grub and other provisions on their backs. Some looked as if they would not last under the load they had, but they did.

They arrived at the place where they were to camp about 4:30 p. m. Every one fell to work, some putting up the tent and others gathering firewood and building fires. When this was finished, supper was started, and was not finished until the last crumb was gone.

When everything was put away and preparations were made for the night, everyone gathered around the camp fire to roast marshmallows, and potatoes and listen to stories told by Mr. Powers. At nine o'clock everyone turned in except two, who were to keep watch, for the night was divided into watches, two Scouts to the watch.

Everyone was out the next morning by six and down at the branch, slashing water on their faces to help the appetites that the cool morning air had already sharpened.

While breakfast was being cooked, Mr. Powers started out to try to kill a squirrel, but he returned without success.

After breakfast they started practicing trailing, rifle practice, practicing with the compass. These were the activities carried out through the morning. Knot tying and fire building were practiced during the afternoon. Pictures were taken of the Scouts and the camp. Then the packing and cleaning up of the grounds was started, because one thing that is taught in Scouting is to leave a place even cleaner than you found it.

About one o'clock they started for home and arrived about 2:30 p. m.

Everyone had a good time, especially Mr. Powers, because he didn't get any sleep.

Back The Boy Scouts Of Your Community

What is this Boy Scout movement? What does it do for its members and the community that it is in? These questions are asked by many.

The Boy Scout movement is an organization of boys between the ages of 12 and 18, working toward child betterment. It has won for itself the following statement from one of our late Presidents: "It is one of the big forces today making for world peace."

What it does for its members is almost priceless to them if they take interest in it. Physical training, moral training and mental training are given to all Scouts. If the future of this nation rests on the shoulders of the young people, why not train them now. One way to train them is to let them join the Boy Scouts of America.

The Boy Scout movement also engages its members in clean sports and amusements. By doing this they are building up their character.

What it does for the community that it is in, is very valuable. The Boy Scouts are always eager to participate in any movement which will help the community. They are not destructive to property. They believe in cleanliness and they want their community to look nice and attractive to everyone. So back the Boy Scouts, they live here, go to school here, and even your own boy may be a member. Take more interest in them and give them your help, because they can do more with it.

Today's Good Telephone Service Must Be Better Tomorrow

Not long ago very few long distance calls were handled while the calling subscriber remained at the telephone. Today more than 70 per cent are handled that way.

Today the average time required to complete a long distance call is only 2.4 minutes as compared with 7.5 minutes five years ago.

Similar improvements have been made in your local service and errors now average less than two in every 100 local calls.

These achievements are the result of new inventions, improved operating methods, new equipment, combined with the skill and interest of experienced operators, line-men and engineers cooperating with an army of loyal workers, many of whom are technical experts.

Proud as they are of these accomplishments, the telephone organization is not satisfied. There is no standing still in the Bell System and every day organized effort is directed toward making your service even better tomorrow.

THE RISE OF FOOTBALL

College football is still regarded as an amateur sport, in spite of the Carnegie Foundation's findings that in many institutions players are to some extent subsidized. But, regardless of what the players get out of it, college football has assumed the proportion of a business in which millions are involved.

As a recent writer declares: "It is played today by athletes as highly trained as steeple-chasers, in marble amphitheatres that shame the Roman Coliseum, before crowds that match in gate receipts the earnings of a Dempsey-Tunney prize fight."

The development of modern football from a casual sport to its present eminence seems remarkable when it is recalled that the first inter-collegiate game in the world was played in 1869 between Princeton and Rutgers with 25 men on each team. Incidentally it may be mentioned that the captain of the Princeton team in that game is still alive in the person of Chief Justice William S. Gummere of the New Jersey Supreme Court, and that his team lost by the score of 6-4.

It is also interesting to note that the first play which gave rise to modern football is commemorated by a tablet at Rugby School, England, bearing this inscription:

"This stone commemorates the exploit of William Webb Ellis, who with a fine disregard for the rules of football as played in his time first took the ball in his arms and ran with it thus originating the distinctive feature of the Rugby game, A. D. 1823."

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Again the American Red Cross is in the midst of its annual roll call, which is made each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving. It deserves the support of everyone who can possibly contribute.

Communities which have happily escaped disaster can hardly appreciate the magnificent work of this foremost relief organization. A great fire, flood, storm, epidemic or other cause of widespread distress immediately brings the Red Cross into effective action.

When the need for aid arises the Red Cross responds unflinchingly, promptly and efficiently. There are no delays, no hesitations, no lost motions. With clock-like precision the trained personnel moves to its humanitarian task and sticks to it until it is finished.

While it was originally designed for relief of suffering in time of war, the Red Cross has in late years become the greatest agency for emergency relief in time of peace as well.

It costs only a dollar to join the organization and thus to do this is at once a duty, a privilege and an honor.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE TO BE PUT UNDERWAY

The biggest job of "sticking" Christmas seals goes to the Outdoor Poster Advertiser of Alabama, stated Richard Hudson, Executive Secretary of the Alabama Tuberculosis Association, today in announcing that there would be 350 bill boards posted as the contribution of these companies to the twenty-fourth annual Christmas Seal sale.

Every county in the state will have bill boards calling attention to the sale. There will be two designs, one carrying the picture of Santa Claus carrying a Christmas tree with the slogan, "Buy Christmas Seals—Fight Tuberculosis," the other carries a picture of a child with the slogan, "Protect Them From Tuberculosis."

W. W. Parlier of Montgomery is President and Ralph Redel of Tuscaloosa is Secretary of the Alabama Association of Outdoor Advertisers. The Association endorsed the Seal sale at their annual meeting held in Birmingham last spring, stated Mr. Hudson, and the letters received from the managers of the agencies expressing their willingness to post paper is one of the bright spots of the year.

NEWS FROM CHILTON CO. HIGH SCHOOL

The P.-T. A. Meeting By Hilda Hart

The regular monthly meeting of the high school P.-T. A. was held last Thursday afternoon, November 13. There were not as many mothers present as would have been on account of the bad weather. After the business of the meeting was over, Mr. Brewster of Auburn, made a most interesting talk on plant life, and the general improvement of the campus. He gave us some very interesting suggestions on the planting of shrubbery and flowers, and gave helpful points for beautifying our home grounds. He answered questions by individuals as to the home problems of pruning and arranging shrubs.

The P.-T. A. has many plans for the year. At the present, they are trying to equip the stage with suitable furniture. The school is already very grateful to the P.-T. A. for their activities in getting our new stage curtain and interior furnishings. The P.-T. A. urges very impressively that all members attend their organization regularly, and please invite others to join and take part with them. They need you, and you need the P.-T. A.

Clean-Up Week at C. C. H. S. By Tina Hyman

As we are trying to beautify our campus, we are also going to keep our rooms clean. Each class is to have monitors for aiding and keeping the classrooms clean. The home economics class is sponsoring the contest. You can always tell whether a pupil keeps his room clean from the way he keeps his desk. We hope that all the classes will cooperate in keeping their rooms as well as the campus in a neat and orderly manner.

Senior I Assembly Play By Joe Moore

The Senior Class, directed by Mr. J. B. Varnell, put on a Thanksgiving play in chapel last Wednesday morning. The program was opened by the singing of Thanksgiving Song by the entire class. Tina Hyman told the story of Thanksgiving and Lois Miller recited a poem entitled, "When the Frost Is on the Pumpkins." This was followed by two selections on the guitar by Herman Lowery. Another poem entitled, "Harvest Time" was given by Grady Carter. Alex Hayes was master of ceremonies. The school enjoyed this program, and hopes to have others like it again soon.

Plantersville Here Next Friday By Dan Smith

The football game between Plantersville and C. C. H. S. was called off last Friday on account of bad weather, but they will be here next Friday in full form and ready to go. We are seeking revenge this time, because Plantersville is one of our keen rivals, and we hope that the town and school will come out and support the team. Every member of the squad seems to be in tip top condition now, with "Moose" Melton and Robert Summer back in the line-up, things have picked up quite a bit. "Get Plantersville" seems to be on the tongues of every student. This will be the last game of the season on the local gridiron for the high school. Come on and see your team in action against the strong Dallas County High from Plantersville. The game will be called at 3:15.

In a few weeks there will be a series of class-football games, between the classes. These games will be played to decide class championship. There will be three different teams, one representing the Junior High grades, one representing the Senior I class, and the other will represent the Senior II. These games will be played on the school field.

Each team will have a member of the school team as a coach. The teams and their coaches are listed below: Juniors, Robert Summer, and Herman Harris; Senior I, Edwin Wagoner and Harry Melton; Senior II, Jesse Frank Foster and Paul Cox.

Mr. Brewster's Visit By Walter Kelley Gillespie

Last Thursday afternoon, we were visited by Mr. Sam F. Brewster of Auburn, one of the best landscape gardeners in the South. The Senior I class, and boys from the agricultural class were with him in the campus. He gave us a most interesting talk on the removal of some of the trees from the south side of the building and the use of the space thus gained for parking of cars. He also pointed out the fact that the driveway was not an arc, and should be made to form a perfect arc; also it should have a concrete curb. By means of a drawing of the front of the building he showed exactly where flowers and shrubs should be planted, and what varieties would be best.

Among his suggestions were the removal of some of the trees from the south side of the building and the use of the space thus gained for parking of cars. He also pointed out the fact that the driveway was not an arc, and should be made to form a perfect arc; also it should have a concrete curb. By means of a drawing of the front of the building he showed exactly where flowers and shrubs should be planted, and what varieties would be best. These suggestions are to be carried out with the financial aid of the local P.-T. A. The senior I and junior III boys are planning to do all the work possible towards making this a success.

Improvements Made At C. C. H. S. By Nell Neighbors

C. C. H. S. has made some great improvements at school since it began. One is the making of new bulletin boards by Mr. Walker and his manual training boys. These boards are used for various purposes, such as poster-making, charts, and map drawings. The pupils are assigned work by their teachers and if it is judged very good, it is posted on the bulletin board. These pupils consider this an honor, and is also a fine plan to help the pupils to become more interested in their work.

Miller Undecided On Session Action

Camden, Ala., Nov. 15.—Governor-elect Miller told a delegation of good roads advocates here Saturday he was not prepared yet to ask for a special session of the Legislature to submit a road bond issue, but took their arguments under consideration.

Headed by President Thomas, Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, the delegation presented facts and pleas for a bond issue as soon as possible, not only to speed up the lagging road construction program in Alabama, but also to provide employment for many of the state's jobless.

Judge Miller talked with the delegation frankly but refused final decision. He said he was not familiar with the exact financial condition of the state, adding that Gov. Graves was the man in best position to judge whether the state should have a special session.

Judge Miller was shown results of letters sent under direction of the Alabama Motorists Association to bankers, editors, directors of the association and members of the present Legislature asking for expressions regarding a special session to submit a bond issue, which showed an overwhelming sentiment in behalf of the session. The help a bond issue would give in providing employment was stressed.

Judge Miller told the delegation he was elected on a platform which stressed economy and he would not favor any increase in the state's indebtedness unless he could be shown absolutely it was sound business.

Other members of the delegation were Frank E. Spain, president, Alabama Motorists Association; L. B. Liles, director of the association; W. D. Moore, Samuel L. Earle, Edward Wilkinson and Sam F. Clabaugh.

Judge Miller promised the committee as soon as he takes office and ascertains the financial condition and needs of the state he will endeavor to carry out a comprehensive road construction program, but lacking of complete information he could not now consider advisability of action.

The committee was assured the state will not lose any Federal aid by failure to match Federal funds, and was told by the governor-elect as soon as he took office he would do all in his power on behalf of unemployment.

Graves Proclaims Arbor Day

Governor Bibb Graves has designated Friday, December 5, for general observance throughout the state for Arbor Day. The Governor's proclamation setting aside this date is as follows:

Whereas, the economic and cultural welfare of the people of Alabama is largely dependent on the trees and forests of the state, and

Whereas, trees collectively in the woodlands are of great importance to our industries, and in our towns and cities enhance the beauty of the surroundings and afford comfort to mankind, and

Whereas, thousands of workers engaged in the timber industries are dependent on the forests for a livelihood, so that with forest depletion and consequent lumber importation many of them would be thrown out of employment, and

Whereas, forest fires continue to keep thousands of acres of land idle or nonproductive, and

Whereas, realizing the importance that trees have in our well being, and that with their absence standards of living would be reduced greatly, now

Therefore, I, Bibb Graves, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby designate and set apart the day of Friday, December 5, 1930, as Arbor Day and I do hereby urge all people of this state to give thought to the responsibilities that rest on them as good citizens and demonstrate their appreciation of such responsibilities by observing Arbor Day through planting trees and participating in exercises appropriate to the occasion.

The State Commission of Forestry is preparing to issue an Arbor Day program for the use of schools, clubs and other organizations. Copies may be obtained by writing to the State Forester, 500 Dexter Avenue, Montgomery, Alabama.

This will likely be the last days Mr. Michel will be here this season.

Penalty On Peanut Hog Called Unjust

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 19.—Farmers of southeast Alabama, who produce and eat peanut pork, and many others, who have eaten peanut pork, believe that the penalty placed on this product is unjust. They believe that peanut pork is as good or better than any other type of pork, and in cooperation with others are sponsoring a movement to acquaint the public with its merits.

It is estimated that the average peanut penalty on hogs is $3.00 per head. Annually southeast Alabama farmers produce and sell approximately 125,000 hogs. On this basis the annual loss to this section is $375,000.

Among those interested in making peanut pork popular are extension workers of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, the State Department of Agriculture and Industries, packers, luncheon clubs, and many other local clubs in southeast Alabama where peanuts and hogs thrive in combination.

Growers in that section have solved their problems of production and marketing. They know how to raise both peanuts and hogs, and sell intelligently through local cooperative sales organizations, operated with the advice and assistance of county agricultural agents.

They now hope to increase the demand for their product, as well as to remove the penalty on it. They are determined to solve this problem.

Production of hogs on a large scale in southeast Alabama began between 15 and 20 years ago with the advent of the boll weevil which upset the production of cotton.

HAVANA IN MORNING, NEW YORK, AFTERNOON; WHAT'S NEXT, HAWKS?

New York, Nov. 19—Captain Frank M. Hawks, who shuttled through the skies from breakfast in New York to an evening round of golf in Los Angeles, has now become a week end vacationist who swims in the tropical Caribbean in the morning and motors in furs about New York the same night.

Captain Hawks and the Texaco 13 air racer, in which he established east-west and west-east transcontinental records last August, came home from Havana a few days ago in 8 hours, 44 minutes, and if he kept a diary it would read like this:

"Sunday, November. Up at 6 A. M. and motored to Yacht Club for swim before take-off. Off at 7:34, arriving Miami 9:07; left Miami 9:20, arriving Charlotte, N. C., 1:00 P. M.; left Charlotte 1:26, arriving Roosevelt Field, Long Island 4:18:45. New York cold, requiring racoon coat for drive into city for dinner."

On the landing of the famous Texaco speed combination at Roosevelt Field, Captain Hawks submitted to the usual press group interviews.

"The transcontinental record was made between breakfast and dinner," a reporter suggested. "How about the record trip from Havana?"

"Within a shave," the noted pilot answered laughingly. "Used the razor this morning and I still look presentable enough for a dinner date, do I not? The old Texaco 13 brought me through faster than my beard could grow."

The 1,400 mile flight from Havana was 37 minutes faster than the journey from New York to Havana, which was made via Jacksonville, Fla., and Miami in 9 hours, 21 minutes. On the southward flight Captain Hawks drove his Wright powered craft without a stop for the 900 miles between New York and Jacksonville, establishing a new flying range for the speedy but limited fuel load ship. Going south, Captain Hawks also bettered the record time of the veteran monoplane Columbia which was piloted to Havana from New York two years ago in 14 hours by the late Wilmer Stultz.

IN MEMORY OF WILLIAM JESSE LAMBERT

On Sunday, October 26, the Death Angel came into our midst and took from us our loving father and grandfather.

He had been sick several months, which time was spent in the Alabama Baptist Hospital in Selma, Alabama.

He realized from the beginning of his illness that time with him on this earth was short. All that kind doctors, nurses, children, relatives and friends could do was done, but God called him and he answered, saying unto his children, "Do not try to keep me here, my children, for it is God's will and mine that I must go."

He was good and kind and everyone who knew him loved him. His home was in the Cane Creek community, but for the past few years business called him away.

He was a loving husband, father, and grandfather. He was 63 years of age. He leaves a wife, 7 children, 3 sisters and 8 grandchildren to mourn his loss.

He was laid to rest in the Cane Creek cemetery, Tuesday, October 28 to await the resurrection morn.

May God help us to live so as to meet him someday in that land where there will be no more parting.

"There was a voice through earth's Wild clamor calling,
To all the heavy laden and oppressed,
Sweet as the cooling dew at evening falling:

Come unto Me and rest."
—His granddaughter, Ruby Yates.

Auburn Offers New Dairy Short Course

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 19—The first short course in dairying ever to be conducted in Alabama will begin here at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute on February 2 and continue until February 28. It will be given by Professors A. D. Burke, W. H. Eaton, and their associates in the dairy department.

The course has been arranged for busy men who find it impossible to enroll for the regular college term, Professor Burke explained. The work will be given in the winter when farm and dairy plant activities are least pressing.

Two sparate courses are offered, one for farmers and dairymen, the other for dairy manufacturers. That for manufacturers includes instruction in testing dairy products, market milk and fermented milk, buttermaking, ice cream making, and refrigeration. The course in dairy production will include instruction in testing milk and cream, handling milk and cream on the farm, marketing, feeding dairy cattle, management of dairy cattle, dairy herd improvement, and selection and breeding.

Those who attend the courses will have an opportunity to study in the new Animal Husbandry and Dairy Building and the new dairy barn which were recently completed. A dairy manufacturing plant has been installed in the new building and provides facilities for laboratory work in the manufacture of ice cream, cheese, buttermilk, bottle milk, butter, and other dairy products.

Farm News Briefs

Centerville, Ala., Nov. 19—Every poultryman of Bibb County who followed the Auburn plan last year cleared $2.00 or more per bird, according to County Agent T. P. Lee.

Thomasville, Ala., Nov. 19—All the poultrymen in the vicinity of Thomasville have planted rape, Austrian peas, and oats as winter grazing for their flocks. This green feed should stimulate egg production, said County Agent, O. C. Helms, who reports that 20 poultrymen in other parts of Clarke County have planted the same crops for their layers.

Abbeville, Ala., Nov. 19—Looking through a vista of hard times and depression, County Agent C. S. Keller of Henry County states that he sees one hopeful sign. It is that many of the successful farmers of the county are affiliating with the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. Membership has grown from 33 to 125 and Mr. Keller believes it will pass the 200 mark before the end of November.

Scottsboro, Ala., Nov. 19—More than 5,000 bushels of soybean seed and 2,000 bushels of lespedeza seed will be saved this year by farmers of Jackson County. To do this they are using six seed harvesters and two combines. County Agent M. T. Gowder says they plan to expand their acreage in order to produce double this amount of seed next year. The seed will help fill a long-felt need in Alabama.

OLD FOLKS SAY
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1876, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with poplain.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And so you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottle, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE COMPANY ELECTS OFFICERS SATURDAY

Directors Set Central Fee At $2.50 For Coming Year

At a meeting of the Peoples Telephone Company held at the courthouse in Clanton last Saturday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President O. R. Robinson; secretary-treasurer, T. E. Wyatt; Board of Directors, James M. Robinson, E. H. Mims, Lee Popwell. The president and secretary-treasurer are also members of the board of directors.

The Board of Directors decided to set the central fee at $2.50 per phoneholder for the coming year. It is believed that more money will be raised in this way than if the fee were higher. Practically every phoneholder, it is believed, will pay this fee.

Another meeting will be held at the courthouse next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. At this meeting a director on each line is asked to report from his line, letting the directors know how many on his line will pay $2.50 for service another year. From these reports which are to be turned in at two o'clock next Saturday afternoon, the directors will be able to determine whether there is any use to try to operate the central any longer. The following men on the lines are named to canvass every phoneholder on his line and report the results next Saturday afternoon:

Line 2, James Moses Robinson; 4, Burns Goodgame; 5, B. H. Jones; 6, Jene Mims; 9, Dr. Hayes; 12, L. & N. The above named men are asked to collect fees where possible, with the understanding that same will be refunded in the event the service is suspended. If the men named can not possibly attend the meeting Saturday afternoon, let them send their report.

RADIO'S RAPID GROWTH

When it is remembered that the broadcasting of regular programs was begun only ten years ago, the growth of the radio industry stands out as an amazing fact. Today every other family in the United States has a radio receiving set.

According to a recent estimate, the number of sets in use in this country is placed at 13,478,000, which is about one-half the number in use in the entire world.

New York leads in other states in the number of sets in use, followed in order by California, Illinois and Pennsylvania. California has the greatest number in proportion to population. These four states have about 29 per cent of the nation's population and about 39 per cent of the radio sets.

As in the case of automobile manufacturers, makers of radio equipment are wondering how many more persons may be counted on as prospective purchasers of their products. And, as in the automobile industry, competition is very keen, and it is likely that this competition will eliminate some of the weaker manufacturing concerns.

But there appears to be no reason why the industry should not continue to grow until a radio set of some sort shall find its way into at least 75 per cent of the homes of the country.

In her divorce suit, Mrs. Jeanette Lieber of Chicago testified that her husband always wanted to stay home and do the housework.

MATT'S PLACE

A High-Class Eating Place in Clanton, Where Accommodation Is One Of The Prime Factors in Serving Their Customers—Good Cooking and Pure Food Ever Prevailing

By Frank J. Payne

Matt's (Cafe) Place is a popular up-to-date and modern eating place in Clanton, this for the reason that the proprietor at all times tries to please and thus serves the best the market affords, hence making his hostelry an agreeable place with the good people of this section. In Clanton Matt's Place is popular, and throughout the county and even beyond it is noted for its fine service.

Matt's Place is one of the bright and cheerful places in the city to dine—and that famous coffee served simply cannot be beat—as they serve you with some of the nicest, daintiest, most appetizing things you could hope for or desire to eat. It is a place for the traveling man or woman as well as the local trade, and the same obliging treatment is extended to all, and the same tasty, luscious dishes handed over the counter to each and every one.

Traveling men covering a wide expanse of territory say that Matt's Place here in Clanton provides food that is equal to any that they obtain in territory covering Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee. Home folks are well pleased with this part-excellent eating house, therefore it is quite easy to understand why they enjoy a large and select trade of home people and the traveling folk as well.

The one idea in view in establishing Matt's Place was to provide a modern cafe for the accommodation of the local people and the traveling public. It is centrally located and offers every convenience necessary for comfort. Their continual effort to please is evidence of the fact that they desire to provide the public with the things they want, adding comfort and all other service and courtesy.

The owner, Mr. M. L. Ware, is recognized as one of our good, substantial citizens, standing willing and ready at all times to do his full share toward boosting Clanton and Chilton County; is loyal to any move that will help us onward and upward, and therefore well deserving of the liberal patronage of the public, and in this edition of the Chilton County News we wish to extend to Mr. Ware our congratulations for the wonderful success he has made in his chosen field of work.

Mr. Ware began this business eight years ago. In doing so he established the first real cafe in Clanton. Prior to that time the city was without a high-class restaurant. -Owing to Mr. Ware's initiative and desire to give the city and its surrounding a real food service he is doubly due the praise and favorable consideration of the people of this section.

Too Much ACID

MANY people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You'll never use crude methods when you know this better method. As you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief.

Get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, the kind that physicians have prescribed for over 50 years in correct excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—a drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been with U. S. Registered Trade Mark of Phillips' Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1876.

THE STORY OF ALABAMA IS TOLD IN HOLLAND'S

In a well illustrated article T. C. Richardson, staff writer of Holland's, The Magazine of the South, tells nearly half a million Southern subscribers to this magazine an interesting story of the history, romance, development and resources of Alabama. This is one of a series of articles about the Southern states, appearing in Holland's, The Magazine of the South, written by Mr. Richardson, for the purpose of giving Southern people a better understanding of their own and neighboring states. A different state is discussed each month, and it is the good fortune of Alabama to have its virtues portrayed in the article that appears in the current issue. In referring to Alabama, Mr. Richardson writes:

"Today Alabama stands out among her sisters as one of the most broadly developed and progressive states, and the number of items in which she stands first is impressive. Her natural advantages are just coming into full fruition, by the development of her mineral power resources without sacrificing too much of her agricultural activities. The spirit of Alabama as a territory, and in her first forty years as a state, did not die during the four years of civil war in which Alabama took so great a part; nor was that spirit destroyed by the political and financial disabilities of that war's aftermath.

"Without abating her reverence for the traditions of yesterday, she has gone resolutely about the readjustments indicated by a forward outlook. You sense this whether in Mobile, or in Montgomery, in Birmingham or in Tusculumbia. Proudly commemorating her leadership in the political battles for state sovereignty which culminated in secession, and maintaining the cultural ideas of her pioneers, she has nevertheless let no grass grow where material opportunities called for initiative in men and money. Her civic consciousness interpreted into action has given her the undisputed national leadership in the realm of public health; one of her boasts is a penal system that stands high according to modern standards; and in public education she progresses at an accelerated rate."

Real Estate Men Seek Tax Reform

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 16.—Legislation for the equalization of the property tax in Alabama will be the chief statutory reform measures sought by the Alabama Association of Real Estate Boards at the next session of the Legislature it was announced last night by Carl Wilson, president of the Association, following a meeting here Friday night of its executive committee.

Real estate assessments in their present form are not upon an equitable basis, Mr. Wilson said, and a general revision of the statutes governing assessments and taxation will be urged by the association.

To this end, a legislative committee was appointed by the Executive Committee, to consult with a tax expert and a movement inaugurated to organize a "property owner's division" of the association in which all owners of property will be eligible to join to advocate a readjustment of the present system.

It was brought out at the meeting that while real estate constituted only 45 per cent of the wealth, 85 per cent of the taxes paid were paid upon property assessments in the United States. Alabama will be the 23rd State to urge a reduction in ad valorem taxation, it was said. One of the inequalities in Alabama's law was cited by Mr. Wilson. The ad valorem tax in Montgomery for State, City and County and schools is $3.25 per $100 valuation, while the tax on bonds and stocks is $1.50 per $100 for the first year only, and are not taxable the second year.

The association also will advocate an inheritance tax law, similar to that in other states, which will bring considerable revenue to the State.

Virtually all of the 14 Real Estate Boards in the State were represented at the meeting.

Jeffers Expresses His Appreciation

In a letter to the News, Hon. Lamar Jeffers, of Anniston, and recently elected Congressman from this district, on the Democratic ticket, expresses his appreciation to the people of Chilton County and the Fourth Congressional District for their support in the recent election, as the result of which he will succeed himself as Congressman. Following the News gladly publishes Congressman Jeffers' letter:

Anniston, Ala., Nov. 15, 1930.
Editor,
The Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Sir:

Please permit me, through the columns of the Chilton County News, to express my deep and sincere appreciation to the good people of Chilton County and the Fourth Congressional District for the wonderful support accorded me in the recent election. I am indeed grateful. The splendid vote given me is a great inspiration. It has been my aim in the past to come as near as I possibly could to be correctly representing the interests and reflecting the will of the citizenship of our district in the House of Representatives and to render every proper personal service for the people, and in the future it will be my pleasure to continue to endeavor to handle all the duties of the office in the best possible manner.

And I desire to say to all those good friends who "went down the line" for me so cheerfully, unselfishly and effectively that I am genuinely appreciative of all their efforts in my behalf. I want them to know that I am fully aware of the fact that their friendly interest and active aid had much to do with the ultimate result. We are nothing in this life without our friends. My feelings are expressed in these lines:

"It is my joy in life to find
At every turning of the road,
The strong arm of a comrade kind
To help me onward with my load;
And since I have no gold to give,
And love alone must make amends,
My one prayer is that while I live—
'God make me worthy of my friends.'"

Thanking you for carrying this in the Chilton County News for me, and with good wishes, am

Respectfully,
LAMAR JEFFERS.

Taylor-Lawrence Marriage Took Place Here Last Sunday

One of Clanton's most prominent young business men and one of Clanton's most popular and attractive young ladies surprised their many friends when they were married last Sunday morning. These two were Reddie Taylor and Miss Pauline Lawrence, who were married by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the local Baptist church at his home here quietly Sunday morning at nine o'clock.

Immediately following the ceremony this happy couple who have occupied the focus of the social spotlight of Clanton for some time, left by motor for a wedding trip, the route of which was not disclosed. They arrived back in Clanton Wednesday morning, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Taylor holds a position among the young social circles of Clanton to be envied. She is the charming elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Lawrence of this place and comes from a family of high standing in this section. She is also a graduate of the Chilton County High School of two years ago.

Mr. Taylor ranks among the successful and prominent business men of Clanton, and has for several years been connected with various business concerns in the county and is at present manager of the Chicago Sales Company, the Capitol Dry Goods Co., of Clanton and the Chicago Sales Company at Jemison, Alabama, and at one time held a position with the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton. He is also a member of the town council of Clanton.

Just what the plans are of this fortunate couple are not known by the News at this time, but perhaps the task confronting them on their return will be receiving the countless congratulations among which is the congratulations from the News.

C. B. Cox Writes Of His Appreciation

Following, the News publishes a letter from C. B. Cox in which he expresses his appreciation and deepest gratitude to those who supported him in the recent election, in his race for the office of Tax Collector of this county, on the Democratic ticket:

I wish to express my greatest appreciation and deepest gratitude to those of you that voted in the election just passed and expressed your preference for me by your vote.

My political faith and affiliation has always been with the Democratic Party. I not only believe that it is the party that stands for progressive and sound economic principles, but, I believe that it is the great fortress that protects the common people from ruthless plunder and abject slavery at the hands of the favored few who dictate the Republican Party principles.

It is to be hoped that those who so foolishly gave aid to the effort to destroy the Democratic Party have seen the error of their ways, and will join hands with us in the future and return our county to the care of the party for which our forefathers so willingly gave their lives.

Yours very truly,
C. B. COX.

Churches Are Freed Of Debt In Recent Drive

fully spoken and carried weight with every word, and the dedicatory prayer was by the Rev. Ernest A. Childs, pastor of the church, who with W. M. Polk, Sr., trustee, spoke the formal dedication lines.

On Sunday night the Methodists shared with the Baptists in their most impressive services at which time the large educational plant of the Sunday School was formally dedicated. Dr. R. L. Wyatt, pastor of the Bush Hills Baptist church, Birmingham, was here to fill the pulpit at this occasion and gave to the congregation one of his forceful sermons for which he is so well known.

Special songs figured in this dedicatory service, one of which was a solo by Mrs. L. C. Ross, and the service was closed with a prayer of thanks by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the church.

Friday night of last week there was held at the Baptist church a get-together affair in celebration of the success in raising sufficient funds to pay the church debt, and the public was invited. Refreshments were served splendidly by the various circles of the church to all those present, and preceding this, prayer services were held in the auditorium; Dr. Ezell leading for the men, Mrs. Ezell for the women, Miss Tina Hyman for the girls and Hal Broadhead for the boys.

At the services held at the Methodist church and at the Baptist, the pastors spoke frankly of their devoted relationship to the people of Clanton, and the enjoyment they received through their workings here for the past several years. Not only the pastors of the churches are to be highly commended for this result, but the people of Clanton are to be congratulated.

METHODISTS WILL GET A NEW PASTOR HERE

Rev. E. A. Childs Has Been Sent To Fill Pulpit At Troy By Conference

With the reading of the appointments at the close of the Sunday evening service, the 98th annual session of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, came to a close.

The Rev. Ernest A. Childs, who has been in Clanton for two years as pastor of the local Methodist church has been transferred to Troy, Alabama, and will be succeeded here by Rev. D. W. Hasker. Rev. Childs has done some wonderful work during his stay in Clanton, and can number his friends here by the score, and there is no doubt that the announcement of his leaving, will be met with extreme regret by the entire population of Clanton. He played a most active and untiring part in the recent drive here to free the Baptist and Methodist churches of debt, a job that was completed.

As forecasted, Bishop Ainsworth reduced by two the number of districts, those absorbed being the Andalusia, Eufaula districts. The charges of these districts were taken over by the Dothan, Montgomery, Selma, Marianna and Pensacola districts. The three presiding elders of these districts were returned to the pastorate, these the Rev. W. H. McNeal, the Rev. C. S. Talley and the Rev. W. R. Bickstaff. In addition to these, Dr. J. M. Dannelly, presiding elder of the Troy District, was assigned to a pastorate.

There were many changes in the assignments of the preachers for another year, but probably not as large percentage as for the past several sessions. And, as was understood, there was difficulty in placing all of the preachers, this due to the absorption of several districts and the several men in outside work who came back for regular appointments.

The following are appointments as announced Monday morning in this district:

Selma district, N. B. McLeod, presiding elder; Autaugaville, J. B. Trotter; Beatrice, F. M. Lowery; Bolling, L. H. Brannon, supply; Camden, Grant Gaffard; Centerville, E. M. Holman; Clanton, D. W. Hasker; Deatsville, H. S. Ellison; Gastonburg, S. R. Jones; Greenville, T. J. Jones; Lowndesboro, C. A. Williams; Marion, Carl Precor; Marion Junction; Orville, J. R. Watson; Pineapple, H. M. Ellis; Plantersville, E. E. Stafford; Prattville, B. F. Marshall; Sandyridge, E. H. Brown; Selma, Alabama Avenue, J. F. Bilbro; Church Street, J. O. Grogan; Sunset Mills, E. W. Roberts; Verbena, J. M. Metcalf.

J. C. PRICE IS BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

As the result of the preliminary trial given J. C. Price, charged with the murder of Chester Cassel, held last Monday morning, he was bound over to await the action of the next Grand Jury. Price was not allowed bond and was placed in jail again.

Honor Last Saturday

Miss Mary Heard was picked from a group of nominees last Thursday by the Clanton Kiwanis Club, as 'Miss Clanton', and went to Birmingham Saturday as guest of honor of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Birmingham, attending the Birmingham-Southern-Howard football game.

Miss Heard was chosen from eight other young ladies nominated by the club. She is the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Heard. 'Miss Clanton' left Saturday morning for Birmingham, where various entertainments awaited her, along with the guests of honor from other towns in the state. She gave a message to the people of Clanton and to the Clanton Kiwanis Club over Station W. I. Saturday at noon. In interviewing Miss Heard, after her return to Clanton, she told a representative about her trip, as follows:

"The Twitler Hotel was assembling (continued to back page)

Jim Wade Opens New Produce Company Here

Monday morning saw a new business opened in Clanton and with James Wade at the head of it. The new business for Clanton is located in the building three doors east of the post office, on Main street and will be known as the Clanton Produce Company. The produce concern of W. A. Blackmon, of which Evan Parrish was manager, and located next door to the Bates Motor Co., was purchased by this new concern.

Jim stated that they would handle practically everything in the general produce line, and make deliveries as usual. In connection with the business will be conducted a modern cold storage plant, in the same building.

BATES MOTOR CO. BADLY DAM- AGED BY FIRE

Blaze Discovered Early Sunday Morning; Gets Good Start Before Found

Fire, which was discovered early Sunday morning did considerable damage to the Bates Motor Company here before firemen were able to reach the flames. The alarm was turned in about two o'clock Sunday morning.

The blaze, judging from appearances originated in the middle building of the three departments of the motor company, and apparently started in the vicinity of a heater in the rear, spreading from there through a thin partition to other parts of the building. There were several automobiles in the place at the time, all receiving considerable damage from the heat, smoke and water.

Due to the dense smoke that came from the building the volunteer firemen were hampered to some extent in getting to the flames, but soon had them under control and extinguished. The amount of damage done was not estimate at this time.

The buildings occupied by the motor company, of which H. M. Bates is operator, are owned by Dr. J. P. Hayes.

ORPHANAGE CAR SHIPPED LAST FRIDAY WAS WELL LOADED

The car of goods which was shipped to the Baptist Orphanage at Troy, Alabama by the Unity and the Clanton Associations of this county left Clanton last Friday, November 21, well loaded, according to a report of the committees in charge.

The committees expressed their appreciation of the response given this call from the people of Chilton County, and the project was claimed a success. Loaded in the car was sweet potatoes, 8,978 lbs; flour, 868 lbs; miscellaneous groceries, 656 lbs; corn meal, 851 lbs; dairy feed, 200 lbs; hay, 685 lbs; fruit (tin), 56 lbs; clothing, 136 lbs; fruit (glassed), 2,118 lbs; dried fruit, 27 lbs; corn, 2,845 lbs; peanuts, 103 lbs; syrup, 255 gals.; cotton seed, 307 lbs; soap, 6 lbs; and one ax.

These goods were donated by people over the county and shipped to the Baptist Orphanage Home at Troy, for use there, and were shipped over the Louisville & Nashville R. R. who made a charge of only one-half the total cost of the freight.

LAY DAM S. S. GIVES BIRTHDAY MONEY TO WELFARE WORK

The Sunday School pupils and teachers of Lay Dam School have a little bank that they use to put in a penny for each year they are old, when one has a birthday. They open this bank each October and use the money to help people who are in need. This year they asked that the Welfare Department use it and when they learned from the welfare worker that there was a person in need in their district, they very happily spent the $5.00 to make this person more comfortable by getting some necessary clothing. Lay Darn is active in welfare work, with Mr. Woodson as the chairman.

Miss Ruth Martin, Mrs. Marion S. Smith and Herbert Adams spent the past week end in Livingston as guests of Marion S. Smith, who is attending school there.

Mrs. J. M. Curlee had as her guest the past week end, her daughter, Mrs. R. S. Gilbert, of Birmingham. Mrs. Gilbert returned to her home Sunday and was accompanied by Mrs. Curlee who will spend several days there.

Give Thanks

Let us hold silent appreciation for our forefathers; men who dared to stand alone, think and fight for justice and independence; men who laid America's foundation by hard work, thrift and common sense.

Scarcely had the Pilgrims settled in the Bay Colony three hundred and ten years ago, when the terrible New England winter descended upon them. Only half of the party survived the hardships and suffering of that first year. Those who were spared carried on like the dauntless pioneers they were, and lived and prospered. And when the harvest time came set aside a day, and in utter simplicity and sincerity gave thanks to the Great Giver of all gifts. A period of adversity often awakes within our breasts a deeper appreciation of the countless blessings we all receive.

Give thanks for the example set us so many years ago. The homely virtues of self-discipline and perseverance are still the unfulfilling source of abundant prosperity.

Mother Of Frank P. James Died Thurs.

Mrs. Carrie Choice James, age 58, died at her home in Childersburg, Alabama last Thursday, November 20. Death came as the result of an illness lasting for approximately three years.

The deceased was a devoted member of the Baptist church, and became a member forty-two years ago, giving as much time as permitted to her church work. She was born in Greenville, S. C., on June 22, 1874. She is the mother of Frank P. James, prominent sign shop operator here, of The James Sign Shop.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church in Childersburg last Saturday morning by Dr. S. J. Ezell, of Clanton, and the large number of floral offerings and the large number of friends at this last sad rite, mutely spoke of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by all who knew her.

Surviving is the husband, her mother, Mrs. W. M. Larke, of South Carolina, two sons, four daughters, and thirteen grandchildren. The news extends sympathy to the bereaved family.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS WHEN TURNING IN FIRE ALARM

Special instructions have been issued to residents of Clanton concerning the turning in of fire alarms. The new instructions are to call Die's Service Station, and when they answer, tell them just where the fire is. Then the alarm is sounded, and by arrangements with the Bell Telephone company there is a telephone at the truck house, and by this method, the firemen can know where the fire is before they leave, and insure quicker action on their part. Cooperation in this will be greatly appreciated, and will also prove very beneficial.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL PLANS TO PUT ON PLAY HERE SOON

The Clanton Grammar School has announced that sometime during the first part of December, they will present a three-act comedy entitled, "Safety First."

This presentation will take place at the auditorium of the local high school and will be for the benefit of the local grammar school. Further announcements will appear in the papers, when the plans have been definitely made and the date set for the presentation.

Mrs. Bama Cox of Montgomery is spending several days in Clanton as the guest of friends and relatives.

Man Accidentally Shoots Self Hunting

N. J. Griffin, age 42, accidentally shot himself in the left arm Monday morning while out hunting. He was rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital here, where it was found necessary to amputate his left arm just above the wrist.

According to the story given the News, Mr. Griffin had laid his gun down, and when he attempted to pick it up, it discharged, and practically the entire charge entered his arm, badly mangleing it. He is the son of Jeff Griffin, who resides near Verbena, and was down here visiting. His home is in Bessemer, Alabama, at 524 Thirtieth Street.

J.D. ROCKETT TO PURCHASE JONES HDWE. CO.

Store Has Been Closed Lately While Taking Stock of Hardware Company

The store of the Jones Hardware Company has been closed for the past few days while they were busy taking stock in preparation of selling to J. D. Rockett, of the Clanton Building Supply Company.

This transaction is to take place immediately after the job of taking inventory is completed it was stated.

C. Fenn Jones, who is perhaps one of the oldest hardware merchants of Clanton, told a representative of the News that so far he had made no definite plans as to what he will do in the future after selling his huge stock of hardware and furniture to Mr. Rockett. Mr. Jones has been engaged in the hardware and furniture business in Clanton for the past twenty-nine years giving the people of this section a most reliable service in this line with perhaps one of the largest stocks in Clanton.

The Jones Hardware Company was originated by C. Fenn Jones and has prospered under his care. The building housing this business will not be sold by Mr. Jones, but the stock of goods will remain, and the name of the business changing following the purchase by Mr. Rockett, it was stated. The deal will probably be closed on December 1st.

Mr. Rockett is widely known throughout this county and adjoining parts. He has been in the lumber and building materials business for a number of years in Clanton during which time he and his business have won the patronage of scores in the county by rendering a complete service in his line. Just who will be connected with the former Jones Hardware Place after the sale was not stated this week, nor was it stated whether the stock of the Clanton Building Supply Company would be transferred to the hardware store or not, but it was stated that the hardware and furniture stock of the Jones store would remain in the building and the business reopened right away under the ownership and management of Mr. Rockett.

SUIT TO BE TRIED ON NON- PAYMENT INCIDENTAL FEES

Information reaching the News Monday stated that a suit had been put into court in Talladega County by E. A. McBride, superintendent of education of that county, for non-payment of incidental and matriculation fees.

It was stated that this suit was something of a trial suit to determine just what could be done about the matter.

N. K. BLANKENSHIP AND FAMILY HAVE MOVED TO CALERA

N. K. Blankenship was in Clanton last week and while in town stopped in the News office to have his paper sent to his new address, which will be Calera, Alabama.

Mr. Blankenship stated that he and his family moved to Calera last Friday. They have been residing on Clanton, Route 4.

ROBINSON MACHINE SHOP HAS BATTERY RECHARGING DEPT.

One of Clanton's well known and reliable garages and machine shops has announced the installation of a modern battery recharging outfit. This is the Robinson Garage & Machine Shop, located near the Ford building. Mr. Robinson stated that now they are able to give your automobile battery first class inspection and service. The inspection will be free. Prompt service is given on repairing and recharging.

OPPOSITION LOOMS STRONG ON JAIL SITE

Local Baptist Church Is To Petition Commissioners On Proposed Site

Strong opposition appears looming against the proposed site of the new county jail which has been stated will be erected in the near future in Clanton, judging from various comments and actions already taken in the matter.

Chilton County has purchased the property adjoining that where the courthouse is located, on the east side, known as the Potts property, and plans to erect a modern county jail on the lot. The jail is to be a two-story structure, with quarters for the Sheriff on the ground floor and prisoner's quarters on the second floor.

If erected on this lot, it will be more directly in the business district of Clanton, and adjoin the property of the Clanton Baptist church, with only an alley between. Residents living near the Potts property are voicing strong disapproval of this proposal, and rumors have it that others are opposed to the site being too near the business district.

At regular conference, the Clanton Baptist church membership voted unanimously that the pastor and deacons petition the Probate Judge and County Commissioners not to erect the proposed new jail adjacent to the $60,000 church property. It was brought out in the discussions that such location would be of great interference with the Sunday school work and church services, and it was also shown that the old Baptist church lot was sold and the church erected on its present location to avoid the disturbance and possibly the nuisance caused by their former location.

Much interest is being manifested in this matter and earnest hope has been expressed that the county officials will take under consideration the sacrifices the church has made in building its fine edifice, and will decide to erect the new county jail on the site where the present one stands.

THE LEADER STILL PUSHING FORWARD WITH BARGAINS

On the back page of this issue will be found the large ad from The Leader, one of Clanton's popular dry goods stores, in which they are listing many bargains. Mr. Lande, proprietor of The Leader stated last week that the reason he did not give prices in his ad was because they were busy marking down the prices so that the people of this section could buy the goods they needed for winter wear. This action is very considerate of Mr. Lande.

SPECIAL THANKSGIVING SER- VICES BAP CHURCH. WED. NIGHT

Announcement has been made by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the local Baptist church that special Thanksgiving services will be held at the church on Wednesday night (tonight) at seven o'clock. The public is urged to attend these services and give thanks.

TWO CLANTON STORES TO BE CONSOLIDATED

Chicago Sales Co., and Capitol Dry Goods Co. Will Move Into A & P Bldg.

Announcement was made by Reddie Taylor this week that the rumor of the combining of the Chicago Sales Company of Clanton and the Capitol Dry Goods Co., is true, and this consolidation took place this week.

The two large stocks of these stores will be combined and placed in one store, the former location of the A & P Store on Main Street. The A & P Store has moved to the building formerly occupied by Moore's Store, down next door to J. R. Broadhead & Son.

For the past week, carpenters have been busily engaged in building new shelves for the new home of the two dry goods stores, and Mr. Taylor stated that on Friday, November 28th, he will open his large new store with a Consolidation Sale. The new place will be known as the Chicago Sales Company, of Clanton, with Reddie Taylor as manager. Elsewhere in this issue will be found an ad from this store.

Our Sunday School Superintendent called the school in a special business session last Sunday and every class was reorganized, with Mr. J. F. Nelson, superintendent, Miss Jessie Bell Speer, secretary, and Mr. O. F. Wells teacher for the Bible class. Mr. J. A. Dobbs, secretary for this class and Mr. Otis Coggins, president of the Young Peoples Class. Miss Cornelia Coggins as teacher for the class and Miss Catherine Strength, secretary for the class. Mrs. Veda Glenn was elected teacher for the Junior Class and Barney Speer, secretary. Mrs. Elva Mims was elected teacher for the card class. Our Saviour said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not," and there is no better place to teach them to come to Jesus than in a Sunday School, and for you to keep them away might be that you would forbid them from finding Jesus as their Saviour.

Our singing society met last Sunday evening. Our chairman did not come, but Mr. Riley Culpepper acted as the chairman and we had a real good singing. The directors were, Mr. Riley Culpepper, Mr. Harvie Davis, Miss Ethel Griffin, Miss Ida Bell Dobbs, Miss Cornelia Coggins, Mr. Phillip Headley and Miss Lorena Hudson. The organists were Mrs. Cornelia Coggins and Mr. Riley Culpepper. Everybody come back next fourth Sunday evening and let's have a real good singing.

A large crowd attended church Sunday night. The pastor preached and we reorganized Christian Endeavor to meet each Sunday night at six o'clock, with Mr. Otis Coggins, president; Mrs. Cornelia Coggins, vice-president; Miss Catherine Strength, secretary; Misses Jessie Bell Speer, Ida Bell Dobbs and Ethel Griffin, look-out committee, and Mr. Andrew Nelson, Misses Lois Nelson and Jewel Price, prayer meeting committee, and Mrs. Elva Mims, Mrs. Lola Nelson and Miss Evelyn Smith, social committee.

Rev. A. C. Nelson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins visited Mr. S. P. Smith and family Friday evening. Miss Emma Dean Smith has been on the sick list for several days. We hope she will soon be well again.

Mr. Jim Smith and family have moved into our community. We welcome them into our midst.

WARBURTON ADVISES FARMERS TO SAVE HOME - GROWN SEED

Farmers in the drought area should save seed for next year's corn and cotton crops, Dr. C. W. Warburton, chairman of the Federal drought-relief committee, emphasized today in commenting on last week's developments in drought sections. He advised farmers to save their seed, even if they have to buy feed to replace it.

In many states, he explained, the crop standardization work of the Department of Agriculture and the State experiment stations has produced varieties and strains that can not be replaced if they are lost. Even a small nubbin of corn that grew under adverse conditions this year will transmit its characteristics of the strain, he said, and will produce a better crop next year than fancy ears of an unadapted variety from some outside source.

Employment for farmers who must have an additional cash income and who are unable to get credit is occupying the attention of State drought committees, Doctor Warburton said. In Ohio the State highway director, working in cooperation with county and State committees, is giving employment on the highways to those who need it most. The county committees assume the responsibility for selecting those to be employed.

A similar plan has been worked out in West Virginia, he continued. Contracts for new roads are let with the understanding that farmers are to be employed where possible. In counties where the need for employment is especially great the men are worked in shifts, so as to provide work for the largest possible number.

In many instances commercial firms, tie companies, coöperage firms, railroads, and other users of lumber are buying the year's supply now to bring a little much-needed money into the drought area. Other concerns are going ahead with building operations and clearing of right of ways, which will give employment to farmers of the vicinity.

In this emergency some farm laborers and tenants are thinking of moving to the city. Doctor Warburton expressed the belief that these people will fare worse in the city than they will on the farm this winter.

Many instances of effective relief work by business men are coming to light in reports to the Federal committee. In a West Virginia town the directors of the bank authorized the mayor to place an order with a Chicago brokerage firm for 1,000 bushels of wheat which was sold at cost to farmers for feed. In Greene County, Ark., many of the feed merchants are selling livestock feed at cost.

PASSING OF GEN. BLISS

Another great American soldier, General Tasker H. Bliss, has passed away, after giving more than half a century of active service to his country. He was one of only eight who have held the full rank of general in the history of the United States.

Born in Lewisburgh, Pa., on December 31, 1853, he was graduated from West Point in 1875 and promoted thru the various grades until he reached the rank of general, while serving as chief of the General Staff in 1917. He was retired by operation of law shortly afterward, but continued on active duty during the World War at the request of the President.

General Bliss served as a member of the peace commission which formulated the Treaty of Versailles, being President Wilson's military representative at the peace conference. After the war he was governor of the United States Soldiers' Home from 1920 to 1927.

He received many honors and decorations from foreign countries as well as his own, and his death was noted and commented upon by newspapers throughout the world. His part in the peace conference was especially esteemed by France. In fact, his fame rests nearly as much upon his diplomatic achievements and statesmanship as upon his military career.

STEPHEN

Acts 6:7-10; 7:54-60

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Will it work? is a question that many ask when the ideals of Christianity are presented. The best answer is to turn to the lives of multitudes who are expressing the teachings of Jesus in their daily experiences. Stephen is one of the first to do this very thing and has the distinction of being called the earliest Christian martyr. Leaders in Jerusalem followed closely the activities of all propagandists just as the authorities do today in any country with an orderly form of government. And yet the mind must always be open to a fuller understanding of truth since the realm of facts can never be regarded as a closed book.

Stephen comes into prominence when the necessity of church organization arose. A poor fund was started, for part of the teachings of Jesus called for distribution by those who had any excess to those who were in need of daily bread.

Soon this servant of God became a marked man and was regarded as dangerous by those who were determined to stop the progress of this radical teaching of brotherly love that had been announced by Jesus.

The case was tried before the Sanhedrin and Stephen had to make his defense before the Seventy. He showed them that Jesus was the long looked for Messiah, and that He had been treated with base consideration, even as their forefathers had despised the instructions of the prophets. When the judges could not deny the facts they determined to kill the messenger. Sentence of death by stoning was pronounced and it was executed outside the city wall. In the midst of his death throes he prays as did Jesus, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge."

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart
—a masterpiece of Fisher styling

Never has the superiority of Body by Fisher been more strikingly exemplified than in the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six! With the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have achieved in the new Chevrolet an impressive degree of smartness, comfort and luxury.

Inside and out, scores of refinements stamp this car as a masterpiece of modern coachwork. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar form an unusually attractive and distinctive ensemble. Mouldings sweep back in an unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new color combinations lend a new individuality. Interiors, too, are exceptional. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is smartly tailored. Seats are wider and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision. And beautiful new modern fittings lend a final note of charm.

Many mechanical improvements are also evident in this Bigger and Better Six. Among these are a stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a quieter, smoother transmission; and important engine refinements.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display. See it today —drive it! It is the Great American Value!

ACID STOMACH

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which will neutralize acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods once you learn how quickly this method acts. Please let it show you—now.

State Baptists End Conference

Bessemer, Ala., Nov. 21.—The necessity for watchfulness in fighting "wet propaganda" which he said is flooding the United States, was urged by Dr. B. H. Spence, of Toronto, Canada, representative of the Anti-Saloon League, in a talk here Friday to the final session of the Alabama State Baptist Convention. The majority of this propaganda, he stated, is fostered by "the brewing interests" and does not come from the beliefs of the masses.

The Friday session was begun at 9 a. m. with a devotional by Dr. W. E. Lockler, of Sylacauga. The business meeting was inaugurated after Dr. Spence's address.

Dr. J. E. Dillard, of Birmingham, gave a report in reference to supplying vacancies on the state executive board, after which Prof. T. R. Eagles, of Howard College, presented a report on the costs of ministerial education.

Following a brief talk by Dr. H. G. Williams, Birmingham, the body voted to have its 1931 convention on Nov. 18-20, the place to be decided later. The convention adjourned after benediction by the Rev. David Bryan, of Cuba, Ala.

"Jim Ham" Comes Back

Hon. James Hamilton Lewis, for years most picturesque figure in Washington, goes back to the Service after several years' absence.

TO HONOR WASHINGTON

Ever lavish in bestowing honors upon "The Father of His Country," the American people will outdo all former tributes in a year-long celebration of the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth, to be held throughout the nation in 1932.

The principal celebration will be held, most appropriately, in Washington, D. C., where it is planned to have an almost continuous program of patriotic gatherings and events throughout the year. Congressman Sol Bloom of New York and Lieutenant Colonel U. S. Grant, 3rd, of the Army will serve as directors of the bicentennial celebration under the auspices of a commission created by Congress.

Besides the ceremonies to be held in the nation's capital, it will be sought to have local celebrations in every city, town and community throughout the land. Plans for all these events are now being made by the commission, assisted by a large corps of patriotic workers.

Women will have a major part in the bicentennial, their efforts being directed by Mrs. John D. Sherman, former national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, former president of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Among other features of the women's participation is that of making Mother's Day in 1932 the most memorable one ever observed, devoted especially to honoring Mary Washington, the mother of our liberator and

BANKS OF SOUTH ABUNDANTLY ABLE TO MEET PROBLEM

Ten Billions of Resources Are Held by Institutions, Eugene Black Says

Atlanta, Nov. 22.—Banks of the South have resources of approximately $10,000,000,000, said Eugene R. Black, governor of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank.

The tangible wealth of the South is estimated at more than $80,000,000,000, Julius H. Barnes said.

Mr. Black said it may be well to consider "our fundamental situation" at this time by reason of the closing of a number of Southern banks.

Mr. Barnes was in Atlanta to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce, here to obtain first hand information of business conditions in this section. He is chairman of the board.

Mr. Black, in calling attention to the billions in resources of the Southern banks, said: "There should be confidence that fundamentally our banking situation is sound, and with our agriculture, our industry and our banking resources there should be no uneasiness as to our general situation."

"Our industries are on a sound basis and their products yield a cash return twice as large as our agricultural products," Mr. Black said. "Our problem of unemployment is probably less acute than in any other section."

"Our agricultural banks have largely liquidated their indebtedness to us and to their city correspondent banks. Our city banks have very large resources and are abundantly able to handle the financial problems of the South."

The development of the South during the past decade was termed "phenomenal" by Mr. Barnes in his statement. "It has uncovered amazing natural resources in power, minerals and raw materials of all kinds," he said. "It has begun to convert these resources into merchantable commodities."

GIVE RELIGION A CHANCE

Business and politics have failed to solve the most serious of all post-war problems, now give Religion a chance, urges Doctor Henry A. Atkinson. Put Prosperity up to the churches.

Doctor Atkinson is the General Secretary and organizer of the World Conference for International Peace through Religion, which, in November, 1932, will bring together in Washington leaders of all the major religions to consider how the church people of the world—Christians, Jews, Mohammedans, Buddhists and all the other great sects—can best cooperate to prevent war. Economic conditions will undergo no permanent improvement, he believes, until the world has better assurance of a peaceful future. In a report to his executive committee, which includes such leaders as Doctor S. Parkes Cadman, Doctor Einstein of Germany, Doctor Tagore of India, and the Lord Bishop of Liverpool, England, Doctor Atkinson says:

"Wherever one turns one finds cynicism in the face of existing conditions and skepticism regarding any possibility of a peaceful future. Economic conditions are bad all the world over. At a time when the industries of the world should be taxed to their utmost capacity to build up what was destroyed during the years of war, we find the wheels slowing down, or that they have come to a complete stop. The religions of the world have at their command the force for helping humanity at this juncture of world affairs. If the combined religious, moral and spiritual resources of mankind coordinated and brought to bear upon these problems can not help, then there is no help possible."

Plans for the Washington Conference thus take on a new significance. Can Religion succeed where Business and Politics have failed?

National defense advocates believe that preparations are less expensive than reparations.

Possibly the cracking of the Liberty Bell was an omen of what was to happen to Liberty itself.

first President.

Every true American will desire to have a part in this great bicentennial and will welcome the opportunity to pay homage to the military genius and wise statesmanship of George Washington.

POLITICAL GESTURES

Widespread comment has followed the recent declaration by Democratic leaders that they will not seek to obstruct the Hoover administration in its efforts to solve the country's present economic problems, nor oppose other beneficial legislation. This offer of cooperation has been accepted by the Republicans, and now we shall see what we shall see.

A great deal depends, of course, upon just what proposed legislation the Democrats will consider beneficial. Besides, it is obvious that the leaders of neither party will be able to control the actions or votes of their colleagues who are in the habit of showing independence of party authority.

That the Democratic leaders have signified their willingness to waive party advantage in the interest of the common good is commendable enough. How this idea will work out in practice remains to be seen.

Both parties have their eyes on the presidential election of 1932, and it is hard to believe that either will voluntarily relinquish any advantage which may be taken by reason of the other's mistakes.

Buy Now For Christmas

The slogan "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early" has a genuine importance this year. Usually it is merely a reminder that if you delay too long in selecting the things you intend to give at Christmas you run the risk of finding the things you want are "out of stock." This year it means that putting money into circulation now will hasten the return of "good times."

Money passes from one person to another in exchange for commodities. Everybody, of course, must decide for himself what sort of commodities he is willing to take in exchange for his money. There are some things, the value of which is beyond question, which can be bought cheaper now than for several years. There are other commodities which only a few can afford in the best of times. In urging our readers to spend their money now we do not want to be understood as advocating foolish spending. But there are some things which everybody needs, and recognizes the need of, and if those are bought now by all who can by any possibility afford to buy anything at all, the fact that that money has been put into circulation again will hasten the day when more of us can afford to buy luxuries.

The first suggestion that has come from President Hoover's Commission on Unemployment is the proposal by Col. Arthur Woods, at its head, that a great national campaign of repairing and painting be begun. There are few houses or other buildings that are not in need of either repairs or painting. The money spent on such things is money well invested. If everybody who has been thinking of adding a bathroom, or reshingling a roof, or putting a couple of coats of fresh paint on the house, or doing any of the other necessary things which must be done sometime, would do it now, that would help a lot toward making general business better. Such a program would give immediate employment to workers in the building trades, it would mean added business for lumber and hardware merchants, and by putting more money into circulation would enable those who received it to buy more liberally from merchants in other lines.

"Buy Now" is not an invitation to reckless spending, but we believe it is sound advice to all who can spend anything at all.

Useless Farm Automobiles

The automobile has made it possible for us to go from state to state in less time than it once took to go from town to town. It has, by giving us a fast, economical and efficient means of transporting commodities over short distances, been of tremendous benefit to business.

But the average city dweller overlooks the fact that these fine fruits of the automobile are restricted, largely, to comparatively urban areas. Five or ten of fifteen miles away from main highways, in farming localities, we find roads over which no motor car can travel during several months of each year. The residents of these sections are as completely cut off from personal and industrial contacts with the outside world as were their grandfathers. A few days or weeks of bad weather make their motor vehicles useless.

The amazing progress of the twentieth century was the result of the mechanization of all phases of industry. Agriculture has not sufficiently shared in this movement. Our farmers need good roads which are serviceable at all times of the year. Such roads can be built at low cost with the use of proper materials, and pay for themselves time and again in increased farm prosperity.

Governmental agencies are laying too much stress upon charity as a means of relief for the existing situation and too little upon the practical matter of giving work to the unemployed. This includes agencies from the general government on down to the municipalities.

The great multitude of American workers do not want charity. What they want and are entitled to is a chance to make a decent living for themselves and their families. To offer them the proceeds of football games or minstrel performances, or dote of any kind, may bear witness to the sympathetic nature of those suggesting such things, but such measures in no sense meet the requirements of the hour.

Charity there must be until jobs are provided, but there should be a relentless drive to provide jobs. Public works must be pushed forward as rapidly as possible and all else done that will serve to give the honest man a chance to make an honest dollar.

—Tuscaloosa News.

"In the matter of drouth relief, as in everything else, the railroads are showing themselves to be good citizens," says the Natchez, Miss., Democrat.

In 1927, when the great flood devastated the Mississippi Valley, it was the railroads that worked unceasingly, and without profit to themselves, saving lives and property. Today, with many agricultural states facing a crisis due to the drought, it is again the railroads that are doing everything within their power to improve conditions.

In all parts of the United States the railroads have shown themselves to be good citizens. They are one of the largest employers and taxpayers. They encourage industrial development in cities and more scientific and profitable production of farm crops in agricultural areas. They are always at the forefront in assisting any worthwhile program to bring new payrolls, home owners, industries and workers into the territories they serve.

In contrast to this is the attitude of the states and national governments toward the railroads. During the first eight months of this year, in spite of the greatest possible efficiency and economy in operation, the lines were able to earn a net return of but 3.59 per cent. Their taxes are steadily rising, their revenues on the down grade. In not a single year since the war have they earned the fair return stipulated by the Transportation Act.

The American railroads face a financial crisis. Yet they never waver in their efforts to provide the United States with the best and most efficient transportation service we have ever had. They are, in short, remarkably good citizens.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"Some folks in looks take so much pride,
They don't think much on what's inside.
Well, as for me I know my face can ne'er
Be made a thing of grace,
And so I rather think I'll see,
How I can fix the inside o' me
So folks'll say, 'He looks like sin.'
But ain't he beautiful within."
—John Kendrick Bangs.

There's some mighty good thought in those few lines above, and some of you folks who are inclined to give too much thought to your outside appearance, just oughta study them lines for a spell, and maybe they will help you to acquire that popularity you are looking for, and don't know how to get it.

Recently I have had the unhappy occasion to hear criticisms of various kinds of various personages, and I've come to the conclusion that too many of us folks are too blamed hasty in forming our opinion, or passing judgment on those who have fallen by the wayside. Anyway, who the dickens has given anyone the right to judge our neighbors? How does anyone know what they would have done under such circumstances that others have had to deal with. A fellow brought into this world and had the name of Anthony Wons, once had this to say:

"The ideal life is in our blood and never will be still. Sad will be the day for any man when he becomes contented with the thoughts he is thinking and the deeds he is doing—where there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger, which he knows that he was meant to do."

Now, that's kind of the way I look at life, except I never could put it in such words. When a fellow just gets satisfied with everything and everybody, and don't want to grow bigger or better, then he just ought to go off somewhere and die. Being entirely satisfied with things was made for folks who go to Heaven, where everything is so arranged that the only thing a person lucky enough to get there should be bothered with is the way the folks are living on earth. That in itself would be quite a problem, after all.

And some time or other a fellow who went by the well known name of Bacon, made a wise saying, and here it is, "It is not what men eat, but what they digest that makes them strong; not what we gain, but what we save that makes us rich; not what we read, but what we remember, that makes us learned; and not what we preach, but what we practice, that makes us Christians. These are great but common truths, often forgotten by the glutton, the spendthrift, the bookworm and the hypocrite."

And he said enough in those line to make a fellow just stop and think, anyway.

And another thing, I've come to the conclusion that if you don't give yourself away pretty soon, the other fellow will come along and do it without your consent. And won't that hurt?

I just got to thinking about those pore old turkeys that have been kept up for that Thanksgiving dinner. I can just imagine that they shuddered many a day before today, and became worried to some extent with an inferiority complex, so to speak.

I was talking to a fellow the other day, and he told me he was looking for a young boy who wanted to start out and learn a trade that in future years, if he stuck, would mean quite a lot to the boy. He said he didn't want one of these smart alec kind of fellows, but wanted a boy who is willing to start at the bottom and learn, working up where there is plenty of room at the top. The pay won't be much to start with, but will increase with the increasing of the ability of the boy. Now this proposition is open now, and is bona fide. Some boy is going to get it if he is the right kind. It is a real opportunity because I know, and when I know a thing, I know it. If anyone wants any more information, they can get it from this newspaper, because I've told the editor about it and he will help the boy in getting the place. So now it's up to some energetic young fellow who has a fair education, must be older than fifteen years, and is willing to listen to advice and learn.

And so on, until my thoughts drifted to the most charming young lady who was chosen by the most charming Thursday to go to Birmingham for all the big blowouts up there last Saturday, as 'Miss Clanton.' Can't say that they could have done better, because Mary Heard is without a doubt growing into a most attractive young lady, if you will observe closely. And if you observe a little closer you will see that she is almost the image of her charming mother. And I wouldn't care if the puella was a bit older, then I might stand a chance over a few of these younger Beau Brummels in Clanton. But a fellow gets old and can't help it, and having to think up something for this column each week is a task in itself, and sometimes I get kind of sore and wish I could get by the editor with the things I'd like to say in here.

Well, for once in a long, long time, I got a surprise. When Reddie Taylor and Miss Lawrence pulled that long-to-be-remembered ceremony last week, I actually got a surprise. But after thinking it over a lot, I came to the conclusion that both of them are to be highly congratulated on their decision, because it is a life-time proposition, and I've never known Reddie to do a thing unless he thought about it for a long time, and decided it was best to do it.

Indications are that in the general excitement of Thanksgiving Day a good many turkeys will lose their heads.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY

BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York—Elections are hazardous events in this amazing town. During the balloting here on November 4, four policemen were taken off their regular "beat" near a certain department store and assigned to duty at a nearby voting booth.

Hardly had the balloting got under way when in rushed a young woman, greatly excited, and summoned two of the police to the store. A couple of burglars had looted the place.

A unique method was devised for flashing to New Yorkers the returns on election night. The public was told to watch the huge searchlight atop the 88-story Empire State building, tallest in the world.

When the great white beam moved back and forth from a vertical to a northerly direction, Roosevelt was leading for Governor. When it oscillated from a vertical to southerly, Tuttle was running ahead. When the beam finally ceased moving, it would point steadily north or south, indicating who had won.

The funniest story going the rounds concerns a wild party given down in Greenwich Village. It was a costume affair, and among the guests was a man named Caesar, who came attired in the flowing toga of a Roman Senator.

After an evening of revelry, the story goes, Caesar awoke in the misty hours of Sunday morning and sleepily looked about him. To his vast alarm he found that he was lying flat on his back with a wooden surface above him. It was very evidently a coffin—until he kicked out wildly and discovered that he had been left alone, lying under a table. Still atremble with fright, he rushed to a window, leaped out, and lit a streak for home.

At this point his flight was arrested by a policeman who, passing by, grew suspicious at the sight of one fleeing through a window at such an hour of morning.

His costume in comic disarray, the captive hiccupped his story to the cop's doubting ears. Finally, however, the latter decided to believe the yarn and let him go.

"Run along," the copper said, turning to walk away. Then, on an afterthought, he called to the retreating figure, "Say, you didn't tell me your name."

"Caesar" came the prompt reply from the one in flowing robes. It was too much. Without another word the copper collared him and hustled him off to the station house.

What's in a name?

Dominick Pacelli was "taken for a ride." He managed to escape with his life—but also three bullet wounds in his head. He went to a Newark hospital, was treated, and told he could go home. But this he refused to do, in-

Recipe for Making a Million

A friend of mine who is still under thirty-five has made a fortune, and I asked him how he did it.

"I've been to your office several times," I said, "but you seem seldom to be there."

"No, I don't go to the office every day," he answered. "A good deal of the time I just sit and look out the window and think."

"When I make a decision I go out and put it into effect, and a little more than half the time I have had the good luck to be right. When I find I have made a mistake, I sit down and say: 'Now, what did I do wrong? Were my facts inaccurate, or did I draw bad conclusions? How am I going to avoid that same mistake again?'"

I knew another man who owned a small but profitable business. He was methodical in his habits. On a certain day of each month he stayed away from the office, and everybody in his employ knew that the old man was "thinking." From breakfast time until sun-down on such a day he would sit before an open fire or on an open porch, without pen or pencil or paper, or records or reports, and quietly think.

He attributed his modest success to this unvarying habit. Henry Ford remarked to me once that "thinking is the hardest job there is," and added that he could get plenty of sleep and not enough thinkers.

Most of us know from our own limited experience that thinking is hard, and we have insulated ourselves against it by a restless and noisy environment. We are afraid to be found in a small audience, terribly afraid to be alone. Our unwillingness to take trips, or to retire, is not dictated so much by loyalty to the job as it is by the haunting fear that, removed from the protecting clatter of daily activity, we shall have "too much time to think."

Emerson tells the story of "a man who on his death-bed called to him his prefigurate son and left him large possessions, only exacting of him the promise to spend an hour every day alone. The son kept his word and became a wise and good man."

In another passage Emerson remarks that "the gods and the wild beasts are both fond of solitude; thought makes the difference between the solitude of the god and that of the lion."

Solitude and thought are responsible for the considerable fortune of the young friend whom I quoted at the beginning. I pass on his recipe free to all. I have not been able to apply it myself.

sisting that he be assigned to a room. He lay there all day Monday.

Shortly after dark, two men drove up in an automobile. They parked the car in front of the hospital and walked in at the main entrance. They walked down the main corridor and up the stairs to the second floor.

Two shots rang out. Nurses screamed. Patients grew hysterical. Two men, one waving a smoking pistol, waved back the crowd and escaped into the street. And, in the room on the second floor, Pacelli lay dead in his bed.

Thorough, these gangsters.

Finding the night life of Manhattan a bit wearing, a friend and I went apartment-hunting in one of New York's most peaceful-looking suburbs. "Yes, we're going rural," we explained to everybody, with visions of pigs and chickens and green fields and cows grazing out in the great open spaces.

But we found that the "country" near New York sizzles even hotter than Manhattan after dusk. In the particular village we investigated, one of the quaint provincial pastimes consists of going out in the streets during a party and shooting out the street lights.

Charming, don't you think?

A few days after Martin Naiman of Chicago was held up and robbed of 28 cents, he received a watch and the following note: "Thanks for the 28 cents, as it helped me to bigger things."

Winter Feed For Sheep

Leguminous hays such as alfalfa, clover, soybeans, and cowpeas are the most satisfactory winter roughage for sheep. Straw and conicals can be used to a limited extent in connection with these—and with good results. When only legumes are fed, breeding ewes need no supplementary grain feed until near lambing time. From 2 to 4 pounds of roughage should be fed to ewes weighing up to 150 pounds, depending on the kind and quality as well as the amount of supplemental grain feed given. Oat or wheat straw is better than rye or barley straw for sheep feed, as the beads of the latter may be troublesome. When used as part of the roughage ration, corn stover should be placed where the ewes can eat off the leaves without difficulty. If the ration is chiefly conicals or straw feed also linseed or cottonseed cake as a nitrogenous concentrate. Succulent feeds such as roots or silage help to keep the ewes in good health. Silage from well matured corn can be fed to sheep with good results. Don't feed more than 3 pounds a day. Feed roots—especially turnips—sparingly to bred ewes. Where ewes run on fall wheat or rye, supplement the pasture with some dry concentrated feed.

MISS LENA MIMS IS HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Miss Lena Mims of Birmingham, and formerly of Clanton, was entertained on last Wednesday afternoon at a birthday dinner given in her honor.

This event occurred at the lovely summer home of her employer, Mr. Woodward, about twenty miles from Birmingham. Dinner was served to a host of friends numbering fifty or more, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Everyone remembers Miss Lena Mims as being the charming daughter of Mrs. Mattie Mims of Clanton, Ala. She went to Birmingham some three or four years ago, where she now holds a responsible position.

One of the most practical methods of curing meat is the dry salt method. Details of this method follow:

1. Allow the meat to cool thoroughly over night.
2. For each 100 pounds of meat mix thoroughly 7 pounds of common salt, 2 1-2 pounds of sugar, and 2 ounces of saltpeter.
3. Rub 1-3 of the mixture on the meat and pack it on a table or in a box and allow to remain 3 days.
4. Break the pack and rub 1-2 of the remaining mixture on the meat, repack and allow to remain 7 days.
5. Unpack and rub with the remainder of the mixture.
6. Pack it in a box or barrel and allow to remain until thoroughly cured. It should remain packed 1 1-2 days for each pound that the pieces average in weight.
7. When cured, unpack and wash in luke warm water.
8. Hang 6 to 8 feet above the floor

Farmer Is Shot From Ambush

Thomasville Man Found Dead From Gunshot; No Motive Discovered

Thomasville, Ala., Nov. 21—Robert Sheffield, 35-year-old farmer, was found dead this morning with fourteen buck shot in his stomach and left side. He lives at Chilton, 11 miles southwest of Thomasville. He was shot from ambush at a distance of 45 yards, it is estimated, and was probably shot twice. No evidence of any shells were found near the spot.

Sheffield left his home early Thursday morning to fix a fence, and carried his gun with him as usual. Shortly afterwards neighbors state that they heard four reports.

His gun had not been fired. When he failed to return home his wife thought that he spent the night with his father.

They began searching for him and found his body a little over a mile away from the house. No clues are known. Bloodhounds came from Meridian early tonight and have begun the search. Whether they can follow the trail so long after the murder is not known.

He leaves a wife and seven children.

Now It's Potatoes

PERHAPS it's because they're Irish, or perhaps not, but nearly the last vegetable to go into a can is potatoes. The innovation of packing new Florida potatoes, started last year and to be repeated again this season, has proved that this important food commodity hitherto neglected by the canners is a popular addition to the many products now available in tin jackets.

The potatoes are packed in both No. 2 and No. 5 cans which are respectively suitable for household purposes and for restaurants, clubs and hotels which require them in larger quantities. They come packed in liquid, and are ready to serve after heating. Small sizes, somewhat larger than walnuts, are selected for canning purposes, and these potatoes can be served the same as new potatoes, or combined in many ways with other vegetables.

Here Are Some Recipes

Canned Potatoes with String Beans: Toss the potatoes with melted butter and finely chopped parsley, and pile in center of a hot platter. Heat a can of small stringless beans, drain and season with butter, salt and pepper. Pile in a border around the potatoes. Hard cook several eggs, cut in halves and dredge cut sides with paprika. Insert at intervals in the string bean border.

Potato Marbles with Peas: Pour one-fourth cup melted butter over three cups canned potatoes, sprinkle with paprika and toss lightly. No potatoes do not break. Heat the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas, add them to the potatoes, mix gently, and serve.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Tobacco taxes are playing an increasingly important part in revenue systems of a number of states, and are an important factor in providing funds for educational advancement in Alabama and in other states. Some interesting information along this line was brought out at the fourth annual conference of administrators of tobacco tax laws, held in Montgomery November 19-20. Thirteen states have tobacco tax laws, and in most of them the proceeds from this tax goes to the public schools. If Alabama, the legislature of 1927 which levied the tobacco tax also voted numerous additional license or privilege taxes on various corporations. Proceeds from the tobacco tax and also from privilege taxes levied on railroads, water power companies, severance taxes, etc. were placed in an educational trust fund. For the three years ending September 30, 1930, the tobacco tax produced more than three and one-half million dollars or approximately 40 per cent of the total taxes collected for the educational trust fund set up by the 1927 legislature. The tobacco tax produced more than twice as much as the tax of two and one-half per cent of gross receipts levied on railroads, and more than five times as much as the kilowatt tax placed on hydroelectric power.

It was brought out at the recent conference of administrators of tobacco tax laws that this form of taxation is being utilized to an increasing extent over the country. It was pointed out that levying the tax on "smokes" brings into the class of taxpayers numerous citizens who hitherto had paid no taxes whatever, and tended to keep down tax burdens of property owners by requiring others to contribute something to the upkeep of the public school system.

The association of administrators of tobacco tax laws was formed to promote an interchange of helpful ideas and reaching a solution of mutual problems among men engaged in the same work for the various states having such laws. R. A. Little, of the South Carolina tax department, was elected president of the association, W. E. Hawse, Iowa tax man, vice-president; and D. E. Dunn, of Montgomery, assistant to the Alabama tax commission, Secretary. Governor Graves delivered the address of welcome at the opening of the conference, which was also addressed by C. L. Davis, assistant to the tax commission, Professor C. H. Knight of the University of Alabama, and tax men from Georgia, Mississippi, Iowa, Tennessee, South Carolina and a federal tax expert. Des Moines, Iowa was selected for the 1931 annual conference.

Alabama's tobacco tax law went into effect October 1, 1927, and therefore had been in force three years at the close of the last fiscal year which ended September 30, 1930. During these three years the tax produced $3,634,586.87, while the total receipts from all sources going into the new educational trust fund were $8,714,912.89, leaving $5,080,326.02 from sources other than the tobacco tax. In addition to the tobacco revenue, educational trust fund tax collections for the three years were divided as follows: railroad gross receipts tax, $1,623,077.39; Telegraph companies gross receipts tax, $1,213.98; the similar tax levied on telephone companies, $407,716.32; hydroelectric power kilowatt tax, $687,978.98; gross receipts tax on express companies, $27,022.22; privilege tax on sleeping car companies, $60,000; coal tonnage tax, $1,327,749.69; iron ore tonnage tax, $864,214.82; and severance taxes on sand, gravel, slag and minerals other than coal and iron, $31,352.62.

WASTE BY GOVERNMENT

In an interview given to Collier's by the late Senator Underwood of Alabama for release after his death, that able statesman commented on the government's wasteful methods during the World War, of which its shipbuilding program was a striking example. Of this he said:

"The government decided to build its own ships, believing that the price of $80 a ton offered by the United States Steel Corporation was too high.

"Well, we had first to build yards, towns, plumbing, lighting, pavements, all living conveniences for thousands of employees.

"At last we got to the actual building of ships. When we got through, the ships had cost us, not $80, but from $250 to $300 a ton."

This indictment of government operation of industrial plants was made, it should be remembered, by a Democrat who loyally supported President Wilson during the war, in spite of the tragic waste of time and money, which Senator Underwood was powerless to prevent.

The lesson to be drawn from this is: If you want something done in the slowest and most expensive way, let some political agency do it. If you want it done quickly and economically, leave it to private initiative and private enterprise.

IDEA OF ARBOR DAY PLANTING OF TREES POPULAR ABROAD

Arbor Day, a festival which originated in Nebraska in 1872 and which is observed in the fall or spring, has become world-wide, with tree-planting ceremonies celebrated throughout the United States and in Canada, the British Isles, several European countries, Australia, China and Japan, says the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Each of the 48 states, as well as the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands, now observes Arbor Day or its equivalent each year. The date differs according to the most suitable time of year for planting trees. Nebraska and Rhode Island have made Arbor Day a public holiday, closing other business to attend to the planting of trees. Numerous state laws recognize the need of tree planting.

The idea of Arbor Day originated with J. Sterling Morton, then a member of the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture and later Secretary of Agriculture. The movement received enthusiastic support of President Roosevelt and other leaders in conservation.

Forest Week is celebrated in many States in conjunction with Arbor Day. President Harding proclaimed a Forest Protection Week, and President Coolidge an American Forest Week, urging conservation and better fire protection and asking the people to "put the forests to work," and "tend our woodlands as we tend our farms." As in the case of Arbor Day, Forest Week is observed at different times in different States.

The Forest Service has just published a revised edition of Farmer's Bulletin 1492-F, Arbor Day. Its purpose and observance, which may be obtained free from the office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C. The bulletin de-

Prisoner Paroled After Ten Years

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 22—Texana McConice who back in 1920, while working as cook in a hotel in Greenville, prepared some food which made everyone who ate it violently ill, and who later was given a prison sentence of from 19 to 20 years following her conviction in the Butler Circuit Court, of assault to murder by poisoning, was granted a parole yesterday by Gov. Graves. The pardon board before which it was maintained in the woman's behalf, that she did not know of the presence of the poison in the food in question, unanimously recommended clemency in the case.

The governor also granted paroles to the following: Will Kirby, Morgan County, April 15, 1922, burglary, two three years; Kirby was paroled once before, but that parole was revoked. Hershell McEmore, Limestone County, Nov. 13, 1928, forgery, two years to two years and a day each in two cases. Joe Pryor, Perry County, Sept. 26, 1928, distilling, four years, 11 months and 29 days to five years. Hubert Terrell, Limestone County, Nov. 13, 1929, burglary, year and a day to a year and two days. Frank Price, Bibb County, Sept. 17, 1929, possessing a still, year and a half to two years. Houston Black, Morgan County, Nov. 3, 1929, manufacturing whisky, 18 to 24 months. Pardon with restoration of all rights was granted to Theron Smith, convicted in Chilton County, February 6, 1929, of transporting prohibited liquor and sentenced to imprisonment for from a year and a day to a year and a month. Smith had previously been paroled.

Cutting the straightest, thickest, healthiest young trees in the stand for Christmas trees is liking taking the best plants out of the garden and leaving the weeds. To make Christmas trees a legitimate by-product of good forestry, take only those three which are stunted, crooked, or overcrowded in thickets. Make the cutting a thinning and weeding operation.

Seventy-two black walnut trees recently constituted a $1,500 cash crop for a farmer in Britton County, Missouri, according to reports to the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. The trees were second-growth, 12 to 14 inches in diameter, and averaged two 16-foot logs with an average of 130 board feet. A St. Louis firm paid an equivalent of $160 per thousand board feet for the logs.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Legion Membership Is Already 237,879

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 26.—The National telegraphic roll call of American Legion membership, conducted at the annual conference of Department Commanders and Adjutants held at National Headquarters here, showed that 237,879 Legion members for 1931 were enrolled as of November 18. This is the greatest early membership in Legion history, according to National Headquarters, and is 63,179 ahead of the total reported at the same time last year.

First place goes to the Department

Felt Bad After Eating

"BEFORE I started taking Black-Draught, three years ago, my health was very bad," writes Mrs. C. C. Carson, 945 Concord St., Beaumont, Texas. "I suffered constantly from constipation. I had headache when I got up in the morning, and I felt dull and sluggish. I hardly ate a meal that my food agreed with me. Frequently I would have gas on my stomach, and felt awful. I read about Black-Draught, and I thought it might help me. After I had taken it a little while, I felt much better. It relieves constipation. I keep it on hand so when I need a laxative I will have it. In the three years I have been taking it, I have never found anything as good for constipation."

WOMEN who are run-down, nervous, or suffer every month, should take CARDUL Used for over 50 years.

of Wisconsin which reported 67.3 per cent of its 1931 membership quota already enrolled. In winning first honors the Wisconsin Department heads the "Big Ten" in Legion membership standing for which there is already keen competition among the various departments. The other "Big Ten" winners, as reported in the telegraphic roll call and their per cent of membership, follows: Kansas, second with 62.93 per cent; third, Hawaii, 59.88 per cent; Fourth, Rhode Island, 54.95 per cent; Fifth, Louisiana, 52.00 per cent; sixth, West Virginia, 45.78 per cent; SEVENTH ALABAMA, 45.64 per cent; eighth, Florida, 45.55 per cent. The ten Departments which reported the highest percentage of membership attained as of November 18 will receive special citations from National Headquarters. The citations will be awarded after the membership cards, accompanied by the checks, have been mailed and tabulated at National Headquarters.

Alabama, of course, was the first state called upon for a report and when Rufus Bethea, the Alabama Department Commander reported that Alabama had already received 45.64 per cent of her 1931 quota loud applause rang through the hall. On the completion of the roll call it was stated that Alabama had placed 7th among the 55 Departments of the Legion. This is regarded as quite a feat as it puts Alabama ahead of such Legion strongholds as California, Illinois and New York. In commenting on this, Rufus Bethea, the Alabama Department Commander, said "The real credit for this splendid showing is due to the excellent work of the post officers and individual Legionnaires in Alabama. These men realize that a large membership is the first essential in putting into effect the Alabama program of 'Maximum Service for the Disabled'."

County Agent's Dept. By C. E. STAPP, County Agent

Sweet Potatoes Will Likely Be Shipped From Chilton County In Carload Lots Next Fall

County Agent Stapp announces that at recent meetings held at Jemison, Thorsby and Clanton, considerable interest was shown in crops in addition to strawberries that will be grown next year for carload shipments. There was much interest shown in increased acreage to strawberries.

Mr. Stapp as well as many berry growers of the county, firmly believes that farmers of the county could ship annually more than twice as many strawberries as are being shipped at present.

In addition to strawberries, the two other crops discussed at these meetings were dewberries and sweet potatoes. There will likely be good acreage set to dewberries next spring.

Mr. Stapp announces that groups of farmers of the County have already signed up for sweet potatoes that will assure shipments of same from Jemison, Thorsby, Clanton and Verbena next August.

County Agent Making Effort To Help Farmers of Chilton Get Better Variety of Cotton

County Agent Stapp is making an effort to help farmers of Chilton County to get a better variety of cotton.

The farmers of the County were heavily penalized this year because of the shortness of the staple of their cotton. A report from Auburn shows that several varieties of cotton being grown in the county have averaged less than 7-8 in. staple. Among these are Rucker, Addison, Half & Half, Beat 'Em All. Of course a good year these varieties like several other varieties barely make 7-8 in. staple, and a dry growing season will invariably give us short staple. This is true of Cook's 307-6 and several other similar varieties being grown in the county.

The Alabama Experiment Station says for Central Alabama a comparatively new variety known as D. P. L. 4-8, has for the past four years led all other varieties, and that it has a splendid staple averaging one inch.

The following report shows the yield of lint cotton per acre and length of staple on several varieties being grown in Central Alabama:

Variety	Lbs. Per Acre	Staple
D. P. L. 4-8	467	1 inch
Cook's 1627	440	29-32 inch
Dixie Triumph	440	29-32 inch
Pied. Cleveland	414	28-32 inch
Rhyme's Cook	411	28-32 inch
Rucker	351	27-32 inch
Addison	321	27-32 inch
Half & Half	366	27-32 inch

In view of the fact that D. P. L. 4-8 has led other varieties in yield of lint cotton per acre and length of staple County Agent Stapp made an effort to secure a carload of these seed from the breeder. He announces that he has succeeded in getting a carload at $2.00 per bushel. Farmers interested in getting this leading variety of cotton at the above price should see Mr. Stapp at an early date. Mr. Stapp announces that he is desirous of getting a group of farmers in the County to plant these new seed under conditions as near as possible that will prevent them being mixed with other varieties. If such arrangements are made, gin days will be fixed next fall and plans worked out for saving these seed to be sold to other farmers for planting the following spring.

Mr. Stapp advises that he has been able to get only one car of these seed and that farmers interested should see him at the earliest date possible.

GOODYEAR BLIMP CRASHES NEAR PIEDMONT, ALA., SAT.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's big blimp, the Vigilante, which visited Clanton sometime ago, through the courtesy of the Die's Service Station, local Goodyear dealers, crashed into the side of Smoky Mountain, 3 miles east of Piedmont, Alabama, last Saturday.

Piedmont, Ala., Nov. 22—Apparently blinded by fog, the baby blimp, Vigilant, owned by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, crashed on Smoky Mountain, three miles east of here Saturday afternoon, but her crew of three escaped without injury.

Pilot L. W. Crozier came here to report the accident to Goodyear officials but declined to discuss the accident. A short time before the blimp crashed into a tree atop Smoky Mountain it had sailed over this town with motors beating rhythmically.

Farmers in the vicinity of the accident saw the smash. When word reached town that the blimp had crashed, scores left for the scene and from Gadsden officials of the Goodyear plant there came down.

Leonard Gordon, representative of the Goodyear plant in Atlanta, said the bag was filled with helium so there was no explosion nor fire from the accident.

P. W. Litchfield, president, the Goodyear Company, was in Atlanta waiting for the return of the craft on which he was to be a passenger on its return flight to Akron.

Goodyear officials in Atlanta said the ship cost $60,000.

NEWS ASSUMES NEW OWNERSHIP MONDAY, DEC. 1

Billy Smith Purchases News
And Coosa County Paper
From J. B. Atkinson

A purchase taking effect last Monday, December 1st, included the sale of the Chilton County News and the Rockford Chronicle, at Rockford, Ala., in Coosa County. Billy Smith who has for the past two years served as editor of the News has purchased these two newspapers from Hon. J. B. Atkinson, who has been publisher of the News for practically the past four years and who bought The Rockford Chronicle last June, from Wallace P. Pruitt.

There will be no change in the operation of these two newspapers, according to present indications. The News, which was adjudged by the Alabama Press Association this year as the third best weekly newspaper in Alabama will continue its present Democratic policies under its new ownership, as will The Chronicle, which is the oldest newspaper in Coosa County. In assuming his position as editor and publisher of these two newspapers, Billy Smith has the following to say to the people of this section:

"Since beginning my work with the News four years ago, I have tried to cooperate with the publisher to the best of my ability to give to the people of Chilton County a newspaper that would be of a great service, a newspaper that is fair and just in its undertakings, its news stories and its editorials, and after assuming my duties as editor two years ago I made it my earnest aim to improve the paper as fast and as best I could, trying to give to Clanton and Chilton County a newspaper that the people would be proud of.

"In taking my place as publisher of this newspaper I intend to conduct it as it has been in the past under strict Democratic policies, seeking and asking for the cooperation of the people to aid me in bettering it in any way possible. At this time too, I wish to express my sincerest gratitude for the cooperation shown me before I became the publisher, and I assure the people of Chilton County of my cooperation in all movements that will tend to bring Clanton and Chilton County bigger and better things, as this paper will continue to be published under my management in the interest of Clanton and Chilton County, doing all in its power to bring our town and county to the front. Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited at all times, and I want the people to feel free in giving such at all times.

"I will have as my associate editor, James Teel who has been with the News for the past year, and who began his newspaper career with The Rockford Chronicle several years ago. It will be his aim also to keep the News as fair and just as possible, and we are published for the right, adhering strictly to sound Democratic principles." (continued to back page)

CLANTON GETS NEW BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENT

New Dry Goods Store Occupies Capitol Dry Goods Co., Former Location

A new place of business will open to the public tomorrow morning when the Falkenberry's Cash Store will open its doors in the former location of the Capitol Dry Goods Company on Seventh Street here.

This new store will be operated by H. C. Falkenberry, who comes here from Selma, Alabama. Mr. Falkenberry has been in Clanton for the past several days making preparations for this opening. Carpenters and painters have been rushed to have the store in readiness for the new supply of goods and shipments were rushed in and arranged for the opening tomorrow morning. The new store will handle a stock of the goods, shoes, clothing for men and women.

Mr. Falkenberry stated to a representative of the News that he would move his family from Selma here just as soon as he could arrange it, and will become a resident of Clanton. He has been connected with the firm known as the Southern Cloth and Notion Company, of Selma, and comes here highly recommended. See the ad of this new store elsewhere in this issue.

LOCAL FOOTBALL TEAM TO HAVE BANQUET FRI. NIGHT

One of the big events in Clanton which is being looked forward to by the players of the football team of the Chilton County High School is the big banquet which has been planned for next Friday night, for the twenty-five members of the team. Each member is to bring a young lady, his father and mother, if he desires, as his guest for that night at the banquet, which is scheduled for seven o'clock.

It was first planned to have the Home Economics Department of the high school to put this on, but due to the equipment at the department being somewhat inadequate, it was decided to have it at the Baptist church. The entire expense of this affair will be taken care of by the high school athletic association of the local school. A splendid program has been planned and letters to various outstanding players will be awarded.

SEVERAL ARE BADLY INJURED IN ACCIDENTS

Two Persons Killed; Nine Brought To Hospital Here
From Recent Accidents

Automobile accidents occurring on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway within the past few days, and within a few miles of Clanton killed two persons and injured nine others, who were brought to the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton by a Martin ambulance from here.

The first of the series of accidents occurred late Saturday night near Thorsby, Alabama, in which five young men were seriously injured and two others received minor injuries. The injured from this accident are Dewey Robinson, Auburn Jones, Pinky Watley, Clyde Parker, Ellis Parker and two others whose names were not learned.

According to the report given the News five of the boys were occupying a light touring car, and two others were riding on a cut down car, and both cars had a head-on collision near the Reynolds Swimming Pool. Five of the boys reside near Thorsby. Robinson, Watley, Parker and Foshee were rushed to the hospital here, where their injuries were considered rather serious. Robinson being injured more seriously than the others.

The second accident occurred late Monday night just south of the business district of Clanton, when a truck belonging to the Alabama Mills Company ran off the pavement and into a large post. A negro, whose name was not learned was almost instantly killed.

A white man was accompanying the negro on the truck, and they were headed for Clanton with a load of machinery the report stated, when the accident occurred. They were from Wetumpka and the negro is said to have been driving. The white man was brought to the hospital in Clanton, and the negro's body to the Martin Funeral Home here where it was prepared for burial.

The third accident occurred just north of Calera Tuesday morning, when two cars collided. A. E. King, 2616 Thirty-Fourth Avenue, North, Birmingham who was said to be an automobile mechanic, was the casualty. Two other persons, said to have been Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Pinton of Montgomery were seriously injured and taken to the Clanton hospital in a Martin ambulance from here. Attendants said their conditions were serious, but the extent of their injuries was not known, pending examination.

Mrs. J. S. Pitts, Mrs. Fred Heblon and J. T. Monroe, Jr., all of Sylacauga received cuts and minor bruises. They were able, however, to proceed as soon as they received first aid.

The two cars met head-on on a curve just north of Calera. No arrests have been made.

A Brown ambulance left for Calera to bring King's body to Birmingham. Brown will announce funeral arrangements.

Misses Sarah Bridwell and Elizabeth Ann Neill of Birmingham were charming visitors of Lucile Cox during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Miss Lucile Cox, who is attending school in Birmingham, spent Thanksgiving holidays here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cox.

Mr. Aubrey Taylor of Auburn spent the Thanksgiving holidays here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Taylor.

Ginning In State Is Ahead of 1929, Report

A recent report issued from Washington by the Department of Commerce, showed that Alabama, prior to November 14, ginned 1,287,042 bales of cotton, an increase of 136,638 bales over November 14, 1929. These figures were released through the Bureau of the Census. Madison County with 45,940 bales continues to lead the state, and is closely pressed by Houston County with 44,571, the report showed.

The report showed that in 1930 cotton ginned in Chilton County prior to November 14, 1930, was 20,797 bales compared with 18,037 bales prior to November 14, 1929, an increase of 2,760 bales.

The report showed that in 1930 cotton ginned in Coosa County prior to November 14, 1930 was 3,205 bales compared with 2,944 bales prior to November 14, 1929, an increase of 261 bales.

CLYDE SMITH ERECTING NEW HOME SOUTHWEST, THORSBY

Clyde Smith, son of T. J. Smith, a widely known citizen of this county, is to be among those residing in a new home shortly. A new modern, seven-room house is now in process of erection for Clyde Smith, three miles southwest of Thorsby, Alabama, and will be ready for occupancy in the very near future.

Fire Does Damage To Garage Here

The garage operated by Grover Looney, negro, located on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway here was badly damaged by fire early last Monday morning.

The alarm was sounded between one-thirty and two o'clock Monday morning, and local volunteer firemen rushed to the scene making short work of extinguishing the blaze. Fire Chief Loren Smith stated that apparently the blaze started near the front of the building, and that he was under the impression that it was incendiary.

Looney, who has operated the garage for some time stated that he had just recently received an order of new brake linings and had the entire order, amounting to several dollars worth in the place where the fire is believed to have started. No trace could be found of the brake lining, nor could there be located any evidence that would show it burned, as inside the lining is contained copper wires. The building was of wooden structure and the property of Dr. J. P. Hayes. It was stated that no insurance was carried either on the garage equipment nor the building.

Mr. Woody Pate, one of our progressive farmers, who resides on Clanton Route 4, was in Clanton last Monday, attending to business matters. A report from a reliable source stated that Mr. Pate conducts a farm that shows he is a citizen who believes in progressiveness in his community, and it is men like this who are going to make Chilton County.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Mitchell Williams of Birmingham spent the past week end here as the guests of friends and relatives.

Rev. Ernest A. Childs Gives Farewell Sermon At Methodist Church Here Last Sunday Night

The Rev. Ernest A. Childs, who for the past two years has served Clanton as pastor of the Methodist church, gave his farewell sermon on last Sunday night at the church before a large congregation, composed of more than two denominations.

Rev. Childs is to leave this week for Troy, Alabama where he has been transferred to assume his duties as pastor of the Methodist church in that city. He will be succeeded here by the Rev. D. W. Haskew, who comes here from Eufula, Alabama.

Following the brief message to the people from Rev. Childs, Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the local Baptist church took the pulpit and in some of his best chosen words spoke fluently of the regret of the people of Clanton as a whole on learning of Rev. Childs' removal. Following the message of Dr. Ezell, W. M. Wyatt was asked to speak for the Clanton Baptist church. Mr. Wyatt spoke briefly, yet impressively concerning the loss of Rev. Childs. E. Stapp was asked to speak from his standpoint, and giving his views of how the people of Clanton regretted losing

Masons And Ladies Give Oyster Supper

An announcement that will probably be received with interest states that the Masonic Lodge and members of the Order of the Eastern Star of Jemison, Alabama have completed arrangement for a splendid chicken and oyster supper for Friday night, December 5.

The supper will be held at the Jemison High School, and a cordial invitation has been extended to everyone to come to this gathering which will be held at six-thirty p. m. Proceeds from this will be used for a worthy cause, to repair the Masonic Hall at Jemison.

Mr. H. E. Robinson, one of our staunch and progressive farmers of Clanton Route Four, was among those in Clanton attending to business matters last Saturday.

FARM BUREAU COTTON GRADER HERE THIS WEEK END

Announcement has been made that H. R. Mitchell, the Alabama Farm Bureau cotton grader will be in Clanton again this week on Thursday (today), Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Mitchell will be at the Farm Bureau office in Clanton on these days to give temporary grades on cotton, samples of which are to be brought to him.

Sunday School Conv. At Indian Grave

A District Sunday School Convention of the Baptist Sunday school will be held on December 7th, at the Indian Grave Baptist church, near Billingsley, according to an announcement given the News this week. Following is the program for the afternoon:

3:20 P. M. General discussion.

HERMAN WHITE VISITING

PARENTS ON THANKSGIVING

Herman White, who is a student at the University of Alabama, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White, who reside west of Clanton. While away from school for the holidays he attended the Alabama - Georgia football game on Thanksgiving Day in Birmingham.

Mr. C. L. Baker, and young son, who live on Clanton Route 2, were among the visitors in town Monday of this week. While in town, Mr. Baker called at the News office, and we are proud to state that he is now a reader of the News, and we invite him to call on us again.

Rev. Ernest A. Childs Gives Farewell Sermon At Methodist Church Here Last Sunday Night

Rev. Childs, and wishing him the highest success at his new post, he concluded with a most fitting quotation, which was as follows:

"Success"

"He hath attained success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much. Who has gained the respect of intelligent men and women and the love of little children; who has filled his niche, and accomplished his task. Who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty, nor failed to express it. Who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved flower, perfect poem or rescued soul. Who has always looked for the best in others, and given the best he had, whose life is an inspiration: whose memory is a benediction."

The Clanton Kiwanis Club is again taking a most active part in organization work in Clanton, and are now sponsoring a movement to organize a Girl Scout's organization in Clanton.

The following twenty-eight girls have enrolled as members of the Clanton troop and will be given the tenderfoot test Friday evening of this week: Grace Plyler, Elizabeth Gragg, Helen Roberts, Mary Frances Rabberry, Dixie Johnson, Mary Edith Jones, Mary Nell Jones, Margaret Jones, Pauline Plyler, Dolly Belle Harris, Hilda Hart, Helen Moore, Elizabeth McSwain, Lucille Scroggins, Frances Davis, Celia Gerald, Mary Courtney Jones, Kate Fallin, Alice Petty, Mary Belle Bean, Elizabeth Lawrence, Ruth Gowan, Eloise Rasberry, Evelyn Maddox, Thelma White and Elizabeth Williams.

These twenty-eight girls have been divided into three patrols and have the following leaders and assistants: Nell Neighbors, Frances Rasberry, assistant; Pauline Plyler, Elizabeth McSwain, assistant; and Margaret Jones, Dixie Johnson, assistant.

Troop meetings are held each Friday evening at the Farm Bureau office with Miss Zora Guy as temporary captain. Each patrol leader holds her regular weekly patrol meeting at appointed meeting places or at homes of the members.

The troop was visited recently by leaders of the Mitchell Dam troop when very instructive and inspirational talks were made.

Miss Guy states that much interest and enthusiasm is being shown by the girls and that she hopes to see a strong, wide-awake organization in Clanton in the near future.

Rocketts Open For Hardware Business

Monday morning saw the doors of the former Jones Hardware Company swung wide with the store under new ownership. Messrs. J. D. and J. T. Rockett, have recently purchased the entire stock of this large hardware store and have opened up for business. J. D. (Dewey) Rockett has been operating the Clanton Building Supply Company here for several years.

Elsewhere in this issue appears a statement from the Messrs. Rockett in the form of an ad, in which they are issuing a message to the people of this section. Both these men are widely known throughout this section and are inviting the people to visit their newly acquired business, the former Jones Hardware Company store, the location of which is known throughout the county.

C. E. Johnston, President of The Interstate Commerce Commission set 5 3-4 per cent as a fair return on the group valuation of all railroads, this valuation being assigned by the Commission itself.

That it is amazing how a twist of ambiguity implants fact topsy-turvy in our minds.

For instance, there is a widespread impression that railroads are guaranteed a certain rate of return by our government. Nothing is farther from the truth.

Under the Transportation Act, the Interstate Commerce Commission set 5 3-4 per cent as a fair return on the group valuation of all railroads, this valuation being assigned by the Commission itself.

The duty of the Commission was then to fix freight rates sufficiently ample to earn the 5 3-4 per cent. Yet, during the period of 1920 to 1928, inclusive, there was only one year in which railroads of the United States as a whole, despite general prosperity and higher efficiency, earned the full return prescribed as fair. In the Western Group, embracing all railroads in the territory west of the Mississippi, the designated "fair return" has never been reached. The difference has never been made up by the government, or any other agency—so how can it be construed as a guarantee?

Should a railroad earn more than 6 per cent on its assigned valuation, one-half of the excess amount must be paid over to the government, and the other half must be placed in a reserve fund. Consequently, not only are railroad companies not guaranteed any return, but some of them are not earning operating expenses. If a railroad is fortunate enough to earn more than 6 per cent, the government takes one-half, and regulates the use of the other half.

The intent of the law was that the government should use the excess it takes for making loans to weak rail. Still, so far as is generally known, it has never used a dollar of this money for that purpose. In fact, its requirements for security are such that the borrowing railroad could, with similar

Sees Brighter Days For Alert Dairymen

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 3.—A relatively bright future for dairymen is foreseen by F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. "On a whole we may say that dairying is on a profitable basis and will continue to be so for those who keep high-producing cows that are fed on plenty of home-grown feeds," he said, and added that he expects the dairy industry to continue its growth in Alabama.

Though it has been sorely tried during the past year, the dairy industry has weathered the storm and is now in a more favorable position than almost any branch of agriculture, he continued.

He mentioned seven factors that have been responsible for what he calls the "remarkable comeback" of dairying. They are a spirit of confidence due to better price outlook, the elimination of poor producers, the use of more production-bred sires, more efficient methods of feeding, housing, sanitation, and care, increased efforts to promote consumption, lower prices which resulted in decreasing the surplus, and greater pride in the industry.

Speaking of prices he said that the low figures of last winter caused demoralization but that now since definite and effective efforts at recovery have been made, even though the price has not returned to its former level, there is a better morale among producers. They have greater confidence, he declared.

In eliminating poor producers the dairy herd improvement associations have played a big part. Thousands of low producing cows have been eliminated from herds, according to reports received from the associations.

collateral, get money from any bank in the United States at a lower rate of interest than the government exacts.

Another prevalent hallucination is that freight rates vitally affect retail prices. Consider that the cost of mailing a postcard will carry an average pound of freight 1,815 miles, and a common argument for advanced retail prices is blasted.

Boy Scout Activities of Clanton

Dan Smith, Troop Reporter

The Wolf Patrol will move its meeting place from the Methodist Parsonage to one of the rooms in the Sunday School Annex of the Baptist church this week. This was made necessary on account of the leaving of Norman Childs, one of our members who goes to Troy, Alabama. Dr. Ezell granted the Wolf Patrol permission to use one of the rooms for our meeting place and we are very grateful for this because we wish to meet as often as possible.

On Thanksgiving Day the Wolf Patrol ate Thanksgiving dinner at the home of their leader, Dan Smith. Since then there has been an argument as to who ate the largest number of biscuit and most of the turkey and its accessories that day. We noticed that thru-out the dinner the plate of biscuit was always placed near John Ezell, and Mrs. Smith was kept unusually busy keeping plenty on the plate. Looks kind of suspicious for John. The turkey platter was kept between Dan Smith and Hal Broadhead, and there's a bet that the turkey disappeared faster there than it would have if placed somewhere else. Things began to get serious along the line of sudden disappearance, so in order that all would have an equal chance at the cake, it was placed in the center of the table beyond the reach of all the guests. In settling the argument of who ate the most, it was decided that those guilty were Hal Broadhead, John Ezell, Phillip Nelson, Norman Childs, Dan Smith and Grady Reynolds, Jr., and Morgan Reynolds, however, they are not listed according to how much they ate.

A plate was prepared by the patrol members and carried to a family living nearby, just below the home of Mrs. Rembert, who thanked us very much for it.

$100,000 DROUGHT AID IS SOUGHT FOR STATE

Commissioner Storrs Asks Appropriation For Alabama From The National Committee

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 22.—Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries and chairman Alabama drought relief committee, has asked for an appropriation of $100,000 for the farmers in the drought stricken area of Alabama to be used for purchasing feed, seed and fertilizer.

Announcement to this effect was made by Commissioner Storrs Saturday afternoon when he returned from Washington where he spent the latter part of the week working with the national drought relief committee. He reported plans are being completed for a relief bill to be introduced in the Senate and House the first day after Congress convenes Dec. 1. The bill will provide sufficient funds to make farmers in the drought-stricken areas loans for purchasing seed, feed and fertilizer for their 1931 crops. Commissioner Storrs reported the bill will be introduced in the Senate by Senator McNary, chairman, Senate agricultural committee, and in the House by Congressman Aswell (D), Louisiana, of the House agricultural committee.

Mr. Storrs reported it is understood the bill will provide for an appropriation of $60,000,000 to all the drought-stricken states. However, no allotment to various states has yet been determined. He said the appropriations to states is still to be worked out and plans and rules for loaning the money yet to be outlined.

Commissioner Storrs believes the money will be available for distribution by the first of next year. When asked what he thought of the possibility of the bill passing, replied: "I feel confident the bill will pass and the money will be available by January 1."

MILLIONS ARE IN NEED

Although powerful agencies have been brought into action in the nationwide effort to relieve the unemployment situation, only a beginning has been made toward the solution of this most pressing problem.

Two principal means of relief for the distressing condition which exists among several million of our people are outright charity and increased employment. If it were possible to provide jobs for everyone able and willing to work there would be comparatively little need for charity. But in the present situation both means of relief must be adopted, and all who can possibly do so should help.

There are a number of ways in which the more fortunate elements of the population can assist the less fortunate. By making the needed improvements and repairs now, when they can be made at lower cost than at any time in years, more men can be given work. By buying a little more liberally, consumption of commodities can be increased thereby creating a greater demand for labor to supply them. By donating as much as possible to the various relief agencies that have been set up, direct aid may be given those whose condition make this form of help necessary.

Unless those who can do these things will lend a hand and do it quickly there will be untold suffering among the jobless and their families this winter. Millions are in desperate want right now, and unless relief comes promptly they are faced with cold, hunger, sickness and in many cases death.

The plight of these unfortunates should appeal to every person in whose breast there is a spark of human sympathy.

Louise Gumble of Chicago was sentenced to the water wagon for six years after appearing in court on charges of drunkenness three times.

Major General Douglas MacArthur, who has just taken over the job of Chief of Staff, the youngest man ever to hold that highest Army post. He is 50.

Few officers have had such a distinguished military career as has General Douglas MacArthur, who has just become chief of staff of the United States Army at the age of 50, the youngest ever to hold this highest rank.

Since he was graduated from West Point at the head of his class in 1903, has had many important commands, and reached the rank of major general a few days before he was 45. As a first lieutenant he was military aide to President Roosevelt.

During the World War he served as chief of staff, brigade commander and finally as commanding general of the famous Rainbow Division, with which he took part in the St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne and Sedan offensives, as well as other major operations, being wounded in action twice.

After the war he served successively as superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, commander of the Philippines division, Fourth corps area, Third corps area and the Department of the Philippines, and has been president of the American Olympic Commission.

For his war services he received many American and foreign decorations including the distinguished service medal.

The new chief of staff is the son of the late Lieutenant-General Arthur MacArthur, who also had a notable Army career, having been a brevet colonel in the Civil War before he was 20 years old, later serving in the Spanish-American War and during the Philippine Insurrection.

DANGER SEASON NEAR

Added precautions by motorists are advisable if they would avoid the danger incident to slippery roads during the approaching cold weather. Wet pavements strewn with fallen leaves are a source of danger from skidding during the fall of the year, while sleet, snow and ice present even greater hazards later on.

A study of accident records by engineers of the Russell Manufacturing Co. of Middletown, Conn., shows that these seasons are generally marked by a large increase in automobile wrecks caused by skidding, due in most cases to defective brakes.

Frequent inspection of brakes is the best insurance against this type of accident. If the car is equipped with four-wheel brakes, as are all standard makes now being manufactured, the obtaining of proper equalization is especially important. One brake out of alignment may cause skidding, particularly when the brakes are applied with full force in an emergency.

Several states now make periodical inspection of brakes compulsory, but whether required to do so by law or not, the prudent motorist will attend to this important matter for his own protection.

Farms Of State Use Electricity

Alabama has made notable progress in extending electrical service into rural communities. Rural transmission lines are now serving farmers in 53 of the 67 counties of the State. A total of 1,689 miles of lines serve 8,500 rural customers and, in addition, 13,500 customers in 150 villages and towns with a population under 1,000.

Rural electrification in Alabama was inaugurated as a joint project between the Alabama Power Company and the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute with the Extension Service as a cooperating agency for the promotion of the work. A joint agreement was signed between the Power Company and the Experiment Station whereby the Power Company agreed to erect lines and install equipment, and the Experiment Station agreed to do research work.

County and home demonstration agents have played an important role in the work. Electricity serves rural people not only as a convenience, but also as an income producer. Electric lights are used in poultry houses to stimulate egg production during the fall and winter when egg prices are high. Electricity has also been found useful on dairy farms, and for many other purposes.

Advertising Policies

"The firm which eliminates or radically curtails its advertising at this time in the interest of economy is pursuing a shortsighted policy," says Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, in a statement to Sturges Dorrance, prominent New York advertising expert. "Advertising," explains Dr. Klein, "is to national business at the present moment just what initiative, courage and resourcefulness are to an individual. All signs indicate that we have reached the bottom of the decline and indeed in some places we are gradually moving upwards. Never was there a better opportunity for sound management, coupled with advertising having a real message, to help the business of the country get started on its climb back to prosperity."

There is a good deal of sound sense in that. The business man who cuts down on his advertising in time of stress can hardly have any call for complaint if his sales fall off.—Tuscaloosa News.

Farm Boys And Girls

There is only one thing about the annual gathering of 4-H Club boys and girls at the National Livestock Exposition that ought to be different. That is the fact that all of the city folks in the United States can't go to Chicago this week and see the kind of young folks the farms of America are bringing up today.

If we had our way about running this 4-H club affair, we'd arrange to pull off an exhibit of city youngsters at the same time and place and invite all of the cocktail-drinking city smart-Alecs, cigarette-smoking "society" women and snooty "modern" critics of everything that is sound and wholesome in America to come and compare the two groups.

We know which group would win. Our money would be down on the 4-H boys and girls.

Seriously, we feel that there is nothing whatever to worry about concerning the future of the Whites, much less the future of American rural life, so long as the farms of the nation continue to produce young men and young women of the types which make up the 4-H clubs. They call this annual show in Chicago a Livestock Exposition. It is that, of course, but it seems to us that by far the most important exhibit there is these healthy, industrious, energetic, enthusiastic, wholesome young people who are sent from every part of the country because they have won outstanding success in farming and home-making.

The country districts of the United States can challenge the cities to show their equal. We know of no comparable movement in the cities looking toward development of the qualities of Hand, Heart, Head and Health which are the four "H's" of the 4-H clubs. City youngsters may average "smarter" in dress and manners, though we question the latter. But the important things of life are not those which appear on the surface. It is character along that counts, in the long run; and we know of no finer builder of fine character than the 4-H clubs.

Criticising This Newspaper

A newspaper man, like a political figure, must inure himself to the criticisms of a thoughtless and irresponsible crowd. He is, in a manner, the servant of his community, but, unlike others on the public payrolls, not the recipient of the bounty that flows from the easily-expended funds of the taxpayers.

The other day, as is common with the profession of journalism, we heard various and sundry criticisms of the management of this newspaper. The basis of the criticism, as we see it, was entirely unjust, due largely to misunderstanding on the part of the critic, whose own career has not been particularly circumspect.

The opinion of a few two-by-fours, or smaller lumber, is not important in this life, but the poison that such a tongue can spread in its devious mutterings can throw suspicion, which is practically impossible to meet. Like most poison, it is insidious in its attack, and launched in the style of most character assassinations.

The only, and best, defense which this newspaper has is its history of fair dealing, its reputation for shooting square, and the character of those connected with it. The thinking citizens of Moundville, hearing some mouth-artists railing at the conduct of this journal, may justly suspect that it has failed to extend undue publicity to him, or his endeavors, or that it has dared to print a few facts which he, or his interests, would like to have hidden.

Once again, for the benefit of all readers, may we state that the columns of this newspaper are open to any communication that touches upon public matters, regardless of whether the views expressed coincide with our editorial policy or not. We are not anxious for everybody to believe what we believe, even if we are anxious for them sometimes to think for themselves.

Any question of public concern, which a reader thinks should be discussed in our columns, will be given publicity if the contribution sent in is properly written about an interesting subject that does not involve the libel laws.—Hale County News, Moundville.

Those Republican officeholders, who weren't candidates in the recent election, had real cause for Thanksgiving.

Fewers who revamped their plants in anticipation of the return of beer appear to have hopped to it too quickly.

In responding to the call of charity it is always well to remember that he who gives quickly gives thrice.

The man who, a few months ago, was asking "is it hot enough for you?" has substituted "cold" for "hot" and is just as great a source of annoyance.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"You Never Can Tell The Depth of A Well By The Length Of The Handle On The Pump."

And so one cannot always judge a person by his appearance, his speech, his hat, nor his appetite, and not even his rubber heels these days. To give a person justice before you take it upon yourself to pass judgment, you have got to know him well, get down into what is really in him. And in many cases more than one trial is necessary to give a fellow justice.

So often have I heard people criticising another even before they know him well, and in many instances those doing the criticising have lived to eat their words and like it. At this particular time of season, many persons are up against it, and in a tight. They may be honest, hard working and willing to work, but unfortunately have had a bad break. So there is really no excuse for persons wrongfully criticising the other fellow because he is slightly unfortunate.

I remember once hearing a story that might come in here. Two men were talking on the street, and a third passed and extended greetings of the day. The latter had just served a term in the pen for some minor offense. One of the two men engaged in conversation, remarked, "I wonder what that d-m convict is so cheerful about?" The other, with a little more grey matter, rebuked the first for calling the passerby a d-m convict, saying, "What reason have you to call him that, haven't you and I done the same thing he did. The only difference between us and that man, is that we just didn't get caught, and he did."

That hits the point. There are so many persons violating the law, and condemning others because they get caught at it. I have an idea that they would stop their condemning if they should only imagine themselves in the convict's place.

I only wish I was capable of writing something I would like to. It would be "An Ode To Our Firemen," in which I would pay them a high tribute for their work done in Clanton. Although they were a bit slow in reaching the scene of one of our recent fires, but I found that the reason for this, there was a little trouble in getting the new signals through properly. They did some quick work on the fire last Sunday morning, and perhaps saved the loss of other property nearby the scene. Anyway boys, I'm with you as long as you go at it like you have been. The new instructions given out are to call Dief's Service Station, Number 79, and don't hang up the phone until you have told them the exact location of the fire. When this is done, the service station promptly notifies the fire house by phone and very little time is lost in locating the fire. It's a pretty good system and will do until Clanton gets big enough to have a real fire station.

Well, I've got a new boss this week, an editor and publisher combined in one. Can't tell just how I'm going to like the new arrangements, but will later on I guess. If the new publisher don't get stuck-up and go to ordering me to do this and that, I'll probably like it all right. But you never can tell about a thing like that.

Clanton has already secured another new business house. It's located in the building formerly used by the Capitol Dry Goods Store. The new place will be known as Falkenberry's Cash Store, handling a line of dry goods, clothing, ladies and gent's ready-to-wear. They have set their opening date as next Friday morning, December 5th. Mr. Falkenberry seems to be a mighty nice sort of fellow. I went around the other day to sort of feel him out, and kind of liked him.

And then here comes Tom Rockett and Dewey Rockett along and buys out C. Fenn Jones. Mr. Jones has been in business for a long time but says he will turn it over to the other boys to try awhile. He said he didn't know just yet what he was going to do to live, but I'll bet he has got something up his sleeve. And anyway he ain't old enough to retire just yet, I don't think.

Add some life's happy moments to this: When everything is running smooth and looks rosy, and you're just thrilled thru and thru; and your sweetie tells you it's time to go, but changes her mind and allows you to stay for another half hour. Boy that's a great feeling. You will wonder just how much you can do in that last half hour. It's worth a million—right then, but may cost you a million later on.

I've heard so much about when to be nonchalant, but there is one time a fellow like myself should try to be nonchalant. That is when I've spent a lot of time trying to think up a few ideas for this column, but when I get them wrote down, they don't set so well with the readers.

I haven't really expressed my opinion of the leaving of Rev. Childs from Clanton to Troy. I am among the many who regret to see him go, but on the other hand, he is getting something of a promotion, I believe, and we should not be selfish you know. Anyway, he didn't ask for a change, they just gave it to him. But there is one thing about him, he gave a neat little sum to help in the recent church drive, and now he is going away from the church. The folks ought to do more than thank him for that sum of money he gave to the church he is forced to leave.

And another thought, when the ultra-modern Jack and Jill go up the hill to fetch a pail of water, you can just bet that the radiator on their car is dry.

No less than eight applicants applied for the job I spoke of last week in this column. Boy, does it pay to advertise in the News? I'll say so, and you can lay to that.

We'll Get Him Back When We Pay
By Albert T. Reid

HOWARD C. SMITH RETIRES AFTER 6 YEARS IN AGRI. DEPT.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 30.—After six years of service with the department of agriculture and industries, during which time he has served under three commissioners, Howard C. Smith, in charge of public information and the radio studio of WAPI, "signed off" at 1 p. m. Saturday and thus ended the 10:56 radio period of which he has had charge.

Mr. Smith has enjoyed a long and varied career with the leaders of agriculture in Alabama. He first began his services in 1908 in making a soil survey in Jefferson County, since which time he has cooperated in various ways with the past six commissioners of agriculture in various capacities. During this time he has been connected with the survey of about one-sixth of the counties of Alabama and his name appears on eleven Alabama soil bulletins, in testimony of his wide experience in original research in Alabama.

Since taking charge of the departmental radio studio in February, 1929, Mr. Smith has developed radio broadcasting of farm markets to a point where his daily broadcasts were awaited by large numbers of radio fans in Alabama and nearby states. To many the thrice-daily market broadcasts were the only reliable means of getting reliable market and farm news. Mr. Smith has always believed that the farm half hour should be mostly informational and educational and has never catered to entertainment extensively. With his extensive background of agricultural experience, he has been able to surround dry statistical figures with economic truths in such a manner that his audience was composed of many who had little direct connection with the farm.

The giving of a farm market program has been considered the hardest kind of program to broadcast, because it deals with neither music nor entertainment. Its appeal therefore has to be clothed in terms of popular appeal.

Operation of the daily radio service has been taking but a small part of Editor Smith's time. To handle the worldwide inquiries asking about Alabama called for constant research and a wide information on such subjects as geology, climate, statistics and adaptation of crop to soil in various parts of Alabama. Mr. Smith is credited with keeping alive the soil survey at times, when it seemed that this important work would cease.

In his farewell Mr. Smith spoke appreciatively of a large number of forces in the national and state life, which had cooperated in making the radio programs a success. Without this cooperation he said that success was impossible in assembling the daily program form information brought from the far corners of the United States and digested for the benefit of Alabama.

From the secretary of state's office it was learned that Mr. Smith had organized the Nottube Holding Company, an Alabama corporation chartered to purchase and hold real estate, especially in cities. This company was chartered in August and has already brought extensively of city real estate property which can now be purchased often at a low rate. It is expected that as president of this corporation he may give extensively of his time to Alabama development, in which he is a firm believer. On the contrary his devotion to writing constructively of Alabama is well known and it is believed that he may re-enter the field of feature writing.

In concluding his valedictory, Mr. Smith asked the press of Alabama and radio listeners making up the audiences of WAPI and WSEA to give to his successor, L. O. Brackeen, the same appreciative cooperation which he had enjoyed during the past six years and to be prepared to greet Mr. Brackeen on Monday when he would have entire charge of the program.

Mr. Smith has welcomed Mr. Brackeen to his office during the past two weeks during which he has been familiarizing himself with some of the details of the office of public information.

News In Brief

Iowa has no speed limit; it has no highway patrol; it has miles and miles of highway; it also has 359 dead bodies to exhibit as the total of auto accidents in the first eight months in 1930. Last year, with fewer good roads, and with the speed limit on for six of the first eight months, the death total was only 210.

New Orleans is said to have the largest per capita consumption of bread in this country—three quarters of a loaf per person a day, says a survey of the city's culinary output by the Association of Commerce. The annual consumption of flour for use in bread production is put at 637 barrels a day, or 232,505 a year—enough to make a train of 1,107 freight cars.

An international agreement is being negotiated between two of the great airway systems of the world, looking toward a trans-Atlantic air mail and, eventually, an express and passenger service between the United States and Great Britain.

So live that when your summum comes you will have a good alibi. A popular song remains popular only until someone writes a sillier one. Probably what the country really needs is a commission on commissions. One thing may be said for our enemies. They don't pester us with advice.

COMMISSIONERS ARE AIDING IN UNEMPLOYMENT

Offer Workers Wages To Work on Roads To Help Relieve Local Situation

An order which was passed by the Commissioners Court of Chilton County on December 1st stated that it was ordered by the court that each road overseer be allowed $2.00 per day, two-horse team and driver $3.00 per day, all road hands, $1.00 per day, one mule and hand to drive road scrape, $2.00 per day, and all trucks not over $6.00 per day.

This is being done, it was stated, to assist in relieving the financial depression now existing, and is open to those who are not employed and are in needy circumstances. It also stated that the overseer is to employ hands who need work, and give them the job on the public road, and that live close to the work that is to be done.

The Commissioners Court also stated that they urge all people who are in needy circumstances and who want work to apply at once to the commissioner in their respective district.

PAY YOUR CENTRAL FEE BY SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6

At the telephone meeting at the court house last Saturday afternoon it was decided by the board of directors that the central could be operated the coming year, provided those who have promised to pay central fees will pay and a few more on the side could be persuaded to come across.

So, next Saturday, December 6th, was set as the last day on which to pay central fees. You may pay any time between now and then at The Union-Banner office. Of course, you pay with the understanding that if the central does not begin operation your money will be refunded.

The way to get telephone service for the coming year may be summed up in just a few words: Put your line in shape to the corporate limits of Clanton, pay up your fees, and demand the board of directors service; and you will get it.

Every single phoneholder on Line 47 has paid his fee, and they are putting their line in shape. Several other lines are doing the same. This is the way to go at it; if all lines will do this the company can and will give service during the coming year. The fee is only $2.50, and everyone can afford to pay this.

T. E. WYATT, Secy-Treas.

Grammar School News

Before the Thanksgiving holidays it was decided that our school would make an offering for the poor. On Wednesday the children brought canned goods, sugar, flour, cereals, and many other things—over one hundred articles in all—and these were turned over to Mrs. Stapp. There was also a small amount of money contributed; one child who forgot to bring anything had his dime for lunch, he walked up to the teacher and said, "I'd rather do without my lunch and give my dime to the poor people who won't have anything for Thanksgiving."

On Monday after the holidays there was noted an appalling number of tardies. The faculty will greatly appreciate it if the parents will have their children at school between 8 and 8:15. It is impossible for your child to be on honor roll if he has one tardy mark for the month.

The faculty play which was advertised has been postponed until after Christmas holidays, the date to be announced later.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and everyone for their help and kindness shown to us Saturday afternoon when our house caught on fire, both white and colored, for had it not been for them everything we had would have burned. Words can not express our appreciation.

SAUL OF TARSUS

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.
Saul was a conscientious and devoted man. He was devoted and conscientious. He was devoted and conscientious.

Saul had been especially honored in being entrusted with letters of authority and accompanying soldiery that he might proceed to Damascus and bring those who confessed faith in Jesus Christ there back to Jerusalem for trial.
He was in such haste to reach his destination that when he neared Damascus at noon approached he refrained from the usual mid-day siesta that he might the more speedily arrive at his destination and begin the investigation.

Then the miracle occurred that changed his entire viewpoint.

Above the brightness of the noon-day sun there was a manifestation of the glory of God in the open heavens. Others were aware of the vision but they did not hear the voice that demanded of Saul "Why persecutest thou me?"

Glory from the throne had blinded the man who a moment before had been so sure of himself. He had to yield himself to the hand of another as entrance was made into the city.

Then came three days of meditation and personal communion with the Lord, in Whom he now believed as the Savior of mankind because of His redeemptive work on the cross at Calvary.
In a vision Ananias is directed to go to Saul and naturally he hesitates until he

MAIN STREET LOCKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

Now York—This frantic island is suffering from a bad case of wandering husbands and dislocated wives.

You're not really up in society unless you have Mexican, Parisian, and Reno divorces, eight-cylinder alimony, and circulating boy friends.

It's becoming difficult for the Manhattan gal to keep count of her ex-husbands. You can imagine her exclaiming, "Oh, yes, I remember you.
Weren't we married a couple of years ago?"

Next?

This midget craze has got to stop somewhere. First midget golf. Then midget autos. Then midget radios.

The next thing we know a college student will reach into his watch-pocket pull out a law book, and settle down to an evening of study.

Flappers can already carry around a week-end wardrobe in a vanity case.

Before long fathers will come home to his evening fireside and delight the wife and children by pulling a new house and lot out from under his overcoat.

—And Congress has already renovated the navy so that we can park it in a telephone booth.

Play Something Simple

In numerous apartments you will find divorced or separated husbands returning to have dates with the ex-wife.

I know one such hubby who brings his new girl friend along. It's always a congenial party—especially if the ex-wife's new boy friend is on hand.

There Goes The Bride

The children have been in court so much they talk like Philadelphia lawyers.

And the bride's trossseau is new enough six weeks after the honeymoon for the trip to Paris to get the final decree.

You don't know whether you're married or not until you read the tabloid newspapers. Mrs. Peter Arno says she has to 'phone Walter Mitchell to find out whether she and Mr. Arno are still man and wife.

Millions in Miniature

The only thing small about miniature golf is the name.

The first National Miniature Golf Show was held here the other day. The stop and sock industry, only a few years old, is said to employ 150,000 persons, representing an investment of $150,000,000 and an annual income of $255,000,000.

Riches in a Niche

Many observers have commented upon the incredibly tiny holes-in-the-wall that do business on New York's busy thoroughfares as candy stores, drink stands, lunch counters, and jewelry stores.

But few realize what amazing wealth is often piled up by operators of such pigeon holes. Fire regulations forced the removal recently of a tiny lunch counter that had done business for years in a 4-by-12-foot corner of a building entrance on 39th street. It was disclosed that the old man who operated the place had been earning $10,- 000 a year.

I know of one thriving candy and tobacco stand that is jammed between two adjacent columns of a building front. The proprietor has barely room inside to make change and turn the pages of his morning paper. Yet he works there all day—and probably has a tidy pile laid up in some savings bank.

GOLF KING RETIRES

"Bobby Jones" undisputed golf king of the world, who this year set the unprecedented record of winning all four major American and British championships, has announced his retirement from tournament competition.

He will continue his interest in the game of golf, however, and has signed a contract to make 12 one-reel motion pictures illustrating the fine points of the game for the benefit of players and others.

To most persons the name of "Bobby Jones" merely signifies the greatest golfer, but he has other high attainments as well. He holds the degree of bachelor of science in mechanical engineering from Georgia Tech, bachelor of science from Harvard, studied law at Emory University, and has been a practicing lawyer in Atlanta since 1928.
He was married to Miss Mary Malone of Atlanta in 1924 and has two children.
All of which constitutes a rather impressive record for a young man of 28 years.

For the sixtieth time within five years, a Viennese father pleaded with the judge of the juvenile court that his son be sent to a reformatory.

When Mack Davis of Atlantic Highlands, N. J., yawned his jaw went out of joint and he had to go to a hospital to have it readjusted.

Forestry Prize Essay Regulations

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 3.—Rules have been prepared for the competition for the forestry essay prizes offered by the State Commission of Forestry, says
Colonel Page S. Bunker, State Forester. These rules answer the questions of who, how, when and what.

Any pupil of a high school or school of equal grade in Alabama may enter an essay in the contest. The papers will be handled in the high schools in a manner that will keep the identity of the writer from being known until after the announcement of the best paper has been made. Each high school will submit one paper. The essays must be completed and in the hands of the principal of the school on or before Wednesday, February 25, 1931.

The essays should comprise approximately from 1,500 to 2,000 words. They may be on forestry in its general sense or may bear on a particular phase of forestry, but the subject taken should be well handled and the essay informative and interesting with the conclusion well drawn. The facts therein may be obtained first hand or from published material, but the composition must be original.

The writers should confine their papers chiefly to the subject matter of actual forestry, and not include to any material extent arboriculture or incidental considerations involving trees.
The students should keep in mind that forestry is the economic and profitable production of timber in perpetuity primarily for commercial use, in the same way that agriculture is the production of field crops for similar purposes.
While incidental benefits from forestry such as watershed protection, hygienic influences, etc., may be considered somewhat, the main theme should not be subordinated.

The first prize has been fixed as a year's scholarship at one of the collegiate institutions of the state. The second prize will be a trip to California and return, and the third a round trip to Washington, D. C. The rules as promulgated by the Commission of Forestry give details as to the exact procedure to be followed by the students, the judges and the high school principals. Copies of the rules may be obtained by writing to the State Forester, Montgomery, Alabama.

Two Years Ago

From Issue of December 6, 1928

The football team of the Chilton County High School was honored at a banquet given by the Senior class of the school last Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, in the dining room of the Wilson Hotel.

Mr. A. D. Martin was among the visitors to Clanton last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Adams of Mt.
Creek were in Clanton this week shopping.

Arthur Johnson, Jr., of the A. M.
Institute at Anniston spent Thanksgiving holidays here.

Misses Nell and Dody Wells spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Birmingham as the guests of friends and relatives.

Mrs. George Polk and children visited relatives in Bessemer Sunday.

Mr. Stewart Armstrong and Miss
Bessie Gilmore were married last Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. M. J.
Parrish.

WHEN BABIES FRET

THERE are times when a baby is too fretful or feverish to be sung to sleep. There are some pains a mother cannot pat away. But there's quick comfort in Castoria!

For diarrhea, and other infantile ills, give this pure vegetable preparation.
Whenever coated tongues tell of constipation; whenever there's any sign of sluggishness. Castoria has a good taste; children love to take it. Buy the genuine—with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature

Peas Change Their Habits

PEAS used to be served almost everywhere with cream sauce in a "side dish." Who does not remember the numerous little
"bird baths" full of vegetables which used to clutter up the table?
But, since we have all become more or less vegetarians, peas are now eaten straight, without any cream sauce, as part of the meal on the plate, and "side dishes" are pretty much things of the past. "Move over and give me room," peas have said to the mutton chop, or whatever other meat you had on your plate, and these obliging vlands have done so to the benefit of all concerned. Peas taste better served in this modern fashion, and the same thing holds true of canned whole grain corn.

Peas combine well not only with other meats but with vegetables. Here is a recipe for combining them with fresh tomatoes which will make everyone come back for more.

Peas with Fresh Tomatoes: Cut three or four tomatoes which are not too soft into pieces and sauté gently in three tablespoons butter.
Season well with salt and pepper, and add the drained contents of a
No. 2 can of peas, or all the contents of a can of vacuum packed peas. Heat and serve. This recipe will serve eight people.

Be sure to save the liquor from the peas to use in a soup or a sauce if you use the kind that are put up in brine, as this liquor is rich in vitamins and mineral salts.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.
However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

News from Thorsby

Miss FRANCES WILSON, Correspondent

The boarding students of the Thorsby Institute, together with the faculty and a few patrons, made their annual visit to the County Poor Farm Thanksgiving. Wagons, as customary, carried the group. They held a service while there, consisting of prayers, singing, and a message delivered by Rev. Joseph E. Each. Many gifts were presented by the citizens of Thorsby.

Stunt night at the Thorsby Institute last Saturday night was very exciting. This year instead of three judges deciding the winner of the stunt ballots and pencils were passed to the audience and a vote of all determined the seniors as winners this year.

The Harmonica Club of the Thorsby Institute made their first appearance in Chapel Tuesday morning.

The library of the Thorsby Institute has been recently presented with the following books, several of them new: Garland's Trail Makers of the Middle Border, Rolvaag's Giants in the Earth, Bigger's Black Camel, Four in One Mysteries, Stevenson's Travels with a Donkey, Martin's Read Aloud Book (for children), Haskin's Answers to Questions, Richard's Star Bright. Readers of these books report that they are very interesting and very good reading matter.

The Philomathic girl basket ball team played the Pushmataha girl team last Friday afternoon. The game proved very exciting. Score at the end stood, Philomathic, 16; Pushmataha, 12.

Miss Lois Primm, who is teaching at Lock 12 spent Thanksgiving at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Primm.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Merchant were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Merchant of Centerville Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Hester Ann Merchant and little daughter, Helen, spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson have a new Ford sedan.

Mrs. A. F. O'Beary, moved last week to the west twin Villadsen house.

Mr. Vernon Carlson who has been employed in Chicago for some time is home for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Robinson and little son, L. V., and Mr. and Mrs. Wood of Birmingham, formerly of Thorsby, were visitors in Thorsby Sunday night.

Miss Harriet Cobb of Birmingham was the week end guest of Miss Frances Wilson.

Miss Jessie Mims of South Thorsby spent the week end in Birmingham with her sister, Mrs. Leonard Bean.

Misses Lila and Essie Hester and Mr. Lewis Hester of Birmingham were the Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Collins.

Mr. C. C. Killingsworth of Birmingham is spending a couple of weeks with his sister, Mrs. R. L. Primm, of Thorsby.

Miss Gertrude Jones spent Thanksgiving with Miss Frances Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron South of Birmingham were the guests of Mrs. South's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Freeman, Thanksgiving. Mr. South returned to his work Thursday evening, but Mrs. South will spend a week or so with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Collins entertained a number of their friends at their home Thanksgiving evening. The following were the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Littlejohn, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Collins, Misses Nettie and Willie Littlejohn, Miss Gertrude Jones, Misses Essie and Lila Hester of Birmingham and Miss Frances Wilson, Mr. John Collins, Mr. Perry Littlejohn, Mr. Green Thomas, and Mr. Lewis Hester of Birmingham. Music was furnished by the Collins string band, consisting of Mrs. Jim Collins at the piano, Mr. John Collins, violin; Mr. Bill Collins, guitar, and Mr. Jim Collins, bass viol.

Mr. J. P. Sarrenson's niece, Mrs. J. S. Brink, of Chicago is here, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sarrenson, assisting them during Mr. Sarrenson's illness.

Mr. W. J. Billingsley of Clanton was a visitor in our town Monday.

Mr. Curtis Popwell of Clanton was the guest of Miss Edna Childress Sunday.

Mr. J. P. Sarrenson was hit by an auto driven by Miss Vassie Morrow of Dothan last Wednesday evening and was painfully injured. We are glad to note that he is improving.

We are sorry to announce that our fellow townsman and neighbor, Mr. D. H. Gentry is going back to his farm near New Salem. Uncle Dock is a real farmer and he loves farming, in fact, he is never quiet as well satisfied at any other vocation as he is when tilling the soil. Mr. Gentry is building two rooms to his garage at his farm and will live in it. We will miss Mr. and Mrs. Gentry when they are gone, but we have the consolation that our loss will be New Salem community's gain.

Mrs. John Billingsley made a business trip to Clanton Monday.

Mr. Ted Hayes of Birmingham was in Thorsby Sunday and we judge by the smile he displayed that some fair daisies was minus a heart.

Mr. Donald Merchant will occupy the residence being occupied by Mr. D. H. Gentry.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Collins visited Clanton Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. C. D. Gibbons has been suffering for the past week with flu and bronchitis.

policies. Mr. Teel is a newspaperman and a printer of wide experience, and has been a resident of Clanton for the past three and one-half years."

Billy Smith is a native of Chilton County, the son of the late Paul Clifford Smith, Sr., and Mamie C. Smith, who were among the first settlers in the section of Thorsby, and who lived there for a number of years. He was born about three miles north of Thorsby on what is known as the old Smith place, and has lived in Clanton for something like fifteen years, attending both the grammar school and the high school here.

In making this sale of the Chilton County News and The Rockford Chronicle, Mr. Atkinson has the following to say to the people:

"Four years ago when I acquired, by purchase, the Chilton County News, I was actuated to do so from a desire to see the Democratic party of this county have a medium through which it could inform the public of the things which would stimulate and lay the foundation for a Democratic victory in this county, also, I felt that the party was entitled to a newspaper worthy to go into the homes of any good citizen and one that might take some part in upbuilding our moral, educational and civic standing. Realizing that a newspaper, to be worthy of its existence, should be an uplifting force in its community, it has been my earnest endeavor to pursue those policies which would lead the readers of the News to a better understanding of the issues of the day, and to dispel any darkness or illusions that existed. I believe that the Chilton County News has rendered some service along these lines during the last four years, and whatever mistakes I may have made have been of the mind and not the heart. My friends in the county and surrounding territory of the state have been very loyal in supporting the paper, and having sold and conveyed my interest in the Chilton County News and The Rockford Chronicle to Billy Smith, who has, during the time I have owned the papers, been responsible in a large part for whatever success we have made; therefore, I am asking this opportunity to express to my friends and patrons my appreciation of their support and influence while I owned the papers. I hope that every citizen of Chilton and Coosa Counties will, in the future give to Mr. Smith and his associates their whole-hearted support and influence."

"If my zeal for those things which I have thought right and proper have caused me to overstep the true line of demarcation of my rights with those whom I did not agree, and thereby I have wounded the personal feelings of anyone, I regret having done so."

"It has been indeed a great pleasure in operating these papers to have in my employment Billy Smith, Vernie Teel, John M. VanDerveer, Jr., and Miss Clara Stewart, who have each been loyal and true to their trusts and I bespeak for them a continuation of the support and influence of the people of Chilton and Coosa Counties in their efforts to publish said papers in the interests of the respective counties they serve."

Rev. Childs Delivers Farewell Sermon

found opportunity to serve and Whereas, we regard his going away as a loss that we fear can not be fully recompensed, therefore, be it Resolved: 1. That the Kiwanis Club of Clanton express our genuine sorrow and regret that he is to be taken away from us.

2. That we express to Rev. Childs our appreciation for his good works in this community. It is a rare thing to find in a man such a combination of virtues as we have been permitted to see and enjoy in our associations with Ernest Childs. While he has stood in his place as God's messenger to his people in this field, he has shed a wonderful influence for good upon every phase of our community's welfare. His life, his ideals, his purposes, his accomplishments, have been an inspiration to men; a great force by which men have drawn closer to God and made more interested in useful and righteous living.

3. That we therefore acknowledge our thankfulness to God that it has been our blessed privilege to have Ernest Childs with us for these two years. He has been to us one of God's refreshing fountains from which we might drink when weary, and continue our journey with hearts and souls re-consecrated to good things.

4. That we especially appreciate the faithful and diligent manner in which he has served as a member and as Secretary of our Club. He has demonstrated and imparted to us the kind of Kiwanis spirit and Kiwanis ideals that have been the power to move the hearts of hundreds of thousands of men to greater service and greater usefulness.

5. That we pray for his continued growth in grace and in service to humanity. May he ever keep close to God.

6. That we assure him here and now that wherever he may go, he carries with him the purest love of every heart among us.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1876, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were irascible phytics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which is put in drug stores in 1930 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, sweet stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from indigestion, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad catarrh, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist or write "Syrup Pepsin," c/o W. B. Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

To the People of Clanton and Chilton County:

Let's be sensible about "conditions." It is true that in common with the rest of the nation, Clanton and Chilton County are having to put on "full speed" on the business of economizing. With substantial banks and business concerns, we continue to hear on every had talk of that archaic evil, a "hard winter." Authorities on economics have agreed that the country is in a splendid condition as far as buying power is concerned. Savings accounts are said to be better than ever before, and instead of bringing prosperity, the high levels of savings accounts is a harbinger of economic evil, and what is needed now is not saving, and hoarding, but spending, but spend wisely so that as many local people as possible will have advantage of it.

Every dollar that is hoarded in a miserly manner is an obstacle in the path of Prosperity. The unemployed are not seeking charity, what they want is work. If it is to be left to the people of the country to better present conditions, then there is no better time to start than now, and there is no better place to begin than at home. Some of the many things that could be done to improve conditions locally are to help some deserving man or woman to get a little paying work, or better, a regular job, spend wisely and not too timidly; be willing to pay a fair price, don't take advantage of the other fellow's necessity. Recognize that he has as good claim to a fair price as you; discourage "hard times" howlers; reassure employees, when possible, that they should have no fear of losing their job; buy those things you need now, buying all possible from local merchants, even if it is not exactly what you want; when possible, pay accounts that are due, or past due. There are many who can pay their bills and still have money to spend. For them there is no visible reason for delay in buying what they need now. Those persons who have been contemplating building or improving property in Chilton County can have no better time than now to carry out their plans. Labor and materials are cheap, and by going ahead, employing local labor, buying locally all possible, they will assist greatly in bettering conditions locally.

From time to time, in the past, the Chilton County News has carried editorials dealing with suggestions concerning how to aid unemployment in Clanton and Chilton County. "Quit blaming the stock market trash and get down to business," was one heading. "Quit Complaining and Get Busy," was another. These editorials were numerous and reached over a period of several months.

It is time to quit looking to Washington, but to look to self. Time to forget the things that are behind which seem to hinder, and to push on—be sensible. We can help ourselves, our town and county by keeping our troubles to ourselves and working like forty to make things better. Every body is more or less affected by general complaining and a lack of confidence. Confidence is the chief need, coupled with a determination to push forth our best efforts to overcome whatever remains of a feeling of fear. By spending, and buying those things needed, we will not only aid in bringing about a revival of business activity, but we will also receive a substantial return in whatever we buy. A dollar spent now is worth more than a dollar hoarded miserly. Now is the time to buy—prices are down—but buy at home and buy wisely. Let's be sensible and look after Chilton County.

BILLY SMITH.

MERCHANTS OF CLANTON READY FOR CHRISTMAS

Stocks Displayed, Prices Placed In Accordance With Other Prices

The real Santa Claus has already arrived in Clanton and is now making ready for his visit to the kiddies of Clanton and Chilton County. The spirit of Thanksgiving is being crowned with that of Christmas Good Cheer.

The merchants of Clanton have purchased their goods for Christmas with good taste, yet conservatively. There can be found in the stores of Clanton everything that is needed to make everyone, as well as the home, a nice and substantial gift. Even the most tasteful and refined person will find in the stores of Clanton a variety of goods from which they can supply their particular wants. The people of Clanton and Chilton County are all making ready for a happy Christmas and the spirit of good cheer and a desire to make others happy, seems to now be prevailing throughout the county, in a striking manner.

Every store in Clanton has something nice from which the people may select their gifts, and throughout this issue of the News are ads from stores in Clanton offering exceptional bargains to the thrifty gift buyer. It would not be a bad idea to take the ads in this issue and use them as a shopping guide. If the people want the best in Christmas gifts, they will show good taste in shopping early and visiting every store in Clanton. Shop early, shop in Clanton, and let the good Christmas spirit prevail at home.

S. M. Edwards, one of our staunch and progressive farmers was in Clanton Saturday attending to business matters.

Mrs. C. V. Heath returned Friday from a delightful visit to friends and relatives in Birmingham.

Seven Appear For Trial
In Mayor's Court Here

Seven cases were on docket for trial last Monday morning before Mayor J. Lee Smith, one for disorderly conduct, one for operating business without license, four for Sunday gaming and one for assault and battery, according to the records at the City Clerk's office.

Eaco Culp was tried on a charge of disorderly conduct and was fined five dollars and costs, it was stated. Culp was arrested last Saturday night by Officer Sherrod. Charles Wade was docketed on a charge of operating a coal business without license. He pleaded guilty, received a fine of one dollar and costs, and appealed to a higher court, the information stated.

Will Allen Mickey, negro, was tried on a charge of assault and battery. His case was turned over to the county. Officer Bookholdt made the arrest. Cliff Owen, Arthur Calhoun, Ike King and Ross Dennis, all negroes, were docketed on charges of Sunday gaming, having been arrested by Officer John Bookholdt last Sunday, it was stated. These charges were not pressed.

Refreshments will be served. Proceeds go to the school. Everyone is invited.

Jim Dunlap To Open
A Store In Clanton

Another new business will make its appearance in Clanton this morning when Jim Dunlap opens his store. This new place of business will be located in the building formerly occupied by the Chicago Sales Company, next door to the First National Bank on Main Street.

Mr. Dunlap has been connected with the Capitol Dry Goods Company and the Chicago Sales Company, and it was while with these two stores he gained for himself numerous friends over the county. He will handle fruits and groceries in his new store, carrying a fresh and complete stock of both, and says he will have his prices down to meet the present needs. He also extends a cordial invitation to the people of this section to visit his store which is to open today.

C. B. SMITH SENDS ORANGES TO NEWS OFFICE THIS WEEK

The News office received a welcome gift of oranges this week from the Hon. Cecil B. Smith, attorney of Lakeland, Fla. He sent a limb from an orange tree, which had on it ten fully grown and ripe oranges, just like they grew, and also sent a sack full with these, by Leon Kemp, who makes regular trips to Florida to bring oranges to this county by truck, with Tip Popwell.

Mr. Smith stated that these oranges were grown in his yard at his home. Perhaps he uses orange trees for shade trees down there, and such shade trees prove profitable in more than one way. The News thanks Mr. Smith for this gift. Mr. Smith was at one time a resident of Clanton, and is the son of Col. A. C. Smith, attorney of this place.

Give an order to the Girl Scouts of Clanton for fresh holly and mistletoe, in order to aid the needy here.

SEVERAL ARE ARRESTED OVER
PAST FEW DAYS

Sheriff's Forces Make Haul Of Law Violators On Various Charges

During the past few days the Sheriff's forces of this county have been showing some good reports on arrests of law violators, according to information given out to the News this week.

Henry Underwood, negro, was arrested last Saturday morning on a charge of petit larceny, and at the time of this writing he is held in jail here.

J. E. Goodson, negro, was arrested Saturday morning also alleged to have stolen an amount of cotton. He was placed in jail. Charles Hunter and Henry Hunter were placed in jail here for failing to work the county roads, last Friday, it was stated. Carey Ray was placed in jail Sunday on a charge of public drunkenness.

Hubie McCall, one of Clanton's well-known negroes, who was sentenced to the penitentiary some time ago, and later committed to reh insane asylum at Mount Vernon, was held here, after arriving here to visit home folks last week. He is said to have escaped from the Mount Vernon asylum.

William Price and Paul Webb, were arrested Sunday on charges of violating the Prohibition Law, it was stated, and made bond the same day.

BERRY GROWERS TO MEET HERE
DECEMBER 12TH

All Farmers Interested In Cash Crops Urged To Attend This Meeting

All members of the Clanton Berry Growers Association are to meet in Clanton at the courthouse on Friday, (tomorrow) December 12th, at one o'clock p. m.

It was stated in a letter mailed to each of the members that this is a most important meeting and they are urged to be present, as many important items will be taken up for discussion.

All other farmers who are interested in raising cash crops, other than cotton, are especially invited to attend this meeting also, so that every farmer in the county may be able to plan this work together, and bring about better markets for various crops. This meeting should be attended by not only present berry growers of the county, but by all farmers interested in getting started with other money crops. The planting of more acreage to strawberries, dewberries, sweet potatoes and other crops will be discussed.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF FARMERS AT VERBENA, ALA.

There will be a meeting of farmers and supply merchants at Verbena on Thursday, December 11th, at 2 p. m.

The object of the meeting is to discuss money crops for the Verbena territory. Mr. Stapp will be present to lead the discussion. Farmers interested are requested to get in touch with Mr. W. A. Gullledge at Verbena.

Fifteen Are Taking
Rabies Treatment

Fifteen persons, twelve of whom are children, have been taking the rabies treatment in Clanton as the result of having been bitten by a dog, declared rabid, several days ago, according to information from the Central Alabama Hospital here.

The information stated that all the persons reside at the cotton mill village, at Clanton. Just who the dog belonged to was not learned, but after observing it for some time, it was killed and its head sent to the State Department, where the dog was declared rabid. Treatment was immediately begun on all persons at the mill who had been scratched or bitten by the dog.

CLANTON LAUNDRY BRINGS NEW, MODERN SERVICE HERE

The Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company is announcing this week the installation of a Monel-Metal screen pressure filter outfit. This new equipment adds to the already modern plant of the local laundry, and its purpose is to give a better cleaning service to clothes. It filters all dirt and suspended matter from the dry cleaning fluid, used in the cleaning process of clothes.

By the use of this new equipment the clothes that are being cleaned receive a continuous flow of cleaning solvent that is always clean. The dirty solvent that is removed from the clothes is carried off and cleaned in this filter, being then returned to the cleaner free from all dirt, at the rate of 1000 gallons per hour. This new equipment places the local laundry in line with the best in the state, and is the latest, most modern equipment in the dry cleaning industry.

RENFROE MULLINS GIVEN STAG
DINNER ON BIRTHDAY

A surprise stag dinner was given last Friday night for J. Renfro Mullins, at his home in honor of his birthday, at which time H. T. Pipes was also honored on his birthday, and this same occasion.

Several of the intimate friends of Mr. Mullins gathered at his home, it having been pre-arranged by Mrs. Mullins, and he was decidedly entertained. A four course dinner was served to the following who made up this jovial stag party:

Messrs. S. J. Esell, W. I. Mullins, W. H. Foshee, J. Watts Moore, Arthur Willis, Frank Mullins, P. T. Hinkle, E. E. Upchurch, John Durwood Mullins, N. S. Johnson and H. T. Pipes.

Mr. Mullins was presented with a handsome fountain pen desk set from this group of friends, and Mr. Pipes was presented with a pen and pencil set.

R. L. Duffey and young son of Mt. Creek, Alabama, were among the visitors to Clanton Saturday.

BANK STRENGTH
SHOWN IN STATE
GREEN REPORTS

Cash And Cash Reserves Are About $3,000,000 More Than Last June

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 9.—Much that is encouraging in Alabama's financial affairs is found by D. F. Green, state superintendent of banks, to be reflected in the consolidated statement of the condition of the 218 state banks and 17 branch banks as of the close of business on November 20, which was made public by him yesterday.

While total resources of these institutions are practically $6,000,000 less than that shown on June 30 this year, this Mr. Green said, was accounted for almost wholly by bills payable and rediscunts.

On June 30, he pointed out, the banks owned practically nine and a quarter million dollars bills payable and rediscunts, while on Nov. 20 they owed $4,372,000 or nearly $5,000,000 less on these items.

Banks have done well, the superintendent said, considering the low price of cotton, in their collections so that their loans and discounts have been reduced practically $9,250,000. Overdrafts have decreased approximately $11,000, it is shown.

Banks and merchants have been pressing their collections, Mr. Green says, pointing out that in spite of this, demand deposits are only about $400,000 less than they were on June 30, while savings deposits are approximately $1,500,000 less than on that date.

"Upon the whole," Mr. Green said, "I believe our banks have made splendid progress when we take into consideration the adverse conditions that they have been facing all the Fall. If our people will continue to cooperate and do their best, I believe our banks will be able to carry on next year and help our people in a reasonable way in caring for their needs."

Miss Tempie Millsap and Mr. E. D. Simmons of Birmingham were visitors to Clanton Tuesday.

Dr. D. W. Haskew Here
To Assume Pastorate

Clanton welcomed their new Methodist pastor last week when Dr. D. W. Haskew arrived to assume his work here as pastor of the Clanton Methodist church. Dr. and Mrs. Haskew will occupy the Methodist parsonage. They have only one son, Prof. L. D. Haskew, who is principal of the high school at Greensboro, Ga., and when he completed his studies at the Emory University, of Atlanta, he was the youngest graduate of that year, being only 18.

Dr. Haskew delivered his first sermon here last Sunday night. He has served in the Forest Avenue Methodist church, Montgomery, in Tuskegee for three years, in Pell City for four years, in Eufula for two years, from where he came to Clanton. He was educated in the Old Southern University, at Greensboro, Alabama, and has quite a wide reputation as a writer of articles appearing in various papers and magazines.

Alabama's Idle Report Is Held Up To U. S. As A Model

Chairman Of Unemployment Body Is Impressed By Charity Detail Of The Data

A report this week, coming from Washington stated that the report of the Alabama emergency employment commission "in its extensiveness and clarity provides a model for others," according to a formal comment on the survey and recommendations made Sunday by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the president's emergency committee for employment.

A summary of the findings and recommendations of the Alabama commission was made public here along with Col. Woods' commendation Sunday. This summary previously has been published in Alabama.

The report was laid before Col. Woods Friday by Theodore Swann, ever, attiring themselves in 49 varieties chairman of the Alabama commission; Thad Holt, its secretary, and Hayes Tucker of Tuscaloosa, Sixth district chairman and Alabama representative on the national committee, and at that time brought forth praise for its minute detail, the set-up of the commission named by Gov. Graves and the recommendations to meet the situation. The report later Friday was presented Alabama members of congress.

In his formal announcement of appreciation, Col. Woods issued the following statement. Sunday, accompanying a summary of the Alabama report: "It is with great appreciation the president's emergency committee has received the report of the Alabama emergency employment commission. It is most valuable to the committee in furthering its work. It provides an example of admirable attention to facts and its extensiveness and clarity provides a model for others."

"I congratulate the Alabama commission on its exhaustive study of details and its evidence of sound leadership."

Program Would Provide Work For All, Swann Says

If it is feasible to release $30,000,000 federal funds for a general "river and harbor" program in Alabama, without that sum having to be matched by state funds at this time, the number of men in Alabama now estimated to be without jobs would be provided with work. Theodore Swann, chairman, state employment commission, told the state delegation in Washington Friday.

The work should begin not later than Jan. 1, Swann told the Alabama senators and congressmen. The figure mentioned, he said, does not include those men who would be attracted to this state by construction development here, nor does it include the appropriation which may be made for drought relief.

The Alabama delegation assured Swann, Thad Holt, secretary, the employment commission, and Hayes Tucker, commission chairman, the Sixth Congressional District, Tuscaloosa, they would do everything in their power to obtain sufficient appropriations to stimulate industrial developments enough to provide work for everyone.

The meeting was held at 1 p. m. Friday in the speakers' dining room, the capital.

CHASING ECLIPSES

Traveling more than 60,000 miles in order to see the sun in eclipse for a total period of about 16 minutes has been the experience of Dr. S. A. Mitchell of the University of Virginia's observatory, who headed an eclipse expedition to the South Pacific last month.

This was the eighth expedition of the kind in which he has participated, all of which were successful except one to Norway in 1927, when clouds prevented observations.

According to Dr. Mitchell's preliminary report by radio, the photographs taken of the eclipse of October 22, observed from tiny Tin Can Island, are excellent and "confirm our feeling that this expedition's success has been unequalled in astronomical annals."

A total of 41 photographs were taken of the corona during the eclipse, using a 63-foot tower and a 65-foot horizontal telescope. These are said to be of great beauty, while excellent results were also obtained with smaller cameras. The total eclipse lasted about a minute and a half, and began two seconds ahead of the time predicted.

The expedition, of which Dr. Mitchell was the scientific head, was under the auspices of the U. S. Naval Observatory, which, like many others, sends observers to all parts of the earth where total eclipses may be witnessed and photographed.

Charles Green of Hagerstown, Md., made a leap from the third story window of a building in an effort to escape arrest on a charge of robbery and landed in a policeman's arms.

ELMORE COUNTY CATTLE PLACED IN QUARANTINE

Wetumpka, Ala., Dec. 6.—Dr. C. A. Carey, State veterinarian, has placed Elmore County cattle under quarantine for the purpose of ridding them of tuberculosis, it was announced recently. Under the regulation, no cattle can be carried out or brought into the county except for the purpose of immediate slaughter, unless they have been tested for tuberculosis.

Inspectors to do this work in the county are Dr. J. M. Jowers, Seaman; Dr. B. Z. Burleson, Northeast part of County above Eclectic; Dr. J. B. Faversham, Tallapoosa; Dr. E. E. Williamson, and Dr. R. H. Hamner, Wetumpka, and Dr. W. L. Flannagan, Deatsville.

ARE YOU HOSPITABLE?

Are you hospitable, really—in the good old-fashioned way for which the South is famous? If not, I expect it is because you feel swamped with the many demands that modern, twentieth century living puts upon us women, and have just fallen out of the way of extending informal invitations to friends to share your meal, whatever it may be, on a few minutes' notice.

If this is what has happened to you, why not get back into the habit of easy hospitality right away and start tonight by asking some one to drop in and take "pot luck?"

Serve the regular, simple meal you were planning, only make it a bit more interesting and appetizing by the addition of one of the many quick

Orange bread is unusual, economical and quickly and easily made. The recipe calls for 2 cups self-rising flour, which is ready-prepared flour. This explains the reason for the ease and quickness of preparation.

loaf breads that can be made with self-rising flour, the newest innovation in home baking.

Orange bread, for example, is delicious and has the merits of being economical, quick and simple. If you will follow this recipe exactly, you will have a splendid addition to the evening meal that will give it all the flourish of a specially prepared "company" dinner.

Orange Bread.

3 tbsp fat 1/2 cup candied
1/2 cup sugar. 1/2 orange peel or 2 cups self-rising 1/2 grated rind flour of 1 orange
1 cup milk 1/2 cup nut meats,
1 egg small pieces

Mix together the fat, sugar and flour; add the milk and egg. Beat until well blended; add the orange peel and nuts. Pour the mixture into a greased bread pan and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for an hour.

Sounds easy, doesn't it? It is! And remember, self-rising flour needs only one sifting and no baking powder and salt are needed, as they are already blended by the miller in the correct proportions.

MRS. GRAVES TO DELIVER ADDRESS OVER WAPI

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Bibb Graves will deliver an address on "Alabama" over Station WAPI in Birmingham on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 18, at 5:20 under the auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution, it was announced by Mrs. Fred Allison of Auburn, chairman of the State radio committee. Mrs. Graves' address will be one of five monthly features which will round out a series of eight presentations being broadcast during 1930-31 by the D. A. R.

The features are to be given on the third Thursday afternoon in each month through April, 1931.

Mrs. Bibb Graves will speak on "Alabama," December 18.

BABY GOLF'S INVENTOR

A single bright idea, which his friends laughed at when he first began to work it out, has brought half a million dollars in clear profits to Garnet Carter of Chattanooga, inventor of Tom Thumb golf. Asked how he did it, Carter said:

"I'll be hecked if I know. I just stumbled into it and the money started pouring in almost before I knew what had happened, and it just kept coming."

The first miniature course was built for the entertainment of guests at a hotel on Lookout Mountain, conducted by Carter. From there the idea spread and the originator was soon manufacturing equipment for courses all over the country.

But he is out of the business now. After clearing $300,000 in about two years, he sold his trade mark, "Tom Thumb," his patents and factory for another $200,000 cash to W. H. Robinson, a Philadelphia manufacturer. Carter might have made a much larger fortune if he had pushed the enterprise more, but he said he "didn't want to be burdened too much."

Anyway, this Tennesseean is a living refutation of the theory of the late William James, the psychologist, who declared that a person never gets a new idea after the age of 25. Carter was 45 when he hit on baby golf as a short cut to wealth.

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which quickly neutralizes acids. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali neutralizes instantly many times as much harmful acid, and then the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, the kind physicians have prescribed for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE COMPANY
NOW RUNNING IN HIGH GEAR

The board of directors of the Peoples Telephone Company are pleased to announce that the company will operate during the coming year, notwithstanding they had to draw on their imagination quite a bit to see the way through. This was decided at a meeting of the board Monday afternoon.

The services of A. L. Giles have been retained for the coming year, and a rigid contract will be drawn up between the operator and the Board of Directors, the latter part of this week. So the phone holders who pay their fees will be assured of the best service possible under the present condition of the system.

As we have said before, if you want telephone service the coming year you have only two things to do and they are these: Put your box and line in shape to the corporate limits of Clanton and pay your fee of only $2.50. When you do this and demand service from the Board of Directors, you will get it in accordance with the provisions printed at the bottom of your receipt.

There are a number of people over the county who are profoundly interested in the Peoples Telephone, and they are justly so, for it is a great thing for the people out in the rural districts. The Board of Directors are greatly indebted to all those good people who have so generously lent their help. The spirit in general seems to be better than usual this year.

Now, let everybody talk payment of telephone dues the next few days, and urge all phoneholders to pay up. But do not expect to get service with your line down and buried up in sand. Fix up your line with a good sized wire to the corporate limits, get new batteries, and let's build back one of the greatest assets to rural Chilton County.

How To Keep The Home and Family
Free From Disease
By Mary Heard

The most important thing in keeping the home and family free from disease is cleanliness. Warmth, moisture, and darkness are essentials for the development of germs. We should remember this and have plenty of fresh air and light in our homes at all times. All of our curtains, rugs, etc. should be kept perfectly clean. Bed clean. Bed linen and clothes of the different members of the family should be kept spotless.

The four ways that disease germs enter the body are: Through the nose, wounds, insect bites, and by food that is eaten. The first three ways can be prevented by a disinfectant. The fourth can be prevented by using fresh food. And if the cook is very careful in the preparation and serving of the food as well as in washing the dishes. To build up a high resistance to disease a person should eat proper food, play hard, work hard, get plenty of sleep regularly, and avoid excesses in anything. In order to keep home and family free from disease we must do our part to keep the community we live in free from disease. We should do all in our power to get an efficient Board of Health, pure water, clean streets, and stores, proper sewerage, etc., all are factors for a better community.

Class Football Game
By John Ezell

Last Wednesday evening the most interesting football game of the season was played. The Senior II Tigers and the Senior I Bears, under the very efficient coaching of Paul Cox and "Dooney" Wagoner, put up a battle royal. Both teams were in fine shape for the game, as both had been practicing for several days and were confident of victory. The battle in the end was a one-sided affair of 6 to 0 in favor of the Paul's Tigers. The main purpose of this game was to get a line on the future football stars. You can bet C. E. M. S. will have its share of victory in the years to come.

Football Banquet Last Friday Night At Baptist Church
By Jane Roberts

A most enjoyable occasion was enjoyed by those who attended the football banquet last Friday night at the Baptist Church, was beautifully and souvenirs were also very attractive. After a delightful dinner course the captain and alternate captain was elected for another year. Robert Sumner was elected captain, and Herman Harris, alternate. Each one stood and accepted their offices pledging themselves to wholeheartedly do his best to make next year's team a success in every way. Appropriate speeches were made by invited guests from the town. We wish to extend our heartiest thanks to the good ladies of the Baptist church who served the meal in such a splendid and appetizing manner.

Home Economics Girls Display Original

At The Assembly Period
By Dorothy McKinnon

KE, age now is the time for all good. The pupils of the home economics department marched on the stage Friday morning to show the school the difference between the modern and the old fashioned cooking dress uniform. The modern smock has many advantages over the plain white apron of the past. The long sleeves protect the dress sleeves which cover the entire dress. The apron only protects the front of the dress. The head band is a new addition to the costume, which keeps the hair in place. The two holders also protect the hands. The modern smocks are made in pastel shades, which are more characteristic. There are three classes of the home economics department. Each class selected a different color, being green, pink and yellow.

CARD OF APPRECIATION

Editor of the News:
Please allow me space in your paper to express our deep gratitude to the people of Concord for the surprise party they gave us Monday night, November 24. There was almost every good thing brought in the way of edibles. Canned fruit, vegetables, pork, flour, sugar, etc. Also they brought five or six hundred pounds of cow feed. Being a preach, of course I can not forget to mention the chickens they included. In all there was about $35.00 in value. It would have been ungrateful in us to enjoy it all alone. So we carried a widow and her four children some of the edibles.

Again we wish to thank you.

First Coal Was Mined In State A Century Ago

Key Industry Which Celebrates Its One Hundredth Anniversary - Has Spread Mighty Payroll Throughout State.

Alabama's coal industry celebrates this month, its one hundredth anniversary.

In 1830—a full century ago—when Chickasaws, Choctaws, Cherokeees and Creeks still roamed through Alabama's then virgin wilderness—eleven years before the State's admission to the Union—Alabama's first coal was mined commercially, near what is now Tuscaloosa and was floated down the Warrior River on a flat boat to Mobile. It is probable that the passage of this boat aroused but scant interest among Alabama's pioneer settlers. Little could they have realized as they stooped upon the banks of the Warrior and watched the cargo drift by, that they were witnessing a significant event in Alabama history—the birth of an industry which was destined to play, perhaps, the most vital role of any single industry, in Alabama's economic progress during the ensuing century. Yet time has proved that this was to be true.

Coal Shapes State Progress

Commemorating the centennial of Alabama's coal industry, leaders have released many interesting data which throws a new light upon the part which coal has played in shaping Alabama's destiny. Early chronicles of coal producing companies now operating in the State have qualities of a peculiar historic interest—roots which reach deep, almost as their mines, into the bed rock and sub-strata of Alabama history and legend. Early annals of producing companies reveal, for instance, that Alabama coal has had a close relationship with the United States Army, and Navy, the Confederate States Army and Navy, the United States Senate and House of Representatives, the development of Alabama's railroad system, the growth of many Alabama cities, the building of scores of varied industries and businesses, which have in turn contributed their share to Alabama's steady forward march throughout a century of amazing progress.

564,000,000 Tons Mined

Records show that since the first coal was floated down the Warrior in 1830, 564,000,000 tons have been mined in the State. From 1830 until 1870 the tonnage has been estimated, as no official records are available for these first forty years. The first available statistics reveal that in 1870, 13,200 tons were produced; in 1880, 38,000 tons; in 1890, 4,090,409 tons; in 1900, 8,273,262 tons; in 1910, 16,139,228 tons; in 1920, 17,391,437 tons and in 1926 the maximum production of 21,508,812 tons. Last year the tonnage dropped, because of competition from outside fuels, to 18,415,914 tons.

Removal of this treasure, which Nature stored in Alabama's hills a million years or more ago, has furnished steady jobs to many thousand Alabama workers. It is estimated that to mine the coal which Alabama has produced the last century has required about 188,000 man days work.

$750,000,000 in Wages

Wages paid to workers in the coal industry during the past century are estimated to have aggregated well over three quarters of a billion dollars. In peak years, Alabama coal mines have provided around seven million man days work a year for thirty thousand employees, and an annual payroll of about $40,000,000. This huge payroll has percolated throughout the State, penetrating every section. Investigation shows that it is spent by wage earners and salaried employees of the industry for merchandise, food products, transportation, amusements and insurance or is invested in securities and saving banks. Seventy cents out of every dollar received by the producer goes to labor. A goodly part of this is spent for farm produce, as shown by the fact that coal mining companies in the Birmingham district alone, buy annually in good years around five million dollars worth of products raised on Alabama farms, orchards and truck gardens.

Supplies Huge Freight Revenue

Closely paralleling the development of Alabama's coal industry has been that of Alabama railroads. Officials of the leading roads have stated that the present splendid railroad system, which networks the State, could not have been built except for the coal tonnage, which normally provides about 25 per cent of the total freight revenue of all the lines in the State. This does not include freight revenue from hauling mine supplies and machinery nor revenue from the handling of coal by-products. To haul the 564,000,000 tons of coal mined in Alabama during the past century, has required use of some 11,280,000 fifty-ton freight cars, and furnished regular employment to many thousand trainmen, engineers and other railroad operatives who, in their turn, have spent their wages in the State.

Parent of Many Industries

Out of Alabama's coal industry many other industries have been born—industries which feed on coal and industries which use the many valuable derivatives of coal. Alabama's great steel industry, pipe industry, pig iron industry, by-product industry, chemical industry—to name a few of many hundred—could not have sprung into existence except for the availability of Alabama's huge coal deposits which are estimated to approximate eighty-seven and a half billion tons, enough to last for 2,500 years or longer. Without coal mining, it is easily conceivable that Alabama in the year 1930, would have shown but little industrial development over 1830. For, without coal min-

J. M. Smith Honored By The County Board

J. M. Smith, a prominent citizen of Thorsby, Alabama, and who has served on the County Board of Education of Chilton County since the year of 1925, has been honored by the present board, on his withdrawal from the board, having been succeeded by W. L. Sanders, as the result of the recent election.

Mr. Smith did not run for reelection, and was said to have been the oldest member of the board. He is also president of the Thorsby Fruit Growers Association, an active association of Thorsby, Alabama. Following is the resolution of the board concerning Mr. Smith:

A motion was made by Mr. Dennis and seconded by Mr. Webb that the following resolution be spread on the minutes of the Chilton County Board of Education and that a copy of same be furnished the press:

"Whereas, in the past election Mr. J. M. Smith did not offer for reelection as a member of the County Board of Education and

"Whereas, he was the oldest member of the Board and

"Whereas, he was faithful in the discharge of his duties as a member of the Board of Education in matters pertaining to the interest of the schools of the county, and

"Whereas, he was conservative and considerate of the needs of the children of the county, and

"Whereas, we will miss the benefit of his experience both as a member of the Board who has served a number of years and as a business man:

"Be It Resolved by this Board that we express our regret in the fact that he did not see fit to offer for reelection and that we express to him our appreciation for his services as a member of the School Board and pledge our support to him in every way possible as a citizen of the county and one who is interested in the schools of the county although he did not see fit to serve longer on this Board."

The above-resolution was passed unanimously.

—C. C. Conway, Pres., S. J. M. Webb, vice-pres., S. M. Yates, Jr., J. N. Dennis, B. Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education.

A FRIEND OF SCHOOLS

Fifty-eight years of service in behalf of the public schools without a dollar of pay is the record of David B. Oliver, Pittsburgh's grand old man known widely as the "Father of Education." He celebrated his 96th birthday recently.

Mr. Oliver was a member of the commission that drew up the state's school laws and was for a long time president of the Pittsburgh board of education, from which office he retired eight years ago. He is still serving as an ex-officio member of all the board's standing committees and takes a lively interest in all school matters.

It is doubtful that Mr. Oliver's long record of unselfish efforts in behalf of education has ever been equalled.

ing, Alabama ores could never have been economically turned into merchantable products. Without coal mining Alabama's present railroad system would not have been built. Without coal mining Alabama would not rank today, fourth in the production of by-products derived from converting coal into coke, and without coal mining there would be no nearby markets for the products of the forests and the farms of the State.

These are a few of the reasons why Alabama places such a high value on her coal mining industry and will join this month in celebration of its one hundredth birthday.

Better Outlook For Farm Products Seen

Improvement in the demand for southern farm products next year as compared with the present situation is expected by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The forecast is for improvement in both domestic and foreign demands. It applies especially to the textile industry because the present low level of prices of raw material is expected to stimulate buying.

The forecast is a product not alone of the Washington bureau but of agricultural economists of eleven southern states, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute being represented by J. D. Pope.

The statement explains that the remarkable drop in the price of cotton along with other products was due largely to the world-wide business depression which reduced the demand for cotton.

World consumption of American cotton was two million bales less in 1929-30 than in 1928-29. The small consumption of cotton in 1929-30 as compared with recent years left a world carryover of American cotton on August 1, 1930, about 1,800,000 bales greater than on August 1, 1929.

The current crop added to this carryover gives a world supply of American cotton for the 1930-31 season of about 20,700,000 bales, which is 1,400,000 bales greater than for 1930, and 300,000 bales greater than the annual average supply for the five-year period of 1925 to 1929.

Attention is called to the fact that cotton acreage in the United States increased rapidly following the World War and has remained at high levels during the last five years. Records show that farmers usually reduce the cotton acreage and spend less for fertilizers when prices are low.

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria have him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

CHINESE MEDICINE

In a recent magazine article James W. Bennett, former American vice-consul in China, tells of some wonderful "medicines" concocted and dispensed by native Chinese.

He tells of a prosperous pharmacy in Hangchow which keeps a herd of deer, whose carcasses are converted into all-healing pills as needed. Powdered and moulded into pellets, various parts of the deer are prescribed for various diseases.

Fevers are treated by pills made from the hoof; those made from the antlers are said to give strength to the weak; those compounded from parts of the entire animal, including the hide, are guaranteed to cure any ailment under the sun.

Deer are not the only contributors to Chinese curative agencies. A gout remedy is prepared from bear paws; a preventive of leprosy is derived from the baked brains of a human infant; desiccated lizards, snakes and centipedes, mixed with honey, were highly recommended for internal disorders; the powdered heart of a tiger was said to give great courage to those who took it.

Most efficacious of all in this respect, however, were pills made from the Brief News Notes

Lady Peacock, the Rhode Island red hen which made a new world record by producing 345 eggs in 365 days in an official contest conducted at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, was the "honor guest" at a banquet when prominent educators and agricultural leaders of the State paid tribute to her and also to her breeder, Dr. H. B. Praceck of Opelika.

In connection with the present business situation the two main lines of development consist of holding up wage levels as widely as possible and of providing some new means of financing purchasing power during business crises. "Commerce and Finance" says that both are making more progress than is commonly recognized in circumstances so close to the emergency.

Phosphorous, the chemical element needed by American agricultural soils—occurs in large deposits of phosphate rock in Florida, Tennessee, South Carolina, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, and Arkansas. In other countries large deposits are found in Africa, Algeria, Tunis, Egypt, and Morocco, and considerable amounts are in various places on the shores of the Pacific and Indian oceans.

The 1930 corn crop is the smallest since 1901, according to an official report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is 520 million bushels smaller than the 1929 crop and only 88 per cent of the 1924-28 average. While crops of oats and barley are somewhat larger than last year, the supply of the three principal coarse grains is only about 89 million tons as compared with the moderate supply of 100 million tons last year.

Clean Up The Corn Borer

A clean-up campaign against the corn borer should include cleanly plowing under corn stubble and the ground where corn has been harvested from standing stalks. Harvest first the cornland that is to be planted to spring grains and pasture it while harvesting the rest of the crop. This is especially important on soils that can not be plowed in the spring and worked down to a good seed-bed in time to seed small grain. During the first of the year, break off the standing stalks with a "T" rail or pole when the ground is frozen and free from snow. Raking and burning the dry, frozen stalks in the winter will reduce the amount of clean-up work to be done later. Destroy cobs and trash, especially corn stalks, around the barns and feed lots.

FIRST GRADED NUTS SHIPPED BY CO-OP

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 10—The first carloads of machine graded pecans ever loaded in Alabama were shipped from here to Memphis last week by the Central Alabama Pecan Growers Association.

The cars held 100,000 pounds and went to the National Pecan Marketing Association. O. J. Wenzel of Jackson, Miss., manager of plant operation for the national association, supervised the loading. Other carloads will follow.

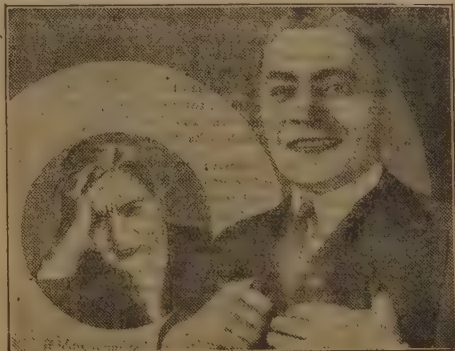

The central Alabama association has received a large tonnage of nuts. It is a local of the national association and is assembling nuts to be marketed for growers. The nuts are graded here under the supervision of J. B. Sylvest, marketing specialist for the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

The Alabama organization has received to date more than 140,000 lbs. of pecans for marketing, and others are being pooled at the rate of from 5,000 to 10,000 pounds per day. More than 350 growers have nuts in the pool.

Liberal advances are being made by the association to its members.

A Message To Merchants

In a baseball game in which one's favorite club reaches a critical point, the most important thing to the club at that time is morale.

It is more important than anything else. With a high morale an inferior club from the standpoint of players, can often walk off with the victory.

Morale is the invisible, intangible inside something that bobs up at the critical, crucial moment and gives the individual or the team the extra punch, the extra pound, the extra stamina, the extra courage to go ahead and win.

Morale has won many battles for the individual, it has won many battles for the club or team and it has many times been the determining factor that decided the issue on the battlefields of history.

Just now while the nation, the state and the community are experiencing a business depression, while what is known as hard times persist and fear for tomorrow and tomorrow's tomorrow fills the hearts of many, nothing is more to be desired than morale. It will shorten the period of depression and dispel much of the feeling of hard times.

The responsibility for preserving and maintaining and building up buying morale rests largely with the merchants and advertisers. If merchants cease to advertise and the paper of the community comes out week after week, its pages devoid of advertising, the fact will be noticed by the readers and patrons of the merchants here and the effect will be that instinctively, unconsciously morale will slip a little, and a little tighter grip be taken on purse strings, because of the lack of faith in the future, the fear that something will happen tomorrow.

Good advertising by merchants of a community is always worth while—always a wise expenditure, but in a time of depression it is worth more considered from the standpoint of a stabilizer, as a builder of faith than it is worth as a trade builder in times of plenty.

In dull times business and trade are especially needed and merchants are wise in putting forth a special effort to the end that buyers shall cease to fear and shall the sooner have their faith in the soundness of business restored to the end that normal buying will be resumed.

"Hard Times"

Writing in a humorous and somewhat sarcastic vein, the Texas Editor draws a very true picture of the "hard times" the country is experiencing. The paper containing the "hard times" editorial is the Cotulla Record, and here it is:

"We are having hard times in Texas: the streets are full of automobiles, going, as Will Rogers says, nowhere in particular, but in a great hurry to get there; times are so hard that it is difficult to find parking places for our automobiles; we have only about one for every three of us in the state; if times were not hard we would no doubt all have an automobile.

"We are right up against it: we saw a girl last week so hard up she did not have silk stockings, and rather than wear rayon she wore none at all; of the thousands of girls in Texas, it is almost unbelievable that one should have to do without silk stockings, but that is not all—the consumption of cigarettes increased only about 5,000,000 packages in the State last year, whereas everybody knows it should have increased by twice that amount.

"Times are sure hard—we were able to obtain a seat at the movie after waiting only 20 minutes, when by right we should have had to wait at least an hour; the drug store got along by installing only two extra fountains this summer, which shows how bad things really are, but an extra showcase for lipsticks, two extra racks for magazines, and a lunch counter cut into the drugist's earnings and made him realize how hard times are.

"And to make things worse, every vacant lot in America has a miniature golf course on it and it looks like times are getting so hard that they're going to have to start tearing down perfectly good buildings to make room for more pee-wee golf courses. And if a fellow wants to play on one of the pesky things he has to wait nearly an hour before he can get to start, and then gets run over, knocked down and hit by golf balls before he finishes. Everyone of the miniature courses is crowded day and night. Yes, times are hard.

"When will times be better? It's almost impossible to find a parking place near a movie theater, miniature golf course or other place of amusement—a terrible condition. Something really ought to be done to require the hot dog stands to carry on hand a sufficient supply of food to feed the crowds, and this way of building stadiums and other places of amusement only half large enough to seat those attending ought to be handled vigorously.

"Yes, times are hard; the grocer can hardly sell flour, grits or bacon; it takes all of his time to sell canned peaches, canned salmon, canned soup, canned meats and canned apple sauce; the dry goods merchant is crying because his bolts of gingham, muslin and denim remain on his shelves, while the clerks waste all their time selling such things as silk and rayon; the hardware store has no demand for plows, wire fencing and nails, but he can not supply the demand for radios, electric percolators, vacuum cleaners, et cetera. Yes, the times are hard."

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"Give Yourself a Pat on the Back" sounds like good advice these days, but let me tell you one thing, giving yourself a pat on the back is not anything compared to a hard friendly slap on the back from one of your superiors. That is what makes a fellow feel good.

I have been requested to extend greetings this week to "The Man on The Corner," the able and widely read columnist in The Union-Banner, and on my own hook I'm assuring him of my cooperation whenever possible, and you can lay to that, Mr. Man On The Corner, because I believe that he is a square-shooter, and I like folks who play square the game of life.

And in my opinion, if a person ever did play the game square, now is the time when such as that should come in and do a great deal toward aiding conditions to get better. Folks, the time has arrived, so to speak, when we had better start to playing square with our fellow-men, because some of these days there's going to be a show down and it's the fellow who has played the game for the right who is going to show up well at the end. It is true that conditions are not as they should be, but instead of creating more friction, now is the time to create harmony and get somewhere.

Mr. Robert Popwell missed one of his porch rocking chairs after Halloween night, and after trying to locate it by various means, decided to give the News a trial. He put a twenty-five cent ad in the News last week and as the result of that small ad, he found his chair. Yes, sir, you can't go wrong when you use the columns of the News to tell the folks what you have to sell, or what you have lost, wish to sell, or most anything else, because the people read the News.

When you are looking over your list of folks to give Christmas presents to, just send that friend of yours a subscription to the Chilton County News for one year. That would be a gift that would remind them of you every week in the year, and each time be something new to them. It is like a letter from home. If you don't get the News and would like to, and would also like to send it to a friend, then I think the editor has a very attractive offer to make in a case like that. Anyway a subscription to the home town paper would make an excellent gift for anyone, and comes fifty-two weeks in the year, at a cost of only $1.50.

Got a splendid report of the banquet given the local football teams Friday night. They tell me that it went off in a big way, and was a success from start to finish. John P. Lawrence did a great job as toastmaster at the banquet they tell me, and pulchritude prevailed throughout the attendance made up of the fairer sex. Mayor J. Lee Smith lent his distinguished presence at this affair as did other citizens of the town who were invited as special guests.

This Jack Monroe, the handsome young manager of the local office of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company has been found to be a very accommodating fellow, and after giving him some tests, unknown to him, I've found he attends to his duties as he should, and is ever on the lookout for the company he works for, and I believe he knows his business too. But his daddy was a big telephone man before him and Jack kind of is following in his daddy's footsteps, and they tell me his dad was a cracker-jack telephone man too.

Here's a piece I found the other day and I think it is pretty good, so am passing it on to you:

A FRIENDLY SMILE

By Elmer Burnett, Haleyville, Ala.

Once I knew a jolly fellow
Who was always glad and gay,
He would always greet you smiling,
That was his peculiar way.

Everybody loved to meet him,
And they soon forgot their grief;
For the sunshine of his smiling
Never failed to bring relief.

Many times I've thought and wondered Why that chap seemed always glad,
While all other people worried,
And their troubles made them sad.

Now at last I've solved the mystery
Why he always seemed so gay;
Why he smiled while he was working
Just as if he was at play.

It was just a force of habit,
But don't you think it quite worth while?
Then let's all adopt his habit
Just to wear a friendly smile.

And here I'm going to hand out one of my infamous tips. Folks read that poem again, and think it over. There's lots of good in those lines.

Our new Methodist preacher was making his rounds soon after he arrived in town, and I always like to study a person when I first meet him. Well, I had an occasion to study him, the Dr. D. W. Haskew, and his most attractive wife, not long ago, and I've decided I'm going to like them both to a great extent. In fact, I'm going over to hear him preach as often as possible.

Just got another report of WHY it pays to advertise in the C. G. N. A fellow advertised a truck for sale, and began getting replies to the ad right away. The ad only cost him thirty cents, because it was one of our want ads. He came in and told the editor that the ad got results. Well, I think the editor expected it would anyway.

There is something I want to call you folks' attention to. Perhaps you have already noticed it and I'm sure you have. It is that flour that the widely known Cadick Milling Company is putting out in this part of the country, and I heard the editor remark the other day that he wished everyone of his subscribers would buy a sack of that flour right away. There is an ad that runs in the News telling about the advantage of using that flour.

PLANS FOR COUNTY PLAY DAY IN CHILTON COUNTY

The committee at work on plans for Play Day, or Field Day, had the first meeting during the latter part of November.

The object of this Play Day is to increase the school spirit, not in so much competition as in the real play spirit. The plans are to have the games, etc. for all elementary children in the morning and the contests, such as three-legged race, 100 yard dash, standing high jump, etc. for boys; and 50 yard dash, relay races, basket ball throw for distance, etc. for girls, in the afternoon.

Two important features of the day will be (1) the parade from the high school through town. In this parade the plan is for all pupils and teachers in each school to march behind their various banners. (2) There will be a Spelling Bee in the auditorium during the morning. The best speller in each school will have opportunity to spell in this contest. The pupil who is champion speller of the county, then, will go to Jacksonville or to Birmingham to take part in a State Spelling Contest.

The schools desiring to enter an exhibit of the regular school work will be provided with lists of desirable entries. It is not to be understood that these exhibits are to bring extra work, but they are to be samples of the best work done in school duties during the year.

More detailed information will be published as the plans are developed by the committee of teachers and other school officials.

MRS. J. J. PICKENS, CHILDREN OF DENVER ARRIVED HERE SUNDAY

Mrs. J. J. Pickens and two children, Rose Mary and Mike, of Denver, Colo., arrived in Clanton last Sunday to spend some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Downs, who live just south of Clanton.

Mrs. Pickens was at one time a resident of Clanton and her present visit here will be of wide interest to the people of this section.

Mrs. Hughes Kennedy of Birmingham, spent the past week with her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Pipes.

MARK JETER ARRESTED AT B'HAM FOR PART IN PLAN TO SLAY A WOMAN

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 8—Mark Jeter, member of the retiring Alabama Legislature and a widely known figure in Jefferson County politics, was arrested tonight on a charge of conspiracy to commit a felony, placed against him after Chief of Police Fred M. McDuff, announced that he had admitted participating in a plot to kill a woman.

Chief McDuff also announced the arrest of E. S. (Jack) Crenshaw on a similar charge. The wife of Crenshaw was named by Chief McDuff as the intended victim.

Chief McDuff said Jeter admitted discussing the plot with Crenshaw, but said that Jeter claimed he did it only as a joke and that he continued in the discussion to protect the life of Mrs. Crenshaw.

The two men were arrested late tonight following a conference of city and county officials at which Chief McDuff said statements were made by both Jeter and Crenshaw.

Chief McDuff said collection of a $12,500 bank account held jointly by Crenshaw and his wife was given as the motive for the plot.

The police chief said a convict guard employed in the county was approached by the two men and asked to take the "job" of killing Mrs. Crenshaw.

Chief McDuff said the guard was offered $4,000.

BAPTIST CIRCLES ENDING YEAR'S ACTIVITIES HERE

All the Circles of the Clanton Baptist church are now closing up their business for the past year and will elect new officers for the coming year at their next meeting, where all circles will be present.

The last meeting of the individual circles for this year to be held at the various homes, will be held next Monday, December 15th.

The last meeting of all the Circles is scheduled to be held on Monday, December 29th, at the Baptist church and all members are being urged to be present at this meeting, at which time new officers will be chosen, and plans for next year's work will be discussed and outlined.

JIMMY LECROY IS NOW WITH CLANTON MOTORS SALES DEPT.

Jimmy Lecroy, who can count his friends in Chilton County by the score, is now with the Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers, and is connected with the Sales and Service Department of that concern.

Jimmy has formerly been connected with the Hutto Engineering Company, of Detroit, Michigan, and while with this concern, he traveled over approximately thirty states. He later became connected with the L. E. Spencer Company of Nashville, Tenn., dealers in automobile equipment, and it was while with this concern that he was able to visit his home town and county, Clanton and Chilton, and decided that, after all, this is a fine place to live.

He is the son of T. L. Lecroy, who is one of the progressive farmers residing in the Mulberry Community west of Clanton. Jimmy states he would like for his friends to look him up at his new place.

BIG HIT COMEDY AT THE ERLANGER THEATRE, B'HAM

"Strictly Dishonorable," Brock Pemberton's production of Preston Sturges' enormously diverting comedy, that has proven to be one of the most conspicuously successful hits of recent years in the theatre, is to be given by a selected New York company at the Erlanger Theatre for one week starting Monday night, December 15th.

This production, personally staged by Mr. Pemberton and Antoinette Perry, who gave the original its adroit direction, contains a cast of high merit for its widely varying characters. Hailed as a masterpiece of deft playwrighting, with a wealth of alert and intelligent humor, intriguing romance, and maintaining a sprightly buoyancy in its never-lagging merriment, the comedy has taken its place as a worthy and lasting contribution to the theatre.

The crisp dialogue of "Strictly Dishonorable," bubbles with shrewd and witty observations and glows with whimsical pleasantries among the humorous goings-on in a congenial, cozy speakeasy. The story chronicles the philanderings of a bachelor opera singer and an innocent, but love-curious, maid from the provincial Yokum, Mississippi. At this atmospheric, drinking meek there assembles also the arrogant, outspoken fiancée of the girl, a philosophical judge, who enjoys alcoholic beverages during ex-officio periods, a waggish policeman and Tomaso, the ebullient proprietor of the speakeasy.

Just as the Yokum miss, abandoned by her unbearably opinionated escort is preparing herself to be a martyr of love, music and experience, under the Neapolitan fascination of the opera singer in his apartment above the author extricates with ease and plausibility, his ingratiating characters—and Polk Bros. Motor Co.

Now Offering 12c For Cotton On Used Cars

According to Geo. C. Polk, sales manager for Polk Bros. Motor Co. due to the exceptionally large stock of good used cars that they now have in stock, which they are very anxious to dispose of before annual inventory time, and due to their confidence in higher prices for cotton next spring when the trade sees that we will have an acreage reduction, which they think is inevitable, they are offering to allow 12c basis middling 7-8 staple for cotton taken in on used cars.

This we think is the most liberal offer we have ever had of, and as explained in their advertisement found elsewhere in this paper, it will be wise to take advantage of this offer immediately, for at the present time the cotton market is in a very weak condition, and should the price continue to decline, naturally they will have to withdraw their offer, and take cotton in at a cheaper basis.

12c we believe is as much as the most optimistic of us believe this season's crop will sell for even next spring, so if you are in the market for a good used car it would seem good business judgment to take advantage of this very liberal offer of Polk Brothers, and let them assume the risk of holding cotton, warehousing, insurance, etc., while you enjoy the pleasure of driving their better used cars.

Banquet Given For Football Team

The two flashy football teams of the Chilton County High School were delightfully entertained and highly honored on last Friday night at a banquet given for them at the local Baptist church.

There were something like sixty guests included in this affair. Each member of the team had as his guest a young lady. The school colors were most effectively carried out in the decorations, place cards, etc., and a miniature football field occupied the center of the table in front of the toastmaster, John Ponder Lawrence, who not once allowed the fun and program to become slow in moving off. Souvenirs were given to all the guests. The delicious dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the Clanton Baptist church, and a vote of thanks given them for their efforts in aiding to make the banquet a success.

Each player was given much praise and credit in speeches by other players, and much credit was given to Coach Walker and assistant coach Varnell, and Prof. L. C. Warr, principal of the high school. This brilliant affair closed the football season at the local high school for this year.

Those outstanding players who are to receive letters and who received special mention at the banquet by Coach Walker were: Captain Paul Cox, assistant captain Edwin Wagoner, Harvey Melton, Frank McMurray, Robert Sumner, Jesse Frank Foshee, Raymond Taylor, M. D. Foshee, Warren Riggs, Lester Duke, Theodore Littlejohn, Herman Harris, Gerald Burdette, Otis Miller and John Ponder Lawrence, manager of the team.

Miss Nell Wells, a member of the faculty, played several selections on the piano, as did Miss Jane Roberts. Among the invited guests of the team were Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Haskew, B. Lawrence, W. M. Wyatt, Billy Smith, Dr. S. J. Ezell.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Expenditure of State appropriations for the National Guard were $73,130.80 under the total amount authorized, as shown by the Quadrennial Report of General F. E. Butler, the Adjutant General, for the four years ending September 30th, 1930.

The report, now ready for submission to Governor Bibb Graves, covers all of the operations and expenditures of the Military Department of the State and shows marked progress in all branches of this service, notwithstanding the economies practiced in handling State appropriations for this purpose.

The report states that "Economy in State expenditures has been obtained by utilizing the Federal funds allotted to this State to the fullest extent. It is the policy of this Department to practice economy and to safeguard the interests of the tax payers at all times."

The actual strength of the National Guard cannot exceed that authorized by the War Department, Militia Bureau. The report of General Butler shows that the actual strength of the organization as of October 1st, 1930, was 220 officers, 2 warrant officers and 2,491 enlisted men, and that the full authorized strength has been maintained throughout the four years.

"If the State of Alabama were allotted additional personnel, it would be an easy matter to recruit same. Several towns and cities of the State are anxious to secure a National Guard unit," the report states.

Distribution of the sixty or more authorized units is shown to be equitable, so that no part of the State is far removed from a National Guard organization. This distribution is shown:

—1—

"In the extreme northern part of the State, at Huntsville, Athens and Hartsville, there is located the 127th Engineer Battalion. In the northern and central sections of the State, at Montgomery, Opelika, Gadsden, Talladega, Tuscaloosa, Greensboro, Selma, Gunterville, Albertville, Jacksonville, Ensley and Birmingham there is located the 167th Infantry Regiment. Headquarters Troop 23rd Cavalry Division is located at Birmingham.

In southern part of Alabama, at Florida, Enterprise, Dothan, Andalusia, Greenville, Evergreen, Luverne, Geneva and Troy there is located the 117th Field Artillery Regiment. The 31st Infantry units and Special Troops are located at Mobile and Ozark. The Air Corps units are located at Birmingham. The 121st Motor Transport Company is located at Fort Deposit. The 106th Motorcycle Company at Foley. The 106th Ordnance Maintenance Company is located at Mobile. The 106th Ammunition Train is located at Elba. The 111th Motor Repair Section is located at Montgomery."

Expenditure of Federal funds for the maintenance and equipment of this extensive organization within the State of Alabama runs into the millions of dollars.

The Adjutant General's report shows that the value of the Federal property on hand with the various National Guard organizations and in the State arsenal at Montgomery is approximately three million dollars. The safe-keeping and the preservation of this property are entrusted to the Commanding Officers of the various units. The major items are clothing and equipment, airplanes, motor transport equipment, trucks, guns, horses and other miscellaneous supplies.

The system of inspection and accounting in force, and applied alike to State and Federal property and funds, is thorough and efficient. The present system of property accounting was inaugurated May 1st, 1927.

In comparison to the old method the necessary paper work has been doubled. One master accountant is maintained for all Federal property shipped into the State for which the U. S. Property & Disbursing Officer is accountable. A separate account is maintained for each organization.

The Finance Department of the regular Army conducts a thorough audit of these finance and property accounts annually and it is shown in the report on each audit made during the past four years no inaccuracies or imperfections were noted.

Prior to 1927 there were no regular and scheduled annual inventories of Federal property on hand. In that year assistants from the Adjutant General's office were detailed to the various organizations for the purpose of inventorying the property and by the annual inventories since that time property shortages have been practically eliminated, and the amount of unseizable property on hand greatly reduced.

A comparison of the Federal expenditures for the past four years with those for the previous four year period reveals that $868,267.20 was expended during the present administration as against $659,579.78 during the former four year period, a difference of $208,687.42, and this does not include the $25,074 disbursed from the Atlanta office for expenses of Sergeant-Instructors in Alabama. This averages a total increase of $58,410.43 annually, and the report shows that many expenditures formerly made from State funds have been executed from Federal funds during the past four years.

Successful efforts have been made during the present administration to buy such supplies as forage, animal supplies and many other items within the State of Alabama. The purchasing department of the National Guard of Alabama has had an important influence in the decentralization of such purchases.

—3—

The work of the National Guard during the flood of March, 1929, and in other emergencies is reviewed by the report, which concludes with recommendations that the present State Military laws be rewritten for the purpose of clarity and brevity and to obviate certain present duplications also that the annual State appropriation be increased from $94,000.00 to $100,000.00 to care for the present and prospective increased Federal allotments to the Military Department of the State of Alabama.

Read the Spice Box Label

Read the label on the spice box, says W. R. M. Wharton of the Federal Food and Drug Administration. Spices are put up in a large variety of sizes of packages than any other food product. Some manufacturers put out a large-size package purposely to fool you, and such packages are often slack filled. If you judge by the size of the package when you buy spices, you may think you are getting more than it actually contains. But the pure food law requires a quantity-of-contents statement on spice packages, as well as on the containers of many other foods. If you want good value for your money, read the label.

Take the dream of great Vertical Cities—giant metropolitan buildings housing whole populations. Recently a group of collegians studying mechanical engineering were taken on a tour of structural wonders in New York City. One point of call was Manhattan's largest hostelry—the 43-story New Yorker Hotel—where nearly 70,000 persons were accommodated every month. What they saw included: An electrical plant capable of lighting a city of 30,000 people; pumps that handle 1,000,000 gallons of water a day; a refrigeration plant that turns out the equivalent of 422 tons of ice every 24 hours; a laundry that does 65,000 pieces daily a private post-office equipped to begin to think of the things we will give our friends and loved ones, but let us remember the One who died to save us, and first let us give our heart and life to Him and His service.

handle 5,000 letters between one midnight and the next; machines for putting creases in close to 300 miles of trousers a year; elevators which during ten months traveled a distance greater than from the earth to the moon; a plant for freshening 900,000 cubic feet of air a minute; and much more besides.

Almost before imagination can finish sketching in the details of some great modern dream, fact comes along and says: Here it is.

Some folks in this town ain't worryin' about hard times—IT MAKES A GOOD EXCUSE FOR NOT PAYIN'!

Trapping Moles for Fur

In the United States moles are generally considered a nuisance, but in some European countries they are trapped intensively for their pelts. The skins of some American moles, says the Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, are of good quality and are in growing demand. Mole fur is at its best in winter. Runways and nests of moles are easy to locate by the earth ridges and mounds that the animals make. To catch moles anywhere east of the Rockies, says the Biological Survey, trap in the hunting paths marked by the ridges. On the Pacific Coast, however, it is better to trap in their deeper runways. Gavel catches can usually be made along their main highways, particularly when these are along fence lines or ridges in open fields, or where they cross from soil to cultivated ground. From 12 to 20 moles have been caught in a few weeks by resetting a trap each day in the same spot. It is well to set traps of rollers over temporary hunting paths only when they have been made recently in damp soil and have not become dry. Moles usually work in moist rich soil, and it seldom pays to set trap in dry places.

GIVE BUSINESS A REST

In spite of the difficulties which beset all our major industries at the present time, we find in Congress and in our legislatures political demagogues who would further shackle business and industry by the passage of more drastic laws.

The fear of further unfavorable legislation will undoubtedly have a tendency to delay and in some cases entirely prevent developments, which would be undertaken if those interested could feel safer from legislative meddling.

Two principal devices are employed by those whose aim in life is to harass business. One is the imposition of ever increasing taxation; the other is the imposition of ever increasing restrictions under the guise of regulation.

It can not be denied that both taxation and regulation are necessary, if unpleasant, accompaniments of government. It is the extent of taxation and the degree of regulation that are important. There seems to be no limit to the burdens which some legislators are willing to place on the larger business enterprises.

Under present conditions it would be well to avoid making these burdens heavier than they are already. The agitators who clamor for more taxation and more regulation might well take a holiday until business and industry get on their feet again.

Feminists will see vindication for higher education in the report that fewer college girls marry.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York—If, as the ancient saying goes, an apple a day keeps the doctor away, then New York certainly has it in for the pill-and-powder gentry.

The response to the street-corner sale of apples by the unemployed has been amazing. New Yorkers are buying at the rate of more than a half million apples a day.

Everybody is patronizing the amateur curb merchants. Such has been the demand that wholesalers find it difficult to obtain apples enough.

Average $5 Daily

More than 2,000 of the city's unemployed have set up in the new business. Competition for "hot" corners waxes fast and furious. The typical equipment consists of one or two crates of apples, a few paper bags, and a sign reading "Unemployed. Buy Apples."

An average vendor is said to earn close to $5 a day. He pays $2 a crate for the fruit, each crate containing between 64 and 160 apples selling at five cents apiece. This yields him a net profit of from $1.20 to $3.30.

The idea was originated by the International Apple Association, which started the ball rolling by selling several hundred boxes to jobless men on credit. It created an eager market for several millions of apples that would otherwise have rotted in orchards or warehouses.

Second-Story Highways

Visions of what the New York of the future may look like were called to mind recently when the city's first "second-story highway" was officially dedicated.

Known as the West Side Express Highway, the new traffic artery—literally a street on stilts—runs from Canal street to 22nd street. Units yet to be built will extend the structure still further uptown.

The roadway is 70 feet wide, with a concrete curbing dividing it into two lanes. With no traffic lights or intersecting streets to trouble with, traffic can flash along in safety at sixty miles an hour. Streets on the lower level are reached by means of ramps.

Sandwich of Streets

Engineers predict that the New York of tomorrow will be criss-crossed with these elevated highways.

The whole town is going to resemble a double decker sandwich.

Years afterward when you tell someone you lived in New York, he will inquire, "Where—upstairs or down?"
Two Dogs . . .

Two dogs were crossing a street in Long Island City. A speeding automobile ran over one and killed him, narrowly missing the other. The car raced on.

The other dog turned back and stood to moan above his dying companion. Street cleaners, trying to remove the battered body, were repulsed with savage snarls.

All day the dog—a wandering mongrel—continued his strange vigil while traffic swirled around him, forced to divide in the center of the street. Finally the street cleaners called the police emergency squad.

450,000-Word Vocabulary

There is one man in New York who ought to be able to have the last word in any argument. He is Dr. Frank Vizetelly, proud owner and proprietor of a vocabulary of 450,000 words.

He learned them during an association of thirty-nine years with Funk & Wagnalls, editing the New Standard Dictionary.

Pajamas Plus

Whoever started this pajama craze on the streets and beaches started something.

Fashion experts say that women this winter will take to the filmy more than of pajamas for dining, dancing, and going all manner of places.

The new pajamas are said to be decidedly formal, resembling evening gowns in many ways. They are lavish in material and styling, the former including transparent velvet, metal brocades, and laces and frills galore. Some of them have sweeping trains.

Footnote on Pets

Officials of the Second National Pet Show, held here recently, insisted that New Yorkers are too standardized in their choice of pets.

Instead of an Irish terrier or a Persian cat, they say we should become pals with an African stork, a Brazilian turtle, or even a ring-tailed monkey.

Someone suggests that Susie, the female gorilla that crossed the Atlantic in the Graf Zeppelin last year, would be the very thing to add an original note to an afternoon-tea.

as to send that boy or girl, friend or relative his Home-Town paper for the coming year. We like for our boys and girls and all our friends who are away at work or in school to remember the folks back home, not only at Christmas, but through all the year. And they are always interested in the happenings back home. What better way could be found to keep up this happy association than to send them their county paper every week? The Chilton County News gives a complete account of the news and events that are taking place in Clanton and all of Chilton County week by week in a clear and concise way. You're here in the county, and we believe you enjoy reading these items about what your friends and neighbors are doing, and we believe those folks of ours who are away would get much pleasure from this news too. Train Robbery

Loot Is Found

Homer Speer, 29, Of Selma, Is Re-arrested When Trail Ends In Recovery

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 8—Homer Speer, rearrested Sunday at Selma by Birmingham officers, was taken to the county jail late Sunday night and ordered held without bond on a charge of robbery in connection with investigation of the $7,000 holdup of the express car of the Southern Railway train here Nov. 29.

Police Sunday recovered $6,173 loot from the sensational holdup of the express car of the Southern Railway train No. 19 and rearrested Homer H. Speer, 29, of Selma. Speer was brought to Birmingham with the money and placed in the county jail without bond on a charge of robbery in connection with investigation of the case.

Milton E. McDuff, chief of the Bureau of Identification of the Birmingham Police Department, heading the city and railroad officers who worked on the case, said that the money was found in a small box buried under Speer's home at Selma.

McDuff said he obtained a search warrant to hunt for the money after he and Lee White, special agent of the Southern Railway, had received word from Selma early Sunday morning.

After the money was recovered Speer confessed to the holdup, McDuff said, and the prisoner and money were brought to Birmingham.

A total of $7,427 was taken in the holdup, which occurred in the Terminal Station yards here at daylight, November 29.

The arrest followed word from Capt. A. A. Beck, of the Southern Railway police, that White and McDuff should leave Birmingham immediately for Selma. The two officers and W. P. Hightower, attaché of White's department, reached Selma at 10 a. m. and the money was recovered soon afterwards by Lieut. Edward Turner, of the Selma police force.

Speer had been held in Birmingham since last Monday night and was repeatedly quizzed in connection with the investigation, McDuff declared.

When the prisoner was released Saturday, he was trailed to Selma, the officer said.

Speer's statement, as quoted by Lee White, McDuff and other officers was that he entered the Southeastern Express Company car under the First Avenue Viaduct just before the train pulled out. The lock on the car, he was quoted as saying, had been "fixed" previously and entrance was easy.

After holding up the express messenger and forcing him to surrender the keys to the vault in which the money was kept, the officers claimed Speer said, the robbery was completed and the getaway made from the moving train.

G. W. York, assistant to the president, Southeastern Express Company, in a statement Sunday night after receiving the money, said he wished to thank the Birmingham Police Department "for its splendid work on the case and its cooperation with Lee White and other railway officers engaged in the investigation."

Perry Joyce asserts that she is being a very good girl, citing as proof the fact that she hasn't married anyone for three or four years.

News from Thorsby

Miss FRANCES WILSON, Correspondent

Friday afternoon, Arbor Day, the Senior Class held exercises in the chapel at the close of school to which all the school was invited. When they were over everyone was invited to follow the Seniors out on the campus to the tree-planting ceremony. A sycamore tree was planted. This was named Ann Zachaeus. The Ann after Mrs. Jeffries of Jemison who gave the tree to the class. Zachaeus after the man mentioned in the New Testament as climbing the sycamore tree in order to see Jesus as he was passing by.

Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Conantser and daughters entertained the faculty of Thorsby Institute very pleasantly at their home. Delicious refreshments were served. Mr. Butler kindly took charge of the study hall so all the teachers might go.

Saturday night the Philomathice entertained the Pushmatahas with a party at the dining hall. Miss Klingelhofer is sponsor for the Philomathice. Various games both new and interesting were played after which refreshments were served. Edith Foss and Orville Freeman won the prize for making costumes of newspaper. A great deal of the success of this party is due to the entertainment committee which was composed of Catherine Foss, Helen Diefenderfer and Wilma Goodgame.

On Monday James Kincaid, a member of the Senior Class of Thorsby Institute presented the Senior room with a picture which he had painted. It is a marine scene and is very well done. The picture has a very appropriate frame around it.

The Thorsby Institute will present their Christmas play next Saturday night at 7:30. The title is "The First Christmas." It will be a carol and candlelighting service. Everyone is invited. Admission will be 10 cents.

Mr. V. H. Sutlive spent Saturday and Sunday in Birmingham.

Mrs. Lois Leech went to Birmingham Tuesday to do some Christmas shopping.

Mr. E. S. Stiener and daughters have moved to Marion Junction where they will have charge of a dairy farm.

Mr. Gresham Lowery entertained the faculty and students of Thorsby Institute Tuesday morning with a vocal solo. It was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. W. H. Raybon had as her Sunday dinner guests Miss Winnie Boring, Miss Christine Dobson, Miss Mertice Canington, Miss Janie Kelly, all dormitory girls of Thorsby Institute, and Mr. Yancey Kelly of Birmingham.

Miss Marion Fairbank spent Sunday in Birmingham. She gave a missionary address at the Congregational church.

Mrs. Mamie Wilder and son, Marcelle, of Lock 12 spent Tuesday in Montgomery shopping.

The Freshman Class of T. I. is steadily growing. A new addition was made this week. Miss Catherine Barr enrolled recently.

Misses Gracie and Gladys Smith had as their guest Sunday Miss Brown Russell, one of the T. I. dormitory girls.

Miss Esther Johnson of Birmingham spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald spent Thursday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell spent Thursday in Birmingham shopping.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth. However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

TIMOTHY
Christmas Lesson—Luke 2:8-20 and II
Timothy 1:1-16; 3:14-16
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Attention should be given to both themes, and they are closely related. Christmas is a day that has its best expression as it centers in the life of the home. The influence of Jesus, whose birth is being celebrated, has done more to change the home than anything else in all time. Evidence of this fact is to contrast the positions of women and children in those parts of the world where the teachings of Jesus are not operative with the social life in those lands where His principles are followed even in part. Having been in twenty-four countries the writer can testify to this as an eye witness.

No single event in the history of the world has so changed the life of mankind. Even the date in our calendar is Christo-centric. Those who refuse to believe in Jesus as the Son of God and Saviour of sinners are financially profited by that which took place in Bethlehem in B. C. 5.

When a principle is workable it becomes acceptable. Any thinker can propose a theory of life, but to be worthy of continuation it must be practical.

During the past six months men and women of the Bible have been considered. The last in the series of biographical studies is Timothy of Lystra. Paul may have first met him when as an apostle to the Gentiles he was being persecuted and carried as an injured man into the home of Timothy.

To get a good idea of the worth of this man read the two letters that Paul wrote which bear the name of Timothy. When Paul, the worn-out apostle, was in the midst of his second Roman imprisonment, he sent for Timothy, his son in the faith, to come as a helpful companion.

WAR EXPLOSIVES MAKE PEACE PROJECTS POSSIBLE

Explosives in all forms, usually designated as "powder," have been a great aid to development of comfortable living in peace time than in war. This statement is substantiated in the American Magazine, by a chronicle of what the force of chemicals has done. Much more than 500,000,000 pounds of explosives were used in the past year, sufficient to shatter four billion tons of stone.

"Explosives," the article continues, "shatter eight tons of rock per pound of powder. King Solomon worked 80,000 men for seven years in his stone quarries to build his temple. Heat, water, and wedges were used. King Hiram, Solomon's contemporary, with 40,000 men, unearthed only 30,000 tons of silver in Spain in one year. Recently, with 9,000 men armed with dynamite on the same location, 2,500,000 tons of ore were taken out and from it 30,000 tons of copper were smelted."

Dynamite, it is added, which came into use just before 1860, increased coal production from 15,000,000 tons a year to more than 570,000,000. The production of cement is also due to dynamite.

"Without high explosives," continues the article, "modern railroads, canals, and routes of communication could not have been built."

"Dynamite clears forests and farms

Miss M. Mitchell of Paris who holds the title of Champion Typist of all Europe.

ANOTHER CURE

A good deal of attention has been given in Washington to the proposal of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, to suspend all immigration in the United States during the next two years, as an aid to American labor. His resolution would permit the entry of "immediate relatives" of persons of foreign birth who have already entered the United States. Under the existing quota laws, the total of 153,714 emigrants from all the quota countries combined may enter the United States annually.

Whether the United States will be able to improve its economic position by drawing further back into its shell by such measures as the above is a question. Whenever the old world nations attempt to secure temporary advantage of that kind, the United States gets pretty mad.

of trees, stumps and boulders. It arrests fires in the wilderness. It saved Baltimore, San Francisco and New Orleans in times of disaster. From the simple digging of post holes or the splitting of logs, to the most titanic engineering plans, high explosives, once thought useful in war only, are playing an unlimited part in the march of progress."

Is This $53,000,000 Pay Check Worth Keeping?

ALABAMA'S coal industry pays normally into the pockets of Alabama about $53,000,000 annually. There is no part of Alabama—no citizen of Alabama—that does not share in this huge outlay, paid yearly in payrolls, in purchases, and in taxes.

Alabama's coal industry releases normally in wages to Alabama coal miners and employees $34,500,000. It furnishes employment directly to approximately 26,000 Alabama men. Allowing 4.9 persons to each family, that means that Alabama's coal mining payrolls actually support 127,400 Alabama people. This great group, the largest in the employ of any single Alabama industry, spends its wages for food products raised on Alabama farms, for merchandise bought at Alabama stores, for rent of Alabama homes, built on Alabama soil.

In addition to this huge sum, paid in normal years to its own employees, Alabama coal is directly responsible for state-wide employment in many other lines. To move the coal produced in Alabama mines the railroads use approximately 400,000 cars, or an average of about 1,333 cars a day throughout the normal year. Each train provides employment for a minimum of five men per train on each railroad division. Based upon the distribution points, it is conservatively estimated that Alabama coal normally provides 80,000 working days for trainmen and engineers throughout the year in addition to the working time for other railway employees, including shopmen, repairmen, clerks, etc.

Alabama's coal industry spends annually on the average of $6,200,000 for operating supplies and machinery, including lumber, cement, building supplies, etc. This does not include the sums ordinarily invested in good years for expansion and

Mason & Dixon's Famous Line

I have been requested by a well-known gentleman of Atlanta to write something concerning one of the oldest, most historic state boundaries in this country—Mason and Dixon's line. As ancient and celebrated as it is, there are several erroneous ideas as to the origin and purpose of the line.

Many persons suppose the line was drawn incident to the War Between the States, and was the result of the great slavery discussion and agitation which shook the republic for decades preceding the conflict between the North and South.

The general opinion is the line was intended to be drawn as dividing the slave-holding from the non-slave-holding states in the Union. The line is 163 years old, established for nearly a century prior to the outbreak of the war; even before the Revolutionary struggle for independence.

Hot and unabating discussions and turmoil, and sometimes personal conflicts, existed during the long period from 1681 to 1768 between the rival proprietaries of Pennsylvania and Maryland, the Penn family and the family of Lord Baltimore, on the subject of their common boundary; and according to historical pages, "the vicinity of Mason and Dixon's line was the theater of riot, invasions and bloodshed."

So the proprietors of these landed possessions decided to settle the disputed boundaries between Maryland on the one side and Pennsylvania and Delaware on the other. For this purpose they engaged Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, of England, accomplished and experienced mathematicians, surveyors and astronomers.

They arrived in Philadelphia from London on November 15, 1763, and commenced their survey in December. The line, which had been marked for a distance, so I have read, of 280 miles, ran through dense, difficult forests, and the surveyors found their work arduous, laborious, and impeded by many obstacles and hindrances.

According to authoritative records, "the work was continued to a point 244 miles from the Delaware River, and within 36 miles of the whole distance to be run, when they were compelled to suspend operations in consequence of opposition by the Indians. They returned to Philadelphia, and were discharged on December 26, 1767." They were engaged on the survey four years.

History says, "the work was done with such skill and accuracy that a re-due west, the boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland, running on the parallel of latitude 39 degrees, 43 minutes and 26 seconds. As the northern limit (with the exception of small portions of Delaware and Virginia) of the original slave states, it was prominently mentioned in the celebrated controversies concerning slavery.

As expressed by another historian: "As Mason and Dixon's line divided the southernmost free state, Pennsylvania, from Maryland, the northernmost slave state, it has been commonly referred to as the dividing line between the slaveholding and non-slaveholding states, but the celebrated compromise line agreed to by Congress in 1820 as the northernmost boundary of slave territory, a preliminary condition of the admission of Missouri as a slave state, runs about the parallel of latitude 36 degrees, 30 minutes.—John T. Boileau in The Atlanta Journal.

"Inside" Information

Do not undertake to can any meats without a steam pressure cooker, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In choosing school coats, the plainer the style the better. Raglan sleeves and wide front laps allow for growth. See that the collar is comfortable against the child's neck. Some materials chafe the skin. The pocket should be in an accessible position, and wide enough to hold gloves or a purse without tearing at the corners.

In choosing Christmas gifts for the children, avoid complicated or fragile articles that give pleasure only for a short time. Select materials or tools with which the boy or girl can make things. Blocks for the younger ones, paints and crayons for the next older, with some good pictures to color, are always acceptable. The still older boy will like a few real tools—a hammer, saw, T-square, and plane—while his sister will be overjoyed with a small workbasket, with scissors, thimble, and a good assortment of threads and needles, tape measure, emery, and so on.

After Ralph Ferrara of Brooklyn fired six shots at Rose Provenzano who had jilted him, she refused to sign a complaint, saying: "I never realized how much Ralph loved me until he shot me—I'm going to marry him."

Clanton Grammar School News

For the past ten or twelve weeks the fifth and sixth grades have been having a contest in arithmetic. There were two sides chosen in each class and all of the children have been working hard because the losing side has to entertain the side which wins. The entertainment is to be next week.

On Friday, December 19, there will be a Christmas program in each room, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Any visitors who desire to come will be welcomed, and after the Christmas exercises are over the children will be dismissed for the holidays, which will last until December 29th.

On Friday, December 12, the regular meeting of the P.T.A. will be held at 2:30 p. m. All parents are urged to be present. Last month the second grade was given the half-holiday for having the most parents present.

Some undernourished children who are not able to have lunch in the lunch room are being cared for by the P.T.A. and by individuals in town. Not only the children who are benefited, but also the faculty appreciates this kindly interest.

Following is the honor roll for the month of November:

First Grade: James Duke Hellin, Clara Marie Cooper, Helen Parrish, Frances Smith, Wendell Parrish.

Second Grade: Ann Ross, Billy Calen, James Carl Martin, Joseph Green, Berniece Lowe, Paul Gowan, Mary Wyatt.

Third Grade: Annie Cordelia Smith,

Grace Ezell.

Fourth Grade: Mildred Maddox.

Special Mention List

First Grade: Kathleen Armstrong, Doris Deloach, Mary Helen Maddox, Sarah Nell Sessions, A. J. McKinnon, Walter Mims, Preston Mims, Charles Neighbors, Jack Vines, Nina Flo Headley, Roy Cooper.

Second Grade: Iris Alford, Lorene Bone, Grace Carter, William Lee Hays, Buddie Popwell, Lillian Smith, Norma Harris, Frances Bean, Dempsey Atchison, Bettie Gray Poe.

Third Grade: Kathleen Petty, Sybil Ray, Wyndol Murrah, Mary Louise Maddox, Blanche Thomas, Mary Frances Atkinson.

Fourth Grade: Mae Aniece Polk, Mildred Gore, Dorothy Carter, Mary Reba Payton, Nell Rockett, Mary Culver, Olive Rainer Elmore, Theda Wyatt, Vivian Lowery, Henry Esco, Ed Goodgame.

Fifth Grade: Willodean Teel, Marie Benson.

Sixth Grade: Helen Eubanks, Frances Foshee, Jane Neighbors, Mildred Maddox.

Some of the children were kept off the honor roll because they had a grade lower than A on conduct. It is required that a child must have A on conduct to be on either the honor roll or special mention list. Some few were kept off because they had tardy marks against them.

Girl And Boy Scouts Have Joint Meeting

The Scout Troops of Clanton, Mitchell Dam and Lay Dam will join together tonight for a joint outing. The Boy Scout Troop of Clanton, the Girl Scout Troop of Clanton, the Girl Scouts of Mitchell Dam and the Girl Scouts of Lay Dam will compose this outdoor gathering tonight.

They will meet at the office of the County Farm Bureau in Clanton, from where they will depart for a designated point. Games will be enjoyed.

Explanation Of Commissioners

According to a statement from the office of the Judge of Probate, there seems to be some misunderstanding as to the proposition offered last week by the Commissioners Court to hire hands to work on the county roads.

The statement in part is as follows: "The intention of the Commissioners Court was for the oversees to hire hands that were in needy circumstances and that needed the work to get the necessities of life and to hire teams and trucks only from persons that were in distress. While we want the County to get the benefit of every dollar we spend by improving the roads and we want every dollar we spend to help relieve distress.

"People who are in distress and need work are requested to give their names to the Commissioner in their District if convenient if not file their names with the overseer in their Beat so that they can be given employment."

LOCAL FARMERS PLANNING TO DI- VERSIFY CROPS

Increase Acreage of Straw- berries Believed To Be Shown By February

The farmers of Chilton County are beginning to make plans for less cotton and more strawberries, potatoes and other crops that will bring ready money into their pockets, was indicated in the result of two meetings held recently.

About fifty members met with C. E. Stapp, county agent, in Verbena, Alabama last Thursday afternoon in the interest of more money crops, other than that of cotton. Approximately 14 acres were signed up for sweet potatoes and about the same for strawberries, at the meeting in Verbena.

Another meeting of the same nature was held in Clanton Friday with approximately seventy-five farmers. Indications are that a considerable increase in acreage will be set to strawberries by next February.

It is believed that Chilton County could be selling almost twice as many strawberries annually, as it is now without affecting the market in the least way. Much interest is also being shown in dewberries as another crop that will prove profitable for the farmer. It was stated that the matter of getting acreage signed up for dewberries will likely be taken up by all the strawberry associations of the county at their January meetings. The Clanton Berry Growers Association will hold their annual meeting for the purpose of electing officers and discussing matters of interest on January 6th.

MRS. R. C. BUSH IN CLANTON IN INTEREST OF DEMOCRATIC CLUB

Mrs. R. C. Bush of Birmingham, vice-president of the Alabama Woman's Democratic Club, and chairman of the state-wide membership campaign was in Clanton in the interest of this worthy organization last Friday. Mrs. Bush is a charming lady and her efforts in this organization work has been very noted throughout the state, and the membership is constantly growing.

The Alabama Woman's Democratic Club was organized to promote the development and betterment of the State of Alabama and its respective communities and counties; to promote and perpetuate the principles of the Democratic Party; to disseminate information and instructions with reference to such principles and to foster and encourage clean politics and honest and economical government.

ENTERPRISE DEFEATS MOUNT PLEASANT

The Enterprise Junior High basketball team defeated Mt. Pleasant Junior High 13 to 6 on the former's court Friday afternoon, December 12, in a hard fought battle. Mt. Pleasant took the lead in the first quarter, but gave away to Enterprise in a few minutes. The excellent shooting by Tucker and Griffin kept Enterprise out in front the remainder of the game.

The line-up was as follows:
Enterprise—(13 Griffin (5) Wilkins
(2) Forwards; Cox (2) Center; Tucker
(4) Silas, Guards.

Mt. Pleasant—(6) Curtis Traywick
(5) Burnett, Forwards; Littlejohn,
Center; Cecil Traywick (1), Parker, Guards.

REV. J. S. HOLLAND VISITOR TO CLANTON LAST SATURDAY

The News office received a pleasant call from the Rev. J. S. Holland of Tallahassee, Alabama, last Saturday. Rev. Holland, as well as occupying the pulpit at Tallahassee, also fills the pulpit at the Liberty Hill Baptist church, just west of Clanton and has been carrying on his splendid work here for a number of years.

Rev. Holland speaks well of his two congregations and their efforts in the church work, and does not fail to show that he fully enjoys his work in this county with the Liberty Hill Peoples. He has some very unique ways of aiding a church in raising funds for various expenses and puts them into use wherever he goes.

16 GIRLS PASS TENDERFOOT SCOUT TEST

Organization Something New For Clanton; Appears On Road To Success

At a recent meeting of the Girl Scouts of Clanton, sixteen of the lassies passed the Tenderfoot Scout test, according to Miss Zora Guy, who is in charge of the meetings each week.

The Girl Scout organization is something new for Clanton, although a Boy Scout organization has existed here at various times, and is now existing. The Girl Scouts are apparently growing in number in Clanton and have passed any doubt of not being a success.

Having made the Girl Scout Promise and having attended at least four meetings covering at least one month in time, the following girls of Clanton were given the Tenderfoot test Friday evening, December 5th, and passed:

Grace Plyler, Elizabeth Gragg, Helen Roberts, Nell Neighbors, Dixie Johnson, Mary Nell Jones, Pauline Plyler, Hilda Hart, Helen Moore, Elizabeth McSwain, Celia Gerald, Mary Courtney Jones, Mary Belle Bean, Ruth Gowan, Elouise Raspberry, Evelyn Maddox.

The other girls enrolled who have not prepared the test will be given the same at an early date.

Chest Fund Drive To Start Here January 12

Need For Immediate Action Appears Stronger Than Ever; Appeal Is Being Made By Directors Of Chilton County Chest Fund

Another appeal will be made by the Chilton County Chest Fund, for money with which to aid the need in the county right away. The need for this action appears now to be greater than ever before, according to reports reaching the News office of the touching conditions of numerous families over the county.

The drive is scheduled to open on Monday, January 12th, and will continue to January 17th, according to an announcement made by the directors of the chest this week. A full statement was given the News this week from the directors which follows:

"The directors of the Chilton County Chest have set the week of January 12th through the 17th, as the time for the annual collection of funds for the unfortunate of Chilton County. The opportunity to help those who need our assistance has never been so great. There are hungry children in Chilton County who can never attain the full stature of manhood if they are not fed now. There are cold children who shiver in their scanty clothes, who must be warmly clad if disease and death are to be battled off. There are children to whom the minimum of education is being denied, not through lack of interest, not through laziness, but because they have no books nor clothes in which to go to school.

"We all know what the general economic depression has done to the employment situation. There are strong able, bodied men who have searched the country for work, who have postponed asking for assistance until they could no longer bear the sight of thinner children. There are brave mothers who have struggled to keep their families together, who love their children as dearly as any of us love ours, who have come to the end of their resources. They feel that they can no longer deny the necessities of life to their children, which they would find in an orphanage, and are asking the orphanages to take their children for care.

Surely in Chilton County we do not want mothers and children to be separated, the most precious bonds of affection broken because of a lack of money only. Every orphanage in the state is full and has a long waiting list. Cannot we, the more fortunate ones, come to the aid of these in distress, and show the spirit of brotherhood, and the spirit of Christ, who cared for the poor and needy?"

S. J. EZELL, Chairman.
Finance Committee.

C. W. Wade To Open Show In Wetumpka

According to an article appearing in the Wetumpka Herald of last week, C. W. Wade, operator of the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton, will open a modern motion picture house in Wetumpka, Alabama. The article in the Wetumpka paper had the following to say:

Mr. C. W. Wade of Clanton has rented the old Grand Theatre Building and is having it equipped for talking pictures, which he hopes to have ready by Friday night, Dec. 12th.

Mr. Wade states that he is going to give Wetumpka a real picture show, one the people of this section will appreciate and feel proud of. He is having the building equipped for talking pictures and says only pictures of the highest type and the most noted actors will be shown, which sounds good to the movie fans of Wetumpka and surrounding territory.

Mr. Wade has a number of other shows and knows the picture show game and what the people want, and promises the best amusement Wetumpka has had along this line.

We were unable to secure the program for the opening night before going to press, but a big talking picture with an all-star cast will be shown.

MRS. DALY MILLER IS VICTIM OF PARALYTIC STROKE TUES.

The many friends of Mrs. Daly Miller, of Clanton, will regret to learn that she was a victim of a paralytic stroke, and was carried to the Central Alabama Hospital last Tuesday, where her condition is said to be as well as could be expected. At the time of this writing she is resting very well.

SON OF MR. AND MRS. HORACE POPWELL IS CRITICALLY ILL

Billy, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Popwell, of Clanton remains critically ill in a Birmingham hospital. He has undergone two serious operations within the past few days. Latest reports at the time of this writing stated that he shows a slight improvement.

"Sunny Side Up" Coming To Wadesonian Thea- tre Next Monday And Tuesday, December 22-23

A picture that needs no other statement made about it than that it is coming to Clanton, is "Sunny Side Up," which has been booked by the management of the local theatre for next Monday and Tuesday, December 22 and 23.

"Sunny Side Up," which is an all-talking picture, shows the bewitching little Janet Gaynor, and the handsome Charles Farrell at their best. There is plenty of new and extremely entertaining music throughout the picture, and it has showed to record crowds both in Montgomery and Birmingham. Many people from Clanton motored to one of these places to see this picture and will no doubt take advantage of the showing here and see it again.

The people of this section have long looked forward to seeing this picture, and it is being urged that as many as can, see it the first night, as it is believed that this picture will fill the theatre to overflowing each night it is shown, due to its wide popularity.

TALLEY-MULLINS ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED LAST SUNDAY

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Margaret Moren Talley to Mr. Burton Small Mullins was made last Sunday by the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Talley, of Anniston, and appeared in The Birmingham News. Mr. Mullins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Reece Mullins of Clanton and occupies a prominent place in the young social circles of Clanton, however he is at this time located elsewhere with the International Harvester Company, and holds a responsible position with that company. The date of the marriage will be announced later, it was stated.

CHILTON CO. NEEDS BETTER STAPLE COTTON

Stapp Advises That Farmers Should Plan At Once To Grow Better Cotton

Mr. Stapp advises that farmers who plant cotton next spring should make their plans now to grow high yields of cotton with good staple per acre, and in an effort to help get better stapled cotton in the county, he has arranged with the Farm Bureau to get a carload of planting seed.

Mr. Stapp has arranged with most all of the gins in the County to observe special gin days next fall in order that farmers who get these seed can keep them from getting mixed with seed of short staple. For the convenience of the farmers, it has been arranged for the following people in the different sections of the county to take orders for these good seed:

W. A. Gulledd, Verbena; Irby De-ramus, Verbena; Polk Payne, Maplesville; Cal Foshee, Maplesville; J. P. Montgomery, Jemison; E. R. Piper, Thorsby, and Miss Zora Guy, Farm Bureau Office, Clanton.

Mr. Stapp is very anxious for every farmer in the County to get at least enough of these seed to be able to grow seed to plant his crop the following season. He thinks he has made arrangements for enough of these seed for all who want them to get a few, but says that in order to be sure farmers should tell one of the above named parties how many seed they want.

It was stated that if everybody will work together on this project that in two years there will be a good demand for Chilton County cotton.

Woodman Monument For John C. Crane

John C. Crane, deceased, will be honored when a monument will be unveiled at the Antioch Church, near Fletcher, Alabama, by the Fletcher Camp No. 692, Woodmen of the World.

The ceremony will be held on Sunday, December 21, at two o'clock p.m., and all Woodmen are requested to be present, and the public is invited.

Mr. Crane was for sometime clerk of the Fletcher Camp, and is a brother of J. A. Crane, prominent merchant of Fletcher, Alabama.

SISTER OF BEN BALDWIN OF MOUNTAIN CREEK PASSES

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Baldwin Reeves were held from the home, 116 Grove Street, last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Reeves, who was a prominent club woman of Montgomery, was killed late last Friday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile in Montgomery. She was knocked to the pavement and her skull fractured. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery.

The deceased is a sister of Ben J. Baldwin of Mountain Creek, Alabama.

YOUNG SON OF MR. AND MRS. WALLACE McDANIEL DIED

Houston, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McDaniel, of Clanton Route 2, died at his home last Friday afternoon, December 12.

Funeral services were held on the following Saturday at the Temple cemetery near here.

TEACHERS ARE ASKED TO AID IN CHEST DRIVE

County Teachers Will Have Charge of Distributing Food and Clothing Also

In another place in this paper you will find an announcement of the second drive for chest funds for Chilton County. Last year the drive was put on for the first time. It is true that it has not been possible to give the amount of relief that would like to have been given because the funds were not sufficient, but on the other hand many families have been taken care of who were in dire need of food and clothing and in many instances medical aid.

Thirteen families whose fathers were in the penitentiary would have suffered more if it had not been for this fund. One might say that a case of this kind did not deserve consideration but the fact remains that the children, at least, are not responsible for any misdeeds of the fathers and in nearly every case the mother is not responsible. We have families whose fathers are dead who received aid from this fund. A great number of people who were unable to buy anything for Christmas last year and to whom Christmas would have been a source of embarrassment and heartache were made glad because of the visitation of Santa Claus made possible through this fund. The Child Welfare Superintendent worked until after midnight delivering food, etc., to such families on last Christmas Eve night.

This year because of the financial depression over the entire county the number of the latter type of cases referred to above has so increased as to make it impossible for one person to begin to get around to the most needy in the county to give aid. Because of this it is being asked that the teacher or teachers in every school ask the children to bring to school next Friday, December 19th, any contribution in the form of unperishable foods, clothing, or anything else that might be used to make the hearts of everyone happy on Christmas morning. The teachers are being asked to take charge of this and distribute it according to the needs of the community. Perhaps it would be a good thing for the teachers to ask the trustees of the respective schools to join with them in the proper distribution of whatever might be received from the pupils.

No one can realize as fully as a public man the number of needy cases today. The reader may think that to justify them in not giving, but please remember that there are hundreds of people today who are actually going without enough food and more cases where they do not have enough clothes to keep their bodies warm and properly protect them from the winter.

CAKE WALK AT HOME OF MON- ROE JONES NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

The News has been requested to announce this week that there will be a Cake Walk at the home of Monroe Jones, near Pleasant Hill church on Friday night, December 19. In expressing about this entertainment a correspondent once said it was:

"Come folks, one and all,
We always need you when we call.
Just a nickel for a walk,
Gee, how the boy and girl can talk.
Both girl and boy walk for a nickel,
You'll not only smile, but be tickled.
While you are walking don't make A mistake. But get on the right plank and win a cake.
Our C. E. is a group of jolly workers
Who are always glad and gay.
We will always meet you smiling.
This is our peculiar way.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETS NEXT FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19

Members of the Chilton County Board of Education are scheduled to meet at the office of the county superintendent of education, on next Friday, December 19th.

Mr. J. C. Veazey, a resident of Jemison, Alabama, was among the prominent visitors to our town last Saturday. While in town Mr. Veazey called at the News office and had his subscription marked up for another year.

Jack Hayes had as his guest last Monday, Eddie Wells, celebrated pitcher of the New York Yankees. While here Messrs. Wells and Hayes spent the day hunting.

1920-1930

At Mid-Night Wednesday Week The Curtain Will Ring Down Upon The Year 1930

As the old year ends, Alabama is still feeling the effects of the nation wide depression. But on the horizon, as the new year dawns, there is a rosy tinge which gives promise that the sunshine of prosperity will soon be beaming down once more.

Looking backwards thru the clouds that have hovered over Alabama and the nation for the past twelve months our vision is obscured. The broader outline of our progress is blurred by the mist which has settled temporarily above our land. But the clouds are breaking up. Soon again we'll see the panorama of our progress once more in true perspective. Soon again we'll catch the vision of our future, equally as clear and equally as bright.

When the clouds break up and the fog bank of depression lifts, we'll see a panorama of the most amazing decade in the history of Alabama spreading clear before our eyes. We will see with new amazement what a miracle the past ten years have wrought. For who would have believed in 1920, that in ten years time our population would have increased 12.7% or 300,000? Or that new industries employing 18,000 people would have poured into our state, and that the value of our manufactured products would have increased by $125,000,000?

This is the true picture of our past—not the picture of the past twelve months which has been a mere interlude in Alabama's progress—but the picture of the past decade which ends at mid-night Wednesday week. If we look with the same clarity at the picture of the present, we will see that fundamentally conditions in our state are just as sound today as during any peak year.

There is today in Alabama, the same amount of power, the same amount of coal, the same amount of clay, and other raw materials and fertile farming lands as during any year that we have passed thru. For the past twelve months Alabama has been laying the foundation of a business revival that is bound to come soon. Soon again the country will be hungry for the many products Alabama makes and grows. Soon again the wheels of Alabama industry will be turning busily. Soon again we'll be enjoying fruits of better times.

This company greets the new year with renewed confidence and faith in Alabama's future and extends to every citizen in this great state its best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a big share in returning prosperity.

OLD FOLKS SAY
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

An Ordinance

To prohibit the shooting, discharging or explosion of fire arms, firecrackers, torpedoes or fireworks of any kind within the hereinafter designated limits of the town of Clanton, and to provide a punishment for the violation thereof.

Be it ordained by the Town Council of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, as follows:

That it shall be unlawful for any person to shoot, discharge or explode firearms, firecrackers, torpedoes or fireworks of any kind within the following designated territories or limits of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, as follows:

All that part of the town of Clanton, Alabama, which is bounded on the east by the east side of 6th street, bounded on the north side by the north side of 4th Ave. North, bounded on the west by the west side of 8th street and bounded on the south by the south side of 1st Ave. or by said avenues or streets as extended.

BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED: That any person violating the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be fined not less than $1.00 and not more than $100.00.

BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED: That all ordinances in conflict with this ordinance be and the same hereby repealed.

Anonymous A columnist's life is just one silly thing after another. For example an unsigned letter in this morning's mail, sent by one of my comical friends. It consisted of a single sheet of stationery upon which was pasted a photo, clipped from a newspaper, of a dopey-looking moron in horn-rimmed spectacles.

The deep, villainous idea seems to be the aforementioned gent resembles me, or vice versa. Over the photo was the caption, "Confesses Slaying." Type-written underneath was this comment: "What the Hell will you be doing next?"

I shall be obliged to close this week's little coughing spell almost any minute now. Bino, aged four, from Apartment No. 1, has just romped in, dumping an immense sail boat, all drippy wet, on the sofa.

He has found a jar of glace candy, and each cheek is ballooned with a raspberry jaw-breaker, very much like the It-Ain't-Toothache-It's-Climax ads.

Now he is taking them from his mouth, all sticky, and gleefully trying to drop them down my collar.

Signing off, folks. I've got to defend myself.

Record Yourself

A mid-town movie palace features in its lobby a tiny booth where one may, for 25 cents, make a phonograph record of his own voice. Of course I fell for it. Talking through a microphone for the first time makes you feel as important as a bootlegger on convention day.

Another idiosyncrasy (don't trouble yourself, I've just looked it up) is that I like to write with a phonograph bawling at my back.

(Voice: Maybe changing the record would help.)

On With the Story

George Beuchler, staff announcer at radio station WABC, left the studios on a recent rainy evening and stepped into a taxi in front of the Columbia building. His driver was one of those talkative boxos.

"D'ya want in the studios, Buddy?" he inquired as he skidded expertly around a corner.

"Yes," said Beuchler.

"Well," said the cabby, "I was over in the Coffee Pot listenin' to the Detective Story Magazine broadcast to-night. I go in for that crook stuff, see, so every Thoisday I parks the boiler and listens in at this here beanery. But bein' it's rainin', y'know, everybody's lookin' for cabs tonight and so just as I was gettin' steamed up about this here story, in walks a guy that wants a cab and I gotta leave right in the middle of the story. So I was just wonderin' if you happened to know how it come out?"

Beuchler did know, fortunately, and put an end to the driver's suspense as well as his own—for the chauffeur, listening to his recital of the thriller, kept his eyes on the road instead of turning to talk to his passenger.

The October production of cement in the southeastern district of the United States showed a decline of 13.3 per cent against a decline of 13.8 per cent of the entire country, according to the Alabama Economic Review, published by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn.

In his annual message to Congress, President Hoover asked for $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 to accelerate construction for unemployment relief. He recommended also a fund for distressed farmers in the drought area.

Addressing a group of bankers at South Bend, Ind., Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, told them that many of them will fail if they "allow farmers to continue their overproduction." He presented other facts showing that agriculture is vital to the banker and that bankers should have a keen and active interest in it.

America consumes more than three billion pounds of milk sugar annually in one form or another. This sugar is consumed as a part of cheese, butter, and especially of whole fluid milk. Large quantities have long been used in making and coating pills; but a more recent use of lactose or milk sugar is in compounding and modifying milk for infant feeding and as a part of acidophilus milk for intestinal treatment of adults.

FUTURE CHRISTMASSES Will Be SAFE

....as long as railroad securities are valuable!

For decades, the funds of widows and orphans, insurance companies, schools and colleges, hospitals, asylums, and many other public institutions, have been largely invested in railroad securities. When the railroads are able to operate profitably and earn a fair return on this capital and the interest is paid regularly, these families and institutions are safe. Let the value of such holdings seriously depreciate, however, and the income of thousands will be greatly impaired or entirely swept away.

The railroads have endeavored in every way possible to lower costs and maintain a reasonable rate of return, in the face of constantly falling freight and passenger revenue, aggravated by added tax burdens. The great rail transportation systems are among the most efficiently operated businesses in the world.

Yet, during the period of 1920 to 1930, the rate of return on railroad property investment, for example, has averaged less than 4%!

The railroads are striving earnestly to hold their service to the present high standard, to provide steady employment for thousands of workers, to help carry passengers safely and surely, and the merchandise on which other forms of business depend, and to assure an income for the individuals and institutions who have entrusted their money to them. In this endeavor, the railroads deserve your cooperation and patronage. They are making a brave fight—against odds.

Robbers Crash on River Bridge While Fleeing

Burglars Attempt Flight Following Robbery of Elmore County Store

Tallahassee, Ala., Dec. 14—After looting two safes in Tallahassee and robbing a grocery store in Wetumpka of approximately $150 worth of merchandise, two men believed to be escaped prisoners from Birmingham, crashed their auto into a guard rail on the Tallapoosa River bridge early this morning and were captured by Deputy Sheriff Tim Golden, who had chased them ten blocks through the town.

One of the alleged burglars, believed to be Elmore Harris, received a fractured skull and is in a critical condition at the Kilby Prison Hospital in Montgomery where the pair was taken by Sheriff Holdbrook, of Elmore County. Kilby Prison fingerprint experts identified Harris, who was at liberty under an indeterminate sentence. Wheeler was believed one of the two prisoners escaped from the Jefferson County jail two weeks ago.

The Auto Service Company and Lott's Garage here were broken into by the yeggmen shortly after midnight. From the former place the thieves got bonds and jewelry valued at $1,250, according to R. L. Harris, Jr., owner of the business. They broke open one safe, Mr. Harris said, and attempted to rob another in the same building.

At Lott's Garage the burglars filled their car with gasoline and carried off a small "parlour" safe, officers said. The safe has not been found.

After the Tallahassee robberies, the thieves drove to Wetumpka where they broke into the Harden Grocery Company and stole $1.90 in cash and 20,000 cigarettes valued at $150, officers said.

When the Wetumpka robbery was discovered, Sheriff Holdbrook telephoned Deputy Sheriff Tim Golden at Tallahassee that the robbers were headed back that way in their car, he said.

Golden waited for them, and when the robbers drove through Tallahassee, he gave chase. Driving at a rapid rate of speed, with the officer in close pursuit, the car occupied by the burglars failed to make a curve near the bridge entrance and crashed into the rail. The deputy sheriff then made the arrests.

Officers said that they found a part of the loot on the men, together with a number of pistols.

The prisoners were returned to Wetumpka and delivered to the authorities at Kilby Prison.

Sheriff Holdbrook said that the two men were believed to have escaped from the Jefferson County jail recently.

The store of W. W. Jackson at Wadsworth was robbed Friday night of clothing and other merchandise and these men are believed implicated also in that. Clothing which they were wearing at the time of their capture was said to have been identified as that stolen from the Jackson store.

News from Thorsby

Miss FRANCES WILSON, Correspondent

On Saturday night the Helen Keller Literary Society of Thorsby Institute gave its Christmas program. The first part of the program was a Carol and Candle Lighting Service which was different from anything ever given before and was very lovely. This was planned by Miss Thoroman, the music teacher. Kathryn Foss and Lola Martin, dressed in white flowing robes, lighted the candles in candelabra and windows. Then girls dressed in white entered singing carols and sang several different carols. Miss Arthur sang, "O Holy Night" beautifully and Kathryn Foss and Lois Thompson sang a duet "A Virgin Unspotted" which was very much enjoyed.

After this "The First Christmas," a one-act play was given under the direction of Miss McKee and Miss Thoroman. The first scene showed the Shepherds out on the hillside watching the sheep. The sheep were restless and the shepherds were disturbed about the huge star which hung in the East. The shepherds were awakened by a bright light and a voice saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, Good Will toward men." A chorus chanted the words of the voice. The shepherds took their families and went to worship the babe in Bethlehem. The three wise men also went to Bethlehem to worship Him and give gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. The play was unusually well done. The costumes and scenery added much to the effect.

The Tuesday morning chapel with Miss Thoroman in charge was a very enjoyable one. The girls chorus sang "The Top O' the Morning to You" and the girls' trio sang "Going Home." The trio consists of Kathryn Foss, Lois Thompson and Edna Lee Wilder.

Tuesday night the Dormitory Christmas tree was held. Santa Claus had brought a lot of presents, and one felt the Christmas season had really begun.

On Thursday at two o'clock Thorsby Institute closes for its Christmas vacation. It reopens December 31st.

The addresses of the teachers during the holidays will be: Miss Jenkins, 303 Hill St., LaGrange, Ga.; Misses Leech, Stoddard and Fairbank, Thorsby; Mr. Stutlive, Blakely, Ga.; Miss Thoroman, 5001 Linden Ave., Norwood, Ohio; Miss McKee, Lineville, Ala.; Mr. Maddox, Jemison, Ala.; Mr. King, Plainfield, Ill.; Miss Klingelhoefer, Mascoutah, Ill.; c/o Harvey J. Klingelhoefer; Miss Arthur, Midland City, Ala.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Thorsby Congregational church held its regular weekly meeting Sunday, December 14, at 6:30.

The topic was "How to Make Others Happy." Catheryn Stallings was the leader. The Bible reference, Eph. 4:31; 5:1-2, was given by Gerald Smith. A poem was given by Mamye Johnson. The society sang an appropriate song after each verse except the last when Miss Klingelhoefer sang a solo. Topics were given out on how Christmas is celebrated in different lands.

Tom Thumb Wedding

The fifth and sixth grades are working to raise funds to buy new desks for their room, so last Saturday night their teacher, Miss Betty Baldwin, presented the Tom Thumb Wedding at the Methodist church.

The church was beautifully decorated in smilax, ferns, and roses. The marriage vows were read by Donald Calfee in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the bride and the groom.

The bride, little Hazel Thomas, was adorable in a dress made with a tight bodice and long, full skirt. She carried white American Beauty roses. The bride was given away by her father, William Oden.

The bridesmaids wore pink and green organdie dresses and carried bouquets of Radiance roses. The four little flower girls wore pink and green dresses. Their baskets were also pink and green. The maid of honor, Louise Grooms, was beautiful in a dress of silver lace and green chiffon. Her flowers were Radiance roses.

Lamar Williams was the groom, and his best man was Lloyd Smith.

Before the ceremony Mary Suite sang, "I Love You Truly," and Evelyn McCray sang, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie." They were accompanied by Mary D. Potts of Maplesville, who played the wedding march.

Banquet Given for Football Team

The girls of the third year Home Economics class and their teacher, Miss Cora Belle Maddox, were hostesses to the football team and the faculty on Thursday evening, December 11, at six o'clock.

The Christmas spirit was revived in the decorations and favors; the football spirit was manifested in the lively jokes, yells, songs, and hearty dinner. In the center of the table stood a miniature Christmas tree, from which radiated small football players. The place cards were tiny footballs; the favors at each place were tied up in Christmas packages, and the mint cups carried out the Christmas colors.

Marvin Durbin, captain of the team, acted as toastmaster, but he did not let that interfere with chicken and dressing. Even "Fatty" Poole had enough chicken and dressing for once—the first time in his life. That was the quietest crowd of football boys we've ever seen—while they were eating. But they did not eat all the time. Speeches and toasts were in order. They were made to Mr. Griffin, the principal, who has backed the team wholeheartedly since it became a team four years ago. The toastmaster expressed the gratitude of the entire team to Mr. Paulk, who has coached them for the past two years, and who has pulled them out of the hole to a glorious victory. After the captain's speech everyone sang a toast to Mr. Paulk. Other toasts were made to the Home Economics girls and Miss Maddox, to the cheer leaders and to the entire student body whose spirit has kept the team from ever seeing defeat on its own field.

Cards were placed for the following: Members of the team; Marvin Durbin, captain, Luther Mims, James Burnette, Clarence Paulk, James Deason, Leo Deason, Homer Morgan, Pierce Griffin, Van Williams, Sidney Griffin, Crit DeRamus, Crayton DeRamus, manager, S. P. Poole, Hannon Owen, Elmer Ratliff, Parnell Ratliff, Will L. Martin.

Members of the faculty present were Misses Celia Cumbee, Betty Baldwin, Ethel Mize, Cora Belle Maddox, Bonnie Clyde Griffin and Messrs. J. D. Griffin and Ellis Paulk. The cheer leaders, who are Dorothy Manning, Mary Clay Turner, Bazoleen Williams, Nellie Hayes and Clara Mae Calfee had charge of the program. If you ask us, it was a jolly good crowd that had a jolly good time.

Ninth Grade Write Stories

The ninth grade has just finished a group of short stories, which they wrote in their English Class. The three best stories by the entire class will appear in next week's News. In addition to the stories there will appear the qualities that these ninth grade boys and girls like to see in their friends.

Tenth Grade Making a Newspaper

The tenth grade English class is composing a modern newspaper based on George Eliot's "Silas Marner," which they recently studied. They hope to print this paper in the News soon.

DAIRY RATIONS ARE NAMED BY AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 17—A list of "essential and economical rations" for dairy cows in Alabama has been named by F. W. Burns, livestock specialist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, in response to requests from numerous farmers and dairymen for such information. Those feeding cows a mixed hay, such as peavines and sorghum or Johnson grass, are advised to feed one of the following rations:

(1) 100 lbs. corn and cob meal, 100 lbs. ground oats, 100 lbs. wheat bran, 100 lbs. cottonseed meal, and 4 lbs. salt; or, (2) 100 lbs. corn and cob meal, 100 lbs. velvet bean and pod meal, 100 lbs. wheat bran, 100 lbs. cottonseed meal, and 4 lbs. salt; or, (3) 150 lbs. corn and cob meal, 100 lbs. wheat bran, 100 lbs. cottonseed meal, and 4 lbs. salt.

100 lbs. cottonseed meal, and 3 1-2 lbs. salt.

Where the hay or roughage consists of Johnson grass, cottonseed hulls, or another non-legume product, one of the following rations should be fed:

(1) 150 lbs. corn and cob meal, 100 lbs. ground oats, 100 lbs. wheat bran, 200 lbs. cottonseed meal, 5 lbs. salt, and 5 lbs. slaked lime; or, (2) 100 lbs. corn and cob meal, 100 lbs. velvet bean and pod meal, 100 lbs. wheat bran, 150 lbs. cottonseed meal, 5 lbs. salt, and 5 lbs. slaked lime; or, (3) 100 lbs. corn and cob meal, 100 lbs. wheat bran, 150 lbs. cottonseed meal, 4 lbs. salt, and 4 lbs. slaked lime.

In either of these rations wheat shorts may be substituted for wheat bran, and high-grade peanut meal for half of the cottonseed meal if warranted by prices. Blackstrap molasses is about equal to corn when used in a limited amount. It is much cheaper.

SOUSA ON TOUR AT 76

John Phillip Sousa, famed bandmaster and "March King," who perhaps has done more to popularize instrumental music in America than any other man living or dead, still wields his baton with masterly skill at the age of 76.

Mr. Sousa came into national prominence as leader of the United States Marine band from 1880 to 1892, during which time he also composed the first of the long list of military marches, which are known and played throughout the world. Since leaving the Marines to conduct his own organization, his success has been remarkable.

One striking characteristic of Mr. Sousa's career has been his encouragement of American players and composers. It is said that when he first took charge of the Marine Band there were only two American-born musicians in the organization, and when he formed his own band twelve years later only 11 out of 50 were native Americans. On his present tour none of his instrumentalists is foreign-born, while nearly one-half of his players are graduates of American colleges and universities, it is said.

During the World War Mr. Sousa was commissioned a lieutenant-commander in the Naval Reserve Force and trained hundreds of musicians at the Great Lakes Naval Station, where he had for a time the largest regularly organized band in the world.

Sousa's Band has played many concerts in Europe and has toured the world, being received everywhere with high acclaim.

The Children's Season

Christmas is, of all times of the year, the children's season. The giving of presents to children at Christmas time is as old as Christianity itself, for it was begun by the three Wise Men of the East who came to Bethlehem, where the Child lay in the manger, bringing gifts.

It is easy to forget what it is that Christmas commemorates. It is easy to think of it merely as a holiday time, a time when there is a great deal of shopping to be done, when the stores are crowded and everybody is busy wrapping up Christmas packages, and the postmen are overloaded and grown-ups as well as children are looking forward expectantly to see what they are going to get for Christmas presents.

The spirit of Christmas is, or should be, the spirit of universal love, of peaceful goodwill between all mankind. Christmas marks the anniversary of a new era, the setting aside of the old laws of vengeance and hatred, of exact and even justice regardless of mercy. We too often forget that. We too easily forget that the message which the Heavenly host brought to earth on that night nearly two thousand years ago was a message of love and joy.

It is meet and proper that we should exchange presents among our friends and loved ones, but the greatest joy of Christmas time comes from the gifts we give the children. Joy for the children, even greater joy for the giver. Whatever our own state of happiness or sorrow, we grown-ups owe it to ourselves, to the spirit and tradition which Christmas commemorates, and to the children themselves, to see that every one of them, at least, has a Merry Christmas.

Most editors are still human beings, they have to eat, wear clothes and pay the men who work for them just like other people, then why not pay the editor for the paper you have been reading for the past 12 months.

About Christmas Tree

The cautionary "shop early" can not apply very practically to Christmas trees, and this is in one respect unfortunate. The lateness of tree purchases sometimes causes an "overproduction" of Christmas trees, because the farmers who cut them from their fields can not estimate what demand they will find. The forest service of the national department of Agriculture has warned farmers in the neighborhoods of large cities to be careful about the quantity of valuable evergreens chopped down, citing the uncertainty of the market in the past, and the organization of great tree-selling agencies which sometimes bring distant competition to bear.

Naturally, fresh trees are preferable to those cut weeks ahead and shipped from remote forests. But the considerable industry which now offers these essential ornaments for sale in metropolitan centers has contrived to overcome to a considerable extent the factor of time. Trees are preserved in all their lush splendor, and the purchaser may not know whether his own is from yesterday or last month's crop. This fact must be faced, however, if we like to convert a piney hillside into Christmas money. Forestation is under too many severe handicaps already, without suffering an additional setback thru the Christmas tree trade.

One way of adjusting supply to demand, it is pointed out, is to secure advance orders in whatever measure is possible. Buyers can cooperate by placing their requirements early. Thus young trees can be saved, and much useless effort as well.—Atlanta Journal.

When merchants quit advertising, people quit buying, when people quit buying, the factories quit making, unemployment surely follows and depression is the inevitable result.

Mothers And Babies

Five thousand babies a day are born in the United States. About a hundred of each day's baby crop die before they are a month old. About fifty of the five thousand daily mothers die in childbirth. Most of these deaths can be prevented, if proper care is taken, according to medical and social authorities who have been studying the subject.

It would be hard to imagine a more useful work than the spreading of knowledge about the prevention of this unnecessary toll of deaths. That is being undertaken by a group of public-spirited men and women, who are establishing maternity centers in various parts of the country, to which any expectant mother can go and receive sound advice and help.

It will take a long time to get the entire population into the habit of taking special precautions against the perils of childbirth. The human race has been having babies for a long time, and most people regard it as a natural process about which there is nothing special to be done. But the fact remains that in our civilized United States the death-rate in maternity is higher than it is anywhere in Europe, where the subject has long been regarded as a science.

The peanut fed hog has come into his own. It has been thoroughly demonstrated that the hams from a peanut fed hog are just as palatable as those from the corn fed ones. These hogs have been scaled by buyers one cent per pound, but that should not be done any more.

We read some where that it was said "the smallest room in the world, was mushroom, but the largest room was room for improvement." That statement is worthy of remembering. It matters not how well you have performed your duty, there is room for you to have done it better.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

Hip, Hip, Horay Clanton is going to have a great big dance soon. The Clanton Cotillion Club composed of local young social lions, is putting it on in a big way the latter part of this month. Plans now underway show that this one is going to be a dance long to be remembered, and will not be lacking in anyway. (Those two hips at the beginning really have nothing in particular to do with the dance, however.)

I see where the Town Council and Mayor have passed an ordinance about this discharging of fire crackers, etc., in town and I have a hunch that they will make it pretty warm for those fellows violating this new ordinance. The ordinance sets out the limit, by naming streets, in which fire arms are not to be discharged. It might pay for everyone to acquaint themselves with this local law, and eliminate any misunderstanding.

This business of giving Christmas gifts is something not to be sneezed at this year. I think it would be great if everybody would be a little more considerate of the giver. They could do this and feel good about it if they would only remember those persons over the county who will probably have no Christmas this year. Think of the many little tots, who are thinking of Santa Claus, wishing for this and for that, and when Christmas morn rolls around, what will they get. When you are sitting by your warm fire on Christmas morning, and enjoying the luxuries of life as you can afford, can you think of the many small children who are at that moment, hovering around a small fire, with no shoes, very little clothing, scarcely nothing to eat—and then can you feel that you have done your part? Try exchanging places with them in your imagination. Or better, try exchanging places with the parents of these tots. Isn't there a queer feeling that goes through you? Christmas to many little children over his county this year, will be just another day. Maybe you could find two or three families that you could bring a little cheer to by going a bit out of your way—on Christmas Day. If you are well fixed, think of others nearby.

I've seen chickens of various kinds, but Dr. Gragg has some real chickens at his place here. They are called the White Giants, and if you should see the eggs before you saw the hen that laid them, you would believe that it would really take a giant chicken to lay an egg like that. Why one egg would make a breakfast for an ordinary person. These chickens are said to be the largest in the world. Clanton is getting to be something after all.

Last year the school teachers, those of the fairer sex, furnished me with lots of subjects to write on in this column, and no doubt I could find some more material there this year. But I tried it once not long ago, and found out that things have happened to such an extent that I can't even get a look at one because she occupies the continuous gaze of some one of our young social lions. There seems to be something of a monopoly on the whole thing, and I fooled around until I was left out. Since Jack Hayles is at home that kind of closes things up too, and then the high school imported a couple of handsome young men teachers, and that closed up two more prospects of the high school teachers, and by gum, there ain't no opening for a young fellow to break into with our school teachers this year. I'm lamenting over the fact that there seems to be something they want that I haven't got, and probably wouldn't know it if I had it. I'm going to try to get some of these fellows to tip me off as to how it is done, because it looks interesting to me, and easy—if you know how.

Due to the above facts pointed out, it looks like I'm going to be at a loss when time comes for me to pick my celebrated "Who's Who" this year, cause I can't really tell who's who in a complicated affair like it is. But I won't fall down on that job and along about Christmas I hope to have all the information in hand in order to name those to be listed in my "Who's Who of 1930."

Did you ever stop to think of the many outstanding things Clanton does have that are ahead of the rest of the country. We folks who live here ought to just stop and realize that Chilton County has got lots of things to be thankful for. Of course many of these things we all pass up as 'just in the day's work,' but in reality they are something worthwhile, and there is a possibility of these outstanding things being made more outstanding if perhaps a little more time was put on them. But some fellow might get a bright idea about improving something here, and the rest of the folks would say go to it, if you think you can do it. Well, I couldn't blame the poor fellow if he said to himself, "If I can't get cooperation, from the rest of the folks, it looks silly for me to try it."

Speaking of being nonchalant, here is the proper time to display that great and noble attitude—when your best girl friend issues a hint to you that a radio would make a splendid Christmas gift—and your bank book looks like the scores of those teams who played against the Crimson Tide this year.

Was talking to Broadus Connater the other day and while talking to him, I was just thinking of how he was able to reason things out, and comes to a conclusion almost always that is right, too. In my opinion, Broadus has certainly shown some splendid work in his business at W. W. Fox's Store here. He has really done the people of this county a great big favor by offering to them merchandise at very low prices, in fact at prices that I can't see how he does it. And too, he has in stock almost everything that can be used around the home and farm. A fellow who needs something in the hardware or furniture line just oughta go around to see Broadus, and take a look at the low prices on real standard goods. One can almost buy two items there for the same price he would heretofore had to pay for one. That is what I call helping out in a time of need. I believe that Broadus realizes that the people do not have as much money to spend right now as they used to have, and so he just fixed it by reducing the prices on his stock. I take my hat off to a fellow who is willing to do that.

When you are stumped on what to give for a Christmas present, just solve the problem by having the Chilton County News sent to a friend as a gift. It is a practical, useful and an appreciative gift, one that will be remembered every week in the year. The News will fix up a nice little gift announcement with the first issue. Not bad, is it?

LIVING UP TO A MOTTO

There will be fewer aliens in Trenton, N. J., in future if the Civilians of that city have their way. This does not mean that persons of foreign birth are to be "run out of town," or that any drastic measures are to be taken. It means that alien residents are to be urged and aided to become American citizens.

The movement started several months ago, when after some weeks of planning and preparation the Trenton Civitan Club launched a Citizen Week, opened with a mass meeting of citizens and non-citizens, at which the benefits of citizenship were set forth.

Newspaper publicity, posters, literature, speeches and other means were employed to impress the alien population with the importance of becoming citizens of their adopted country. Many committees were put to work, and the cooperation of other civic leaders was sought and obtained. During the week about 1,200 alien residents made application for citizenship, and many more have done so since, most of whom filed their first naturalization papers.

It will be the task of the Civitan Club to keep in touch with these potential citizens and by organizing classes in English and other branches help them to qualify for actual citizenship. Trenton is a city of many aliens of whom more than 6,000 are entirely illiterate, being unable to read or write any language. So it may be seen that the Civilians have a real job cut out for them. The motto of Civitan International is "Builders of Good Citizenship." Solid, if ever, has a civic organization exemplified its motto in such a practical and effective manner as has the Trenton Civitan Club.

WANT BONUS CASHED

Although the American Legion is officially opposed to the plan, many former soldiers who hold bonus certificates are asking that the government pay them off in cash immediately, as an aid in tiding them over the present period of unemployment.

The law under which the certificates were issued provides that a small portion of the face value may now be obtained as a loan, but this involves quite a bit of difficulty and red tape. In spite of this, about a million and a half veterans have obtained these small loans, aggregating some 275 million dollars.

Bonus certificates have been issued to nearly three and a half million veterans. These are payable in full in 1945, or at death, and will have an average value of $1,012 if held until maturity. Should the government elect to pay them off now, however, the "computed" value of each certificate would be only one-half of its face value. That is why the American Legion advises members to hold their certificates, which are in fact paid-up endowment life insurance policies.

Obviously, it is desirable for the veteran to hold his certificate as a protection for his family. But many are in distress, and a half loaf now seems to them better than a whole loaf 15 years from now.

Even if a law were passed to permit those who desired to cash their certificates now, others would not be forced to do so, and all who wished could retain them under the terms now in effect.

How Do You Make Up Your Christmas Gift List?

Gimbel Brothers

Most people have as much trouble deciding what to give to who, as they do with the family budget. Quite often it's apt to be the same people, because those who have got down to it and organized a household budget, find the task of compiling a Christmas gift list comparatively simple. They go about it the same way.

Instead of wondering whether to begin by shopping all the stores hit or miss, or putting the thing off until the last minute in the hope that ideas will come to you, why not start by listing all the people you want to remember, making sure your list is complete, the same way you do with your greeting card list.

Then against each name put down several general headings, trite as they may seem, under one of which headings you will find something sufficiently new or different to satisfy you. Take sister for example. Bracket her for lingerie, jewelry, perfume, luggage, accessories, books, umbrella, or perhaps a piece of furniture, picture, mirror or other decoration for her room.

Perhaps you can cut this long list down, certainly you can add to it. But when you have been faithful over these few things—have made general headings like this for everyone on your list, trite as the subject may seem, then watch the newspapers and shop the stores for the variety you seek—the "different" gift you seek. You'll find plenty of originality in the things you see, but you'll find it under the same old general headings that you've always known. Don't despair for that reason. Styles change everything these days and make all things new.

In many families Christmas is a time for giving and getting things that are known to be wanted, and are none the less appreciated. Practical gifts lose nothing in value if all may enjoy them, like a new rug or radio. Even a new coat or pair of shoes may bring as much if not more pleasure in their serviceability than some more distinctive but less useful gift. Organize your gift-giving this year and shop earlier for the things you need.

You will find that the advices of the stores—to shop early are not given for their own benefit alone. While it is true that the last minute rush is a severe tax on the capacity of the clerks among whose tempers and abilities are only human after all, it is also an advantage to you.

TOYS OF COURSE

It is an old adage that the father has as much fun out of the electrical train set he buys for his little son as the youngster does himself. In fact, we have seen youngsters telling their daddies that their time to play with the train was up and it was now the turn of the little chap for whom the set was ostensibly bought.

It is easy to understand why parents get just as much pleasure out of taking their children to visit the toy display as the children do themselves, and surely there is much to enjoy. Every year springs it floods of utterly new and amazingly wonderful things. This year there are just simply too many to describe.

Things mechanical have been improved. Things colorful are still more striking, games more absorbing and the variety even greater than it was before.

Toytown at its best welcomes you only once a year, and perhaps it is the jolliest occasion of the whole calendar. Surely the children look forward to it with good reason. Take them to meet Santa Claus as early in the day as possible. Let them see the decorations that each of the shops specialize in making so attractive.

FOR THE BOUDOIR

It's so hard to go wrong with a gift of perfume or any of the scores of other items that come under the head of toilet requisites, that even a mere man may choose such a gift with sure success.

The more costly perfumes, rare distillations of genuine distinction, are always prized, but it is surprising how much there is to choose from for just a few dollars.

All the stores are showing gift sets of perfume, toilet water and powder; toilet sets in beautiful colors consisting of brush, comb and mirror and other pieces, boxes of scented soaps, compact and rouges, all handsomely packed. Skilled advice in what to choose helps to make choice easy for the man who doubts his own judgment.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS from GOODYEAR

We Come To The Close Of The Year 1930 With Thankful Appreciation For The Many Friends And Users Of Goodyear Tires. We Want You To Know That We Appreciate Your Business In The Past. We Face The Future With Confidence, Knowing That We Shall Continue To Have For Our Customers and Friends the Best Value Known To The World In Automobile Tires, And That Value Backed By Our Unexcelled Service

WHY

More People Ride On Goodyears Than On Any Other Kind

Reading the advertisements one would say the tire makers are scarcely in agreement as to who produces the finest tires. But it seems to us the people who buy tires have definitely settled that question.

For fifteen years now it has been true: "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than any other kind." This is a preference with which the tire makers have had little to do; the people have decided it for themselves.

An endorsement so widespread and so unprejudiced as this surely must have great significance for you as a tire buyer. It simply means that millions of car owners, over a period of years, have found in Goodyear Tires those factors of value which you yourself are seeking.

It means that every question of performance, traction, long-life, service and price is satisfactorily answered in Goodyear Tires. It must mean also that such questions are not equally satisfactorily answered in other tires, or such other tires would more closely rival Goodyear in popularity.

We invite you to think this over as you come to solve your tire problems of the future.

Our Special Offer FROM NOW TO JANUARY FIRST

IN ORDER TO SHOW OUR APPRECIATION FOR THE LOYAL PATRONAGE OF OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS DURING THE YEAR 1930, WE HAVE DETERMINED TO BRING THIS YEAR'S SALES TO A CLOSE WITH A SPECIAL APPRECIATION OFFER IN WHICH WE WILL GIVE

10 Per Cent REDUCTION FROM OUR REGULAR PRICES

ON EVERY GOODYEAR TIRE OR TUBE WE SELL FROM NOW UNTIL THE FIRST OF JANUARY, 1931. AS YOU KNOW, OUR PRICES ARE ALREADY AS LOW AS THE PRICES ON ANY STANDARD HIGH GRADE TIRE. WHILE THIS OFFER LASTS WE WILL MAKE A FURTHER REDUCTION OF TEN PER CENT FROM THE REGULAR PRICE.

RADIO CHIEF APPROVES
MORE POWER FOR WAPI

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—An increase in power of Station WAPI at Birmingham to 50 kilowatts, 10 times its present power, was recommended to the Federal Radio Commission Monday in a report submitted by E. A. Yost, its chief examiner. At the same time, he recommended similar increases in power for nearly all of the 24 stations operating on cleared channels which had applied for 50 kilowatts. The Commission will take the report under consideration. If granted the increased power, WAPI, which is owned by the three largest State educational institutions of Alabama, would continue to share time with KVOO at Tulsa, under the chief examiner's recommendation.

INSURANCE COMPANIES
LIMITED ON 'BENEFITS'

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 16.—State Superintendent of Insurance George H. Thigpen issued official notice yesterday to all life insurance companies that after Jan. 1, 1931, no life insurance company doing business in Alabama will be permitted to issue policies of life insurance which guarantee the payment of a specific amount of money in addition to regular benefits provided for by the policies or in lieu thereof the issue of shares of the capital stock of the company, or shares in the capital stock of other corporations. The foregoing practice, according to Mr. Thigpen, is in violation of section 475 of the insurance laws of Alabama. In answer to an inquiry he stated that there are several companies engaged in business in Alabama, that are now doing this.

700 More Here via Stork Route Than In 1929

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 16.—Alabama which ranked fourth in the United States in the recorded birth rate last year, has already recorded an increase of 700 births this year over 1929, according to a report issued yesterday by Dr. W. T. Fales, director of the bureau of vital statistics of the State Health Department.

In 1929, according to a recent bulletin issued by the United States Bureau of Census, New Mexico, Utah and North Carolina had higher birth rates than Alabama. The birth rate for New Mexico was 26.9 per 1,000 population; for Utah, 24.8; North Carolina, 24.7, and Alabama, 24.

Last year, Dr. Fales reported, there were 4,600 fewer births registered in Alabama than in 1927. In that year there were 67,699 births recorded which was the largest number reported in Alabama for a single year.

The State Board of Health is anxious to register every child born in the State, Dr. Fales said.

"Every year there must be several thousand unreported births in Alabama," he said. "A great many births are not recorded due to irregular reporting. Prompt registration insures complete reporting and more accurate reports. The law provides for registration of all births within 10 days. Every physician is urged to get the habit of reporting all births at once."

"Registrars will be making their last report of the year in a short time. If every physician would check his records to see that he has not overlooked the reporting of any birth during 1930, the number of unregistered births will be decreased materially. Doctors should make sure that births in which there were two physicians or a physician and a midwife are reported. Observation in the past has shown that these births are very apt not to be reported. A definite understanding should be reached in these cases as to whom shall be responsible for reporting the birth."

"The slogan of the Bureau of Vital Statistics is 'every baby born in Alabama is entitled to registration.' Each physician in Alabama is urged to help the Bureau make this possible."

$18,000 LOST IN FIRE

Six Head of Cattle and 75 Bales Of Cotton Burned

Jasper, Ala., Dec. 15.—A loss of $18,000 was estimated from fire which destroyed the barn of Kilgore & Glass, and the cotton gin of R. G. Kilgore. Six head of cattle and 75 bales of cotton were lost.

Six head of cattle were saved from the flames. Brskine Key, night watchman, said the fire was caused by sparks from a train, which ignited the barn of Kilgore & Glass. Fanned by a brisk wind, the flames spread beyond control before the fire department arrived.

DIRGE FOR THE YEAR

By Percy Bysshe Shelley
Orphan hours, the year is dead,
Come and sigh, come and weep!
Merry hours, smile instead,
For the year is but asleep.
See, it smiles as it is sleeping.
Mocking your untimely weeping.
As an earthquake rocks a corpse
In its coffin in the clay,
So white Winter, that rough nurse,
Rocks the dead-cold year to-day;
Solemn hours! wail aloud
For your mother in her shroud.
As the wild air stirs and sways
The tree-sprung cradle of a child,
So the breath of these days
Rocks the year:—be calm and mild,
Trembling hours; she will arise
With new love within her eyes.
January gray is here,
Like a sexton by her grave;
February bears the bier;
March with grief doth howl and rave,
And April weeps—but, O, ye hours,
Follow with May's fairest flowers.

STATE OF ALABAMA CELEBRATES 111TH ANNIVERSARY

Rib Of Georgia Became A State December 14, 1819

Last Sunday, December 14, marked the 111th anniversary of the birth of the State of Alabama, and three million native or adopted sons and daughters of Alabama congratulated their mother state on her birthday as a commonwealth.

"Alabama Day" has been officially observed only since being proclaimed by Governor William W. Brandon in 1923, but the state brings to mind December 14, 1819, when the Congress of the United States admitted into the Union a section created in part from a rib of Georgia.

One hundred and eleven years since December 14, 1819 finds great cities where at that time, there were Indian villages, trading posts or virgin forests. It finds teeming thousands where a few settlers were before; networks of highways and railroads in the place where formerly were isolated postroads and trains, the airplane invades the heavens where the eagle, the hawk and the gull once reigned.

Were DeSoto, the Spanish explorer, credited by the historians as being one of the first white men to set foot on Alabama soil, to return, he would find barges plying the rivers he took days to cross, paved roads to facilitate the crossing of Southern lowlands he was forced to circumvent.

The busy decades of the State's infancy had passed, the long struggle with sister states and hectic days of the Reconstruction period had been survived, when her people began to consider celebrating the anniversary of her beginning.

According to available authority, it was Mrs. Idle King Sorsby, now living in Florida, who first started the movement to have the date observed. Under the auspices of a woman's club of which she was historian, a celebration was held in Birmingham in 1899, the 80th anniversary of Alabama's admission into the Union.

So that the day might be observed appropriately, there must needs be a flag. This emblem was designed by Mrs. Sorsby previous to the first formal celebration, and had been adopted as the official flag of Alabama in 1895.

The State code provides that "the flag of Alabama shall be a crimson cross of St. Andrew on a field of white." The white star in the center is emblematic of Montgomery, four other stars representing former capitals—St. Stephens, seat of Government for the Territorial legislature; Huntsville, where the first constitutional convention was held in 1819; Cahaba and Tuscaloosa, capitals in turn before the present permanent location was selected.

On Dec. 14, 1930, there are fewer stretches of wilderness now cleared into fields which already have given up their seasonal bounty, over which the state bird, the Yellowhammer, may fly undisturbed. Most of the slopes on which in 1819 grew the Goldenrod, Alabama flower, likewise produce food for men and beast, or are denoted by man-made tools which extract the hidden mineral wealth.

BROWNIES ARE FAVORITES

There comes inevitably in every little girl's life the moment when her sense of hospitality is aroused and she will want to make something all by herself to serve the little girls who are coming over to play with her in the afternoon. Mother will undoubtedly be appealed to and, if wise, will suggest the ever-favorite "brownies," sometimes referred to as baked fudge. Brownies have the advantage of being extremely simple to make, nutritious but not over-rich, and are always greeted with murmurs of delight. If the following simple directions are followed, good results can be expected, even by the little girl who has had no previous experience. Remember that all measurements should be level and accurate. By using self-rising flour, no baking powder nor salt

Little girls have to have tea parties. They like to prepare cookies themselves. This is possible by using self-rising flour which takes all the guess-work out of baking. This little hostess is serving to her guests grape punch and brownies made by herself with ready-prepared flour or self-rising flour.

is required, as these ingredients have already been added in just the right proportions by the manufacturer before you buy the flour. Such flour is easy for children to use. There is no measuring and mixing of baking powder or salt and success is easily assured. The flour needs only one sifting.

Brownies.
1/4 cup butter 1/2 cup self-rising flour
3 squares or oz. cooking chocolate 1 tsp. vanilla
1 1/2 cups sugar 1/2 cup nut meats
2 eggs

First add the butter to the chocolate and melt over hot water. Add the sugar and eggs, unbeaten. Beat until well blended. Then add the remaining ingredients in the order given and when well mixed pour into a greased and floured cake pan to the depth of one-half inch. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until quite firm but not brown. Cut into squares while still warm.

These may be served with a beverage such as lemonade or grape punch, or in the place of cake with ice cream if a more substantial colation is desired.

WHO WAS SANTA CLAUS?

SANTA CLAUS, as the typification of the Christmas spirit, is always identified in popular legend with St. Nicholas who died in 352 A. D. at Myra in Asia. The Saint was born in Asia Minor, and an angel is said to have appeared at the time of his birth and to have told his parents that their son should be named Nicholas which means "Victory of the People." So pleased were they that they gave many gifts in honor of his coming birth. St. Nicholas was thus associated, even before his birth, with the present custom of Christmas gifts.

Another legend which links St. Nicholas to this custom is that of the nobleman of Parara. This nobleman was very poor, and had three beautiful unmarried daughters. The Saint heard about this family, and wanted to help them without letting his assistance be known. So, on each of three successive dark nights, he took a purse of gold and dropped it through a grating in the nobleman's house. It is possible that this was the beginning of the tradition that Santa Claus comes by stealth to leave presents in the night.

He Always Comes

At any rate Santa Claus comes every year, and people enjoy his coming so much that they always hold a feast to celebrate the event and to commemorate the Christ Child who was born on December 25. Sometimes housewives are puzzled as to just what to serve at this feast to make it appetizing and original, so we are suggesting here a menu for a Christmas dinner which will amply fulfill both of these requirements.

Christmas Stars
Ripe Olives
Pickled Watermelon Rind
Roast Turkey Cranberry Jelly
Mashed Potatoes Fried Parsnips
Frozen Pineapple Salad
Kris Kringle Plum Pudding
Egyptian Fruit Caramels Coffee

The Recipes

Here are the recipes calculated to serve eight people:
Christmas Stars: Cut slices of bread with a star-shaped cutter and either toast the stars or sauté them in butter. Spread thin with lemon butter, which is creamed butter seasoned with lemon juice. Mash an avocado, season to taste with lemon juice and salt, and spread evenly over the stars. Chop pimiento fine, and cover all the center part of the stars, up to the points, leaving them green. Cut tiny stars of green pepper and place one in the center of each star. Serve on tiny dollies on plates garnished with cress or parsley.

Tomato and Clam Broth: Combine the contents of two 10-ounce cans of tomato juice with the contents of one No. 2 can of clam broth, and heat. Season to taste with tobacco sauce, celery salt and salt and pepper. A little lemon juice may be added if desired.

The Chilled Dishes

For the cranberry jelly to go with the turkey, chill a can of jelly in the ice box until a few minutes before dinner, then open it smoothly and turn out the contents in a perfect cylinder.
Frozen Pineapple Salad: Pack a No. 2 can of crushed pineapple in ice and salt, and allow to freeze.

Beat one cup cream, and add one-half cup mayonnaise, a few grains of salt and one cup strawberries cut in pieces. Pack in a round can of the same diameter or smaller than the pineapple can. Pack this also in ice and salt, and let it freeze. When ready to serve, slide out the two frozen molds, and cut each in eight slices. Place a slice of the frozen pineapple on a lettuce leaf, and on top of that a slice of the frozen mayonnaise mixture.

The Sweet Dishes

Kris Kringle Plum Pudding: Steam the contents of a one-pound can of brown bread with raisins in the can, or remove and steam over hot water. Cut in four thick slices, then cut each piece in half crosswise. Set up on edge and pour over the following sauce:

Beat four egg yolks thick, add one-half cup sugar, a few grains salt and one-half cup white grape juice. Cook in double boiler until creamy, stirring constantly. Meanwhile soften one teaspoon gelatin in two teaspoons cold water, then dissolve in the hot liquid. Chill. Just before serving, beat well and fold in one-half cup whipped cream.

Egyptian Fruit Caramels: Combine one cup sugar, two-thirds cup light corn syrup, one cup evaporated milk, one-half cup milk and two tablespoons butter, and boil to 246 degrees. Add one-half cup chopped dates and one-fourth cup chopped figs, and pour into a buttered pan. Let stand till cold, remove the whole slab of candy to a board and cut into squares. Wrap in oiled paper if desired. This makes one and one-eighth pounds.

MAKING MONEY FROM GAME

Sportsmen's Plan to Pay for Shooting Rights To Be Extended Nationally

By Caleb Johnson

Farmers in every state in the union may soon be able to quit worrying about the low price of corn or wheat, with money rolling in from a new and more profitable crop.

The sportsmen of the United States have opened this new source of riches for the farmers when they adopted, at the recent Seventeenth American Game Conference, a new game policy setting forth their belief that the farmer who practices environmental control for the production of more game is entitled to compensation for his trouble.

Adoption of this policy by a conference which speaks for millions of sportsmen from every state means, in brief, that hunters are ready to give financial encouragement to the farmer for the farmer's part in preserving their sport. The farmers who want to raise a "crop" of game are assured of a steady and profitable "market" from sportsmen who hunt on his land.

The new game policy was embodied in a report submitted to the conference by a committee which has made a long study of the situation, and its straightforward statement of the principle of compensation marks a new era in the relationship between farmers and the sportsmen, to the great benefit of both.

To the farmer the new policy means a new source of revenue from all his lands, those now idle as well as those in cultivation. To the sportsman, the new policy means a steadily increasing supply of game in the United States.

The statement of policy adopted by the sportsmen points out that the game situation in the United States requires a more far-sighted policy of colonizing and protecting game on land not otherwise used was deemed ample, but dwindling game supplies have shown that this policy does not go far enough. Owners of costly farm and commercial forest land can hardly be expected to devote their lands either wholly or in part to the cause of game propagation without suitable compensation yet without their aid the game supply will doubtless continue to diminish.

Just what form the compensation will take is left for practical working-out but speakers at the conference cited a number of experiments to prove that the policy will result in great benefit to both farmers and sportsmen.

Ross L. Leffler, president of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, who was chairman of the conference, declared that the practice of compensation in parts of his state had enabled many farmers to make more money out of the wild game raised on their land than on their farm crops.

"There are various methods by which the farmer is compensated for his trouble in fostering the wild life on his land," Mr. Leffler said.

"In some places the sportsman pays the farmer a fixed daily rate for the privilege of hunting on his land, and as most sportsmen spend several days in the field, this may run to a goodly sum."

"Beyond that, many farmers give the sportsman room and board at a proper figure, adding to their revenue. And out of friendly contacts thus made come other sources of revenue."

"Many sportsmen, for instance, leave their dogs to board with the farmer the year round. Or they become customers for the farmers' surplus eggs and milk, having it shipped to them regularly. Or the farmer or his sons may act as guide at a daily fee. This, naturally, is nearly all clear profit to the farmer, but the sportsman benefits by having access to a supply of game which will increase, instead of decrease every year."

Seth Gordon, conservation director of the Izaak Walton League of America, was equally firm in his support of the new policy.

"It is very apparent," he said "that the sportsman must pay a fair rate for his shooting, or he will have none tomorrow. It is likewise apparent that unless the landowners are given a square deal and taken into partnership, they will become rebellious, allow no hunting and take no interest in the game crop."

In Texas, said another speaker, J. G. Burr, director of research of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, many farmers working under the state's hunting preserve system are making more money on their game crop than on their cattle or cotton, because the game market does not fluctuate.

Texas farmers who establish shooting preserves are allowed to charge a maximum of $4 a day for the privilege of hunting on their land. As a result, the acreage in these hunting preserves rose from 1,000,000 to 2,500,000 in the first two years, and the increase in game may be gauged by the fact that the state shows a 100 per cent increase in takings of wild turkeys, and an increase of 24 per cent in deer.

All the speakers stressed the point that farmers will be put to little cost of time or money to reap this new harvest.

Simply by letting a few patches grow up to woods or brush, leaving a few fence corners untouched, planting a few strips of natural food, occasionally putting out a few ears of corn on stakes or low bushes for feed during the coldest days, and controlling predatory animals and birds, any farmers will have the nucleus for a small game preserve which will bring in an abundant return of cash and increase the nation's now-diminishing game supply.

Best of all, the plan can be put into effect in any state, since there is no state in the union not suitable to raising game of one kind or another, Mr. Gordon said.

Other cardinal points in the game policy adopted by the American Game Conference, which was under the auspices of the American Game Protective Association, and thereby represents the attitude of sportsmen everywhere, were the following:

Extension of the game lands under public ownership and management as fast as funds will permit in the various states.

Training of experts in the field of game administration.

Study the factors favoring game propagation, and increased utilization of these factors.

Enlistment of scientists and non-hunters in the general program of wildlife propagation.

Redistribution of the cost of game administration, now borne almost entirely by hunters through their hunting licenses. The report points out that since game administrations are largely concerned with other wild life besides game, it is unfair to ask the hunter to bear the entire burden alone.

COAL and COKE CREATE PAYROLLS and PROSPERITY

And Are the Most Economical of All Fuels for Power Purposes or Home Heating!

THERE are only three forms of power available to Alabama industry:

ELECTRICITY delivered over a copper wire.

NATURAL GAS delivered thru a metal pipe line.

ALABAMA COAL AND COKE delivered in a railroad car.

Of these three forms of power only ONE employs a vast labor army to produce and distribute. That is Alabama's own natural fuel—ALABAMA COAL OR COKE.

Electricity is generated largely at a hydro-power dam, which can be operated with a handful of men. It is automatically distributed by transmission lines. Little labor is required to transport it. Less labor is required to produce it.

The same is true of Natural Gas. It is pumped through pipe lines from Louisiana. No Alabama labor is required to produce it. And when pipe lines are once laid, no Alabama labor will be needed to deliver it. Only a few meter readers will be required to collect the toll and send it from the state.

COAL AND COKE alone of all these power forms create mighty payrolls year after year. These payrolls are the backbone of Alabama's prosperity and progress.

COAL AND COKE create payrolls these three ways:

FIRST, IN PRODUCTION—It takes more than 26,000 Alabama men a year to mine and prepare Alabama's normal coal tonnage. To these 26,000 Alabama workers Alabama's coal industry pays normally the huge sum of $34,500,000. About 2,500 more Alabama men are employed by by-product industries which convert a big portion of this tonnage into coke.

SECOND, IN DISTRIBUTION—It takes 400,000 railroad cars a year to haul Alabama coal from mine to consumer and about 160,000 cars a year to haul Alabama coke from ovens to the market. This gives steady work at good pay to many thousand trainmen, engineers, railway clerks and other railroad operatives.

THIRD, IN THE CONTRIBUTION WHICH IT MAKES TO OTHER STATE INDUSTRIES—Alabama's coal industry is a big buyer of Alabama lumber, brick, cement, iron, steel and other products made in Alabama. Its purchases keep men employed in the industries and businesses which make or sell these products. Alabama's coal and coke contribute indirectly to the building of payrolls in our steel mills and car building plants, as coal is hauled in railroad cars built largely out of Alabama steel and which roll over track laid largely with Alabama rails, and on Alabama ballast.

The commercial coal industry is virtually the only basic Alabama industry which is entirely owned by Alabama citizens, financed by Alabama capital and operated by Alabama labor.

Every time an industry or home deserts Alabama's natural fuel—COAL OR COKE—it makes business worse, not merely for the coal industry, but for every citizen who lives in or makes a living in the state.

Think twice before substituting natural gas or electricity for coal or coke. Think of the State! Think of yourself! When you use any substitute fuel you are actually endangering your own community—AND YOUR OWN JOB!

"Swift & Company Pays Me Cash For My Produce"

"When I take my butterfat, eggs and poultry to the nearest Swift & Company produce plant, I get the going market price for the best I can deliver. And I'm only one of the 200,000 producers taking supplies to the 80 odd Swift plants."

"That will give you some idea of the huge quantities which Swift & Company must buy each day in order to keep supplies of Brookfield Butter, Brookfield Eggs and Premium Milked Chickens moving along 600 car routes and 400 branch houses to every community in the country. This nation-wide distribution makes a Swift producer independent of local gluts or shortages."

"Imagine how efficient this organization must be in order to pay cash to its 200,000 producers; to give its 45,000 shareholders a return on their investment—and, by the way, I'm one of those shareholders. And, finally, so that it can expand and thrive on a margin of less than 2 cents on each dollar of sales."

"Part of this organization of 58,000 people, who receive just wages, are home folks of ours. They live right here, build their homes with us, patronize our local merchants, pay taxes like you and me. You bet I'm glad to be in this family."

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Dr. A. F. Harman, State Superintendent of Education, outlining the needs of public schools of Alabama before the Montgomery Rotary Club in a recent address, estimated that the schools will need approximately thirty million dollars annually during the next administration to place them on the plane they should be. Approximately twenty-five million is now being spent on the public school system in Alabama annually. Dr. Harman said that the state could not afford, in the interest of its children, to fail in the support of public education. He added that to place Alabama where it should be with reference to public schools, would require an additional four and a half million dollars annually over and above that which is now expended. This need, Dr. Harman said, is based on the present seven months term and on the estimated daily average cost of approximately one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars. Dr. Harman estimated that it would require seven-hundred fifty thousand dollars annually to dispense with the much discussed incidental and matriculation fees, this without increasing the length of school terms a single day.

Transportation is being made, Dr. Harman declared, at the cost of more than one and a half million dollars per year out of funds originally intended for instructional purposes. The present Equalization and Attendance funds will have to be increased approximately six hundred thousand each annually. The amount of the Equalization Fund is now nine hundred thousand and the Attendance Fund eight hundred fifty thousand annually.

In addition Dr. Harman said the rural school building, repair and equipment fund, in order to function properly, should be increased six hundred thousand dollars per year, to nine hundred fifty thousand.

The remainder of the four and a half million, he asserted, should go to institutions and to other causes to be named later.

Dr. Harman also said that the time has come in Alabama when we ought to begin to establish some kind of a measure or dependable estimate as to the returns on our educational investments. "The people of the State of Alabama, as a rule, have been generous in their support of public education," he said. "The percentage of the income of the people of this state invested in education, according to the latest available figures, is the same as the average for the United States. It follows that in order to have a system of schools above the average for the nation, Alabama, not being a rich state, must spend over the average of its income. It is vital that we begin to establish fairly dependable estimates of the returns from the investments."

The speaker also declared that public education should be kept free from entangling alignments. "We have done a very good job at this in Alabama, the outstanding exception being in the office of county superintendent of education" he said. "There are some twenty-two counties now in which the county superintendent of education is elected by the people rather than selected on a strictly professional, non-political basis."

In conclusion, Dr. Harman said there is need for an era of mutual understanding and good will between the people professionally engaged in education on the one hand and the people who must pay the bills on the other. "This need exists, he said, with particular reference to the State Department of Education, which ought to be resorted to as an organization for guidance and leadership in the technical aspects of education."

Military Barred At Inauguration

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 14.—Judge B. M. Miller, governor-elect, has requested that soldiers be omitted from the inaugural parade to be held here on January 19, it was learned yesterday, when the first tentative plans for the inauguration were announced by Mayor Gunter, who, as mayor of the Capital City, is automatically chairman of the committee in charge. The wishes of the incoming Governor will of course, be followed.

Mayor Gunter said that the Governor-elect had requested as simple a program as could be arranged, but did not mention Judge Miller's request that guard troops not be called out for the parade. This is not without precedent as several inaugural parades in the past have been without military, but it is usual to include several companies of guardsmen.

Most of the details of the inauguration exercises have been left to an executive committee and finance committee which are to meet Monday at 3 p. m., at the City Hall to work out plans for the inauguration, Mayor Gunter said.

The ceremony as tentatively planned, will proceed much in the same manner as other inaugural ceremonies. There will be a parade at 11 a. m., in which Gov. Graves and Gov.-elect Miller will ride together to a reviewing stand to be erected in front of the Capitol. There they will mount the reviewing stand until the parade has passed.

Gov. Miller will then deliver his inaugural address from the stand. Loud speakers will be installed.

Immediately following the address a reception in honor of Gov. and Mrs. Miller will be held at the Capitol. A dinner is also being planned for the new Chief Executive and First Lady.

The program will close with the inaugural ball at the City Auditorium. Gov. and Mrs. Miller will lead the grand march with many State, County and City officials participating.

The inauguration is expected to assemble many distinguished guests from other States and thousands of visitors.

SAFETY OF AIR MAIL

It is perhaps perfectly natural that many persons should think air mail less likely to reach its destination than that dispatched otherwise, on account of accidents. But this idea is shown to be erroneous by a recent official statement by the Post Office Department.

Instead of being the most hazardous, the postal authorities declare sending mail by air is the safest means of all, safer than sending it by either train or ship. Air mail is practically never lost unless a wrecked airplane burns. And air mail pilots have comparatively few serious mishaps.

Figures given out show that during the fiscal year ended June 30, mail planes delivered safely 7,715,741 pounds of mail and lost 4,665 pounds, the loss being only six-hundredths of one per cent. Recently mail pouches made of asbestos have been introduced experimentally, in the hope of further reducing fire losses or eliminating them altogether.

Reduce the Acid

SICK stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour. Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. For 50 years the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, the kind physicians have prescribed for 50 years.

CROPS BRING $151,519,000 REPORT SHOWS

Figures Show 1930 Crops Are Far Short Of Crops
In 1929

Due to drouth and the lower prices of farm commodities, the aggregate value of crop production in Alabama is about $55,000,000 short of the value of the 1929 crop, reports F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician, who said, "The heaviest reduction is found in cotton, of which we produced more but which was worth nearly forty million dollars less."

"We are short about eight million bushels of corn, 400,000 bushels of oats, 1,400,000 bushels of sweet potatoes, and some less truck crops," he said. "We grew more peanuts and cowpeas, more syrup, and more fruit and pecans, but less satsumas. This crop was grown on about 300,000 more crop acres than the 1929 crop."

Following is the acreage, production and value of crops produced in Alabama in 1930.

Cotton: 1,495,000 bales; 3,801,000 acres, and valued at $82,225,000.

Corn: 29,505,000 bushels produced, on 2,810,000 acres, valued at $28,325,000.

Hay: 452,000 tons produced, on 606,000 acres, valued at $7,797,000.

Peanuts: 9,288,000 bushels produced, on 387,000 acres, valued at $6,502,000.

Cowpeas: 1,485,000 bushels produced, on 165,000 acres, valued at $2,747,000.

Oats: 1,908,000 bushels produced, on 109,000 acres, valued at $1,221,000.

Soybeans: 192,000 bushels produced, on 16,000 acres, valued at $403,000.

Velvet Beans: 130,000 tons produced, on 45,000 acres, valued at $1,755,000.

Potatoes: 2,875,000 bushels produced, on 36,000 acres, valued at $4,169,000.

Sweet Potatoes: 6,290,000 bushels produced on 74,000 acres, valued at $5,346,000.

Sorghum Syrup: 2,535,000 gallons produced, on 39,000 acres, valued at $1,774,000.

Sugar Cane Syrup: 1,785,000 gallons produced, on 17,000 acres, valued at $1,428,000.

Truck Crops: 50,000 acres planted to truck crops, and valued at $4,700,000.

Apples: 760,000 bushels of apples produced, and valued at $1,026,000.

Peaches: 1,105,000 bushels produced, valued at $1,326,000.

Pears: 200,000 bushels produced, and valued at $200,000.

Pecans: 2,500,000 pounds produced, valued at $570,000.

Satsumas: 6,000 boxes produced and valued at $6,000.

Total: Acreage 8,561,000; value of crops, $151,519,000.

This compares with 8,277,000 acres in the same crops last year with a total value of $206,528,000.

The figures above relating to summer legumes refer to the aggregate acreage and production. The following shows the harvested volumes of these crops:

Peanuts: 221,000 acres; 5,304,000 bushels harvested.

Cowpeas: 90,000 acres; 414,000 bushels harvested.

Soybeans: 3,000 acres; 14,000 bushels harvested.

The remainder of these crops was hogged or grazed off by livestock.

Hospital Commencement Is Impressive

The graduating exercises of the Central Alabama Hospital held at the Baptist Church here Monday night, were carried out in a most impressive manner, in which Miss Ollie Louise Gentry received her diploma as a graduate nurse.

The Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the local Methodist church, delivered a splendid sermon, that was beautiful in its thoughts. B. Lawrence acted in charge of the program.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, president of the Central Alabama Hospital, read the rules that have been adopted by hospital and graduate nurses to follow, and delivered the diploma to Miss Gentry, who repeated Florence Nightingale's pledge. All nurses of the hospital were present in full uniform and Miss Grace Robinson, superintendent of the institution, presented Miss Gentry with a beautiful bouquet of carnations. Mr. Percy M. Pitts, sang selections, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Frank Mullins. The choir also rendered several selections.

CHEST FUNDS AIDED GREATLY IN PAST YEAR

Welfare Supt. Shows Report Of Activities Sponsored By Chest Funds

Up to November 1st, 1930, the child welfare superintendent handled 247 cases with 198 families represented and 607 children involved. The parental status of these families is as follows: deserting parent, 30; mother dead, 17; unmarried mother, 16; father dead, 32; complete orphans, 13; invalid parent, 12; insane or feeble minded parent, 8; father in prison, 13; both parents living, 57. The following problems were found in the above cases: delinquency, poverty, insanity, neglect, health, immorality, cruelty and to a certain extent, school attendance.

In the majority of these cases they were given help through the chest funds. Food, medical service, clothes, books, etc., were provided in many cases as far as the funds were available.

The chest funds have been partly instrumental in the cradle work being done in the county, 10 children have had operations or corrections made in order that they may be more normal and more able to be useful citizens when grown. In several instances the chest fund has provided the first clothes for a new born baby to put on as it has arrived into the world, which without it would have had nothing. The chest funds have supplied food to children where there was nothing at all in the kitchen for them to eat or nothing to prepare for them to eat.

Every indication is that the calls of real need will be greater this year than during the past. There are hundreds of families in Chilton County who are without work and who are unable to secure work regularly whose children are not getting the proper food to keep their bodies strong enough to fight off diseases. It will take every person in Chilton County who can do so to help these less fortunate children and families to be self-supporting.

T. W. BRYAN APPOINTED JUSTICE OF THE PEACE OF BEAT 4

Announcement was made the past week from the office of the Governor of the State of Alabama to the effect that T. W. Bryan had been appointed Justice of the Peace of Beat Four, in Chilton County, which is the beat in which Clanton is situated.

Mr. Bryan will also have jurisdiction in Beats 15, 3, 6 and 9. He has in the past been Justice of the Peace of Beat 15. Mr. Bryan came to this county from Dodge County, Georgia several years ago, and came bearing some very high recommendations from outstanding citizens of Dodge County, and since being located in Chilton County he has won for himself many friends on account of his fair dealings. Since his recent appointment by the Governor, Mr. Bryan has moved his office into the Wilson Building, over the Robinson Department Store, on Main Street.

Your Town And My Town

The News is pleased at this time to be able to extend greetings of the season, and the entire staff of this newspaper extends to everyone, everywhere, that ancient greeting, Merry Christmas to you and yours.

And in this season of gladness, we can know the joy of living and giving, let us not forget that Clanton is your town and my town. That means not only those who reside in the corporate limits, but also those who reside in the rural surroundings, who make this town their trading place, who attend its churches and whose children attend its schools. Then Clanton is OUR town.

We all have helped build it up together. We have worked together and we have played together; we have enjoyed prosperous times together, and have suffered adverse times together, both serving to bind us closer together.

At this time let us not forget one gift and add it to our list—a gift of loyalty to our town and our county. Let us all resolve to carry into the New Year the spirit of Christmas and let there be "Peace on earth, good will toward men," not only now, but in the days coming as we work together for the better interest of your town and my town—our town.

—Billy Smith.

That Glorious Christmas Of '76

Holiday Season Recalls The Most Heroic Exploit Of The Revolutionary War

In one of the greatest and most spectacular exploits of his military career, General George Washington, on Christmas night, 1776, wrested a victory from the forces of Great Britain and in a few short hours lifted the spirits of his countrymen from the despair into which they had been plunged by a series of defeats and reverses. With a sure swiftness that inspired terror in the hearts of his enemies, the American Commander-in-Chief, at the head of a small force of 2400 Continentals, crossed the dangerous, ice-filled Delaware River, and, in a fury of desperation, fell upon the Hessian troops commanded by Colonel Rahl at Trenton. The net result of Washington's action was a thousand prisoners of war and a most convincing triumph for the Americans.

On the occasion of the 154th anniversary of this great achievement the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission calls attention to the event in a statement issued today. The incidents leading up to and connected with the Battle of Trenton are recounted in a story of the maneuvers by which George Washington saved the cause of the Colonies at a time when all hope seemed to be lost. It was this movement which restored the confidence of the Americans and gave them the courage to continue the struggle for liberty in the face of all odds.

The attack on Trenton had been planned by Washington as a means of bolstering the rapidly declining hopes of his countrymen. The enlistment term of his most valuable and experienced soldiers would expire at the end of the year, and he knew that but few could be prevailed upon to reenlist under the unpromising conditions which then prevailed. It was not only imperative that these troops be reenlisted, but it was just as essential that the morale of the entire population be improved. The whole country needed the tonic of an inspiring victory.

While General Howe occupied New York in the summer of 1776, he employed his army in inflicting a series of minor defeats on the Colonials in that vicinity. At Long Island, White Plains, Forts Mifflin and Mifflin, the British had beaten and discouraged the Americans. As winter approached and the weather became more and more disagreeable, Howe became less inclined to fight and gave most of his attention to preparing comfortable quarters in which to pass the winter. To the English leader it appeared that the Revolution had been all but crushed, and he seems to have expected what spirit remained with the Colonials to wear itself out in the cold, freezing snows of winter. At any rate, he had apparently conquered New Jersey, and by the time spring came he would be ready to capture Philadelphia, the rebel capital.

The British commander had stationed troops at several places in New Jersey to prevent the Americans from retreating that territory should they make an attempt to do so, although little concern was felt in this direction. Washington was just across the Delaware River in Pennsylvania, but the condition of his men was such as to arouse but little apprehension on the part of the British. The entire Continental Army was suffering from a lack of food, clothing, guns, ammunition—in fact, nearly everything needed to maintain an army was lacking in the American camp. No self-respecting European soldier could entertain anything but contempt for such a nondescript body of troops.

Among the soldiers which Howe had left in the Jerseys was a regiment of Hessians under the command of Col. Rahl. These troops numbered about 1500 and were stationed at Trenton but a very short distance from the Delaware. The Hessians were the type of soldiers known as mercenaries, because of the fact that war was their profession. They were hired out by their own monarch to fight for other rulers. Many of these soldiers were used in the Revolution by Great Britain. Their lot was not a very happy one for they were not even respected by their English colleagues. The Americans themselves despised the hirelings because they were actuated by no principle save that of making money.

Washington formed his plans with all possible secrecy and Christmas was selected as the day for the attack on Trenton because it was believed that the Germans would be wholly unprepared to resist an assault at that time. These suppositions proved to be correct, for the boisterous celebration of the Yuletide was at its height when the Americans stormed the town in the dawn of that cold December morning.

Washington assembled his men at McKonkey's Ferry on the bank of the Delaware after a march of nine miles through frozen snow and biting sleet. The men were loaded into boats which had been gathered and prepared for the occasion, and the pitiful little army was soon moving across the stream. It was a perilous undertaking for the river was filled with great blocks of ice which many times threatened to overturn the crowded craft. But the affair was so well planned and executed that not a man or gun was lost. There was some delay in getting the artillery up, so that by the time Washington was ready to move on his objective the night was far gone. The enterprise had progressed so far, however, that there could be no thought of turning back.

LEGION HEAD TO PAY VISIT TO ALABAMA

Ralph T. O'Neill, National Commander, Coming To Alabama, Jan. 11th

It is with pleasure that Alabama and all members of the Alabama Department look forward to the visit of National Commander Ralph T. O'Neill, January 11th and 12th. An extensive program of entertainment has been planned and one which will enable all types of Legion membership to have a part in knowing the highest official of the Legion, the largest patriotic organization in the world.

Ralph T. O'Neill was elected National Commander at the closing session of the Twelfth National Convention in Boston, October 9th. He is an attorney of Topeka, Kansas and has been active in National affairs of the Legion for several years, having served as National Vice-Commander in 1927; he was Commander of the Kansas Department in 1926; Chairman of the Legion's National C. M. T. C. Committee in 1929 and was a member of the National Defense Committee in 1930.

Commander O'Neill served with the 11th Infantry, 5th Division during the World War, from August 1917 to July 1919. He was promoted from 1st lieutenant to captain in the Argonne Forest in 1918. He received Divisional Citation for service in action, and while in the A. E. F. he was on the Vosge Sector, Toul Sector, St. Mihiel Offensive and the Argonne drive.

The Post Commanders and Adjutants and Legion Auxiliary Presidents and Secretaries will meet in Birmingham on Sunday, January 11th. While in Montgomery on the next day "Dyke" O'Neill and his party will be the guest of Governor Graves and the Montgomery Post No. 2. At the Montgomery meeting every exserviceman in the state is extended a cordial invitation to be present; a banquet is planned by the Montgomery Post at a price well within the range of the pocket-book of all exservicemen. Governor Graves, as well as those in charge of this feature, are anxious that every person who can be present, not to pass the chance of meeting and knowing such an outstanding national figure as our National Commander.

Legionnaire Governor, Bibb Graves, will entertain the Commander and his party at a luncheon at the Governor's mansion at noon, Monday. Every member of the Alabama Department and all other exservicemen in the state should meet the Legion's Commander, "Dyke" O'Neill.

GEO. WASHINGTON LANGSTON AND MISS CARTER MARRIED

MISS JEWELL BEAN BECOMES BRIDE OF RUSSELL PETERSON

In the Thorsby Section in this issue appears an account of the marriage of Miss Jewel Bean to Mr. Russell Peterson, of Thorsby, Alabama, which took place last Saturday evening at seven o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Clyde Mead, in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Haskew will arrive in the city Friday afternoon to be guests in the home of their parents, Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Haskew, for a week. Professor Haskew is principal of the high school located at Greensboro, Georgia. He has the distinction of being one of the youngest graduates ever completing a graduate course at Emory University, having graduated there at the age of eighteen.

TWO FIRES CALL OUT FIGHTERS IN PAST WEEK

Volunteer Dept. Show Real Organized System In Recent Work

The volunteer fire department of Clanton answered two calls during the past few days and showed some real organized methods in their manner of combating the flames, and handling their responsibility of the fire fighting equipment.

The two recent alarms were for a fire at the home of Willie Crowson, just east of Clanton on the Lay Dam road early last Thursday morning, and one early Sunday morning at the home of Lonza Parrish on the eastern side of town.

The Crowson fire was said by the volunteers to have been one of their queerest to handle. The report given the News stated that Mrs. Crowson saw smoke coming from beneath the house, just below a fire place, and it became worse after a few moments. Being unable to determine its place of origin, she turned in the alarm. The firemen, upon reaching the home found that small timbers directly beneath the fire place had become so hot from the fire in the room they had ignited. Firemen had some difficulty in getting underneath the house to locate exactly where the flames were, but after finding the spot, cut through the concrete and brick of the fire place and made short work of extinguishing the blaze. Had it not been for the quick action on the part of Mrs. Crowson, it is believed that the flames would have grown into a dangerous blaze, probably endangering the lives of the occupants of the house.

The early Sunday morning fire gained some headway before it was discovered, and the alarm given about four o'clock. Chief Loren Smith said that apparently the blaze originated in a wood box in the kitchen, and again the volunteers made short work of extinguishing the blaze. Considerable damage was done to one corner at the rear of the house by the flames, the damage being estimated at about $150, which is said to include that done by smoke to other parts of the house and furnishings. Chemicals were used to fight this blaze entirely.

NEGRO CONFESSES TO TAKING PART IN MARION ROBBERY

According to a report by the Associated Press last Monday, two of four bandits who held up and robbed Marion Junction Bank, are in the Dallas County Jail at Selma, but the other two had apparently made good their escape.

A negro who is said to have given his name as Charlie Agee, age 38, and his address as Kingston, Jamaica, was returned to Selma Monday from Pine Hill where he was arrested Sunday, and the sheriff's forces of Dallas County said the negro had confessed to taking part in the robbery.

The white man, Frank Hardy, who was arrested Friday, said he was an army deserter, and that he led the robbery also, declined to give very much information concerning the man who helped in the robbery.

It was at first believed by officers that three of the bandits were white men, with their faces blacked, but this was cast aside following Hardy's statement and the capture of the negro. It was also stated that $968 was recovered from Agee, and Hardy had $275 on him, making a total of $1,243 recovered of the $4,000 taken.

FILLING STATION AND LUNCH ROOM AT THORSBY BURNED

The filling station and lunch room, located in Thorsby, Alabama, on the highway, and operated by J. D. Buckner, was destroyed by fire Monday morning early.

The origin of the fire was not determined at this time, according to information. Practically the entire furnishings of the building were destroyed also. This place was operated by Geo. Stanford for some time before Mr. Buckner secured possession of it, and was known as Stanford's Place, being quite popular during summer months.

Two young people from Birmingham came to Clanton last Thursday and were quietly married at the home of Rev. D. W. Haskew, performing the ceremony. They were none other than C. T. Cline and Mildred Vann.

Corn Crop Lowest
In Thirty Years

The 1930 corn crop is the smallest since 1901, according to an official report from the United States department of agriculture. It is 520 million bushels smaller than the 1929 crop and only 88 per cent of the 1924-28 average. Wheat crops of oats and barley are somewhat larger than last year, the supply of the three principal coarse grains is only about 89 million tons as compared with the moderate supply of 100 million tons last year.

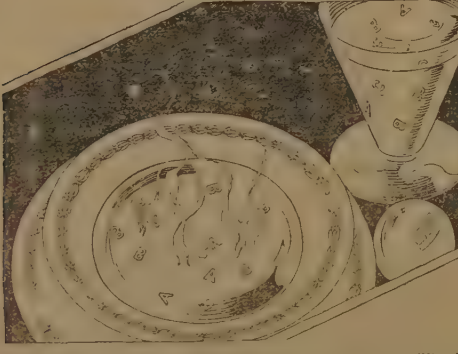

Many Alabama farmers are making plans to grow more corn and feed crops in 1931.

Mrs. Julia Ward of Cleveland sued her husband for a divorce, charging him with "extreme cruelty" as he had moved from one apartment to another 25 times during their year and a half of married life.

Here's a New Soup

EVERYBODY is drinking chilled tomato juice nowadays, but did it ever occur to you that you can take this same product and heat it, and thus have an excellent thin soup? It's a nourishing soup, too. Tomato juice, whether you squeeze it from the tomatoes themselves or buy it ready to serve in cans, is not just a watery substance with a tomato taste, but the whole tomato with the exception of the skin and seeds.

So popular is this new drink, hot or cold, that it is now being canned in gigantic quantities. The secret of keeping all the particles of tomato in suspension in the taste, instead of having them settle, has been solved by the same process that the canners use in processing evaporated milk. Scientists state that unsweetened evaporated milk is a good food for babies because of its sterility, its ready digestibility and its uniformity of composition.

Rich in Vitamins

Scientists also commend the tomato as a prolific source of vitamins A, B and C. Dr. A. F. Hess of Columbia University said: "From the nutritional standpoint it may be regarded as a palatable solution of the three vitamins." Dr. Elwood Hendrick characterized it as "one of the most useful food accessories known to man." William Howard Fitch of the United States Medical Service said: "The popularity of the tomato, fresh and canned, is fully justified by our present knowledge of food values, for the tomato is rich in all three vitamins and retains them well when cooked and canned."

Department Rules
Syrups Be Labelled

All syrups when offered for sale in Alabama must be labelled, announces the Alabama State Department of Agriculture and Industries, which said that "dealers purchasing syrups for re-sale which is not labelled will be held liable as all such syrup will be suspended from sale when found on their premises."

In releasing a prepared statement regarding this work, George Marsh, head of the Division of Agricultural Chemistry, explained that labelling will enable farmers to improve the sales of their syrup as the consumer will know exactly what he is getting when he makes the purchase. Mr. Marsh said that an elaborate label is not necessary but that proper labelling is essential. He will furnish details.

MAKE REPAIRS NOW

Much could be done toward relieving the unemployment situation in this and every other community if all who are able to do so would have needed repairs made about their homes and other buildings now, instead of waiting until later.

Nearly every property owner could do some remodeling, renovating, painting and the like to his own advantage at the same time giving temporary employment to those most in need. This plan is being advocated by emergency committees all over the country as one of the most practical means of relieving the distressing situation which now exists.

The unemployed want work, not charity. The acceptance of outright charity lowers a man's self-respect, but he can work at any honorable task and still hold his head up. That is the idea which dominates the present nationwide movement to make more jobs.

It is always good business to make needed repairs promptly, and they may be made now at less cost than at any time in recent years, because material prices are low and labor is unusually efficient.

Thus a property owner today may have work done at an actual saving to himself, besides having the satisfaction of doing a worthy act in behalf of his less fortunate neighbor.

SHE FOLLOWS HER NOSE AND FINDS PAYING JOB

One way to find work in times of unemployment is to "follow your nose." A young woman who tried this in New York landed a job with a wholesale perfume company, and was surprised to find that she had a rare and valuable gift of detecting and distinguishing between hundreds of subtle odors. This according to the American Magazine, is a very unusual talent for which there is a great demand.

Perfumes, as a rule, are compounded from various parts of plants—flowers, leaves, twigs, root, wood, fruit, and gum. But much perfume is produced by a mixture of various scents. In this connection economics enters into the problem.

For example, it would cost too much to use a pure jasmine extract in soaps and other popular-priced products. So the young woman creates the jasmine extract artificially.

In her experiments, she uses long strips of paper which she dips into the various bottles, and with each dip she smells and memorizes the odor. She will start, say, with Bottle A and memorize that odor. Then she will dip the strip with the A aroma into Bottle C and memorize that combination. And so on and on until she has found a combination that smells just right. By this process a new fragrance is born.

NEW LABOR SECRETARY

A few days ago the third man to preside over the Department of Labor since its divorce from the Department of Commerce in 1913 was inducted into office. He is William Nuckles Doak, born in Virginia 48 years ago.

The only other men to hold the Labor portfolio are William B. Wilson and James J. Davis, both of Pennsylvania. Wilson served under President Wilson, while Davis has served under three Presidents, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Secretary Doak rose from the ranks of railroad trainmen, his education having been received in the public schools and in a business college. Since 1928 he has been editor and manager of the Railway Trainman.

He has been a close friend of President Hoover since the war, when he served with the future President in food administration work. He is the second youngest man in the cabinet. Secretary of War Hurley being 22 days younger.

“WILDCAT” BUSES A MENACE

George “Jimmie” Smith, “one of the editors of the Times-Signal of Snyder, Texas, recently took a ride on a motor bus which, according to him, was a mechanical wreck to start with and a complete wreck before the end of the trip, due to broken front axle, going in a ditch, etc. Passengers who had paid a three dollar cash fare were left to shift for themselves.

In an editorial on buses, “Jimmie” says: “One of these days there is a reckoning coming with motor bus operation and we are sorry the railroad commission could not have  noted the absolute inefficiency of one bus trip.

“To a fellow who believes in riding either the bus or passenger trains, to an unprejudiced mind, with the railroads paying their full share of taxes on the road system of the state, and, in addition, paying upkeep of their own right-of-way, there is a day of reckoning coming for the motor bus operators.

“If the motor bus accepts cash fare and then through sending mechanical wrecks out on the highway, without any fast provisions being made to complete their part of the bargain, then the quicker a showdown is made the quicker will the traveling public secure what it is entitled to receive, honest to goodness service.”

Wildcat unregulated bus lines are a menace to the public. Financially responsible bus lines and especially those in interstate business are seeking legislation that will put them under state or Interstate Commerce Commission regulation the same as applies to railroads. The sooner this is done the better for all concerned.

HARMONY PLAN UPSET

From present indications the spirit of cooperation hoped for during the short session of Congress has practically vanished, and bitter strife has taken its place.

Just before the opening of the session a number of Democratic leaders issued a statement pledging assistance to the administration in the enactment of necessary legislation of a beneficial nature. It was naturally suggested at the time that there would be a wide divergence of opinion as to just what legislation would be beneficial and so it has turned out.

Within a week after Congress met strong opposition to certain of President Hoover's proposed relief measures developed, chiefly over the amounts of various appropriations and the manner of their expenditure.

Generally speaking, the President has stood for lower appropriations than his opponents, and he has asked for greater latitude in directing the use of appropriated funds than the opposition is willing to give him. Then the President's insistence on action by the Senate on World Court adherence has created additional friction.

A few days ago President Hoover issued a statement highly critical of certain groups in Congress, whom he accused of obstructing relief legislation and “playing politics at the expense of human misery.” This was met with a storm of disapproval and resentment on the part of Democrats and insurgents, in which even some regular Republicans joined. Public opinion is divided over whether the President's criticism was justified.

In any event, the legislative situation is in a turmoil which does not augur well for prompt action on the various important measures under consideration by Congress. To the layman it appears that all concerned are playing politics in the same old way.

WHAT IS NEWS?

Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, began writing for the papers when he was only thirteen years old. He started as a printer's devil in the composing room of a small Indiana newspaper. Ever since, the news has been his life. At the age of fifty, his almost uncanny sense of the relative human-interest values of events and personalities has placed him at the head of one of the world's foremost news-gathering and distributing organizations.

The American Magazine recently asked Mr. Cooper to select, for its readers, the ten greatest news events of the year 1930. He found it no easy task. Commenting on his plans for selecting the world events which proved most stirring to American readers during the past year, Mr. Cooper says:

“News which interests the vast majority of newspaper readers has a strange quality. News of vast significance to the world at large and to each of us individually is often the outcome of long negotiations and deliberations. But the news that stirs us most, the big story, is almost always spontaneous. “What makes a great news story? That question may have a dozen answers. Some stories demand the talents of inspired writers to present them in proper perspective. Others virtually write themselves because of the impressiveness of the simple facts.

“But the supreme test of the really big news story is more intangible. It must have the lure to seize and hold the attention of the newspaper readers to the exclusion of all other interests for the moment.

“Selecting the ten biggest news stories of the year is like selecting the ten most beautiful women or the ten greatest paintings. The choice depends on one's taste, environment, emotional tendencies. Not two persons in ten thousand will agree on such a list.”

MISS BEAN AND MR. RUSSELL
PETERSON ARE MARRIED

The marriage of Miss Jewell Bean of Collins Chapel and Mr. Russell Peterson of Thorsby was solemnized on Saturday evening at seven o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mead on Wisconsin Avenue at Thorsby. Mrs. Meade is a sister of the bride.

Rev. Joseph E. Each read the marriage vows in the presence of only intimate friends and relatives.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was given by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Chambers. Mr. Chambers rendered “I Love You Truly” and “Neapolitan Nights” assisted by Mrs. Chambers at the piano who later played the wedding march.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mead was beautifully decorated appropriate to the holiday season with an altar between two Christmas trees and a background of holly. A star hung from the middle of the altar. Small various colored lights shone among the holly.

Miss Pauline Bean, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. She was charming in a pale chiffon georgette with long draped skirt. She carried a lovely bouquet. Albert Hall served as best man.

The bride was beautiful in an off-white navy blue georgette frock with a circular collar of eggshell crepe modeled on the silhouette line. Her flowers were pink and white carnations.

Following the ceremony the guests enjoyed the hospitality of a reception by Mr. and Mrs. Mead. They were assisted by Miss Dessie Robinson serving. The wedding cake was a gift from Mrs. Louis Self, sister of the bridegroom. Numerous presents were disclosed in the cake as the guests were favored by a slice. Cake, sandwiches, and cocoa were served.

Little Helen Louise Mead, niece of the bride, and Marion Joyce Howard, held the ribbons. Mr. C. A. Mead gave the bride in marriage.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Self of Birmingham, Mrs. Roland Miskell of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mead of Calera.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Peterson will reside with Mrs. Peterson's mother indefinitely.

What Will Next Year Bring?

Much speculation is going around as to what next year will bring forth. Many are of the opinion that business conditions will be better, while others are in doubt about it taking place until next fall, but would it be the proper thing to do to sit by and wait? Or would it be best to consider the lesson shown in the editorial about the hen which follows this? I very much recommend the latter.

The fact that the price slump in agricultural products particularly cotton, has affected conditions locally perhaps more than anything else. So this fact must be taken into consideration when speculating on what 1931 will bring us. The farmers must take this into account quite seriously, and unless they turn to other crops than cotton, or unless the price on this commodity is better next season, it cannot bring much brightness on the outlook for 1931. This simply means that our farmers and business men must make their own conditions better, or sit and wait for someone else to raise cotton prices, and then we are not certain that will be done. But right now is the time for some thought, and serious thought of plans for 1931. The past season some effort was put forth to reduce the cotton acreage in Chilton County, but met with little results, and it is hoped that the farmers will profit by this example of ridiculously low cotton prices. Cotton is one commodity that to bring money at all, must be sold, and at the other man's price. It cannot be eaten, it cannot be worn in the raw, it cannot be fed to livestock and it has only one outlet for a market, and that market depends entirely on how much cotton can be used. If there is an over-production, then the demand is less, causing the price to drop.

On the other hand, potatoes, strawberries, dewberries, corn, hay, chickens and meats have many markets, and there is one market for these that the farmer can rely on to a great advantage, when the others fail him. He can surely feed his family and his livestock with these crops, and with money from a small cotton crop he will be able to clothe his family. Now at this off season in farming is the time to plan a program for farming for the next season, and plan it with the thought in mind that you have soil to produce food for your family and livestock, as well as soil that will produce cotton, a crop that the other man tells you the price on.

How's Business?

The following anonymous poem which appeared during the hard times in Cleveland's administration, was handed to us recently by Mr. A. Cunningham, president of the Peoples Bank of Evergreen. Mr. Cunningham believes that it is apropos to present conditions in business. No doubt but there is a lot of truth in the philosophy of the "old hen." Business is about the same always, but requires more digging at different times.

Said the little red rooster, "Gosh all hemlock; things are tough.

Seems that worms are getting scarcer and I cannot find enough.

What's become of all those fat ones is a mystery to me. There were thousands through that rainy spell—but now where can they be?"

The old hen who heard him didn't grumble or complain.

She had gone through lots of dry spells; she had lived through floods and rain.

So she flew up on the grindstone, and gave her claws a whet.

As she said, "I've never seen the time there were not worms to get."

She picked a new and undug spot; the earth was hard and firm.

The little rooster jeered, "New ground. That's no place to find a worm."

The old hen just spread her feet; she dug both fast and free;

"I must go to the worms," she said; "the worms won't come to me."

The rooster vainly spent his day, thru habit, by the ways.

Where fat round worms had passed in squads, back in the rainy days.

When nightfall found him supperless, he groaned in accents rough.

"I'm hungry as a fowl can be. Conditions sure art tough."

"He turned then to old black hen and said, "It's worse with you.

For you're not only hungry, but you must be tired, too. I rested while I watched for worms, so I feel fairly perk;

But how are you? Without worms, too? And after all that work?"

The old hen hopped up to her perch and dropped her eyes to sleep.

And murmured in a drowsy tone, "Young men, hear this and weep.

I'm full of worms and happy, for I've dined both long and well.

The worms are there, as always—but I had to dig like you."

—Evergreen Courant.

"ROUND TOWN"

—by Doug

Opinions expressed in this column by this writer have no connection with the general policies of this paper, being wholly those of the writer, in the manner they are written.

"To love and win is the best thing.
To love and lose is the next best."
—William Makepeace Thackeray.

That fellow Thackeray said a mouthful then. Now I know that although I have probably not done the best thing, I at least have done the next best, and there's some consolation in that. Another man, Carl Shurz, once said, "Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands, but like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides and, following them, you reach your destiny." So, after all, when one has something like that to lead him, he is just about as well off if he lost, as Thackeray says.

I just go on and on quoting sayings of other writers this week, and by using them express myself as I would like to, and it is true I cannot find the proper words, nor the proper assemblage of words to use my own saying to express myself. Thomas Paine, had a brilliant thought, and expressed it thusly, "I love the man that can smile in trouble, that can gather strength from distress, and grow brave by reflection. 'Tis the business of little minds to shrink, but he whose heart is firm, and whose conscience approves his conduct, will pursue his principles unto death." And now to end this thought, I'll quote a saying of Alexander Walker, and I hope it goes to the spot where intended. "Man can not degrade woman without himself falling into degradation; he can not elevate her without at the same time elevating himself."

Now for something not so serious. Noticed in the Thomasville Times, the editor kept referring to "chillings" in an article, and for awhile I couldn't get just what he was talking about, until he said something about a hog, and I concluded what he really meant was 'chitlins' or 'chitlins'. The Man On The Corner, in The Union-Banner last week, spelled it 'chitlings', and I suppose he got it right as far as Chiltonians are concerned because somebody brought him some. But after consulting Dr. Webster's book, I found that the editor of the Times put it correct. But I don't and can't agree with him about writing it that way. It just don't sound right. 'Chitlins' sounds good enough, or like the Union-Banner columnist, another g won't hurt.

I've been reading all these stories in the dailies about bank robbers, bandits, etc., and wondered what would happen to a newspaper reporter if he should fail to allow the bandits to escape in a high-powered motor car, or failed to say the bandits were equipped with high-powered rifles. He'd probably be shot at sunrise. And then, I've wondered if all reporters have to say 'teeming millions.' And whether all millions really teem.

Our college girls and boys, have arrived in town for the holidays, and I'm about to get the spirit too, but the spirit isn't going to do me much good this Christmas because I haven't got the 'where-withal' to boost those spirits, and give all the friends a present as I would like. Saw William Arthur Willis easing around in his car the other day, and looking as if he was looking for most anything he could find. Saw him later on one night and I think he found what he was looking for, and I couldn't blame him either. I'd have done the same thing if I was a young fellow like him, single.

When Lamar Calloway comes home, he kinds of makes things look prosperous in Clanton, and he does bring a spirit of cheer with him. I've found Lamar to be quite an interesting conversationalist, if you catch him in the right mood. Archie Harris boomed into Clanton hitting on all eight. Archie don't stay here much, but somehow he is a part of Clanton, and he better stay with us more. Grover Harris, who is one of those Clanton young men decorating the campus at the University, sure brings life into the old gang when he comes home, and we are always glad to see him. I'd probably better say lots of nice things about Grover because some day he might be a big banker and I might want to make a little 'touch.' William Hester dropped home from Howard with his easy, but sincere and impressive manner of greeting his friends. Chester Wingard is one of those young fellows who always wears that bright friendly smile on his face, and he is at home for the holidays from Georgia Tech, and after seeing him I can't figure out where they get the term 'A rambling wreck from Georgia Tech.' I'll ask him sometime. The worm has turned as far as Miss Mary Ellis is concerned, I suppose. She has been taught, but now she is doing the teaching. However she sat home bringing joy to the hearts of many during the holidays. I wouldn't care if I was going to school at Piper, myself. But then there would probably be another turn in the worm.

Misses Myra and Elizabeth Johnson forsook the University campus to spend the holidays in dear old Clanton. And Miss Nellie Sumner is at home too, from Alabama College. And so on. We're going to have a jolly good crowd here during Christmas, and I don't think I'm going to have to import any members of the fairer sex to make my Christmas complete. There's plenty of home products that look good enough to me, although I thought once of bringing in some new life, but that really won't be necessary now, so I've found.

Where is all the mistletoe? I haven't been able to get any yet, and I sure want to hang some in a place of advantage for the benefit of the young ladies—if you pardon my saying so. Did you ever stop to think that the figures in 1930 added together make 13? Maybe that's something to be thankful for, because we are about to enter 1931, which makes 14, now. Just saw some fair damsels I thought I knew, better go see about them. The day's work is over right now. Wishing you all a very Merry Christmas, and look after Santa, because now instead of getting soot all over himself, he gets tangled up with amperes, volts, kilowatts and gas meters. Adios.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Senator Robinson Adheres To Cooperation Policy Endorsed by Democratic Leaders

Washington, Dec. 23.—President Hoover's statement to the press charging the Congress with planning "raids on the Treasury" and accusing that body of "playing politics at the expense of human misery," called forth several severely critical speeches in the Senate and equally severe criticism in some sections of the press.

The President's own record in disbursing a $100,000,000 fund in 1919 for feeding the starving people of Europe and also $20,000,000 for Russian relief were cited, as well as the statement in his message to this Congress, in which he said, "We have as a nation a definite duty to see that no deserving person in our country suffers from hunger or cold."

Among those who replied to the President's criticism of Congress was Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, one of the seven who had issued a statement before the assembling of Congress favoring cooperation with administration plans for relief and other legislation that was "conducive to the welfare of the country," and opposing partisan obstructive tactics. Senator Robinson reiterated his adherence to these declarations, and further said:

"The President lost his temper and made a statement that, of course, is to be condemned. For my part, I do not propose to follow the bad example that has been set. My purpose is to try to do my duty to my party, to my people, and most of all, to my country. . . . I should like to see this Congress now act in a spirit of greater cooperation—and by 'cooperation' I do not mean that one man shall walk away and another follow. I mean that if they are separated by a distance they shall advance to a common point and get together and work together. That is cooperation. I cooperate and I intend to continue to cooperate in the enactment of measures which I believe will promote the welfare of the country. I intend to cooperate in the confirmation of nominees whom I believe to be fitted for office. That does not mean, and no sane man can construe it to mean, cooperation in the passage of unjust and unwholesome measures or in the confirmation of unfitted nominees to office. "The nation is facing a crisis. Our responsibility is the greatest we have ever encountered. Bearing it in the spirit of true patriots, we shall not find it necessary to abandon the policies or the principles which we believe should prevail in the administration of this great Government."

President Hoover's statement that the appropriation bills introduced in Congress amount to $4,500,000,000 more than the amount asked for in the Administration budget is less alarming when it is remembered that every Congress since the passage of the Budget Act has appropriated less money than asked for by the President.

Hoover Asks Another $150,000,000 For Farm Board—Stabilization So Far a Failure

Washington, Dec. 23.—Another $150,000,000 for the Federal Farm Board is asked by President Hoover, which when appropriated, will make $400,000,000 appropriated of the $500,000,000 authorized.

The New York World points out that "economically, the Farm Board's use of the taxpayer's money for a professed purpose of stabilizing the price of wheat and cotton has been a complete failure." After quoting the decline of wheat and cotton since the Board began operations, the World says:

"The Board is now in a position where it dare not let go and where, by holding on, it becomes involved deeper and deeper in transactions which must ultimately defeat their own purpose. . . . The call for more money was inevitable."

Items Cut From Emergency Relief Bill Had No Relation to Unemployment

Washington, Dec. 23.—Before passing the Emergency Unemployment Relief bill giving President Hoover $110,000,000 of the $150,000,000 he asked for in a lump sum, to be expended by himself and his Cabinet, the House on the initiative of Representative Byrns (Tenn.) ranking Democrat on the Appropriations Committee, required Mr. Hoover to submit a list of projects upon which the money was to be spent. A long list prepared by the Budget Bureau was forwarded, which the Appropriations Committee reduced to five projects: Federal Highway System, $80,000,000;

Rivers and Harbors, $22,500,000; Flood Control on the Mississippi River, $3,000,000; Improvement of National Forests, $3,000,000; Roads and Trails in National Parks, $1,500,000.

Debate on the bill revealed some of the items which had been cut out of the President's list, as follows:

Ammunition, $5,500,000, to be added to the $650,000,000 worth already on hand.

To kill bugs in the National forests, $500,000.

Purchase of passenger-carrying autos and motor trucks for Army officers, $2,000,000.

Office Secretary of Agriculture, $83,480.

Animal industry, $57,995.

Biological survey, $495,505.

Dairy industry, $114,000.

Plant quarantine and control, $35,000.

Weather Bureau, $5,000.

Seacoast defenses, purchases of searchlights, submarine mines and construction of fire-control stations.

These items, the Committee decided, had nothing to do with unemployment relief.

Representative Byrns drew from the Budget Director the statement that he did not begin to call on Department heads to see how much money they could use in emergency employment until about November 1, although the matter had been discussed last spring.

"I think the severest indictments against the administration in this unemployment situation," said Representative Byrns, "are the facts I have just stated—the delay in coming to Congress and asking even for this modicum of relief which I assert we are forced to believe was due to political considerations."

The Senate added $5,000,000 to the bill and fixed the terms of employment, taking these powers away from the President.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

SEASONABLE ADVICE

This morning a man came to my office—my first patient for the day. He was quite hoarse, and immediately walked to the radiator to warm himself, briskly rubbing his blue fingers together to increase circulation—he was half-chilled.

Being a very active, spare-built man of 60, he abhorred wraps; he disliked "bundling up." So, he had been dashing out into the cold, often without taking time to put on his coat; this morning he wore no vest; was still sticking to summer underwear, and had on low shoes. At this very hour his ankles were almost bloodless, and it would have taken a full half-hour for the warm room to restore his surface circulation to normal, if, indeed it could have been brought about in that time.

Of course he had a laryngitis with congested lungs, due to careless exposure of his body to cold air. The surface-blood had been driven in by a skin which resented the very uncomfortable atmosphere. Such things are first-rate causes of the dread disease, pneumonia.

The treatment—get the blood back to the surface and KEEP IT THERE. Hot drinks: hot lemonade especially; rest in bed in a room that is comfortable; to induce a sweat is not a bad rule, and can be done by the family. The pathologist may blame the teeth and tonsils, in a man of this age, but it is dangerous to expose the body of one past middle age, to protracted cold, whatever focus of infection may or may not be present. The man or woman at that time of life who wears summer shoes and stockings in winter, and does not keep up a good surface circulation, is flirting with serious consequences.

Fashion, among its other crimes, puts far around the neck and strips the lower extremities as nearly as possible. Nobody on earth can convince me that such a silly thing conforms to the law of right living—and I think as much of "fresh air" as any one.

A wedding of much interest to people of this community, and the county, was that of Miss Girdie Baker and Mr. Burney Johnson. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dock Baker, on Sunday, December 21.

Mrs. Johnson is well known as a teacher in the county, having taught school some four or five years. She is also known as a saleslady, and is a splendid church worker.

Mrs. Maggie Foshee spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. A. M. Rollins, who has had a nervous spell.

Mr. Vernon Baker, who attended school at Jacksonville State Normal, is spending the holidays with his parents.

Mr. Willie Scarbrough of Birmingham spent Sunday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Foshee.

Mr. Marvin Lowery is expected to arrive from South Carolina soon, to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zack Lowery.

Cirela-No. 1 of the W. M. U. met with Mrs. Moore last Thursday afternoon. An interesting program was carried out.

When girls of a Nebraska high school complained that the class rooms were chilly, someone made the ridiculous suggestion that they wear more clothes.

RACKETEERS STEAL HOTEL TRADE

The Hotel Association of New York City has joined the war against racketeers being waged in that city, according to Frank A. K. Boland, general counsel for the association. The action of the association is intended to purge the city of racketeers who are preying upon the legitimate hotels there, Mr. Boland declares.

The racket against hotels is being conducted by public porters and certain taxicab drivers. The plan of operation is very simple, Mr. Boland declares. The public porter meets the traveller at railroad terminals, steamship piers and on roads leading into New York City, greeting him with the question, "What hotel do you wish to go to?" On being informed, the traveller is then told that the hotel of his choice is filled up, torn down, closed for repairs or by order of the Board of Health or any other reply that will convince the traveller it is impossible to get into that particular hotel. The racketeer then names another hotel, one of the certain side-street houses that are paying toll to the racketeer. The result is that the traveller is diverted from the hotel of his choice to one of these side-street hotels, is forced to accept accommodations far inferior to those offered in the house he wished to stay in and is forced to spend his visit in New York in a none too pleasing atmosphere. The racketeer collects from one dollar to five dollars per person for each one diverted and the Hotel Association has proof that one hotel last month paid over $1,000 to one public porter for such diversions. This type of racket is costing the legitimate hotels of New York City more than $2,000,000 a year, Mr. Boland says.

The way to "beat the racket" is to refuse to be diverted, and visitors to New York are being warned to refuse to be taken to any hotel except the one of your choice and not to fall for what the public porter or taxicab driver volunteers in the way of advice.

Christmas Party Is Given For Faithful Workers S. S. Class.

The Faithful Workers Sunday school class of the Baptist church was delightfully entertained at its annual Christmas party on Thursday night at the Baptist church. A feature of the evening was the gayly decorated Christmas tree from which gifts were distributed for all the members present. Many games were enjoyed. Later in the evening refreshments were served to about thirty members. Hostess for this occasion was Miss Della Latham, teacher, Mrs. E. E. Upchurch and Mrs. John T. Ellis.

Sunbeams Enjoy Christmas Tree.

Sunbeams of the Baptist church were the guests of the department, Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, hostess, at a delightful Christmas party Saturday evening at six o'clock. The basement of the church in which the affair was held, was gaily decorated and at one side was a beautiful Holly Christmas tree, from which gifts for each of the children were distributed. A Christmas program was rendered by the little folks, which was enjoyed very much. Many games were played and the children were overjoyed when old Santa Claus came. He at once took charge of the beautiful lighted tree. Children present for this happy occasion were Nell Rockett, Mary Frances Atkinson, Billie Johnson, Mae Annie Polk, Lillian Smith, Gertrude Eubanks, Ann Ross, Olive Rainier, Elmore, Elizabeth, Kathleen and Betty Jean Armstrong, Charles Mims, Frances Bean, Joan Atkinson, Clifford Mullins, Jr., Lois Cotton, Flen Higgins, Joe Frank Higgins, Marzelle Taylor, Blanche Taylor, Mae Annie Polk, Lois Rockett, Lamerle Deloach, Doris Deloach, Laura Louise Poe, Ann Marie Brandon, Mary Elizabeth Harper, Dorothy Harper, Doris Gore, Mildred Gore, Annie Kate Gore, Thelma White, Essie White, Billie Bean, Elaine Burdette, Gwendolyn Atkinson.

Misses Elizabeth and Myra Johnson, students at the University of Alabama, are spending the holidays here with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson.

Mrs. M. A. Gore Hostess to As-You-Like-It Club with Christmas Party.

Mrs. M. A. Gore was hostess to the Christmas meeting of the "As You Like It" Club, at her home Thursday afternoon. The reception rooms were decorated with quantities of holly and putted poinsettias, presenting a most festive appearance. One of the most enjoyable features of the afternoon was an art contest in which Mrs. V. J. Gragg was awarded the prize.

Later a Christmas reading was given by Mary Frances Atkinson, "Twas the Night Before Christmas." After which the members were invited into the dining room where old Santa Claus greeted them. A Christmas tree, occupying one side of the room, and beautifully decorated, held gifts for each of the members. A salad plate was served to the following: Mesdames L. C. Warr, J. B. Atkinson, T. W. Burdette, V. J. Gragg, L. H. Reynolds, G. C. Walker, W. W. Fox, W. E. Martin, D. C. Alred and Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. C. Fenn Jones Hostess To Thursday Sewing Club.

A pretty Christmas party was enjoyed by the members of the Thursday Sewing Club, and a few invited guests Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Fenn Jones with Mrs. P. T. Hinkle and Mrs. T. C. McSwain as joint hostesses. The home was attractively decorated with garlands of smilax and mistletoe and other Christmas greenery, suggestive of the holiday season. Two Christmas readings were given by Mrs. J. B. Higgins, which were enjoyed by the club. Mrs. Higgins also played the part of Santa Claus and presented each member and guest a gift from a pretty Christmas tree. Those enjoying this party were Mesdames H. M. Simpson, J. D. Armstrong, L. E. Diefenderfer, Watts Moore, John M. Vanderveer, P. T. Hinkle, T. C. McSwain, H. T. Pipes. Invited guests were J. P. Vanderveer, Arthur Johnson, N. S. Johnson, J. C. Page, J. B. Higgins, E. E. Upchurch, I. C. Burnett. Delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Agnes Allen and granddaughter, Miss Hazel McNair, left Saturday for New Orleans, La., where they will spend several days with her son, Mr. Frank C. Allen, who is on the editorial staff of the Times-Picayune. Mr. Allen was at one time a student at the Chilton County High School, later becoming connected with a Birmingham newspaper as reporter.

Miss Kathryn Hayes, of Woman's College, Montgomery, is spending the Christmas holidays here with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes.

Miss Hattie Jones, who has been spending several days here as the guest of friends and relatives has returned to Washington, where she is employed as secretary to Lamar Jeffers, Congressman from this district.

William Arthur Willis, of the University of Alabama arrived in Clanton the latter part of last week to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Willis.

Grover Harris, of the University, is here to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Harris, Sr., at South Clanton.

By Judy Brown In The Birmingham News

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the house, While the family slept, ran a cute little mouse: No one else was awake when old Santa came down From the difficult roofs at the top of the town.

To the cute little mouse it was perfectly clear, As he watched the old man from a vantage point near,

That he came well prepared for this nocturnal call And that shortly a good time world he had by all.

For Santa had with him a fruit cake for Ma,

And some socks and a small box of cigars for Pa;

For Tommy a large stick of striped peppermint;

For grandpa a muffler to warm the old gent;

Dear grandmother needed the apron he brought

For at home grandma's help was frequently sought;

The baby though youthful to know of his cap

Would wear it with honor enthroned on Ma's lap;

Little Ethel 'tis likely was needing the dress

Though on a new dollie she laid greater stress.

For good old black Dinah he'd brought a nightgown

Though these days old Dinah was more up than down,

And oranges, apples and nuts and those things

That to every nice family Santa Claus brings.

So when all were set out and the room very still

The mouse ventured forth as a little mouse will.

He would go a few steps and then not move a jot

With his bright little eyes peering slyly about

He took a good nip from the fruit cake for Ma

And went boldly after the cigars for Pa;

The muffler was fuzzy, the apron was tough

He ate them but very soon found had enough;

But the peppermint candy, the nuts and the fruit,

Including the oranges—all seemed to suit.

And wandering onward to Ma's linen bag

With a soiled table cover he had quite a jag.

He indulged in the pantry a regular spree

Eating freely of sugar, o'erturning the tea.

The ice box he found rather chilly, 'tis true,

But ate freely of cheese as all normal mice do

And on Christmas morning he lay stiff and cold—

His gay life was o'er as a tale that is told.

Merry Christmas was ringing throughout the old house:

"All are merry," said Ethel, "except the poor mouse;"

Little Tommy shed tears at the fix he was in.

No one yet suspected how merry he'd been.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT SHOWS HAND AT WRITING OF POEMS

The following poems sent to the News were composed by Miss Luedell Donaldson, of Clanton, who is a student of the Chilton County High School being in the Junior One class:

Why We Celebrate Christmas

This glorious day we celebrate Is the day our Saviour was born.

We celebrate it from that day till this day

With a loving and willing heart.

Up on this night of the birth of Jesus Christ

The Wise Men spied the gleaming star And wandered on to the new born child.

In Christ's cradle was nothing but hay But right here little Lord Jesus lay.

Many a Christmas we go aroam, But we always celebrate in our home.

—By Luedell Donaldson.

Santa's New Baby

There's a new baby in the neighborhood.

And it's waiting with anxious eye, Saying, I waiting for Santa to visit I.

I'm small, you know, not very old. But I love the snow of these long winter days.

So bring me a doll and a sleigh, I say. Little Margaret waiting for a present that day.

So don't forget her old Santa, I pray. Now Santa little Edwin, the older of us three,

Who would receive a present with glee. So don't forget him on this glorious day.

"When I was a child, if I did not feel well, or if I had a cold, my mother gave me Black-Draught," says Mrs. Orpha Hill, of Wofford, Ky. "When I was married, it became a family medicine in my own home, as it was in my mother's."

"I take it for headache and especially for constipation. When I get bilious, my skin gets yellow and I have a very bad taste in my mouth, and a drowsy feeling all during the day. My eyes burn and I get dizzy, or my head is 'swimming.' When I take Black-Draught, it seems to drive the impurities out of my system, and I feel fine. I am seldom without this reliable remedy."

Scales Tested To Assure Accuracy

During the past year 35,877 scales, weights, pumps, measures, packages, and samples were inspected, weighed or collected by the weights and measures division of the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, reports H. S. Holloway, chief of the division. This compares with 22,694 in 1928-29.

This year's work included the inspection of 10,749 general scales; 578 wagon-truck scales; 15,331 scale weights; 81 cotton scales; 3,959 gas and oil pumps; 5,179 measures; 6,043 packages weighed; 5,687 gasoline samples, and 2,675 kerosene samples collected. In addition the division re-sealed ten 50-pound weights and six 500 pound test weights used in testing wagon and truck scales.

"The purpose of the department doing this work is to insure fair and honest distribution of commodities," Mr. Holloway said. "This service protects both the producer and the consumer."

Perhaps the alleged wildness of the younger generation is due to association with the older generation.

DEATH OF MOTHER JONES

The recent death of Mrs. Mary Harris Jones at the age of 100 years removes one of the most remarkable characters ever connected with the labor movement in America. She was active in leading strikes and labor demonstrations until she was well past 90.

"Mother" Jones, as she was affectionately called by the workers whom she led, was a native of Cork, Ireland, but she early migrated to Canada, where she received a good education. She taught in a Michigan convent and later was a teacher in Memphis, where she married. Her husband and four children perished in the yellow fever epidemic in Memphis in 1867.

Removing to Chicago, she set up a dressmaking business which was destroyed in the great fire of 1871. From that time on her life was chiefly concerned with efforts in behalf of the workers. Her views were radical and her methods were violent, but none doubted the sincerity of her purpose.

Even John D. Rockefeller, Jr., with whose interests Mother Jones had clashed bitterly many times, sent her a letter of congratulation on her 100th birthday, a few months ago. This pleased her and she remarked: "He's a damned good sport."

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR.

New York.—Among his many amazing traits you must credit Joe Cook, the comedian, with remarkable presence of mind.

During a recent performance of his smash hit, "Fine and Dandy," his gift for fast thinking prevented a would-be panic. Smoke, coming from somewhere, boiled into the theatre. Almost the entire audience sprang to their feet. Many rushed for exits. Confusion reigned and poured.

On the stage, Dora Maughan was just emerging from the wings for a round of wisecracks with the irrepressible Cook. But Joe, sensing the situation beyond the footlights, signalled to the orchestra to play, "Fine and Dandy," one of the featured song hits of the show.

Joe and Dora sang with enthusiasm, while the audience, reassured, broke into a ripple of applause and settled back into their seats. It saved the performance. The smoke? Only a furnace cutting up.

$100 A Week In Tips

Soda clerks must guffaw hoarsely up their sleeves when a boob like me timidly tips them a dime after being served. Many New York foam-fingers could buy out me—and you and you—a dozen times.

One of them, who mixes a wicked frosted chocolate at a certain Park Avenue drudgery, earns a salary of only $35 a week. But—and here's the "catch"—he pulls down $100 a week in tips.

Mystery—And How!

It happened recently while Maurice Muscovitch was giving at the Times Square theatre his famous interpretation of "Shylock" in Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice."

At the theatre next door, one of the ushers stopped the director to ask, "Say, can I get off early tonight—I want to see that mystery play next door?"

"What mystery play?" the director inquired.

"Shylock Holmes," she replied.

Hot From Harlem

Strolling through Harlem one night recently, I found myself walking behind a resplendent dapper dude and his septa swatle, out to make a night of it.

Dressed to kill, the boy friend went frisking along with a 32-tooth grin, highly satisfied with the world in general and himself in particular. But the dusky dame at his side didn't seem to share the spirit of the occasion. She was not enjoying it at all. Fact is, she was pouting.

The black boy looked down at her with some anxiety.

"Whassa matta, honey?" he inquired. "Ain't un spendin' money on ya?"

5,000 Watch Pup Treated

There was a commotion at the corner of 6th Avenue and 42nd Street. An accident. . . . Women screamed. The crowd gaped.

They saw a homeless mongrel pup, brown and white and dirty running around without a license, struck by the fender of a speeding automobile and hurled fifteen feet.

Out of a passing automobile popped a veterinarian. He placed the whimpering pup on Policeman Daniel Sullivan's folded overcoat, where he lay quite still.

"A broken rib," the doc announced. Five thousand people looked on while the doctor set the rib and bandaged the tiny invalid. Then Policeman Sullivan carried him to the West 4th St. police station, where—we hope—his canine friends remembered him with flowers and a great big bone.

BIG INSURANCE POLICY

The largest insurance policy ever issued covering losses on material in transit will shortly expire, its terms having been complied with. Its original amount was $1,500,000 and covered shipments of limestone—of all things.

This policy was issued to the Indiana Limestone Company as protection against losses in transit of cut, carved and turned limestone used in the erection of the new Department of Commerce and Internal Revenue buildings in Washington, for which more than 1,500 carloads were required. It would have taken a train 17 miles long to haul at one time all the stone used in these structures.

The Department of Commerce building, said to be the largest office building in floor area in the world, will cost when completed about $17,000,000. In its erection 1,100 carloads of stone were used. The Internal Revenue building is already completed and occupied.

CHRISTMAS

Greetings

From a very old and a very sincere friend to the People of Clanton and Chilton County. We wish we could see every one of you and extend these greetings personally and wish for you and yours a Very Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous new year. We thank you for your patronage in the past and hope you will allow us to continue to serve you in the coming years.

Peggy O'Neill, Dainty Danseuse, Makes Favorite Dessert

This charming young actress is quite as proud of her culinary triumphs as of her success on the stage. This is an orange tapioca cream she has just made for which recipe is given below.

FOOD with freshness and tang is not only a health essential as a balance to heavy winter menus, but makes a delicious change. And with plentiful supplies of delicious, healthful citrus fruits on hand there are a number of appetizing desserts which can be prepared quickly and economically. When one of these makes its appearance, there won't be any half empty plates sent away from the table.

All these desserts supply the family with the tonic, refreshing citrus fruits. They have the wholesome, easily digested quick cooking tapioca as well as the eggs, milk or cream to make them as good for the three-year-old as for the grown-ups. These desserts may be served in a large dish. An added touch of daintiness is given by service in individual sherbet glasses, garnished with sections of fresh fruit.

Orange Cream Dessert

1/2 cup sugar 1 egg white, stiffly beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon orange cooking tapioca or vanilla extract
1 quart milk, scalded 4 oranges, sections free from membrane
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
Add tapioca, sugar, salt to milk. Cook in double boiler 15 minutes, until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Pour small amount of tapioca mixture over egg yolk, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire; fold in egg white and flavoring. Place few sections of orange in bottom of serving dish and cover with tapioca mixture. Garnish with whipped cream. Serves eight.

St. Clement's Tapioca Cream

3 tablespoons sugar 3/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt 1 lemon and 1/4 orange
4 1/2 tablespoons quick cooking 1 lemon and 1 tapioca orange, sections free from membrane
2 cups milk
1 egg, slightly beaten

Add tapioca, sugar, and salt to milk. Cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Pour small amount of mixture slowly over egg, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire. Add grated lemon and orange rinds. Cool. For sauce boil fruit juices and sugar together three minutes. Add orange and lemon sections, and cook three minutes longer. Chill. Pour small amount of sauce over each portion; fast before it is served. Serves eight.

Luscious Grapefruit Pudding

1/2 cup quick cooking 2 grapefruit, sections free from membrane
1 1/2 cups hot water
1/4 cup sugar 1 orange, sections free from membrane
1 cup grapefruit juice
Add tapioca to water and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar and grapefruit juice. Pour over grapefruit sections. Chill. Garnish with sections of orange. Serves six.

International Sunday School Lesson for January 4

JOHN THE BAPTIST

Luke 1:8-79

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

During the coming six months the lessons will be on the life of Christ and the Scripture will be from Luke's Gospel. From July to December we will study about the Early Church as recorded in Acts and the Epistles.

John the Baptist was six months older than Jesus. Announcement of his coming was made to aged Zacharias, the priest, when he was offering incense in the Holy Place in the temple at Jerusalem. That privilege was determined by lot and many priests never had that distinction, for there were so many of them. The 90 year old man could not believe what the angel Gabriel said and was made speechless as a sign until after the baby was born. When Zacharias came forth to pronounce the benediction on the people who had been waiting in the court his lips moved but no sound was heard. They "perceived that he had seen a vision in the Temple." That should be the objective each time we go to worship in God's house. After the announcement came to the Virgin Mary she went to visit her relative Elizabeth, for she had been told that she too, though advanced in years, would bear a son. The unborn John gave signs of life when Mary came in and it was just then that Mary uttered the Magnificat in thanksgiving.

When they came to circumcise the baby John all would call him after the father-Zacharias. Elizabeth said he should be called John, and when the father was asked they handed him a writing tablet but his speech came back just then and he said "John." The nature and work of John were described in the Benedictus, a song that Zacharias gave at the time and in the prophecy of Gabriel when the birth was announced.

According to President A. E. Dickinson of the Indiana Limestone Company, only two small losses occurred during the transportation of the vast quantity of material required for these two buildings, which are important units in the great government building program now under way in the national capital.

In Arkansas a lecture on "What to Eat" was postponed because the lecturer had an attack of indigestion.

The Presbyterian Church was slightly damaged by fire last Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Mason Pattill from the Womans College in Montgomery is spending the Christmas holidays with her parents in Billingsley.

The wedding of Miss Florence Corcoran of Uniontown to Mr. Gaston Robinson of Clanton came as a complete surprise to the many friends of the young couple, both here and in the home of the bride.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as its tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any sensation of bad breath. Whenever a child can't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Boy Scout Activities of Clanton

Dan Smith, Troop Reporter

Troop Meeting Friday, December 19

In order to have Mr. Seigwald, the Scout Executive, with us at a troop meeting the boys meeting was held Friday night instead of Thursday.

Lamar Calloway, a former Boy Scout, was also present at this meeting. While waiting for Mr. Seigwald to arrive, Mr. Calloway drilled a few requirements of the second class test. The interest shown by the Scouts proved their eagerness to advance from the first class to second class ranks. Mr. Calloway drilled us on using the knot and the proper use of the knife and hatchet, and drilled us on tying bandages. We also played a game called boxing the compass. The Boy Scouts present formed a ring and each fellow represented one of the 16 principal points of the compass, then Mr. Seigwald would tell us to move for places to the right and then he would see if each fellow was in his right place. After this the troop was dismissed by repeating the Scout Oath.

Monday morning, between the hours of ten and eleven o'clock a group of Boy Scouts assembled at Lamar Calloway's house to pass the fifth requirement of the second class test, which is to go one mile in 12 minutes at Scout pace which is to go 50 (or 25) paces walking and 50 (or 25) paces running. Doing this alternately. The following Scouts passed this requirement: Dan Smith, Phillip Nelson, Hal Broadhead, Lawrence Gerald, Jr., John Thomas Marlor, Donald Poe, Joe Moore, Wesley Danforth, Grady Reynolds, Morgan Reynolds.

Mrs. Willie G. Gibson of Newark asked a divorce from her husband charging that he was supposed to attend night school only two nights each week, but insisted on going out every night.

It is hoped that every pastor in the county will tell his congregations of the need of the county.

Concord-Billingsley

Our pastor, Rev. Larce Headley, filled his appointment Sunday and delivered wonderful messages both Sunday morning and Sunday night. Sunday morning he talked from Mark 8:36-37, "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul," "or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul." Sunday night he had as his subject, "The Love of God." The services were well attended both Sunday and Sunday night and the C. E. program was very commendable.

Little Lena Pearl Shaw, who is attending school in Coosa County, returned home Sunday afternoon to spend the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Buzbee and family were in Clanton Thursday shopping.

Miss Gladys Culver was the dinner guest of her aunt, Mrs. Fonza Williams, Sunday.

Miss Doris Waites spent the latter part of last week with Misses Connie and Sallie Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Williams and family of Fairview community spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. O. Y. Sims.

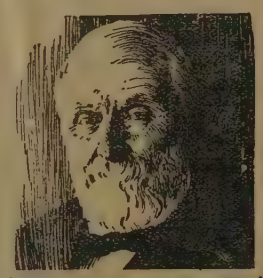

Mr. T. J. and Miss Norine Headley of Pleasant Grove community attended preaching service here Sunday and Sunday night, and took dinner at the home of Miss Virginia Little Sunday.

Mr. T. L. Williams took dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Williams last Sunday.

Mrs. Willie Tindall and children spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. J. F. Waites.

We have received $20.50 on the painting of our church. We wish to thank each and every one who took part in this contribution.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

BERRY BANK ROBBERY IS CONFESSED

State Officers Say Man Told Of Job Which Netted $100,000

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 21—State law enforcement officers announced Sunday that Herman Silas, 22, alias Harry Sherman, confessed that he singlehandedly looted the Bank of Berry at Berry, Ala., in which bank officials said $100,000 in cash and negotiable securities was taken.

J. W. McClung and L. P. Doss, the officers, said that Silas told them he burned his way into the bank vault with an acetylene torch on the night of November 19.

Held Without Bond

Silas was ordered held in the county jail here without bond on a charge of burglary in connection with the investigation charges following his arrest at Fayette two weeks ago.

A total of $22,000 in cash and approximately $85,000 in bonds and negotiable securities were taken in the burglary, officials of the bank said.

Prisoner Confesses

McClung said that the prisoner confessed shortly after an attempted jail break here during which Chief Deputy W. L. Huff was knocked unconscious in an altercation with three prisoners, including Silas.

Chief Deputy Huff went upstairs in the jail building at 8 a.m. Sunday to release six prisoners from a cage. He later told officers that he was struck over the head with a mop and knocked unconscious during a struggle in which he cried for help.

Janitor Halts Break

A negro janitor, employed in the jail, Richard Payne, heard the officer's cry for aid and found a pistol and held the six men at bay until outside officers could be summoned, McClung said.

Jail officers said that Sam Hiller, held on a distilling charge; Mitchell Channell, held on a forgery charge, and Silas participated in the attempted jail break.

Huff said that he was hit over the head after being told by a trusty that some steel saws were in the cell block. When he went to investigate the report he was hit over the head and forced to fight the prisoners, Huff said.

Robbery Described

According to the state officers Silas told them he entered the Bank of Berry through a front window, and took into the building a tank of acetylene gas and a cloth shield to hide the light from the outside.

Bonds and securities taken in the burglary were burned on the spot, McClung said the prisoner claimed in his reported confession.

Silas declined to reveal what had happened to the cash taken in the robbery and maintained throughout the day that he had no confederate working with him, McClung said.

The arrest of Silas several weeks ago at Fayette followed conversations by officers with Mrs. Joe Fant, 25, at Fayette. Mrs. Fant has been released under bond as a material witness in the bank burglary investigation.

The Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

We are stressing the importance of Sunday School work in our county. You should not let a Sunday pass without being in Sunday school somewhere. This is where you go to learn how to live.

Preaching at our church at 11 a.m. and 7 o'clock p.m. Hear the pastor next Sunday at both hours. At the morning hour we have a special subject: "The Seven Garments of God." Come at night and hear what you can hear. We urge the presence of the young people. All Sunday night messages will be of vital interest to young men and women.

Mrs. D. W. Haskew and W. E. Huddleston have been added to our church roll.

In addition to our work in Clanton, the pastor will preach each Tuesday night at Lay Dam and each Third Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the Isabella church.

Celebrate the last Sunday of 1930 by being at church Sunday morning and night.

Beauty's Worth It

Contrary to public opinion, most beautifying takes a lot of work and a lot of courage. Anyone who has had a permanent wave will testify to this. And any woman who has reduced her weight conscientiously will say amen.—Woman's Home Companion.

When Italo Pardini of San Francisco opened his butcher shop one morning, he found the following note left by thieves: "Here's your receipt for what we have taken, so you can keep your accounts straight."

Our Children

They are idols of hearts and of households;
They are angels of God in disguise;
His sunlight still sleeps in their tresses;
His glory still gleams in their eyes.

Oh, those truants from home and from heaven,
They have made me more manly and mild,
And I know now how Jesus could liken
The Kingdom of God to a child.

The Glorious Christmas of '76

had been made there remained another nine miles march to Trenton. By this time the temperature had dropped far below freezing and the troops were in a sorry plight, but they cheerfully resumed the march. The cold was so severe that two men froze to death that night. The suffering was intensified by the lack of suitable clothing, and a messenger to Washington was able to find the General by following the bloody footprints which his army left in the snow. Many of the muskets were so clogged with ice that they could not be fired, but by the time Trenton was reached the Americans, as one writer has suggested, would have charged with nothing but broomsticks. As it was, most of the fighting was done with the bayonet.

The battle did not last long. Colonel Rahl had underestimated the mettle of his opponent and had failed to erect fortifications or otherwise prepare for an attack. This mistake cost him his life and lost to Great Britain the services of a thousand hirelings. The Hessian commander bravely tried to form his men and resist the attack, but it was made so suddenly and so courageously that his tardy efforts were of no avail. This time Washington's victory was certain, and after only a few minutes of fighting the Germans all surrendered. The American casualties consisted of two or three men wounded, one of whom was Lieutenant James Monroe, later to become President of the United States.

Washington's hopes for the success of his enterprise were fully realized. His strategy and the heroism of his troops had the desired effect, for the waning spirits of the Americans were revived and the Revolution was saved. The British were forced to admit that they were opposed by a worthy foe and from this time forward their respect for his ability increased.
